Gentex Executive Vice President Kenneth LaGrand said he was somewhat disappointed in the third-quarter results and attributes the lesser sales to the soft automotive industry. However, he was pleased that the third-quarter results showed an increase in sales and net income over the second quarter of 1990. Gentex reported sales of $4.9 million with net income of $153,000, or 2 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1990.

"The increase from second to third quarter in sales and net income is largely due to the changeover to the 1991 model year," LaGrand said. "Although we lost volume with some of our customers because of declining automotive sales and the decreased option rate on some vehicles, we gained some of that back with the model-year changeover.

"As automotive vehicle production rates continue to recover, we hope to recoup some of the unit sales we have lost year to date because of the slump in the automotive industry."

LaGrand said that as of the start of the fourth quarter, automotive release schedules for automatic mirrors showed an increase of about 12 percent over the same period last year. The company shipped 107,000 automatic mirrors in the fourth quarter of 1989.

However, LaGrand cautioned that the unsettled conditions in the Middle East and the state of the U.S. economy could still cause further disruptions in automotive industry production schedules.

Gentex Corporation develops, manufactures and markets proprietary electro-optical products: interior/exterior electrochromic and motorized automatic mirrors for the automotive industry and an extensive line of fire protection products for commercial applications. Shares of Gentex common stock are traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol GNTX.

HUDSON, MASS. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Artel Communications Corporation today signed a Master Purchase Agreement with Teleport Communications Group, Inc. This agreement specifies Teleport Communications purchases for Artel's fiber optic SL3000 video transmission products: the modular chassis, video transmitters/ receivers, audio modulators/demodulators and alarm control units.

The Teleport Communications Group installs, maintains, and upgrades network systems that run over its private fiber optic lines to provide multi-service video, voice and data networking services to its customers. Teleport already uses the Artel Communications SL3000 system to transmit high-quality video signals from major television networks and international news services to uplink satellites located on Staten Island.

This new two-year Master Purchase Agreement expands the Artel/Teleport business relationship and helps Teleport continue to support video services customers in New York and Boston with the Artel SL3000 system. Teleport also anticipates expanding to provide services in the Chicago, Houston, San Francisco, and Los Angeles metropolitian areas to capitalize on the burgeoning demand for video transmission services for video conferencing, remote surveillance networks, studio to satellite links, and imaging applications.

Artel Communications Corporation is a manufacturer of high-speed fiber optic communications systems. Artel's video/graphics products provide high-quality signal transmission for broadcasting, computer graphics, and teleport applications. The FiberWay(R) LAN networking product provides multi-service networking capabilities for more than 1,500 systems worldwide.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard A. Auhll, president and chairman, today announced that the first nine months of 1990 set new all time Circon (NASDAQ-NMS: CCON) records for sales and gross profit. Moreover, nine month 1990 net income and earnings per share are up over 700 percent over the same 1989 period.

Sales for the third quarter 1990 were a record setting $12.8 million. Gross profit increased to $6.4 million, an all time high. Gross profit as a percentage of sales reached 50.2 percent, a post- acquisition record.

Third quarter 1990 operating income grew 30 percent to $669,000 and net income rose to $249,000. Earnings per share grew to 5 cents.

The rapidly developing minimally invasive surgical markets, coupled with Circon's solid franchise in the United States urology market, should provide excellent opportunities for future operating income growth.

Circon has introduced a complete new line of medical instrumentation specifically designed to allow the general surgeon to remove the gall bladder endoscopically using a new procedure called Video Laparascopic Cholecystectomy.

The surgeon performs the procedure through the navel and three small puncture wounds in the abdomen, while viewing the operation through a miniature video camera attached to a laparoscope.

This minimally invasive procedure results in significantly reduced patient trauma, better healing, much faster recovery, often no hospital stay and at half the cost of traditional procedures. This is due to much smaller incisions and reduced tissue damage.

Circon develops, manufactures and markets endoscope systems and ultraminiature video systems for medical and industrial applications and is the largest United States producer of medical endoscopes and video systems.

DARIEN, CT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bowater Incorporated (NYSE: BOW) today reported that its 1990 third quarter sale and income were slightly improved over those of the 1990 second quarter, although still below those of the comparable period of 1989.

Income for the three months ended Sept. 29, 1990 of $23.7 million ($0.63 per share) on sales of $346.6 million compared to net income of $35.5 million ($0.95 per share) on sales of $360.1 million in the third quarter of 1989, and to $23.2 million ($0.61 per share) on sales of $342.3 million in the second quarter of 1990.

Second quarter income is stated before an extraordinary charge of $9.0 million ($0.25 per share) taken to cover premium and related costs incurred to retire the outstanding 12-3/8 percent Sinking Fund Debentures due 2015.

For the nine months ended Sept. 29, 1990, income (before the extraordinary charge) of $69.1 million ($1.82 per share) on sales of $1,027.2 million compares to net income of $112.4 million ($3.00 per share) on sales of $1,082.3 million in the first nine months of 1989.

The effective tax rate for the year 1990 to date is 37.0 percent compared to 36.0 percent for 1989. With a strengthening balance sheet, total debt as a percentage of total capitalization at Sept. 29, 1990 was 24.1 percent compared to 28.2 percent one year earlier and 25.9 percent at the end of December, 1989.

"Price realizations for newsprint improved during the third quarter following the June first price increase," said A. P. Gammie, chairman and chief executive officer, "but not enough to offset the operating problems at the Calhoun, Tenn., Kraft mill and those arising from the modifications to the Nova Scotia paper machines to maximize the benefits of their all-thermomechanical-pulp furnish."

Pulp prices continued to weaken on the world markets although company volumes were improved by a slowly increasing stream of salable product from the Tennessee mill. Coated paper sales were almost unchanged from a year earlier as shipments made a marginal improvement. Meanwhile, the effects of a slowing economy and higher paper costs have reversed recent profitability gains in the communications papers segment.

"As usual, how the economy performs will affect our businesses significantly in the coming months. Increased energy costs do not have much effect on our mill operations but do impact on wood costs and distribution expenses," said Gammie. "On the plus side, continuing strikes in Canada are reducing the newsprint surplus; and the decline in the U.S. dollar will encourage increased exports at good levels of profitability."

Bowater Incorporated is a major manufacturer of newsprint, coated publication papers, bleached kraft market pulp, and a converter of communications papers for business.

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - United Cities Gas Co., (NASDAQ: UCIT), the Nashville area-based natural and propane gas distributor, announced today it has purchased the assets of Tri-City Gas Company in Chetopa, Kansas for approximately $800,000. The purchase comes less than a year after United Cities' acquisition of another Kansas utility, 65,000-customer Union Gas System, Inc.

"The Tri-City operation is adjacent to United Cities' present service area in southeastern Kansas and adds approximately 1,000 new customers," said Gene C. Koonce, president and chief executive officer. "We have been very pleased with the Union Gas properties we acquired last December and believe Kansas offers many opportunities for long-term growth."

Koonce pointed out that the company would continue to operate a branch office in Chetopa but will benefit from consolidating similar functions between the Tri-City operation and its Coffeyville, Kansas operation.

United Cities Gas Company has had a multi-state service area since its inception in the late 1920's and presently serves approximately 290,000 customers in parts of eleven states. The company is also engaged in other energy-related businesses.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - National Westminster Bancorp (NatWest Bancorp) today reported a consolidated net loss of $36.3 million for the third quarter of 1990 compared with a net loss of $106.3 million in the previous quarter. For the nine months to Sept. 30, the cumulative net loss was $126.5 million.

In the third quarter of 1989, a net loss of $113.5 million was reported, along with a cumulative net loss of $55.5 million for the nine months to Sept. 30, 1989.

The 1990 third quarter and nine months included provisions for loan losses of $101.6 million and $305.1 million, respectively. Commenting on the results, William T. Knowles, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Although the third quarter figures were an improvement on those reported for the second quarter, our business continues to be affected by the recessionary pressures in the economy. In particular, the poor condition of the real estate market and a continuing decline in the quality of our project finance portfolio led us to believe that a further strengthening of our reserve position was prudent. We will continue to ensure that its level appropriately reflects market conditions."

Net interest income was $185.8 million in the third quarter of 1990 compared with $175.5 million in 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, net interest income was $549.6 million, up 6 percent from $519.4 million a year ago. The increase in both periods was due to the inclusion of First National Bank of Central Jersey (Central Jersey), which was acquired on Aug. 18, 1989, as well as growth in domestic commercial and consumer loans and core deposits. Domestic loans grew by $1.5 billion from Sept. 30, 1989, to Sept. 30, 1990. Core deposits grew by $1.4 billion during the same period, with the passbook money market account, which was introduced in the fourth quarter of 1989, adding approximately $950 million. These gains were offset by an increase in domestic non-performing assets and a narrowing of interest rate spreads.

Net interest income on a tax equivalent basis as a percentage of average earning assets (net interest margin) was 3.93 percent in the third quarter and 3.95 percent for the first nine months of 1990 compared with 3.99 percent and 4.17 percent for the respective 1989 periods.

Non-interest income totalled $61.8 million in the third quarter of 1990, down from $75.8 million in 1989. For the nine months, non- interest income was $192.7 million compared with $206.0 million a year ago. Income from deposit services increased, and there was also a benefit from the addition of Central Jersey. However, these were partially offset by declines in loan fee income and a lower level of gains from investment portfolio securities sales. In addition, there was a reduction in financial services fees following the sale of NatWest NJ's mutual fund processing business in the third quarter of 1989.

Operating expenses were $177.5 million in the third quarter of 1990 compared with $171.0 million in 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, operating expenses were $577.0 million in 1990 and $505.4 million in 1989. The 1990 results include a $30 million addition to the reserve for other real estate owned in the second quarter, the impact of Central Jersey and an early retirement program at NatWest USA. Excluding these items, operating expenses increased less than 1 percent in both the third quarter and nine month periods. This reflects the benefits derived from various cost containment programs such as the rationalization of the New Jersey banks, the consolidation of certain key functions in the holding company and the sale of the mutual fund processing business.

The allowance for loan losses was $432.4 million or 2.74 percent of total loans outstanding at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $536.5 million or 3.61 percent of total loans outstanding at Sept. 30, 1989. In the third quarter of 1989, there was a special provision of $155 million for loans to certain countries with severe debt servicing problems (LDC's).

During the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, NatWest Bancorp completed sales of $384.1 million of LDC loans resulting in charge-offs of $267.2 million. This reduced total LDC outstandings to $35.0 million at Sept. 30, 1990, from $591.0 million at Sept. 30, 1989.

Non-performing assets, which consist of non-accrual loans, renegotiated loans and other real estate owned (net of the reserve) totalled $998.5 million at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $699.9 million at Sept. 30, 1989. The $298.7 million increase reflects a significantly higher level of domestic non-accrual loans brought about by a deterioration in the economy, especially with respect to the real estate market in the Northeast, and the addition of several project finance credits. This increase was partially offset by a reduced level of foreign non-accruals as a result of the LDC sales.

The provision for income taxes was $2.8 million in the third quarter compared with a credit for income taxes of $7.5 million in 1989. For the nine months the provision was $6.7 million in 1990 compared with $23.6 million in 1989. The 1990 year-to-date results reflect the recognition as extraordinary items of previously unrecorded tax benefits of $20.0 million on the LDC loan loss provisions in earlier years. The comparative figures for 1989 have been restated to include similar benefits received in that year (which related to the 1989 LDC provisions) as a reduction of income tax expense.

Equity capital at Sept. 30, 1990, was $1.8 billion, an $87.1 million increase from Sept. 30, 1989. During the third quarter of 1990 and the fourth quarter of 1989, National Westminster Bank PLC made capital contributions to NatWest Bancorp of $200 million and $110 million, respectively. These amounts were substantially reinvested in NatWest USA to maintain its capital ratios at appropriate levels following the LDC sales.

NatWest Bancorp is a wholly owned subsidiary of National Westminster Bank PLC, the London-based international banking and financial services organization.

NEW BRITAIN, CONN. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Burritt InterFinancial Bancorporation (NASDAQ: BANQ) today reported a loss for the third quarter of 1990 of $4,404,000 (a loss of $1.31 per share), compared to net income of $1,538,000 ($0.44 per share) for the third quarter of 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Burritt lost $1,667,000 (a loss of $0.49 per share), against net income of $4,016,000 ($1.15 per share) for the comparable period a year ago.

The loss for the quarter is attributable to a $6.4 million addition to the allowance for possible loan losses. This addition increased the provision for loan losses to $11.45 million at the end of September. As of Sept. 30, nonperforming assets totaled $42.2 million, or 6 percent of assets, as earlier projected.

According to John C. Jaynes, president and chief executive officer: "This quarter's loss follows 21 consecutive quarters of record earnings performances. With such a strong history and a solid capital position, we believe we're well prepared to cope effectively with the difficult environment in which we're operating."

Burritt InterFinancial Bancorporation currently serves central Connecticut with 11 offices in New Britain and in suburban Hartford communities.

NUTLEY, NJ (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Christiane Nsslein-Volhard, a top scientist at Germany's renowned Max Planck Institute for Developmental Biology received the 1990 V.D. Mattia Award from Hoffmann-La Roche for her outstanding contributions to biomedical research.

Among her most important discoveries was physical proof that genes provided by the mother (called maternal- effect genes) in the fruit fly egg determine the formation of the insect's body and its organs. By examining the embryonic development of the fruit fly in detail, Dr. Nsslein-Volhard has illuminated principles of genetics that may be applicable to development processes in other creatures.

Eight of the V. D. Mattia award winners have gone on to receive the Nobel prize. The V. D. Mattia Award, first presented in 1972, was established by the Roche Institute of Molecular Biology in 1971 in memory of V. D. Mattia, M.D. (1923-71), who, as president and chief executive officer of Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., played a key role in the Roche Institute's founding and development.

As part of its basic research mission, the Roche Institute in Nutley, which is supported entirely by funding from Roche, trains postdoctoral researchers from around the world, combining academic freedom with the scientific resources of a large research-intensive health care company.

Headquartered in Nutley, Hoffmann-La Roche is widely known for original research and development in the health care field. The company has produced numerous important prescription drugs and is a leader in biotechnology.

Roche also provides a wide range of diagnostic products and clinical laboratory services and is a major producer of pure bulk vitamins and medicinal products used in the food, pharmaceutical, cosmetic, and animal health fields. In addition, the company recently launched a new business that provides infusion therapy for patients who can be treated outside of the hospital.

#90291p6439 10/18/1990 ~PR Newswire

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Primerica Corporation (NYSE: PA) today announced that earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 totaled $94.0 million, or $0.82 per share, vs. $78.3 million, or $0.80 per share, for the 1989 period. Revenues were $1.503 billion compared with $1.470 billion for the quarter last year.

For the first nine months of 1990, net income was $274.1 million, up from $193.1 million for the 1989 period, and earnings per share were $2.38, up 20 percent from $1.98 in the prior year period. Revenues were $4.499 billion versus $4.110 billion. Earnings per share are based on 116.9 million and 117.3 million average common and equivalent shares in the 1990 third quarter and nine months and 98.8 million and 99.1 million shares in the 1989 periods.

Sanford I. Weill, Primerica's chairman and chief executive officer, said, "For the past 21 months, we have devoted our attention to developing a stable and recurring earnings base, building our balance sheet strength and improving the quality of our assets, efforts which resulted this year in an upgrade by Standard & Poor's and Moody's in our long-term debt and commercial paper ratings. We expect our Consumer Finance and A.L. Williams operations to continue delivering sizable and growing earnings contributions, which cushion the impact on Primerica's earnings of the cyclical results in Smith Barney's businesses. We intend to continue evaluating all our businesses in the difficult environment ahead, and will make whatever adjustments become necessary to sustain profitability and adapt to the economic realities of the marketplace for our products."

Consumer Services Consumer Finance earnings rose 29 percent to $42.6 million in the 1990 third quarter on revenues of $253.3 million. This compares with earnings and revenues of $32.9 million and $181.9 million, respectively, for the 1989 quarter.

This earnings gain reflects a substantial increase in receivables, attributable to internal growth as well as the March 1, 1990 acquisition of BarclaysAmerican/Financial's consumer lending operation and its approximately $1 billion portfolio. At Sept. 30, 1990, net receivables reached $5.004 billion, up from $3.410 billion at the end of the 1989 third quarter.

The portfolio's average yield in the 1990 quarter was 16.88 percent compared with 17.26 percent in last year's period, while the average net interest margin was 8.62 percent vs. 9.09 percent. The charge-off rate was 2.40 percent and 2.46 percent in the 1990 and 1989 third quarters, respectively. The declines in average yield, net interest margin and charge-off rate are predominantly a result of the change in receivables mix brought about by the addition of the Barclays portfolio, which was weighted toward real estate-secured loans.

Commented Weill, "We are pleased with the smooth integration and on-going performance of the Barclays business. Our earnings base has increased, our geographic distribution is broader, and we have a better balance between personal loans and loans secured by residential real estate."

Primerica's 71 percent-owned Fingerhut direct marketing subsidiary earned $7.6 million for the quarter, before minority interest of $2.2 million, on revenues of $279.4 million. This compares to net earnings of $6.2 million on revenues of $258.5 million for the 1989 period. These higher earnings resulted from improved operating efficiencies, good customer response and improved product margins.

Primerica Corporation is a diversified financial services company principally engaged in life, credit, accident & health, and property & casualty insurance, investment banking and securities brokerage, mortgage banking, mutual funds, asset management, consumer lending and direct marketing. PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bell Atlantic Corp. (NYSE: BEL) today reported third-quarter earnings of $.91 per share, a 5.8 percent increase over the $.86 per share for the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, earnings per share were $2.73, compared with $2.57 for the same period last year, a 6.2 percent increase. All per-share amounts reflect a two-for-one stock split effective April 10.

Net income for the quarter was $358.4 million, a 4.2 percent increase over the $344.1 million recorded for the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $1,076.5 million, a 5.9 percent increase over the $1,016.6 million for the corresponding period last year.

"Volumes in our telephone companies continued to grow in the quarter, despite spotty weaknesses in our regional economy, demonstrating the overall strength of the services-based businesses in the mid-Atlantic region," said Bell Atlantic Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Raymond W. Smith.

"Revenues also reflected continued growth in volumes in our non-telephone businesses, as well as the impact of acquisitions by our Bell Atlantic Business Systems Services and Bell Atlanticom units."

Total operating revenues for the quarter were up 6.5 percent to $3.10 billion from $2.91 billion for the corresponding quarter a year ago. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, total operating revenues were $9.19 billion, an increase of 7.4 percent over the $8.56 billion reported for the same period in 1989.

Business access lines increased 5.1 percent for the quarter over the third quarter of 1989, while total access lines grew 3.2 percent, reaching nearly 17.3 million. Interstate minutes of use increased 5.4 percent over the same quarter last year.

Total operating expenses for the third quarter were $2.42 billion, compared with $2.30 billion for the corresponding quarter in 1989, an increase of 5.2 percent. Expense levels reflect modest increases at the network telephone companies, expanded business activity in other subsidiaries, and the acquisitions of Control Data Corp.'s third-party maintenance business on Jan. 3, the mid-Atlantic regional operations of Northern Telecom's Meridian Business Systems Group on June 4, and Simborg Systems Corp. on July 18.

Interest expense increased due, in part, to debt incurred to finance the acquisition of Telecom Corp. of New Zealand by Bell Atlantic and its partner Ameritech (NYSE: AIT) on Sept. 12. "We don't anticipate any material impact on earnings during this first year of our acquisition of New Zealand Telecom," said Smith. "We are very pleased with this investment, and we expect that this ownership interest will significantly enhance shareowner value going forward."

PROVIDENCE, RI (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Textron, Inc. (NYSE: TXT) reported higher third quarter net income of $66.6 million, or 75 cents per share, compared with $59.5 million, or 66 cents per share, in the third quarter of 1989, B.F. Dolan, chairman and chief executive officer, announced today. Revenues in the third quarter increased to $1.9 billion from $1.7 billion in 1989.

Dolan said, "Operating income increased about 17 percent as a result of improved performance on contracts in the Aerospace Technology sector." He said "Despite the weakening economy, results of the Commercial Products segment benefitted from improved margins and the Financial Services sector reflected continued strength in the finance and related insurance businesses."

He added, "Textron looks forward to good results for the full year, despite uncertainties stemming from world events and the slowdown in our domestic economy."

Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were $5.8 billion, up from $5.4 billion in 1989. Net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $204.9 million, or $2.28 per share, up from $182.1 million, or $2.06 per share, in 1989 after an extraordinary loss of $9.5 million, or 11 cents per share.

This increase was achieved despite unfavorable foreign exchange included in corporate expenses, higher interest expense reflecting increased borrowings and a higher income tax rate.

As a result of the previously reported Federal Trade Commission preliminary injunction relative to Textron's acquisition of Avdel in early 1989, Textron is precluded from consolidating Avdel's earnings with Textron's results of operations.

Operating income of the Commercial Products sector for the first nine months of 1990 included dividends of $6.7 million received from Avdel. Interest expense on the borrowings related to the purchase of Avdel was $15.8 million in the first nine months of 1990, compared with $16.4 million in 1989.

Textron is a multi-industry company with operations focused in three business sectors - Aerospace Technology, Commercial Products, and Financial Services.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - ITT Corporation (NYSE: ITT) announced today that net income for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990 increased over 1989 levels.

Net income for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 rose to $224 million, or $1.63 per share on a fully diluted basis, over the $221 million, or $1.46 per share, in the 1989 third quarter. Per share earnings increased 12 percent, aided by the company's share repurchase program.

On a primary basis, net income per share for the quarter was $1.73 compared to the $1.55 in the 1989 quarter.

Net income for the 1990 third quarter included a charge of $26 million after-tax, or 19 cents per fully diluted share for the write-off of ITT Sheraton loans to a hotel property. Excluding this one-time item, income per share rose 25 percent in a fully diluted basis.

Consolidated sales and revenues for the third quarter totalled $5.0 billion, up from the $4.9 billion in the 1989 quarter.

"Despite softness in certain segments, our overall business continues to perform well in a recessionary economic environment," Rand V. Araskog, ITT chairman and chief executive said.

Net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $874 million, or $6.20 on a fully diluted basis, a 37 percent increase over the $665 million, or $4.51 reported for the comparable 1989 period.

On a primary basis, net income per share was $6.61 for the first nine months of 1990, or 42 percent higher than the $4.65 per share in the same period for 1989.

In addition to the previously mentioned write-off in the third quarter, the 1990 nine month period included a gain of $139 million, or 99 cents per share on the company's sale of 7 percent of Alcatel in the second quarter and a gain of $47 million, or 33 cents per share, on the sale of ITT's investment in Compagnie Generale d'Electricite in the first quarter of 1990.

The 1989 nine month period included a gain of $18 million, or 12 cents per share on the sale of ITT's European Headquarters facility and a write-off of $28 million, or 19 cents per share for ITT Hartford's investment in Thomson McKinnon Inc.

Consolidated sales and revenues for the nine months totalled $15.2 billion as compared to $15.0 billion in the year-ago period.

DEERFIELD, IL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Baxter International Inc. (NYSE: BAX) today reported third quarter sales of $2.0 billion, a 12 percent increase over the 1989 third quarter. Operating income increased 30 percent to $254 million.

Net income increased 32 percent to $135 million and earnings per common share increased 35 percent to 46 cents. Net income and earnings per common share for the third quarter of 1989 were $102 million and 34 cents.

''These results are excellent, consistent with the program we laid out earlier this year to improve operating income,'' said Vernon R. Loucks Jr., chairman and chief executive officer. ''They also reflect continuing strength in our overseas markets and in our alternate-site businesses.''

Sales for the first nine months of 1990 were $5.9 billion. The company reported a net loss for this period of $138 million or 74 cents per common share. This loss resulted from a pre-tax provision of $566 million to cover the cost of the company's previously announced restructuring program. Sales, net income and earnings per common share for the first nine months of 1989 were $5.4 billion, $307 million and $1.03.

Domestic sales for the third quarter were approximately $1.5 billion; sales from international markets were $492 million. For the first nine months, domestic sales were approximately $4.5 billion and international sales were $1.4 billion. International sales growth in local currency was approximately 12 percent for the quarter and 13 percent for the first nine months, reflecting particular strength in the renal therapy business.

Baxter International Inc. is the leading worldwide manufacturer and marketer of health-care products, systems and services. It offers 120,000 products to health-care providers in 100 countries.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Infertility specialists at Mount Sinai Medical Center of Greater Miami have discovered what could become a revolutionary treatment for endometriosis, a disease of the female reproductive system that is a leading cause of infertility. Millions of women worldwide suffer from the condition.

Mount Sinai researchers believe that, based on animal studies, women with endometriosis can become pregnant using Pentoxifylline, a drug commonly used to treat circulatory disorders.

Dr. Alex Steinleitner, a specialist in reproductive endocrinology in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Mount Sinai, presented his findings here today at the annual meeting of the American Fertility Society. Dr. Steinleitner's work received the top prize of the prestigious assembly of infertility experts.

Endometriosis, also known as "career women's," occurs when normal endometrial tissue grows in abnormal locations in the ovaries, fallopian tubes and abdominal cavity. The condition is especially prevalent in women who have delayed pregnancy until their 30s.

"My research is a radical departure for the treatment of endometriosis," said Dr. Steinleitner. "Currently, women have two options: Either surgery or medication taken over a six-month period which produces uncomfortable side effects. Neither treatment addresses the cause of the problem, and neither guarantees fertility."

Dr. Steinleitner conducted the research with the assistance of his colleagues at Mount Sinai, Dr. Bernard Cantor, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology; and Drs. Juergen Eisermann and Hovey Lambert.

Researchers devised animal models for endometriosis and found that, similar to women with the disease, they were unable to get pregnant. Steinleitner discovered that by treating the animals for four days each month with Pentoxifylline, they became fertile.

In devising this new treatment, Steinleitner focused on the activity of small, white blood cells called macrophages, which act within the female reproductive system each month to prevent infection and clean up menstrual tissue and debris. Researchers believe that in women with endometriosis, macrophages become hyperactive, interfering with fertility and the growth of a healthy embryo.

Steinleitner theorized that by altering the immune system with medication, he could deactivate macrophage activity during ovulation and, as a result, prevent macrophages from interfering with fertility.

Mount Sinai plans to begin a double-blind study by January of the effects of Pentoxifylline on women with endometriosis who are trying to get pregnant. For six months, the women will be given either a placebo or the drug which they will take for four days during ovulation. During the study, the women will be artificially inseminated to maximize their chances of achieving pregnancy.

BOSTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Colonial Group, Inc. (NASAQ: COGRA) announced today earnings and revenues for the third quarter of 1990.

Third Quarter Results Earnings. For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, earnings totalled $2.9 million. This represents a decrease of $0.2 million or 6 percent compared to $3.1 million earned for the same period last year.

Revenues. Revenues were $19.9 million for the third quarter of 1990. This represents an increase of $1.3 million or 7 percent compared to revenues of $18.6 million for the same period last year.

Earnings per share. Earnings per share were 37 cents for the third quarter this year vs. 39 cents last year.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, John A. McNeice, Jr. made these comments:

Revenues this year were adversely affected by an 8 percent decline in assets under management, largely caused by the decline in the securities markets. Sales promotion expenses increased this year because of increased competitive conditions.

Mutual fund sales in the first nine months of 1990 were $824 million. Last year, sales were $1,144 million, including $558 million in sales from three closed-end funds. Redemptions exceeded sales by $41 million this year; sales exceeded redemptions by $60 million in the same period last year.

Total assets under management were $7.6 billion at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $8.2 billion at Dec. 31, 1989.

Three quarterly dividends of 10 cents per share have been paid to shareholders in 1990.

Our balance sheet continues to be very strong. Stockholder equity was $52.9 million at Sept. 30, 1990, including cash and investments of $36.8 million. Bank debt was $3 million.

Our goal of a moderate gain in profits this year over last year will not be achieved without a sharp recovery in the securities markets in the fourth quarter.

LINCOLNSHIRE, ILL. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Morgan Products Ltd. (NYSE: MGN) today announced earnings of $466,000 or $.06 per share for the three months ended Sept. 29, 1990 compared to $171,000 or $.02 per share for the same period last year. These higher earnings were reported on a 1 percent decrease in net sales to $110,591,000. For the nine months ended Sept. 29, 1990, the company reported a 3 percent decline in net sales, with a slight increase in net income to $2,088,000, from $2,065,000, or $.25 per share for both periods.

The company's third quarter profits were influenced favorably by an improvement in gross margin of Morgan manufactured products and an increase in the percent of products shipped from the company's distribution centers, which produce a higher margin than products shipped directly from the manufacturer to its customers. Operating expenses during the third quarter increased over the same period last year, principally due to increases in sales employment costs and promotion-related expenditures. Partially offsetting these increases in operating expenses was both a continued reduction in interest expense due to reductions in average borrowings and the interest rates on these borrowings.

Company management was generally pleased with the improvement in the third quarter results compared with the same period in 1989. However, management remains concerned about the increasing weakness in housing starts, which has caused significant competitive pressures and softening of the general economy, exacerbated by the U.S. involvement in the Mideast. Housing starts during the first eight months of 1990 were reported to have decreased by 16.1 percent on a seasonally adjusted annual rate in comparison with the same period last year, adversely impacting sales of both products distributed by the company and manufactured products shipped from the company's Oshkosh, Wis., facility. This adverse situation has been partially offset by the company's successful sales thrust into the growing home center sector of the repair and remodeling market.

Morgan Products Ltd., a leading manufacturer and distributor of specialty building products, operates three business units. The business units are: Morgan Distribution, a regional wholesale distributor of specialty building products, primarily millwork, including windows and doors; Morgan Manufacturing, a national manufacturer which makes and sells premium exterior and interior doors and entrance systems under the brand names Morgan and Nicolai; and Morgan Technologies, a developer of software systems for use by specialty building products dealers.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Colgate-Palmolive achieved strong sales and earnings growth for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 and the year to date.

Third Quarter

Sales were up 16 percent to $1.46 billion. Earnings before interest & taxes (EBIT) were up 19 percent to $145.3 million. Net income was up 10 percent to $84.4 million. Earnings per common share were up 13 percent to $1.20 versus $1.06.

First Nine Months

Sales were up 12 percent to $ 4.21 billion. Earnings before interest & taxes (EBIT) were up 21 percent to $434.6 million. Net income was up 14 percent to $247.6 million. Earnings per common share were up 14 percent to $3.53 versus $3.09.

"We're delighted with the strong worldwide sales growth. Unit volume rose 6 percent in the third quarter, as we intensify our strategic programs to expand new products globally, enter new geographic markets, particularly Eastern Europe, and add incremental business through acquisitions," said Reuben Mark, Colgate chairman, president and chief executive officer.

"The healthy sales growth achieved, combined with our ongoing focus on profitability, led to the 19 percent increase in earnings before interest and taxes for the third quarter."

Colgate continues to raise the profitability of its worldwide operations, as indicated by the upward trend in gross profit margin, to 44.8 percent of sales from 44.4 percent in the third quarter of 1989. The combined benefits of margin expansion and currency appreciation in Europe were partially offset by higher interest expense, mainly resulting from recent acquisitions. The total dilution related to acquisitions was approximately $.09 per share for the third quarter and $.19 per share for the first nine months. The current quarter was also favorably impacted by a lower effective tax rate.

Colgate's worldwide household and personal care operations generated broad-based growth for the quarter, with notable earnings advances from Colgate-Europe and Colgate-U.S. Growing momentum in Europe reflects heightened new products activity and increased sales to Eastern Europe, including the former East Germany. Successful new products include Colgate Gum Protection Formula toothpaste and Ajax microemulsion floor cleaner. Currency appreciation versus the U.S. dollar benefited sales and profits for the quarter. Strong volume growth continued in the Western Hemisphere, where increases in Mexico and Colombia and the addition of the Javex Companies in Canada more than offset the anticipated decline in Brazil.

Colgate-Palmolive Company (NYSE: CL) is a leading global consumer products company focusing on the core businesses of oral care, body care, household surface care, fabric care and animal dietary care. INDIANAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Some 30 years after the movie industry changed to widescreen images, a leading participant in the television receiver industry announced plans today to introduce TV sets with a new 16X9 widescreen aspect ratio.

Bernard Isautier, chairman and chief executive officer of Thomson Consumer Electronics, said the first consumer widescreen receivers will be offered in France early next year. The new 34-inch (diagonal) sets will be capable of displaying either movie-like 16X9 format or conventional 4X3 images which have been used by the worldwide television industry since 1946.

Speaking at a dinner Wednesday night celebrating the production of the 50 millionth RCA brand color TV set at the company's Bloomington, Ind., plant, Isautier said the transition to widescreen television will provide "a more natural viewing dimension for programs such as movies and sporting events that require a full screen."

Thomson, the fourth-largest consumer electronics company in the world, is the first producer to offer 16X9 widescreen models within a reasonable price range Isautier noted. "The company's progress in HDTV development work, along with that of other European companies participating in the Eureka technology program, will allow an orderly transition to the ultimate goal of higher resolution HDTV receivers, also in the same 16X9 widescreen format."

HDTV developments in the United States are moving toward the testing stage with the Federal Communications Commission expected to select a terrestrial system in 1993. Six systems are currently scheduled for testing -- five simulcast systems and one EDTV system similar in performance to that being offered in Europe early next year.

Thomson Consumer Electronics, with its worldwide television business headquartered in Indianapolis, is the successor company to the RCA and GE consumer electronics businesses. The company's Bloomington plant is the largest television receiver plant in the world.

Anticipating the transition to the 16X9 widescreen size in the United States, Thomson has invested over $150 million in expanding its Marion, Ind., picture tube plant and its Circleville, Ohio, glass plant for the manufacture of larger picture tubes.

The first 16X9 receivers for the European market will sell for some $6,000, which includes a value-added tax. The price also includes a built-in satellite tuner, satellite decoder and 13-inch receiving dish, cables and in-home delivery and installation.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - PaineWebber Group Inc. (NYSE: PWJ) reported today that earnings per share for the third quarter of 1990, after deducting preferred stock dividends, were $0.15 compared to $0.41 per share for the same quarter last year.

Net earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $9,566,000, compared to $16,832,000 for the third quarter last year. Revenues, including net interest, were $432,954,000, a 3 percent decrease from revenues of $444,878,000 for the comparable period a year ago. Total expenses for the 1990 third quarter, excluding interest expense, increased 1 percent from the 1989 third quarter to $423,750,000.

For the first nine months of 1990, PaineWebber's earnings per share were $0.70 versus $0.85 in the comparable period a year ago. PaineWebber's net earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $34,995,000 versus net earnings of $41,098,000 reported in the first nine months of 1989.

At Sept. 30, 1990, shareholders' equity was $1.00 billion and PaineWebber's total capital was $1.64 billion.

Donald B. Marron, chairman and chief executive officer of PaineWebber, said, "We continue to be pleased with our progress in retail sales, asset management and fixed income, with these units showing improved earnings over the 1989 third quarter. However, this year's third quarter earnings were adversely impacted by convertible preferred, high yield and risk arbitrage trading results versus the comparable period in 1989, as well as the industrywide softness in investment banking. The 1990 quarter's results were positively affected by a year-to-date tax adjustment."

The firm's asset gathering strategy continues to be successful, with total retail customer assets in PaineWebber accounts at $69.0 billion as of Sept. 30 1990, versus $62.9 billion as of Sept. 30, 1989.

PaineWebber Group Inc., together with its subsidiaries, PaineWebber Incorporated and PaineWebber International, serves the investment and capital needs of a worldwide client base. The firm employs approximately 13,100 people in 273 offices worldwide.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Schlumberger Limited (NYSE: SLB) today reported third quarter net income of $147 million compared to $114 million earned in the same quarter of the previous year, an increase of 29 percent. Earnings per share were $0.62 vs. $0.48 in the previous year and also grew at 29 percent. Operating revenue in the third quarter was $1.32 billion compared with $1.11 billion in the prior year, an increase of 20 percent.

For the first nine months of 1990, net income was $421 million, $1.77 per share, compared to $288 million, $1.22 per share, reported in the previous year, excluding $35 million of extraordinary and unusual gains in 1989.

Euan Baird, chairman, stated, "The momentum established during the first half of 1990 continued to push oilfield activity ahead worldwide. Total revenue in the oilfield was up 21 percent while active drilling rig count was up 8 percent. Introduction of new services continues to have a favorable impact on revenues."

With regard to the Middle East, he further cited, "The invasion of Kuwait by Iraq on Aug. 2 has created many political and economic uncertainties whose short-term effects on our business are impossible to predict. In the longer term, however, the chronic political instability of the Middle East should spur increased exploration and development for oil elsewhere."

HARRINGTON PARK, NJ (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - United Water Resources (NYSE: UWR) today reported net income of $5.7 million for the third quarter of 1990, an increase of 16 percent from the comparable period in 1989. Net income per share for the quarter was 34 cents, up from 30 cents a year ago. Operating revenues for the third quarter of 1990 were $40.4 million, versus $37.1 million for the third quarter of 1989.

United Water's earnings for the nine months ending September 30, 1990 were $9.9 million, a one percent increase from the same period a year ago. Net income per common share for the nine months ending September 30 was 60 cents, compared to 59 cents for the same period a year earlier.

Robert A. Gerber, United Water's chairman and chief executive officer, attributed year to date financial performance to fairly consistent demand by water utility customers as well as to a contract allowing its principal subsidiary, Hackensack Water Company, to convey rights permitting a 32-acre tract of its property to be used as a golf course.

"Water revenues perked up during the third quarter of this year compared to last year as a result of seasonal demand coupled with the effects of a rate adjustment received by Hackensack Water Company in December 1989," said Gerber.

"Frequent summer showers tempered water usage throughout our service area and we enter the fourth quarter with reservoirs well stocked to meet anticipated customer demands." Gerber noted that last year's above average rainfall drenched the watershed during the lawn sprinkling season and depressed customer demand for water, thus lowering utility revenues in 1989.

United Water Resources is a holding company engaged in water-related businesses and real estate. Its utility subsidiaries, Hackensack and Spring Valley water companies, serve over one million people in New Jersey and New York.

United Water's real estate subsidiary, Rivervale Realty Company, operates in northern New Jersey and southeastern New York. Rivervale owns approximately 1,300 acres of land which is in various stages of the subdivision and approval process. United Water has paid continuous cash dividends on common stock since 1886.

GREENWICH, CT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - UST Inc. (NYSE: UST) today announced that primary earnings per share for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 increased 18 percent to 52 cents per share, compared with 44 cents per share for the similar 1989 period. Primary earnings per share for the first nine months of 1990 also rose 18 percent to $1.48 per share, vs. $1.25 per share for the corresponding 1989 period.

Third quarter net earnings were $59 million, a 15 percent gain over $51.5 million for the similar 1989 period. For the first nine months of 1990, net earnings rose 16 percent to $168.6 million, compared with $145.5 million for the corresponding 1989 period.

Net sales for the third quarter increased 13 percent to $196.9 million, vs. $173.7 million for the similar 1989 period. For the first nine months of 1990 net sales were $563.2 million, a 12 percent increase compared with $504.4 million for the corresponding 1989 period.

The Tobacco and Wine segments posted sales gains for both the third- quarter and nine-month periods, while revenues for the other segment declined. Moist smokeless tobacco sales were primarily responsible for the increase in the Tobacco segment.

Domestic unit volume for moist smokeless tobacco products increased 4.8 percent in the third quarter to 140.5 million cans., compared with the similar period in 1989. Unit volume for the first nine months of 1990, which includes the effect of one less shipping day, increased 5.1 percent to 408.7 million cans. On an equivalent shipping day basis unit volume would have increased by 6.1 percent.

Earnings for the nine-month period of 1990 include a pretax gain of $3 million amounting to 2 cents per share, resulting from the early termination of a licensing agreement for the distribution of certain imported pipe tobaccos. These pipe tobaccos represented less than 1 percent of the company's annual consolidated net sales.

Through its subsidiaries, UST is a leading producer and marketer of moist smokeless tobacco products, including Copenhagen, Skoal, Skoal Long Cut, and Skoal Bandits. Other consumer products marketed by its subsidiaries include premium wines sold nationally under the Chateau Ste. Michelle, Columbia Crest, Conn Creek and Villa Mt. Eden labels. UST subsidiaries also manufacture or market quality pipes and imported pipe tobacco, imported cigars, and other tobacco-related products.

HARRISBURG, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Keystone Financial, Inc. (NASDAQ: KSTN), a Pennsylvania multi-bank holding company with branches from the New York to Maryland borders, today reported record results for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

"We believe that these results are primarily attributable to the execution of well-conceived plans and strategies that are built on a foundation of conservative financial management and outstanding asset quality," Carl L. Campbell, president and chief executive officer, said. "We enter the final quarter of 1990 pleased by what we have accomplished to date and optimistic about our future prospects."

Third quarter net income rose 12 percent to $8,256,000 or 57 cents per share from $7,400,000 or 51 cents per share for the same period last year.

For the nine months, net income increased to $23,998,000 or $1.65 from $21,820,000 or $1.48 for the comparable 1989 period, an 11 percent gain in earnings per share.

Assets at Sept. 30, 1990, totaled $2,673,996,000 versus $2,582,590,000 at the same date last year. Deposits climbed to $2,334,882,000 from $2,256,150,000 at Sept. 30, 1989, while loans rose to $1,823,998,000 from $1,709,383,000 during the same period. For the first nine months of 1990, return on average assets was 1.23 percent and return on average equity was 15.33 percent.

HIGH POINT, NC (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert G. Culp, III, chief executive officer of Culp, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CULP), today announced the decision to implement an expansion which will effectively double the company's manufacturing capacity for damask ticking.

Funds for the project constitute the major portion of an increase of $4.5 million, or approximately 50 percent, in the company's capital spending plans for fiscal 1991.

The incremental spending has been approved by the company's Board of Directors and will raise Culp's capital expenditures for the year to a projected $14.0 million. That amount would be second in size only to the $16.3 million in capital spent in fiscal 1988.

Culp commented, "As one of our two core businesses, mattress ticking serves as a key focus of our overall strategic planning. We are confident about the substantial opportunities for further growth in this area.

"Committing these additional resources will significantly increase our manufacturing capacity, thereby enhancing Culp's comptetitive ability to serve major mattress producers. The company plans to finance the expansion from internally available funds without any borrowings.

"This strong financial support, combined with our proven manufacturing expertise with jacquard and damask goods, encourages us about the momentum the additional manufacturing capacity will provide."

Culp noted that this move was based on the company's long range plans to increase its capacity for manufacturing ticking. He said, "Our fundamental growth path over the past decade has been importantly based on the concept of establishing a vertically integrated organization.

"Controlling our own production is essential to the goal of becoming a 'value-added' supplier. We fully anticipate that realizing this objective will require continuing investments in manufacturing capacity and support systems."

Culp, Inc. is a leading manufacturer and marketer of fabrics for the furniture bedding, recreational vehicle and institutional furnishings markets. The company's common shares are traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol CULP.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Graco Inc. (NYSE: GGG) today announced operating results for the third quarter (13 weeks) ended Sept. 28, 1990. Consolidated net sales amounted to $78,801,000, an increase of 11.1 percent from last year's third quarter sales of $70,922,000. Net earnings for the period were $4,631,000 or 64 cents per share compared with $3,352,000 or 47 cents per share last year, an increase in net earnings of 38.2 percent.

Sales to customers in the U.S. increased 5.1 percent to $42,844,000 principally due to the inclusion of sales from the company's Pyles business unit which was acquired at the beginning of the year. International sales were up 19.2 percent and amounted to $35,957,000. Excellent sales gains were achieved in Europe and the Far East reflecting volume increases as well as more favorable foreign currency translation rates for the period.

Consolidated backlog increased by $7 million during the period. The consolidated backlog at Sept. 28, 1990 was approximately $43 million compared with $36 million at the beginning of the quarter and $30 million at the end of the third quarter last year. Included in the backlog is $7.9 million associated with Graco's recently announced contract from Chrysler. The company's wholly owned subsidiary, Graco Robotics, Inc. will supply 21 EDX-1 electric painting robot systems for two finishing lines which will apply base coat and clear coat to new sports vehicles assembled at Chrysler's Jefferson North Assembly Plant in Detroit. Graco's Circulating Systems business unit will provide paint circulating equipment for the project which is expected to be completed by the end of 1991.

Operating profit increased 18.2 percent to $8,340,000 from $7,056,000 last year. Gross profit margin as a percent of net sales for the quarter was 49.3 percent compared with 48.4 percent for the same period last year. Operating expenses increased 11.8 percent and totaled $30,470,000.

For the nine months, consolidated net sales were $225,854,000, up 3.8 percent from $217,610,000 last year. Sales to customers in the U.S. were $129,339,000 compared with $123,349,000, a gain of 4.9 percent. International sales were $96,515,000, up 2.4 percent from $94,261,000 last year and represented 42.7 percent of consolidated net sales. Net earnings for the nine months were $11,698,000 or $1.61 per share compared with $9,501,000 or $1.33 per share last year, an increase in net earnings of 23.1 percent.

Graco Inc. supplies technology and expertise for the management of fluids in both industrial and commercial settings. It manufactures and markets systems and equipment to move, measure, control, dispense and apply fluid materials. A recognized leader in its specialties, Minneapolis-based Graco serves customers around the world in the manufacturing, processing, construction and maintenance industries.

DES MOINES, IOWA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Oliver H. Hagen, president and chief executive officer, announced today that First Interstate of Iowa Inc. (NASDAQ: FIIA), a multi-bank holding company, recorded net income of $1,063,000, or 9 cents per share fully diluted, for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990. The 1990 third quarter earnings decreased 66 percent from the $3,137,000, or 21 cents per share fully diluted, reported for the corresponding quarter in 1989. The decrease in net income in the 1990 third quarter was attributable to expenses associated with $2.1 million of net charged off loans and to a higher effective income tax rate.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $6,279,000, or 43 cents per share fully diluted, compared to $9,544,000, or 63 cents per share fully diluted, for the like period in 1989. The company's annualized return on average assets and return on average equity for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 was .71 percent and 11.06 percent, respectively.

Hagen commented, "We are pleased to report nearly $1.1 million of third quarter earnings despite the previously announced charged off loans and the increase in nonperforming assets. Such assets are belived to be appropriately identified and related losses were recorded in the third quarter. Ongoing credit quality evaluations by the management of our subsidiary banks and our internal loan review team indicate the current level of nonperforming assets belies the underlying quality of the company's remaining assets."

First Interstate of Iowa owns the controlling interest in 13 Iowa banks, a computer services company and an insurance agency. The banks operate 33 locations in numerous Iowa cities including Algona, Cresco, Des Moines, Estherville, Fort Dodge, Greenfield, Kalona, Marengo, Mason City, Sigourney, Sioux City, Spencer and Urbandale.

BRIDGEWATER, N.J. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Thomas & Betts Corporation (NYSE: TNB) today reported increased sales and lower earnings for the third quarter of 1990.

Sales rose 13 percent to $148,576,000 from $131,318,000 in the third quarter of 1989. Earnings declined 58 percent to $5,096,000, or $.30 per share, from $12,084,000, or $.71 per share. The drop in earnings was due to the special charge announced Sept. 10 and the resulting increased tax rate. Without the special charge, pretax earnings would have been up 12 percent.

For the first nine months of 1990, sales were up 12 percent to $453,385,000. Earnings decreased 14 percent to $35,602,000, or $2.09 per share, including the special charge.

The previously announced pretax charge of $9 million is for actions being taken to consolidate manufacturing operations and reduce operating expenses.

"Although earnings excluding the special charge were higher than a year ago, we continue to experience weakening economic conditions in North America," said T. Kevin Dunnigan, president and chief executive officer. "The actions covered by the charge will improve our operating efficiency and make us better able to withstand a declining North American economy.

"Domestic construction and industrial sales of Thomas & Betts were down 4 percent from the third quarter of 1989. Domestic electronic sales rose 38 percent, largely due to sales of Holmberg Electronics, which was acquired in November 1989.

"International sales were up 17 percent, reflecting better performance in Europe and the Far East as well as the favorable effects of stronger foreign currencies. Vitramon's worldwide sales increased 32 percent.

"Despite the continuing weak economic environment in North America, we anticipate some increase in worldwide sales and pretax earnings in the fourth quarter. Pressure on profit margins will be partially offset by reduced costs as savings from our cost-cutting actions start to be realized."

Thomas & Betts Corporation, based in Bridgewater, is a leading producer of connectors, components, accessories and systems for worldwide electrical and electronic markets.

BELLEVUE, WASH. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - U S WEST NewVector Group Inc. (NASDAQ: USWNA) today reported revenues of $72.6 million for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, a 47 percent increase from 1989 third quarter revenues of $49.3 million. Revenues for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $201.3 million, a 53 percent increase over revenues of $131.4 million for the same period last year.

The company generated net income of $0.2 million for the quarter compared to a $2.5 million loss for the third quarter 1989. For the first nine months of 1990, NewVector incurred a $6.8 million loss. Last year, the company's nine-month loss was $8.2 million. A change in accounting for income taxes favorably affected the first nine months of 1989 by $3.0 million.

Operating cash flow for the 1990 third quarter increased to $14.9 million. In 1989, NewVector generated third quarter operating cash flow of $6.0 million. For the first nine months of 1990, the company had positive operating cash flow of $31.3 million. During the same period last year, NewVector had $10.1 million in positive operating cash flow. (Operating cash flow is defined as operating income before depreciation and amortization.)

NewVector's cellular and paging operations continue to produce strong subscriber growth. On Sept. 30, 1990, U S WEST Cellular served 192,400 customers, a 67 percent increase from Sept. 30, 1989.

U S WEST Paging reported 155,700 pagers in service, a 34 percent increase from Sept. 30, 1989.

"We're pleased to have recorded our first quarter of operating income," said Reynie U. Ortiz, U S WEST NewVector president and chief operating officer. "This is indicative of our continuous emphasis on improving operating efficiencies."

"Our accomplishment is especially gratifying since NewVector maintained one of the best annual growth rates in cellular subscribers in the industry during this time," said John E. DeFeo, U S WEST NewVector chairman and chief executive officer. "Further, the average monthly revenue per cellular customer has remained stable over the last six months."

U S WEST NewVector Group Inc., headquartered in Bellevue, Wash., has operations in 16 Midwestern, Western and Southwestern states. The company operates 28 Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) and 10 Rural Service Areas (RSA) cellular systems under the brand name of U S WEST Cellular. NewVector offers U S WEST Paging service in 58 markets. NewVector is a majority-owned subsidiary of U S WEST Inc., a diversified corporation based in Englewood, Colo.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Cray Research, Inc. (NYSE: CYR) announced today that NASA Langley has ordered its second Cray Research supercomputer, a CRAY Y-MP8 system. This used system, valued at approximately $15 million, is scheduled to be installed at the NASA Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., in the fourth quarter.

In addition, this order includes Cray Research's recently announced file server, the UNICOS Storage System, which will be used to manage more than one trillion bytes of storage. NASA will run the file server capability on its CRAY Y-MP system.

The system will be used primarily for general aerospace applications, including structural analysis and design and computational fluid support for research in atmospheric modeling and computational chemistry.

The CRAY Y-MP system will use the UNICOS operating system, based on AT&T's UNIX System V.

Cray Research, Inc., designs, manufacturers, markets, and supports large-scale high-speed computers for scientific and engineering applications.

BOHEMIA, N.Y. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American Therapeutics, Inc. (ATI), a manufacturer and distributor of generic pharmaceuticals in Bohemia, announced that with the guilty plea entered today in U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland the government's 16-month inquiry into ATI's operations under its former president, Raju Vegesna, has concluded.

The company pleaded guilty to a three-count criminal information which charged the company in connection with (1) "failing to comply with current good manufacturing practices" as to Erythromycin, a product developed but never marketed by the company, (2) causing a false statement to be made to the FDA in connection with Sulindac tablets, again a product never marketed by ATI, and (3) obstruction of an FDA inspection during 1988.

The charges arose as the result of an agreement in principle reached by ATI and the government over 10 months ago pursuant to which ATI has thoroughly cooperated with the Department of Justice and the Food and Drug Administration.

"We are grateful that the Vegesna chapter in ATI's history finally has been concluded," said Dr. John Meloy, a director of ATI. "ATI has been committed from the outset to fully cooperate with the government and to ensure that there are no safety and effectiveness concerns about any ATI product."

"ATI appreciates that due to ATI's cooperation and the fact that the intense scrutiny given to our 52 approved products did not implicate the safety of those products, the government elected to permit ATI to be the first of the generic companies caught up in this investigation to reach a final disposition " said Meloy.

Early in this investigation, ATI took the firm steps to assure the delivery of safe, effective and high-quality pharmaceuticals, including:

-- The company removed Vegesna as president, CEO and director.
-- ATI's quality control program, in keeping with good manufacturing practice requirements of the FDA, was reviewed and upgraded by former FDA officials to ensure the high quality of all ATI products.

-- ATI developed an internal corporate ethics program, and
-- ATI has subjected its employees to rigorous training and supervision.

"The resolution of this investigation hopefully will allow us to put the mistakes of former management behind us," explained Meloy. "Our current mission is to show that the company itself remains dedicated to upholding FDA standards in manufacturing the highest-quality generic pharmaceutical products."

KINSTON, N.C. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - First Fincorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: FIFC), the parent of First Financial Savings Bank, Inc., Kinston, North Carolina, reported a 10 percent increase in net income for the third quarter of 1990 as compared to the third quarter of 1989. Net income was $495,090, $.20 per share for the three months ended September 30, 1990 versus $450,394, $.18 per share for the three months ended September 30, 1989.

Net income for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 was $1,585,369, $.65 per share, a 17 percent increase over the $1,349,483, $.55 per share, earned in the nine months ended September 30, 1989.

C. Allen Summerlin, President and Chief Executive Officer, stated that First Fincorp's core operating income for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 had actually increased by 52 percent over the same period for 1989. He pointed out that 1989 results included an "extraordinary gain" of $309,000, $.13 per share. This extraordinary gain was the result of a partial recovery by First Financial of its deposit with the Financial Institutions Assurance Corporation which was written off in its entirety in 1985.

The Company reported a 5 percent increase in assets from $322,624,000 at September 30, 1989 to $338,265,000 at September 30, 1990. Deposits increased from $275,601,000 to $292,104,000, a 6 percent increase, during the same period.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bausch & Lomb Incorporated (NYSE: BOL) announced today that revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 29, 1990 increased 12 percent to $357.0 million compared to $319.5 million a year ago. Net earnings for the quarter rose 15 percent to $38.2 million compared to $33.3 million, while earnings per share also advanced 15 percent to $1.27 from the prior year's $1.10. For the first nine months of 1990 revenues totaled $1,024.2 million, 12 percent above the prior year's $913.9 million. Net earnings of $92.2 million for the nine-month period increased 15 percent over the $79.9 million earned in 1989, and earnings per share also rose 15 percent to $3.06 compared to $2.65.

Revenues for the company's healthcare segment amounted to $221.3 million for the third quarter, a gain of 10 percent over the year-ago amount of $201.5 million. Healthcare segment sales for the first nine months of 1990 rose 9 percent to $622.6 million compared to $572.0 million.

-- In Bausch & Lomb's personal health sector, foreign sales of contact lens care products, oral care products, and over-the-counter medications were substantially above the year-ago third quarter, and more than offset the effects of customer inventory reductions and slow market growth in the United States.

-- In the company's medical sector, worldwide sales of contact lenses rose at a very good rate, as revenues outside the U.S. increased sharply for the quarter. Sales trends in the domestic contact lens business continued to show major improvement versus comparisons reported earlier in 1990. This progress was attributable to significantly higher shipments for the SeeQuence(R) line of disposable lenses. Growth in total medical sector revenues also reflected higher worldwide shipments of ophthalmic pharmaceuticals.

-- Revenues in the biomedical sector increased at an excellent pace as a result of increased demand for monoclonal antibody production services, and higher research animal sales in foreign markets.

The company's optics segment attained a 15 percent increase in sales for the 1990 third quarter, as revenues amounted to $135.7 million compared to $118.0 million in 1989. Brisk demand for sunglasses, especially in foreign markets, was reflected in a substantial worldwide sales increase for these products. Those gains more than offset a weak sales performances by the sports optics and thin film coating businesses which continue to be impacted by adverse market conditions. For the first nine months of 1990 optics segment revenues amounted to $401.6 million, an increase of 17 percent over the 1989 amount of $341.8 million.

Tsunis Hotel Partners of Hauppauge, L.I., N.Y., will open their Holiday Inn Express property in January 1991 at 3131 Nesconset Highway in the Setauket-Stony Brook area. Holiday Inn Express is an upper economy hotel product offering guests clean, comfortable rooms, efficient check-in and check-out, and a breakfast offering.

"I am delighted that Stony Brook will be the first Holiday Inn Express franchise property to open, making it an important addition to the Holiday Inn family," says Bryan D. Langton, chairman and CEO of Holiday Inn Worldwide.

"Holiday Inn Express offers customers great value for their money in the upper economy market. Prospects for the development of Holiday Inn Express are very exciting, and the introduction of a Holiday Inn product into this sector is long overdue."

The Stony Brook Holiday Inn Express hotel is a six-story, 100-room property with an indoor pool. Andrew R. Seelin of Stony Brook has been named general manager for the hotel.

"We are pleased to have received the first Holiday Inn Express franchise, and are proud to be opening the only major hotel chain property on the north shore of Suffolk County, Long Island," says John Tsunis of Tsunis Hotel Partners.

Holiday Inn Worldwide introduced its new upper economy hotel product earlier this month during its annual meeting to franchisees. According to Langton, the company has received in excess of 100 development-related inquiries since the announcement of Holiday Inn Express.

Three company-managed properties, all conversions, opened this month in Nashville, Tenn.; Abilene, Texas; and Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Compared to a full-service Holiday Inn hotel, Holiday Inn Express hotels do not have a restaurant, lounge, or room service, and offer limited meeting facilities.

The Holiday Inn Express hotel is the newest extension to the Holiday Inn brand portfolio, which also includes Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza and Holiday Inn Garden Court hotels. Each product within the Holiday Inn brand portfolio is designed to meet the unique needs of individual consumer segments, all within the middle market.

Holiday Inn Worldwide, the international hotel business of Bass PLC, is the world's leading hotel chain with nearly 1,600 hotels and 316,000 rooms in 51 countries or territories.

TULSA, OK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Kinark Corporation (AMEX, PSE: KIN) announced today that it will take a one-time charge of $8.6 million, or $2.43 per share, against third-quarter earnings for the company's Camelot Hotel discontinued operations.

Kinark Co-Chief Executive Officer Paul Chastain said, "The third- quarter charge will come form the write-down of assets and certain non- recurring and ongoing charges related to the disposal of hotels held for sale." The write-down will result in a third-quarter net loss of $2.22 per share and a net loss of $1.87 per share for the first nine months of 1990 despite record earnings of continuing operations.

Chastain said, "The company decided to take the write-down after a contract to sell the hotels for $12 million was terminated in the third quarter. The buyer was not able to close the transaction and forfeited a $50,000 deposit to the company. We are going forward to sell these properties," Chastain continued, "and have decided that a sale by public auction will allow us to achieve our goal within the next few months."

Kinark's continuing operations achieved record sales and earnings for the third quarter. Earnings of continuing operations increased 38 percent to $763,000 or $.21 per share from $554,000, $.16 per share in 1989. Sales improved 12 percent to $9,313,000 from $8,336,000 last year.

For the first nine months of 1990, record earnings from continuing operations were $1,995,000, or $.56 per share, compared to $1,405,000, or $.40 per share, a year ago. Sales for the nine months increased 7.6 percent to $25,394,000, also a record, from $23,608,000 a year earlier.

All dividends of the company reported strong operating profits in the third quarter, with sales increases coming from chemicals packaging and storage.

Lake River Terminals sales increased 24 percent in the third quarter over 1989 due to continuing strong demand from chemical customers. A new three-year contract was negotiated with a major customer which will run trough 1993. Kinpak achieved excellent results in the third quarter on an increase of 34 percent in sales. The Middle East crisis greatly increased early demand for antifreeze as customer anticipated potential shortages and price increases.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Shopping Network, Inc. (HSN) and Family Circle magazine today announced a strategic multimedia alliance to build audiences/circulations and merchandise products.

HSN, with annual sales of $1 billion, is the country's leading electronic retailer. Family Circle is the world's largest-selling women's magazine, with an audience of 21 million readers.

Task forces representing the two organizations have been meeting for more than nine months to develop extensive cross-promotional and merchandising programs.

Under the agreement, Family Circle editors and consulting editors will provide regularly scheduled editorial segments in HSN programming.

Initially, Kerry Whitaker, national beauty spokesperson and style consultant for Family Circle, will appear on videotape, bringing viewers a variety of helpful tips. Special segments will be aired during the Christmas shopping season. Whitaker has also been signed to a contract to act as a spokesperson for HSN. Christmas spots have been shot and will air shortly.

To add to its four million membership base, HSN has forged an extensive advertising and advertorial alliance with Family Circle. HSN in turn will sell Family Circle subscriptions on-air and provide opportunities for direct response solicitations. Other joint ventures are being explored.

"This is a strategic alliance of two businesses," said Roy M. Speer, chairman and chief executive officer of Home Shopping Network. "We have married two powerful media, two fiercely loyal customer bases, and two extremely effective and open-minded marketers and merchandisers," he added.

"We have created an entrepreneurial approach that transcends the traditional notions of value-added partnerships," said Charles H. Townsend, president and chief operating officer of Family Circle.

"First and foremost this is a business deal. There is complete dedication to merchandising - the commitment is so deep in fact that we have given over use of our franchises to each other in ways that seemed inconceivable to many."

Speer and Townsend said they were struck by the similarity of the demographics of both audiences. HSN owns and operates 11 TV stations that broadcast Home Shopping Club along with more than 90 broadcast and 1,750 cable system affiliates to a potential audience of approximately 65 percent of all U.S. households.

EMMAUS, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Buckeye Management Co., general partner of Buckeye Partners L.P. (NYSE: BPL), today reported that the Partnership's 1990 third quarter net income was $10.9 million, an increase of 16.5 percent over net income for the 1989 third quarter of $9.3 million.

Net earnings for the third quarter of 1990 were $.90 per unit, compared with $.77 per unit for the third quarter of 1989. Revenue and operating income for the third quarter of 1990 were $42.7 million and $18.3 million, respectively, compared with $41.1 million and $17.1 million, respectively, for the third quarter of 1989. Increased revenue was primarily due to a rate increase which became effective June 19, 1990, and an increase in the proportion of long haul movements. Volume transported in the third quarter of 1990 averaged 970,800 barrels per day compared with an average of 974,300 barrels per day transported in the third quarter last year.

The Partnership's net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $24.6 million, or $2.03 per unit, compared with 1989 net income for the same period of $25.4 million, or $2.09 per unit. The Partnership's 1990 and 1989 results include revenues being collected subject to refund depending on the outcome of Federal Energy Regulatory Commission tariff rate proceedings.

WELLESLEY, MA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - EG&G, Inc. (NYSE: EGG) reported that for the third quarter of 1990 earnings per share rose 14 percent to 65 cents per share compared to 57 cents per share last year (which included a capital gain of 5 cents per share). Net income was $18.4 million compared to $16.5 million in 1989. Third quarter sales rose 61 percent to $687 million from $426 million last year. The net income for nine months totaled $52.9 million or $1.85 per share compared to $50.7 million or $1.73 per share in 1989.

"The strong third quarter was particularly encouraging in light of the current global economic uncertainty," noted Chairman John M. Kucharski. "Operations do continue to show improvement and the third quarter performance leads me to expect that 1990 EPS will show growth in excess of 10 percent over 1989 results."

Improved manufacturing efficiencies were important elements in both the Components and Defense segments. This resulted in higher income from operations over the prior year. Higher volume of industrial seals was also a significant contributor to the Components segment; and in the Defense segment, the power supply and engineering, scientific and technical support services businesses provided significantly improved results over last year.

The DOE Support segment continues to remain strong due to the addition of profit this year from the contract at Rocky Flats. The growth in contract work for NASA, contributions from the contract at the Super Collider, and the addition this year of a contract for the Customs Service all participated in the increase in the Technical Services segment. The automotive testing businesses are beginning to show improvement.

Anticipated operations improvement in both Instruments and Aerospace in the fourth quarter will correct third quarter weaknesses.

EG&G, Inc., an international Fortune 300 company, manufactures scientific instruments and electronic and optical components. The company also offers security engineering services, airport security screening systems, and automotive testing services. EG&G also provides systems engineering, precision manufacturing and product testing, and test-site management and operating support, including waste management and environmental safety matters to many agencies and laboratories of government. The company's shares are traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol EGG.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The New York Times Company (NYSE: NYT) today reported 1990 third-quarter income from continuing operations of $9.2 million, or $.12 per share. This compared with $16.4 million, or $.21 per share, for the third quarter of 1989. Consolidated revenues for the 1990 quarter were $420.7 million compared with $415.3 million for the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months in 1990, income from continuing operations was $52.6 million, or $.69 per share, compared with $87.2 million, or $1.11 per share, last year.

Consolidated revenues for the 1990 nine-month period were $1.32 billion, up 2 percent from $1.30 billion for the first nine months of 1989.

Results for the 1989 third quarter and nine-month periods exclude $2.47 and $2.52 per share respectively for the gain on the sale and results of operations of NYT Cable TV, which was sold in August 1989. Cable is reported under discontinued operations in the attached financial exhibits.

Exclusive of increased depreciation and interest, 1990 third-quarter earnings from continuing operations would have equaled the $.21 per share for the 1989 quarter.

The same factors that affected the quarter also pertained to the results for the nine months. In addition, the nine-month results were affected by costs associated with the July 1989 McCall's acquisition, which was structured to maximize cash flow. These structuring costs lowered earnings by $.17 per share in comparison with $.06 per share for the 1989 nine-month period, which was not affected until the July acquisition date. Exclusive of increased depreciation and interest in 1990, and the effects of the McCall's acquisition structuring in both years, earnings for the first nine months of 1990 would have been $1.11 per share, compared with $1.17 per share in 1989.

A summary of the Company's business segments follows: Newspaper Group: Third-quarter operating profit for the group that consists of the New York Times, 35 regional newspapers and a one-third interest in the International Herald Tribune declined to $19.6 million from $34.9 million in the third quarter of 1989 on revenues of $320.6 million and $316.2 million respectively. For the first nine months of 1990, operating profit of $108.2 million declined from $157.8 million in the comparable 1989 period on revenues of $1,008.2 million and $1,023.3 million respectively.

The principal reasons for the decline were lower advertising linage at The New York Times due to the continuing weakness in the New York region's economy and the increased depreciation.

Advertising volume at The New York Times for the third quarter of 1990 declined 10.7 percent to 21.1 million lines compared with the same quarter last year, which had one less Sunday. For the nine months, linage was off 12.0 percent to 68.8 million lines. Approximately 71 percent of the loss in advertising linage for nine months was in the help wanted and real estate classifications.

Circulation for The Times as reported to the Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC) reached record highs for the six months ended Sept. 30, 1990: 1,108,400 copies on weekdays, up 40,400 copies over the same 1989 period, and 1,687,000 copies on Sundays, up 58,900 copies. The Sunday Times continues to have the highest circulation of any newspaper in the United States.

Advertising volume for the 35 regional newspapers increased 4.0 percent to 9.1 million inches for the third quarter of 1990 and 1.4 percent to 27.0 million inches for the first nine months of 1990. The regional newspapers have been adversely impacted by a decline in retail, help wanted, real estate and automotive advertising. The increases over 1989 for the quarter and nine months were due to a higher volume of advertising inserts.

Circulation for the regional newspapers for the April-to-September period as reported to ABC also reached record highs: 845,500 copies on Sundays, up 12,000 copies, and 870,100 copies on weekdays, up 16,500 copies.

Circulation was 75,600 for the non-dailies, up 500 copies. Magazine Group: The group's third-quarter operating loss was $2.3 million compared with a loss of $4.5 million in 1989 on revenues of $81.1 million and $81.4 million respectively. For the first nine months of 1990, the group had an operating loss of $5.6 million, compared with an operating profit of $.4 million in 1989 on revenues of $254.8 million and $220.7 million respectively.

The anticipated losses for the 1990 and 1989 quarters and 1990 nine months resulted from costs associated with the July 1989 acquisition structuring of McCall's.

Excluding the McCall's acquisition, the Group's 1990 third quarter and nine-month results were higher than the respective 1989 periods. Higher revenues for the 1990 nine-month period are due to the acquisition.

Broadcasting/Information Services Group: The group's third-quarter operating profit was $3.3 million in 1990, compared with $2.6 million in 1989 on revenues of $19.1 million and $17.8 million respectively. For the nine months operating profit was $10.5 million compared with $9.8 million in the comparable 1989 period on revenues of $57.9 million and $54.8 million respectively.

Forest Products Group: Equity in earnings (an after-tax amount) declined to $2.4 million in the 1990 third quarter, compared with $2.6 million in 1989. For the nine months, equity in earnings was $3.9 million in 1990, compared with $9.2 million in the 1989 period. The declines resulted primarily from price discounting due to continued softness in the newsprint market as well as an unfavorable Canadian currency exchange rate, which more than offset a newsprint price increase of $35 per metric ton which took effect June 1, 1990. On Sept. 10, the Canadian Paperworkers Union struck several Abitibi-Price mills including the Gaspesia mill in Chandler, Quebec, in which the Times Company holds a 49 percent interest. The dispute was settled and the mill was back in operation on Oct. 11.

PERKASIE, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Independence Bancorp (NASDAQ: INBC) today reported net income of $5.5 million for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $4.4 million a year ago.

Primary earnings per share were $.50 compared with $.40 a year ago, while fully diluted earnings per share were $.49 vs. $.40 for the same period.

Net income for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $17.8 million, compared with $11.2 million a year ago. Primary and fully diluted earnings per share were $1.62 and $1.58 compared with $1.04 a year ago.

John D. Harding, president and chief executive officer, commented: "While our performance indicates that we are faring better than many of our peers in the current recessionary climate, we are aware of the economic softening and decline in real estate values that are expected to hinder loan growth and put pressure on bank earnings and loan quality into 1991. Therefore, we continue to monitor our asset quality, improve operating efficiency, control expenses and focus on increasing non- interest income."

The board of directors of Independence Bancorp on Oct. 16, 1990, declared a quarterly cash dividend of 29 cents per share, unchanged from the previous quarter. The dividend, payable on Nov. 9 to shareholders of record on Oct. 30 pays an annual rate of $1.16. Independence has approximately 11 million shares outstanding.

"In declaring our 33rd consecutive dividend, the Independence board of directors noted the company's strong capital position and improved earnings," said Monroe W. Long, chairman.

At Sept. 30, 1990, Independence's capital ratios continued to be well above regulatory minimums. Primary capital was 8.34 percent and total capital was 10.85 percent.

Total earning assets were $2.46 billion at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $2.49 billion a year ago. Net interest income was $24.6 million for the Sept. 30 quarter compared with $24.4 million a year ago. Total loans were $1.64 billion at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $1.68 billion a year ago.

Non-accrual loans and other real estate owned were $14.5 million at Sept. 30, 1990, or 0.88 percent of loans and other real estate owned, compared with $12.1 million or 0.72 percent in the third quarter of 1989 and $12.2 million and 0.74 percent at June 30, 1990.

Net charge-offs were $1.2 million for the quarter, compared with $1.0 million a year ago. The allowance for possible loan losses was $22.3 million at Sept. 30, 1990, representing 1.36 percent of total loans, compared with 1.36 percent a year ago.

Total deposits were $2.20 billion for the quarter compared with $2.21 billion, while core deposits grew 3.4 percent to $1.96 billion.

The net interest margin improved to 4.12 percent for the third quarter from 4.01 percent a year ago. Return on average assets was 0.83 percent for the quarter compared with 0.64 percent in 1989, and return on average equity for the third quarter of 1990 was 11.03 percent compared with 9.18 percent a year ago.

Non-interest income was $5.1 million for the Sept. 30 quarter, compared with $3.0 million a year ago, when securities losses of $2.3 million were taken.

Non-interest expense increased 2.2 percent to $21.5 million for the third quarter, compared with $21.0 million a year ago.

Independence Bancorp is a $2.6 billion bank holding company for four community banks in eastern Pennsylvania: Bucks County Bank and Trust Co., Cheltenham Bank, Lehigh Valley Bank and Third National Bank and Trust Company of Scranton.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Howard Spurr, vice president of Haben Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: HABN) today completed the acquisitions of Gyron Compounds, Inc., Good Development Polymers, Inc., and Master Cart, Inc., three privately held California corporations.

Terms of these acquisitions relate to an agreement in principal to acquire the aforementioned companies through the issuance of 8,500,000 restricted common shares of Haben Industries valued at $4,250,000.

Gyron Compounds, Inc. is a pioneer in the utilization of cross- linkable polyethylene containers for the automated refuse collection industry. The company's unique process upgrades commodity-grade resin to an "engineering grade" polyethylene for use by the rotationally molded automated refuse container segment of the plastic resin market.

Good Development Polymers, Inc. is the exclusive supplier of Gyron Compounds, supplying the chemicals and formulas which constitute the additives that when introduced to raw materials produce cross-linkable polyethylene compounds.

Master Cart, Inc. is engaged in the manufacturing and marketing of polyethylene refuse containers for the automated and semi-automated refuse collection industry.

Spurr stated that "These acquisitions demonstrate a text book example of vertical integration, from processing raw materials to manufacturing and marketing of the finished product, Haben has focused in a direction to maximize the value for its shareholders. Each of these companies is well positioned in attractive markets with quality products and offer a well-defined mission for growth."

The 250 million tons of trash ("solid waste") that U.S. households and companies routinely toss out each year currently represents a $20 billion industry in the United States.

Haben Industries, Inc. is a diversified company with interests in gas producing, drilling and equipment and fluid transmission systems.

READING, PA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Carpenter Technology Corp. (NYSE: CRS) today reported its sales and earnings for the first fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

First quarter sales were $125.4 million, a 6 percent decline from $133.6 million in the same period last year. Net income was $6.5 million, compared to $7.8 million for the previous year. Earnings per share were $.76 compared to $.86 last year.

The lower sales were primarily the result of the elimination of surcharges and selling price reductions due to lower raw material costs. In addition, unit volume was lower by 2 percent due primarily to continued weakness in consumer-related markets. Partially offsetting the above factors was a continued shift in the product mix toward higher-valued products.

The decrease in net income resulted from the lower unit volume of shipments and increases in most costs other than raw materials. A more profitable product mix helped to partially offset these cost increases. The company implemented a 3.5-4 percent price increase on most of its products effective with shipments beginning on Oct. 1, 1990.

Paul R. Roedel, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said, "The first quarter results demonstrate that our strategy to upgrade our mix is working. In this uncertain economic environment, both the sales and earnings are in line with our expectations. We are continuing to seek market opportunities for higher-valued, less cyclical products."

Roedel further stated that the capital spending markets such as aerospace and energy remain strong, while the consumer durable markets such as automotive and appliances continue to be below last year's levels.

ALLENTOWN, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Elios Pascual, the secretary-general of Renault Vehicules Industriels (RVI), has today been nominated to be chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Mack Trucks Inc., replacing Ralph Reins.

Pascual has spent his entire 20-year professional career in the heavy truck business at RVI where he is currently secretary-general with responsibility for long-term strategic planning and administration. In addition, he has had overall responsibility for relations between RVI and Mack where he has served as a member of the board of directors and its Executive and Finance Committee since 1983. Jean-Pierre Capron, chief executive officer of RVI, stated, "Elios Pascual was the logical choice to replace Ralph Reins. He knows the Mack organization inside and out. He was one of the principal officers of RVI during its turnaround. His knowledge and experience will be critical to our taking all necessary steps to return Mack to profitability while maintaining and increasing Mack's market share."

Pascual is expected to be elected at a Mack board meeting later this month and will assume office at the end of the month.

Mack Trucks Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of RVI, is one of North America's largest producers of heavy-duty diesel trucks, in addition to major product components. Mack also markets a line of medium-duty diesel trucks throughout North America, parts of Central America, Australia, and New Zealand. Mack vehicles are sold and serviced in more than 65 countries around the world.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) (PE) said today that almost two-thirds of the electricity the company produced in the first nine months of 1990 was generated by nuclear power.

Of the 27.5 billion kilowatt-hours (kwh) of electricity generated by PE during the first three quarters of the year, 17.9 billion kwh, or 65.3 percent, was produced through nuclear power.

Joseph F. Paquette Jr., PE chairman and chief executive officer, said the fuel cost to generate the electricity produced by nuclear power during the first nine months of the year was approximately $490 million less than the fuel cost to produce the same amount of electricity with oil-fired generation.

He added that as the price of oil continues to rise due to the crisis in the Middle East, PE's commitment to nuclear generation will mean even more fuel savings for its customers for the remainder of the year.

Through September, just 5 percent of PE's power was produced by oil. Paquette said the Company's high nuclear output was due to the continued good performance of the four nuclear reactors operated by PE.

The units, two at the Peach Bottom Atomic Power Station in York County and two at the Limerick Generating Station in Montgomery County, combined to operate at 77 percent of full capacity for the first nine months of the year.

In 1989, the average capacity factor for comparable nuclear reactors in the United States was 57.6 percent.

Including two generating units partially owned by PE and operated by Public Service Electric and Gas Co. at the Salem Generating Station in New Jersey, PE's six nuclear units combined to operate at 70 percent of full capacity for the first three quarters of the year.

ANN ARBOR, MICH. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Great Lakes Bancorp (NASDAQ-NMS: GLBC) reported third-quarter net income of $3.4 million, up from $3.0 million earned in the same period a year ago. In the nine months ended Sept. 30, Great Lakes earned $9.9 million, compared with $9.6 million in the period a year ago.

Third-quarter primary earnings per share totaled 69 cents compared with 76 cents in the quarter a year ago. Fully diluted earnings per share totaled 63 cents compared with 68 cents a year ago. For the nine-month periods, primary earnings per share totaled $2.32 compared with $2.44; fully diluted earnings per share totaled $2.11 compared with $2.15. Reported earnings per share were lower, despite higher net income, because of the accounting for dividends paid on Great Lakes' new preferred shares, which were issued at the end of the second quarter.

"Great Lakes' net interest income, income from service fees and net interest margin have all improved," said Roy E. Weber, Great Lakes Bancorp's chairman and chief executive officer. "This, combined with a sharp reduction in income from nonrecurring gains, means that core income, the fundamental earnings capacity of a bank, continues to strengthen."

Net interest income totaled $18.8 million for the quarter just ended, compared with $17.0 million a year ago. For the nine-month periods, net interest income totaled $54.3 million and $49.8 million, respectively.

Great Lakes made a $2.0 million provision for possible loan losses for the third quarter, bringing the total provision made in 1990 to $4.1 million. The provisions in the quarter and nine-month periods a year ago were $0.8 million and $2.1 million. "Given the regulatory and current economic environments, we think it's wise to continue building the bank's cushion against possible loan losses," Weber said.

Great Lakes has a low level of nonperforming assets by industry standards, with nonperformers amounting to just 0.55 percent of total assets. The bank's reserve for possible loan losses, which has grown 52 percent in 1990 to $10.8 million, equals 53 percent of nonperforming assets.

Exclusive of its acquisition of Dollar Federal Savings Bank in Hamilton, Ohio, Great Lakes' general and administrative expenses showed no increase from a year ago, and declined from the prior quarter. "We've always believed it was important to hold the line on expenses," Weber commented, "but it has become crucial to operate more efficiently without sacrificing service quality." Great Lakes' ratio of expenses to average total assets is 1.58 percent.

Great Lakes had total loan originations in the third quarter of $108 million, composed of: $66.6 million of residential mortgages, net of refinancings; $19.9 million of income property loans, net of refinancings; and $21.6 million of consumer loans. The commercial loan portfolio declined $10.5 million, with repayments exceeding new loans. At Sept. 30, Great Lakes had total loans receivable of $3.4 billion.

Stockholders' equity in Great Lakes increased 26 percent from a year ago to $181 million, due in part to the success of Great Lakes' public offering in the second quarter of 1990 of preferred units, which raised $25 million of capital for the bank. Great Lakes' tangible capital ratio at Sept. 30 was 2.65 percent and its core capital ratio was 4.23 percent, both in excess of the current regulatory requirements of 1.5 percent and 3.0 percent, respectively. The tangible book value per share of common stock increased 39 percent from a year ago to $17.89.

Great Lakes Bancorp has 52 branches in Michigan and operates Dollar Federal Savings Bank, a subsidiary with five branches in the north- Cincinnati area. Great Lakes also operates Great Lakes Mortgage Co., a mortgage banking subsidiary. With $3.7 billion in assets, Great Lakes Bancorp is Michigan's second-largest savings bank.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Los Angeles police successfully thwarted auto thieves Tuesday night by tracking down another LoJack-equipped stolen vehicle.

This is the fifth stolen vehicle recovered by law enforcement since the LoJack Stolen Vehicle Recovery Network became operational countywide in late July. Over the ten-week period, the system has proven 100 percent successful in Los Angeles County, contributing to a 95 percent recovery rate nationwide.

The most recent track occurred when an owner of a new Honda Prelude reported his car stolen late Tuesday afternoon in El Segundo. The LoJack network was activated and officers from the Los Angeles Police Department picked up the signal at 10:50 p.m.

Just ten minutes later, at 11:00 p.m., the stolen vehicle was located in a locked garage in South Central Los Angeles. The car had sustained minimal damage. Police are following up with an investigation of a possible auto "chop shop" in operation.

LoJack is the system that allows police to track, locate and recover stolen vehicles. Once the LoJack transponder or homing device has been activated, police are able to pick up a silent radio frequency signal and track the vehicle using police tracking computers.

The LoJack system has not only led to recoveries of stolen vehicle makes such as Jeep, Honda, BMW and Volvo before they were significantly damaged, but has assisted police in making arrests.

"Our company hopes to impact the countywide incidence of auto-related crimes through the use of LoJack," said John Raber, director of marketing and sales for LoJack. "The LoJack system has demonstrated itself to be a viable means of protection for Los Angeles auto owners."

Raber reports strong sales of LoJack in Los Angeles as consumer awareness grows along with acceptance of the new technology. According to Raber, his division was the most successful new operation in the corporation's history because the product addresses consumer needs in the No. 1 ranked auto theft capital in the United States.

LoJack retails for $595 installed, with no additional fees or charges. The LoJack Recovery System can be purchased by calling 1-800-LA LOJACK (1-800-525-6522), or by visiting one of over 300 authorized new car dealerships.

ATLANTA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Arby's Inc., a leading international fast-food chain, has purchased the assets, trademarks and franchising rights for Daddy-O's Express Drive-Thru restaurants.

Arby's acquired the Columbus, Ohio-based Daddy-O's from G.D. Ritzy's Inc., a public company also based in Columbus. Arby's plans to offer the concept as an alternative franchising opportunity to the traditional Arby's restaurants.

Daddy-O's, a double drive-thru restaurant concept, has five operating restaurants in the Midwest. The buildings are rectangular in shape, between 550-650 square feet, with drive-thrus on both sides.

Daddy-O's inexpensive menu (prices for a complete meal range between $2 to $3) features flame-broiled hamburgers and cheeseburgers, hot dogs and chili dogs, chicken breast sandwiches, burritos, a garden salad, Better Batter(TM) fries, Hershey(TM) chocolate milkshakes, soft drinks, coffee, and even milkbones for dogs. Depending on the location, hours for Daddy-O's range from 10 a.m. to after midnight.

Arby's management believes that Daddy-O's double drive thru concept has tremendous franchising potential for new and existing franchisees.

"We are exploring alternate restaurant concepts in which our franchisees can invest," said Frank Belatti, Arby's president and chief operating officer.

"Arby's has always looked upon its franchisees as business partners and investors, and Daddy-O's will give them an opportunity to expand their business in trading areas where they've fully developed their Arby's restaurants. Daddy-O's is a concept that is easy to operate and an inexpensive investment compared to more traditional quick-service restaurants." Construction and equipment costs for a Daddy-O's are expected to range between $200,000 to $300,000, excluding land costs.

"I'm very excited that we have found Daddy-O's," said Kam Nassar, Arby's executive vice president of finance and business development. "It is the concept of the '90s - the service is super fast, the price value is excellent, the food tastes great, and the menu is simple and very popular. This is what we've been looking for since the beginning of the year," Nassar said.

"Because of Arby's franchising expertise, especially in the areas of marketing training and operational guidance, we feel we can grow Daddy-O's into a significantly larger chain in the next five years," said Thomas Whitley, Arby's senior vice president of marketing and strategic development.

ROCHESTER, NY (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - ICE Communications has been selected to develop and implement a local store marketing program for the Endicott Johnson Retail Corporation, ICE President Fran Cosentino announced today. The program will consist of three components: advertising, sales promotion, and public relations.

ICE will be responsible for creating and executing national in-store promotions at the local store marketing level for all of Endicott Johnson's Father & Son and Family shoe stores, which include 448 outlets in 29 states.

The ICE team will also produce localized programs tailored to the needs of individual outlets, and support materials for these in-store promotions will include print advertising and point-of-sale pieces.

In addition, the agency will provide: special events coordination; local store marketing workshops; and an evaluation tracking system to measure the project's performance.

"ICE Communications was chosen for this assignment because of their skill as retail marketers," said Mary Donnett, vice president of advertising and display for Endicott Johnson. "We believe their strength and breadth of experience in the area of integrated marketing communications will help us take advantage of opportunities to increase sales."

"We're pleased to gain Endicott Johnson as a client. This communications program is an important endeavor at this particular point in its 101-year history. I'm confident that the ICE team will form a strong partnership with the Endicott Johnson Retail Corporation to achieve its sales and marketing objectives," said Cosentino.

ICE Communications, located at 2290 East Ave., is Rochester's largest independent full-service marketing, advertising, and public relations agency. In addition to clients in the health care industry, ICE serves clients in the consumer, industrial, and public service sectors.

SIOUX CITY, IA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - On Oct. 17, 1990 the board of directors of Midwest Energy Co. (NYSE: MWE) took no action on declaring the dividend on its common stock payable Dec. 1, 1990.

The terms of the merger agreement between Midwest Energy and Iowa Resources Inc. (NYSE: IOR) call for an adjustment dividend to be paid to shareholders at the time the merger occurs. The adjustment dividend will cover the period from the last dividend payment to the effective date of the merger and will be based on the normal quarterly dividend rate.

If the merger has not occurred before the second half of November, the board of directors of Midwest Energy expect to declare the regular dividend to be paid on Dec. 1, 1990.

On Oct. 17, 1990 the directors of Iowa Public Service Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Midwest Energy, declared the regular quarterly dividend on the 3.90 percent, 3.75 percent, 4.20 percent, 8.08 percent and 7.64 percent Cumulative Preferred Stocks and the $8.32, $8.52, and $7.35 Class A Preferred Stocks, payable Dec. 1, 1990 to shareholders of record Nov. 9, 1990.

Midwest Energy is a holding company with major interests in electric and natural gas utility operations and additional investments in diversified businesses.

Midwest Energy's utility operations provide electricity to 156,000 customers in 228 Iowa and 5 South Dakota communities and natural gas to 347,000 customers in 208 Iowa, 38 Minnesota, eight South Dakota, and three Nebraska communities.

Midwest Energy's common stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and the Midwest Stock Exchange under the symbol "MWE".

ATLANTA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Electromagnetic Sciences Inc. (NASDAQ: ELMG) today reported financial results for the third quarter of 1990 which were consistent with the company's expectations announced publicly on Oct. 3.

The third quarter included a previously announced $3,400,000 pre-tax charge to operating income for strategic restructuring of the company's microwave operations. As a result, the company reported a loss of $(1,959,000) or $(.28) per share in the third quarter of 1990 and $(1,658,000) or $(.23) per share in the first nine months. These results compare with earnings one year earlier of $381,000 or $.05 per share for the third quarter and $1,502,000 or $.21 per share for the first nine months.

The company's restructuring program will involve consolidation of facilities, elimination of excess capacity, and streamlining of the organizational structure. This program is expected to improve profitability in 1991 and beyond. Before the restructuring charge, the company would have earned approximately $150,000 or $.02 per share in the third quarter.

Sales in 1990 have increased over 1989 for both microwave electronics products and LXE data communications systems. As a result, the company's net sales for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990 increased to $17.3 million and $49.5 million, respectively, from $13.8 million and $39.9 million for the same interim periods in 1989.

The company continued to have success with its strategy of market diversification, gathering well over 50 percent of its third-quarter orders from commercial and international markets. The $18.5 million of orders received in the third quarter increased the backlog at Sept. 30 to a record $53.1 million, compared with $49.5 million at the beginning of the year.

Electromagnetic Sciences Inc. designs and produces a wide range of microwave equipment and radio-linked communications equipment. The company's microwave components, subsystems, and systems are used in space mainly for communications and scientific research; these products are also used for surface and airborne applications in a variety of electronic systems such as radar and electronic countermeasures. The company's radio-linked data communications systems are produced by its subsidiary, LXE Inc., for materials handling markets.

ST. PAUL, MINN. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Northwest Airlines said this morning it has returned to service all 12 McDonnell Douglas DC-9s that were removed from flying Wednesday to check for possible contamination of hydraulic fluid.

No further flight cancellations are required, and customers should expect flights to operate on time.

The airline said Wednesday it suspected that hand soap may have inadvertently been added to the hydraulic lines of the aircraft. The planes were removed from service for testing, which caused the airline to cancel 50 flights Wednesday.

Of the 12 planes, 10 were found to have no contamination. Two aircraft were found to have liquid soap mixed with hydraulic fluid. The systems were flushed and replenished with new hydraulic fluid. All 12 planes were returned to service this morning.

The aircraft were not damaged, and at no time was safety jeopardized, the airline said.

Northwest said it continues to look into how the mistake was made.

JACKSON, MICH. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Consumers Power Company's 1990 natural gas purchase plans have been found reasonable by the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC). Consumers Power is Michigan's lowest cost, major gas utility.

"We are pleased that the Commission has determined that our strategy of purchasing gas under long-term, fixed-price contracts is reasonable and beneficial for the 3.4 million Michigan residents we serve," said the utility's executive vice president for Natural Gas and Marketing, Michael G. Morris.

Consumers Power has the right to secure 100 percent of its anticipated gas requirements for its firm customers through contracts with interstate pipeline suppliers, as well as U.S. and Canadian producers. These contracts also provide for firm prices while allowing flexibility to purchase gas in the spot market when those prices are advantageous.

The MPSC's ruling on Consumers Power's 1990 gas costs marks the first time in which the regulatory body has ruled on estimated costs in the same year those costs are incurred. "This timely action by the Commission is appreciated and significantly assists the management of our gas operations," noted Morris.

Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS), is Michigan's largest utility serving almost 6 million of the state's 9 million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties. It is the nation's sixth-largest gas distribution utility serving 215 cities and villages, including suburban Detroit, Bay City, Flint, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Pontiac and Saginaw, in 40 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Promising a new era in pharmaceutical research, Glaxo Inc. today formally opened its 1.5-million-square-foot research and development center in Research Triangle Park, N.C.

"This facility is a symbol of what we have achieved, as well as a symbol of what we will become," Charles A. Sanders, M.D., chief executive of the pharmaceutical giant, said at a morning dedication ceremony. "Our capability in discovery research and drug development has never been greater. Our commitment to R&D has never been stronger."

Since its creation in 1977, Glaxo Inc. has become one of the nation's leading pharmaceutical companies, with annual sales of about $2 billion.

Sanders said the 10-building, $350 million complex, believed to be the largest pharmaceutical research and development facility in the United States, puts the company in a good position to build on its success with a new emphasis on discovery research and development.

The facility will be called The Sir Paul Girolami Research Center in honor of the chairman of Glaxo Holdings p.l.c. (NYSE: GLX), the U.S. company's London-based parent. At the dedication ceremony, Sir Paul said he was pleased by the honor, but more pleased at the opportunity the center represents.

"Ours is a growth business, a very challenging business, with science as its cornerstone," he said. "The work carried on here, and in our research facilities around the world, will determine the future of our company. And we think it's a very bright future indeed."

Ernest Mario, Glaxo Holdings chief executive and former CEO of Glaxo Inc., said the center would be a key element in the global approach to business championed by Sir Paul.

"Sir Paul had the foresight to realize that the successful companies of the 21st century will be those that compete on a global scale. He also recognized that a multinational company that depends on innovation must search out creativity on a global scale, too," he said.

"This strategy and this facility will keep us successful. But the real winners will be patients who are helped by the Glaxo medicines of the future."

The dedication marked the opening of three of the 10 buildings planned for the complex, along with two parking garages. The entire facility will be complete in late 1991.

Glaxo Inc. researches, develops, manufactures and markets prescription medicines including those for the treatment of gastrointestinal disorders, respiratory ailments, cardiovascular diseases, infectious diseases and diseases of the skin.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir will inaugurate service to Little Rock on Jan. 8, 1991, with three daily flights to its primary connecting hub at Charlotte, N.C.

Flights will be scheduled to make the maximum number of connections to and from the 310 daily USAir jet flights and 159 USAir Express flights at Charlotte, the largest of USAir's connecting hub complexes.

Operated with 68 passenger F-28 jets, the new flights will depart Little Rock at 8:50 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. and arrive Charlotte respectively, at 11:25 a.m., 3:35 p.m. and 6:35 p.m.

Return flights will depart Charlotte at 10:15 a.m., 1:25 p.m. and 9 p.m., and arrive in Little Rock at 11:35 a.m., 2:44 p.m. and 10:15 p.m.

At the Charlotte hub, Little Rock travelers will be able to connect to USAir and USAir Express flights linking Charlotte with nearly 100 other cities throughout the United States and abroad, including London, Nassau and San Juan.

Little Rock will become the 133rd airport and Arkansas the 37th state to receive jet service by USAir. USAir's 445 jets operate nearly 3,000 daily flight departures, more than any other airline outside of the Soviet Union.

In 1989 USAir carried nearly 62 million passengers, ranking third among U.S. airlines and fourth in the world. In addition to Great Britain and Nassau, international destinations include three Canadian cities, Bermuda and Frankfurt, Germany.

(OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of RAC Mortgage Investment Corporation (NYSE: RMR) today reported net income of $3.4 million, or $.24 per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. The company previously declared a third quarter dividend of $.20 per share, compared to $.03 per share for the same period last year. Year-to-date earnings were $9.3 million, or $.65 per share.

The volume of mortgage loans purchased through RAC Mortgage's mortgage loan purchase program was $138 million, slightly above the volume in the second quarter, but substantially below the $393 million peak during the fourth quarter of 1989. In a continuing effort to improve the volume, the company introduced two adjustable-rate loan programs in the third quarter.

The company continues to reduce the portfolio's yield sensitivity to the level of short-term interest rates by reinvesting principal in fixed-rate investments. During the quarter, RAC Mortgage added $2.6 million of fixed-rate mortgage securities to its investment portfolio.

RAC Mortgage Investment Corporation is a publicly held real estate investment trust which invests in mortgage loans, mortgage securities, mortgage residuals interests and mortgage derivative securities. The company is managed by Ryland Acceptance Corporation, an indirect subsidiary of The Ryland Group, Inc.

RESTON, VA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Lucas Western Inc., Flight Structures Division (FSD), Jamestown, N.D., has been selected by McDonnell Douglas as the source to supply lightweight cargo handling systems for the MD-11 series aircraft.

This contract is valued at $60 million, excluding additional business from spare parts and retrofits. Work will be done at the company's manufacturing facility in Jamestown. Delivery of the first cargo handling systems is scheduled for September 1991.

FSD will utilize the same just-in-time concept on the MD-11 as it currently utilizes to supply Boeing Aircraft Company. Cargo systems are delivered directly to the Boeing assembly line, eliminating additional costs associated with inventory carrying charges, storage and receiving inspection.

FSD has carried its just-in-time concept a step further by committing to "Quality on Time." This commitment has resulted in a record of delivering to Boeing 100 percent of all systems on time and defect free.

This McDonnell Douglas contract places FSD as the industry's leading supplier of commercial air cargo systems. The company has been designing and manufacturing air cargo systems for more than 20 years.

A subsidiary of Lucas Aerospace, Lucas Western Inc., Flight Structures Division manufactures cargo handling systems, aircraft structures and weapons launching systems.

With operations in the United Kingdom, North America, and France, and an extensive network of customer support and marketing facilities worldwide, Lucas Aerospace employs 12,000 people and generates annual revenues of $1 billion. Primary business units include: Engine Systems, Flight Control and Actuation Systems, Power Generation Systems, Aerospace Systems and Customer Support.

CENTURY CITY, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - First Regional Bancorp (NASDAQ: FRGB) reported increased net income and growth in its third quarter, Jack A. Sweeney, chairman and chief executive officer, announced today.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income rose to $320,000, or 15 cents per share, from $291,000, or 14 cents per share, in the third quarter of 1989. For the nine months, net income was $663,000, or 31 cents per share, compared to $771,000, or 36 cents per share, in the like period last year.

Sweeney commented: "First Regional Bank continued to experience increased levels of business in the third quarter. We are pleased that total assets, total deposits, and net loans all rose compared to prior year levels and to the previous quarter. This growth in turn contributed to our improved earnings in the period."

Sweeney concluded: "Although we have achieved significant growth so far this year, First Regional has continued to strengthen its capital and reserve positions during this expansion. While there is considerable uncertainty about the future direction of the economy of California and the nation, we remain optimistic about the outlook for First Regional. We will continue to follow an operating strategy which focuses on a strong capital position and prudent reserves. Such a strategy gives us the flexibility to succeed regardless of the course of the economy."

First Regional Bancorp is a bank holding company headquartered in Century City. First Regional Bank, its subsidiary, specializes in providing businesses and professionals with the management expertise of a major bank and the personalized service of an independent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, NY (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Sono-Tek Corporation (NASDAQ: SOTK) today announced that it has been granted a worldwide license by AT&T, under AT&T patents, to manufacture and sell environmentally safe no-clean solder fluxing systems.

This application developed by AT&T using Sono-Tek's proprietary ultrasonic liquid atomization technology, is important in the electronics manufacturing industry because it makes possible the fabrication of printed circuit board assemblies without the use of chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) cleaning solvents, which have been linked to the depletion of the atmospheric ozone layer. In 1986, the global printed circuit board manufacturing industry used some 40,000 tons of CFC's, representing nearly 10 percent of all CFC's produced.

Sono-Tek, which manufactures ultrasonic nozzles systems that are used in many environmental improvement related applications in the semi- conductor, electronics, medical devices, chemical processing and other industries, has launched a major campaign to sell its fluxing systems to this multi-billion dollar industry.

HOUSTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Tuboscope Corporation (NASDAQ: TUBO) today announced financial results for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The company reported net income of approximately $1.8 million, or 15 cents a share, for the third quarter of 1990, compared to a net loss of approximately $1.3 million, or 34 cents a share (after preferred stock dividends), for the third quarter of 1989. The increase in net income was primarily due to an approximate $9 million, or 36 percent, increase in revenue and a decrease in interest expense of approximately $1.3 million. In addition, the third quarter of 1989 included preferred stock dividends of $530,000, while there were no such dividends in the third quarter of 1990.

During the third quarter of 1990, revenue increased to approximately $34.1 million, up from approximately $25.1 million in 1989. This increase in revenue was significant in each of the company's main product lines: oilfield services, pipeline, and mill sales and services. Oilfield services revenue increased approximately $6.2 million, or 32 percent, due to an increase in domestic oil and gas drilling and workover activity, as the company's inspection and coating services both reflected strong increases. Pipeline Service revenue was up approximately $1 million, or 23 percent, due primarily to an increase in foreign pipeline inspection work. Mill sales and services increased $1.7 million due mainly to the sale of a mill inspection unit in September.

The decrease in interest expense was a result of the retirement of the company's bank debt on March 20, 1990, with proceeds from its initial public offering. Simultaneous with this offering, all outstanding preferred stock was exchanged for common stock.

Headquartered in Houston, Tuboscope provides specialized services and products to the oil and gas industry worldwide. The company provides inspection and coating services for oil country tubular goods (drill pipe, casing, and tubing), sells tubular connections, provides in-place inspection of oil and gas pipelines, and sells and leases inspection equipment to manufacturers of tubulars. The company designs and manufactures its proprietary inspection and coating equipment and formulates and manufactures its own internal coatings.

LISLE, IL. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Citing continuing strong sales performance Tellabs Inc. (NASDAQ: TLAB) today reported higher sales and earnings for the third quarter of 1990.

Sales for the third quarter ended Sept. 28 were $49,982,000, up 25.4 percent compared with sales of $39,860,000 for the same period in 1989. Sales for the first nine months of the year were $150,855,000, a 20.2 percent increase over sales of $125,502,000 a year earlier.

Net income for the third quarter was $942,000, a 76.7 percent increase from $533,000 a year earlier. For the first nine months, net income decreased 4.7 percent to $5,615,000 from $5,889,000 a year earlier. Earnings per share of common stock were seven cents, compared to four cents for the third quarter of 1989.

"Sales were strong across all of our product lines," said Tellabs President Michael J. Birck. "This continued sales strength was offset by high operating expenses, which continue to run well ahead of expenses through the same periods last year. This accelerated spending was planned as we allocate resources toward bringing to market new products that support the company's strategic direction."

During the third quarter, Tellabs' SONET-based Titan(TM) digital cross-connect systems at three field-trial sites across the United States received planned software updates. These updates have allowed the field-trial customers to test many of the features that will be available with the initial production release of the system.

"The Titan field trials, while lengthy, are progressing pretty much as planned " said Birck. "We expect to begin shipping production-level systems to our customers by the end of the year."

Tellabs designs, manufactures, markets and services voice and data equipment.

The company's products are used internationally by telephone companies, interexchange carriers, governments and businesses.

DETROIT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. vehicle production for this week is estimated at 207,259 cars and trucks, down 8.1 percent from last week's actual output of 225,434, Ward's Automotive Reports said. This week's scheduled production is also down 3.5 percent from the 1989 same-week build of 212,637.

The downturn in weekly production reflects several temporary plant closings that took effect this week, including one new shutdown each at General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. and three new idlings at Ford Motor Co. facilities. All are due to a lack of dealer orders.

This week's planned U.S. car production is 131,154 units, bringing the 1990 year-to-date estimate through the end of this week to 5,053,049, 89.76 percent of like-1989's output of 5,629,401, Ward's reported.

U.S. truck output for this week is estimated at 76,105, down from the prior week's total of 82,284, Ward's said. Estimated year-to-date truck output through the end of this week is 3,170,794, 95.03 percent of year-ago's 3,336,761.

Of this week's estimated U.S. car output, General Motors Corp.'s share was 47.4 percent; Ford Motor Co., 15.4 percent; Chrysler Corp., 13.1 percent; Honda of America Mfg. Inc., 7.2 percent; Toyota Motor Mfg. USA Inc., 3.5 percent; New United Motor Mfg. Inc., 3.2 percent; Mazda Motor Mfg. (USA) Corp. 4.4 percent; Diamond-Star Motors Corp., 3.1 percent; Nissan Motor Mfg. Corp., 1.9 percent; and Subaru-Isuzu Automotive Inc., 0.8 percent.

WILMINGTON, DEL. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Wilmington Trust Co. (NASDAQ: WILM) today reported that net income for the third quarter increased 12 percent to a record $17.4 million, or $1 a share, compared to $15.5 million, or $.87 a share, last year.

For the first nine months, net income was up 14 percent to a record $48 million, or $2.76 a share, vs. $42.1 million, or $2.37 a share, a year ago.

Both major components of the company's business contributed to the third quarter improvement. Net interest income grew 10 percent to a record $31.2 million, while revenues from noninterest sources increased 11 percent to a new quarterly high of $23 million.

Most of the improvement in net interest income was related to an 11 percent increase in the average level of loans outstanding, which totaled a record $2.5 billion. However, this gain was partially offset by a narrower net interest margin, which declined to 4.28 percent from 4.42 percent a year ago.

The three major operating components of noninterest income contributed to the gain: trust and investment management fees rose 13 percent to $16.3 million, service charges on deposit accounts increased 23 percent to $2.5 million and other operating income grew 5 percent to $3.5 million. Securities gains totaled $752,000 compared to $860,000 last year.

Operating expenses for the quarter increased 7 percent to $30 million over the same period a year ago. Employment costs, the largest component, grew 6 percent, while all other expenses rose 9 percent.

The company continued to strengthen its reserve for loan losses by providing $2.5 million from third quarter earnings vs. $2.25 million for the same period last year. Net charge-offs totaled $1.5 million, down from $2.2 million quarter-to-quarter. This brought the loan loss reserve to a record $37.9 million, or 1.52 percent of loans outstanding, as of Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $34.2 million, or 1.53 percent of loans, on the same date a year ago.

The Wilmington Trust board of directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $.36 a share, payable Nov. 15, 1990, to stockholders of record Nov. 1.

SOMERS POINT, N.J. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Action Savings Bank SLA (NASDAQ: ANSL) announced today that in its ongoing efforts to reduce non-earning assets the bank held auctions on the Legacy Inn in Ocean City, N.J., and the Ocean 21 and Beach Haven Condominiums in Brigantine, N.J. on Saturday, Oct. 13, and Sunday, Oct. 14.

A spokesperson for the bank observed that although the Legacy Inn auction was unsuccessful, the Ocean 21 and Beach Haven were sold out entirely. In excess of 300 people attended the auction, which was held in Brigantine, and although 34 units were sold, the results indicate clearly the continuing severe softness in the real estate market in Southern New Jersey. However, the auctions accomplished two objectives for the bank: the first being the elimination of ongoing monthly expenses to maintain the properties, and secondly, the return of invested dollars to the bank which will be converted to earning assets. It is believed efforts of this type are steps that are necessary in the current economic environment.

In a further announcement, the bank stated that it continued to suffer losses during the fourth quarter of its fiscal year which ended Sept. 30, 1990. An announcement of the amount of the losses for the fourth quarter and the fiscal year will not be made until the completion of the bank's annual financial statements by its certified public accountants. The bank's spokesperson commented, however, that these losses primarily result from the continuing adverse affect of non- performing assets on its net interest income, and the bolstering of loss reserves to reflect the persistent decline in the real estate market. To mitigate these factors, the bank is concentrating its efforts on achieving a significant reduction in operating costs and expediting the disposition of its problem assets. Through efficiencies, the bank said it intends to maintain the same level of service to its depositors and borrowers.

The bank said it did not meet the minimum regulatory capital ratios at Sept. 30, 1990. On Aug. 29, 1990, pursuant to Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) regulations, the bank filed a capital plan with the OTS designed to demonstrate the means by which the bank will achieve capital compliance. As a result of its not meeting minimum capital ratios, the bank is prohibited from paying dividends and its lending and investment activities are restricted.

BOISE (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Morrison Knudsen Corp. (MK) (NYSE: MRN) today reported 1990 third quarter net income of $8.2 million (70 cents per share) on revenue of $405 million. This compares with net income of $7.9 million (69 cents per share) on revenue of $589 million for the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine-month period ending Sept. 30, Morrison Knudsen reported net income of $22.9 million on revenue of $1.2 billion. This compares with net income of $21.5 million on revenue of $1.6 billion for the corresponding period in 1989.

William J. Agee, chairman and chief executive officer of MK, said new contract awards during the quarter raised the backlog to $3.9 billion, a record level.

"Major contract awards in our engineering and construction segment have added to our expanding backlog of work," said Agee. "This backlog will serve as a strong earnings foundation for the next several years."

Highlighting new work bookings for the quarter were a $300-million contract for lignite mining in Texas; an estimated $160-million contract to construct a hydroelectric project in Georgia; a $140-million design-and-build contract for Boeing; and a contract for MK and a joint-venture partner to manage construction of an $800-million pharmaceutical research park in England for Glaxo Group Research Ltd.

Additionally, MK won a contract worth $91 million to manufacture 39 new commuter rail cars for Metro North Commuter Railroad in New York State.

During the quarter, the company purchased CF Systems Inc., an environmental firm with proven technologies in the reduction and remediation of hazardous wastes. Agee said this acquisition enhances MK's already substantial presence in the growing environmental-cleanup market.

Agee said, "While our Rail Systems Group lost money in the quarter, we improved the operations considerably from the second quarter. Significant improvements are expected in the quarters ahead."

DANBURY, CT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Saudi Basic Industries Corporation (SABIC) has chosen Union Carbide Chemicals and Plastics Company, Inc.'s UNIPOL(TM) PP process for a planned grassroots polypropylene plant to be located at Al-Jubail in Saudi Arabia.

The new facility, the kingdom's first PP unit, will be owned and operated by Saudi European Petrochemical Co., a 70 percent SABIC-owned joint venture company. The new UNIPOL PP plant has a design capacity of 200,000 tons-per-year and will be capable of producing a full product range -- homopolymers and random and impact copolymers. Construction is scheduled to begin later this year with startup anticipated for early 1993.

Propylene feedstock for the UNIPOL PP plant will be supplied by Arabian Petrochemical Company, a wholly owned SABIC affiliate. Completion of the new plant will enable SABIC to produce for the first time all of the five major thermoplastics: high- and low-density polyethylenes, polystyrene, polyvinyl chloride and polypropylene.

According to SABIC, UNIPOL PP technology was selected because it offers low investment and operating costs, outstanding product versatility and quality, and excellent environmental and safety features. In addition, as a licensee with three major polyethylene plants in the kingdom employing six UNIPOL PE reactors, SABIC is very familiar with the features and advantages of UNIPOL technology.

CALABASAS, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Lockheed Corp. (NYSE: LK) today reported third-quarter earnings of $86 million, or $1.36 per share, on sales of $2.3 billion. Third-quarter earnings were up sharply from 1989, when the corporation incurred substantial charges related to certain fixed-price development contracts and recorded a third-quarter loss of $31 million, or 49 cents per share, on sales of $2.2 billion.

For the first nine months of 1990, net earnings were $236 million, or $3.73 per share, on sales of $7 billion, compared to $111 million, or $1.78 per share, on sales of $6.9 billion in 1989.

In the first three quarters of 1990, 75 percent of Lockheed sales was for U.S defense work, while 14 percent was for nondefense work for the U.S. government. Sales to foreign governments accounted for 3 percent of the total, and sales to commercial customers, 8 percent.

Funded sign-ups of new and follow-on orders during the first nine months of 1990 totaled $6.8 billion, compared with $6.9 billion during the same period in 1989.

Funded backlog was $7 billion on Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $7.1 billion at year-end 1989. Not included in the 1990 backlog were unfunded programs under contract with U.S. and foreign governments valued at $6.5 billion. At year-end 1989, unfunded backlog was $5.9 billion.

Lockheed's total debt fell to $1.7 billion at Sept. 30, 1990, compared with $1.9 billion at year-end 1989.

Shareholders' equity rose to $2.2 billion at Sept. 30, 1990, from $2.1 billion at year-end 1989.

Employment at the end of the third quarter of 1990 was 75,300, down 7,200 from year-end 1989.

BLUE BELL, PA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Healthcare (NASDAQ: USHC), a recognized leader in the managed care industry, enters a new era today when it officially opens its Customer Service Center -- an innovative facility designed to provide quality service for years to come.

Located at 1425 Union Meeting Road in Blue Bell, the new building will house 1,000 employees and has the capacity to ultimately accommodate a staff of more than 2,000. Today's grand opening ceremony will be attended by dozens of corporate leaders as well as state and local officials.

Conceived and built to accommodate major corporate expansion as well as innovative methods of providing quality service, the center will enhance service by combining computerized technology and automated systems, innovative design and forward-thinking employee training programs. As an operator of health maintenance organizations, U.S. Healthcare currently serves more than 1.1 million members in six Northeastern states.

"Quality and customer service is the name of the game in an industry like ours and the new Customer Service Center will no doubt help us better serve our members," said Marcy Abramson, vice president- operations, at U.S. Healthcare.

Highlights of today's ceremony include participation of tennis legend Arthur Ashe who will receive the first U.S. Healthcare Humanitarian Award for his outstanding philanthropic efforts. Ron Zemke, a well-known author, consultant and leader in the field of quality service and productivity improvement will officially dedicate the center.

In addition, state Rep. George E. Saurman will join with U.S. Healthcare officials in sealing a package of supplies to be sent to the U.S. troops in the Middle-East, and discuss corporate responsibility during turbulent times. And, to top off the day's events, attendees will be invited to tour the center and view the advanced customer service technology incorporated in the building.

In order to realize the dream of superior customer service in the new center, innovative technology and progressive management techniques were merged to create an atmosphere where quality service and efficiency are synonymous.

Founded in 1976, U.S. Healthcare is the largest independent health maintenance organization (HMO) in the country, serving 1.1 million members in Pennsylvania New Jersey, Delaware, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Harris Bankcorp today announced net income of $28,264,000 for its third quarter compared with a net loss of $21,187,000 for the same period last year when the corporation recorded a special $50 million addition to its allowance for possible credit losses related to loans made to lesser developed countries (LDC's). Excluding the effect of this special provision from 1989 results, earnings would have increased approximately 68 percent on a quarter-to- quarter basis. B. Kenneth West, chairman and chief executive officer, attributed this increase primarily to higher levels of both noninterest income and net interest income compared to the 1989 third quarter.

Third quarter net interest income on a fully taxable equivalent basis was $103.5 million, up 6 percent from $97.2 million in 1989's third quarter. Average earning assets increased 6.5 percent from $9.89 billion a year ago to $10.53 billion, accounting for the growth in net interest income. Net interest margin declined slightly during the current quarter to 3.91 percent from 3.94 percent in the same quarter last year, reflecting some reduction in the level of noninterest-bearing funds.

Noninterest income advanced 18 percent over the same quarter last year to $68.0 million. Trust and investment management fees, service charges on deposits, charge card fees, foreign exchange income and profits from bond and financial instrument trading activities all increased from the prior year. During the year-ago quarter, the corporation realized a net gain of $604,000 from the elective sale of certain investment portfolio securities compared to virtually no net gains or losses for the 1990 third quarter.

Noninterest expenses rose only 1 percent in the quarter reflecting, in part, lower growth in employment-related expenses and a favorable adjustment of prior period real estate tax reserves. Income tax expense increased by $16.9 million during the current quarter primarily because of the impact of substantially higher pretax income.

The third quarter 1990 provision for credit losses of $13.6 million was down substantially from the prior year's provision of $64.4 million, which included the $50 million special addition. Net loan charge-offs during the current quarter were $9.4 million compared to $16.2 million one year ago.

On Sept. 30, 1990, the allowance for possible credit losses was $125.2 million equal to 1.72 percent of total loans outstanding, compared with $217.9 million or 3.20 percent of loans at the end of the 1989 third quarter. The reduction in both the gross reserve and the ratio of reserve to loans essentially resulted from 1990 LDC charges of approximately $104 million taken during the first and second quarters to recognize losses from outright portfolio sales, writedowns to market value for expected sales, and estimated adjustments for uncollectible outstandings.

Nonperforming assets on Sept. 30, 1990 totaled $159.5 million, or 2.2 percent of total loans, up from $152.2 million or 2.2 percent of loans one year earlier and $105.3 million or 1.5 percent, at June 30, 1990. Although the total of nonperforming assets has not changed significantly since Sept. 30, 1989, the mix of these assets reflects the reduction of nonaccrual loans to lesser developed countries and an increase in domestic commercial loans.

HOUSTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Western Company of North America (NYSE: WSN) today reported net income of $.7 million for the 1990 third quarter, or $.05 per share on revenues of $77.9 million; in the same 1989 quarter the company recorded a net loss of $4.9 million, or $.39 per share, on revenues of $64.8 million. Net income of $94,000, or $.01 per share, on revenues of $226.9 million for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 represents a significant improvement over the corresponding nine months of 1989. In the latter period, Western reported a net loss of $12.0 million or $.96 per share, on revenues of $163.0 million. As previously reported, the company recognized a $1.6 million extraordinary gain in the first half of 1990 from retirement of indebtedness.

The average domestic rig count was 1,022 in the 1990 third quarter, 57 above the second quarter and 136 rigs higher than the 1989 third quarter. For the first nine months of 1990 and 1989 the average rig count was 981 and 817, respectively. Beginning the fourth quarter the domestic rig count stood at 1,047; seven percent above last year at this time.

During the quarter a new full-service South Houston district and four Texas Gulf Coast service points were opened by the Western Petroleum Services division (WPS).

This expansion was undertaken to facilitate growth of the pressure pumping business in the offshore Texas market. Also, a WPS district office in Rock Springs, Wyo. was reactivated to provide pressure pumping services for the gas-driven expansion occurring in the Rocky Mountain region. The company's wholly-owned subsidiary, Western Petroleum Services International Company, signed a contract for the construction in Singapore of a vessel to perform offshore well stimulation services in the North Sea. The total vessel contract price is $30 million. Well stimulation equipment for the vessel will cost approximately $13 million.

Further, the company purchased from Exxon Corporation its 50 percent interest in a partnership which owned the Alaskan Star semisubmersible rig for $12.5 million. Western now owns 100 percent of this rig.

List prices in the pressure pumping business were increased approximately three percent on Aug. 1. This increase, coupled with a continued reduction in discounts contributed to the year-to-year improvement in pressure pumping revenues.

On Sept. 27, 1990, a registration statement was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission by Western Oceanic, Inc., a newly formed company to which Western intends to transfer its offshore contract drilling business, for an initial public offering of its shares, including shares owned by Western. Upon completion of this offer Western would own approximately 66 percent of Western Oceanic, Inc. The timing and completion of this offer, which will only be made by means of a prospectus meeting the requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, is subject to market conditions for new equities, among other factors.

Western also announced that it has been notified that on or about October 10, 1990, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States filed a Schedule 13-G with the SEC reporting that its subsidiary, Alliance Capital Management, L.P., beneficially owns 11.8 percent of Western's common stock.

The Western Company of North America is an oilfield service company providing pressure pumping services through Western Petroleum Services and Western Petroleum Services International Company and contract drilling services worldwide through Western Oceanic, Inc. Pressure pumping principally involves the acidizing, fracturing and cementing of oil and gas wells. Offshore contract drilling services are provided with a fleet of 13 mobile rigs. Western's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange (Symbol WSN).

NEW CUMBERLAND, Pa. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Ronald H. Smith, chairman of the board, president, and chief executive officer of CCNB Corp. (NASDAQ: CCNC) announced today that CCNB has strengthened its allowance for loan losses as a precautionary measure.

Third quarter results will reflect a $2.76 million addition to its loan losses reserves.

This increase in the allowance for loan losses reflects the normal quarterly provision of $763,000 plus an additional provision of $1,900,000. The additional provision resulted from internal discussion and analysis and was not the result of any examination or comments by CCNB's regulators. CCNB decided it would be prudent to strengthen its allowance for loan losses as a precautionary measure in light of the weakening economy, specifically in commercial and residential real estate markets. After giving effect to the planned increases in its allowance for loan losses at Sept. 30, 1990, the ratio of the allowance for loan losses to net loans will increase to 1.15 percent and the ratio of allowance for loan losses to non-performing assets will be 87 percent.

CCNB does not anticipate that the reported increase in its loan loss reserves will have an adverse effect on its normal quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share.

CCNB expects to report net earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, of approximately 41 cents per share, as compared to 65 cents per share for the same period in 1989, and net earnings for the nine month period ended Sept. 30 1990, of $1.61 per share, as compared to $1.77 for that same period in 1989. CCNB also estimates that its annualized return on assets for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, will be approximately 1.00 percent.

CCNB Corp. is the parent company of CCNB Bank, N.A., the Gettysburg National Bank, and Parent Federal Savings Bank, which collectively operate 41 offices in southcentral Pennsylvania.

IRVINE, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - C-TECH Electronics Inc., manufacturer of the ProWriter series of dot matrix printers, announced today it has joined The ASCII Group, a national chain that offers independent computer resellers more than 50 different financial and value-added benefits.

According to Alan Weinberger, founder, president and chief executive officer of The ASCII Group, the organization is the largest of its kind in the world with 440 members generating nearly $2 billion in revenues worldwide.

"We carefully align ourselves with key manufacturers who fill specific needs of our member resellers," he said. "C-TECH has some interesting new technology (flatbed straight-through paperpath printing that minimizes paper jams in dot matrix printers) to bring to our product mix that will be seen as valuable to our independent resellers."

C-Tech's full product line, including the new C-645 and C-610+ printers with the unique flatbed technology, will be distributed and serviced through Promark Distribution Inc. in New York.

"C-Tech printers, in addition to providing good margins for our customers, offer a unique package of features that other printer manufacturers don't have " said Joel Blank, sales manager for Promark.

"The flatbed technology, ideal for printing multiple part forms, labels and envelopes, together with C-TECH's other features including high-speed, letter-quality printing, full buffer, color capability and exceptional pricing make the products a perfect solution for small businesses, value-added dealers and resellers, the exploding home office markets and networking environments. Laser printers can't do everything and they cost thousands of dollars more," he said.

According to Marc Liebesman, vice president, sales and marketing for C-TECH, the alliance with The ASCII Group will be promoted via a full marketing program including advertising in key trade publications, trade show support, direct mail campaigns and other promotional activity.

CINCINNATI (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Roto-Rooter, Inc. (NASDAQ: ROTO) today reported revenues of $18,734,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, a 13 percent increase over revenues of $16,564,000 reported in the comparable 1989 quarter. On a year-to-date basis, revenues for the first nine months of 1990 reached $55,394,000, a 13 percent increase over the $48,987,000 reported in the first nine months of 1989.

Net income of $1,466,000 for the third quarter of 1990 was marginally above net income of $1,464,000 earned in the comparable 1989 quarter. On a year-to-date basis, net income for the first nine months of 1990 was $4,198,000 as compared with $4,291,000 earned in the first nine months of 1989.

Earnings per share of 30 cents for the third quarter of 1990 were even with results for the third quarter of 1989. On a year-to-date basis, earnings per share for the first nine months of 1990 were 85 cents as compared with 87 cents reported for the first nine months of 1989.

Plumbing revenues for the third quarter of 1990 were $4,651,000, a 20 percent increase over the prior year's third quarter revenues of $3,861,000. On a year-to-date basis, plumbing revenues for the first nine months of 1990 reached $13,637,000, a 30 percent increase over the $10,525,000 reported in the comparable 1989 period. Revenues from sewer and drain cleaning and industrial/municipal services for the third quarter of 1990 increased by 9 percent and 13 percent, respectively, and, on a year-to-date basis, by 8 percent and 11 percent, respectively, over the comparable prior-year periods.

The company's pretax profit margin during the first nine months of 1990 was 1.9 percentage points lower than that achieved in the comparable prior-year period. The company's pretax profit margin of 12.7 percent for the third quarter of 1990 is, however, an improvement over its pretax profit margin of 12.0 percent for the first half of 1990. Further, the company expects additional improvement during the balance of this year.

Commenting on Roto-Rooter's results, William R. Griffin, president of Roto-Rooter, stated, "We are very pleased with the continued expansion of our plumbing repair business. In addition, we have continued to make good progress in several other areas. For example, we continue to invest in the development of our direct sales force in order to increase sales of our services to the commercial market, including industrial customers. To assist our direct sales force, we are continuing to develop special programs for ongoing emergency and preventive maintenance services to commercial customers.

"In our report for the first six months of the year, we stated that we were gradually beginning to divide some of our large, company-owned operations in major metropolitan areas into smaller, more efficient units in the belief that such a change would enable local management to concentrate their efforts within more manageable territories and to devote more of their time to areas that are vital to the growth of our business. One such change was effected on Jan. 1, 1990, and we are pleased to report that for the first nine months of this year, the results are quite favorable. As a result, various of our other large, company-owned operations will be similarly divided. These changes should better meet the needs of our customers and employees and are expected to result in faster rates of growth for sales and profits in our large, metropolitan markets."

Commenting further, Griffin stated: "Daily we read about the worsening state of the national economy. While very few businesses completely escape the effects of recession, we believe our Roto-Rooter businesses are recession-resistant. Importantly, Roto-Rooter's balance sheet remains strong with cash of $12,651,000, a current ratio of 2.9:1, and long-term debt as a percent of stockholders' equity of less than 2 percent. This solid financial base will allow Roto-Rooter to grow internally and to continue to make acquisitions of additional businesses. Our business is fundamentally strong and we are optimistic that Roto-Rooter will report higher earnings during the remainder of 1990."

Roto-Rooter, Inc., through its 64 company-owned operations and approximately 650 independent franchises, is the largest provider of sewer and drain cleaning services in the United States. The company, headquartered in Cincinnati, also offers plumbing repair services, industrial and municipal pipe cleaning services and consumer products.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Tennant (NASDAQ: TANT) CEO Roger L. Hale today reported a decline in profit from operations due to economic slowdown, and an increase in after-tax earnings due to several unusual events that occurred earlier this year.

For the third quarter ended Sept. 30, net earnings were $4.2 million or 85 cents per share versus $3.9 million or 78 cents per share last year. The earnings increase was due primarily to a $700,000 reduction in income tax expense resulting from the June 1990 merger of the company with its subsidiary Tennant Trend. Net sales of $52.9 million were up 6 percent from the $49.8 million reported for last year. Average shares outstanding declined to 4,920,400 from 5,001,400 last year.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, net earnings were $12.3 million or $2.50 per share versus $9.6 million or $1.84 per share for last year. Included in 1990 net earnings is $3.1 million or 63 cents per share related to unusual and extraordinary events that occurred and were reported on in the first and second quarters. Net sales of $154.2 million were up 9 percent from last year's $141.6 million. Average shares outstanding declined to 4,921,500 from 5,202,200 last year.

Sales year-to-date were up 4 percent in North America with the gain coming from industrial and commercial equipment markets which offset a decline in floor coatings. Overseas sales increased 24 percent in dollars (18 percent in local currencies) with most of the improvement coming from exports to Japan.

The weaker U.S. dollar increased total sales by $2.3 million.

Profit from operations was down for the third quarter and year-to-date periods due mainly to a significant sales decline in the contracting part of the floor coatings business. While actions were taken earlier in the year to down size operations, the sales shortfall was greater than expected. Third quarter profit from operations was also affected by a sales slowdown in North American and European industrial equipment markets.

Other income declined by $554,000 from the same nine-month period last year due mainly to expenses related to the newly formed ESOP and the effects of company stock repurchases in 1989 and 1990.

Regarding the full year outlook, Hale commented, "Our incoming order rates continue ahead of last year but we are experiencing a slowdown. With the consensus economic view calling for a mild recession, we are studying belt-tightening actions.

Tennant is the world's leading manufacturer of floor maintenance equipment.

SEATTLE (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The following was released today by Boeing Aerospace & Electronics:

Enabling ground-based lasers to track and destroy incoming enemy ballistic missiles is the challenge facing Boeing scientists involved with a number of free-electron laser (FEL) projects.

A recent contract awarded to Boeing Defense & Space Group by the U.S. Air Force calls for developing a missile-defense concept that is adaptable to new free-electron laser technology currently evolving.

Boeing Aerospace & Electronics, a division of the Defense & Space Group, last month was awarded a 16-month, $2.5-million Ground-Based Laser Concept Formulation and Technology Development Planning contract by the Air Force's Space Systems Division in Los Angeles. The contract also contains three one-year options.

"Our mission is to further develop the concept that uses a ground-based laser for ballistic missile defense," said Mike Weisbach, Boeing laser technology manager and program manager for the effort. "This work will serve as the interface between the people who define the missions at SDIO (Strategic Defense Initiative Organization) and people doing the technology."

Lockheed Missiles and Space Corp. also was awarded a contract by the Air Force to undertake ground-based laser concept formulation studies. The Aerospace & Electronics Research & Engineering organization and its Aerospace Systems Technologies group was awarded the contract for two major reasons, Weisbach believes:

- Boeing is widely recognized as a worldwide expert in ground-based free-electron laser technology, which is based on converting the energy of electrons into laser light, and;
- The group's proposal highlighted the use of a new computer software application called RDD-100.

The innovative software program will enable engineers to bring a well-documented, traceable system engineering approach to the project, according to Weisbach. "The systems and software engineering group at Aerospace & Electronics is working hard at getting the software out into the workplace," he added.

Implementation of RDD-100 into the proposal effort was overseen by Dennis Vickery, database deployment manager in the Systems & Software Engineering organization.

CHICAGO, ILL. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Santa Fe Pacific Corporation (NYSE: SFX) (SFP) today reported third quarter net income of $5.5 million or $.04 per share, down from $33.8 million or $.21 per share for the same quarter last year but an improvement from the net loss of $1.3 million or $.01 a share in the second quarter this year. Robert D. Krebs, chairman, president and chief executive officer, pointed out that the 1990 third quarter results include an extraordinary charge of $13.1 million attributable to an exchange of common stock for a portion of the company's 16 percent senior subordinated debentures. Net income before the extraordinary charge was $18.6 million, or $.12 per share. "Our rail and energy operations had excellent quarters, and our other businesses did as we expected," said Krebs.

Operating income of $127.7 million was $16.9 million or 12 percent below third quarter 1989 operating income of $144.6 million, but 77 percent better than the $72.3 million reported in the second quarter this year. The decline from 1989 consists principally of lower operating income from real estate activities, which was expected since the company has changed its real estate strategy to deemphasize sales of vacant land and emphasizes creation of value through long-term development and operation. Despite significantly increased fuel prices in August and September, Santa Fe Railway reported strong operating results, due to cost containment measures implemented over the past year.

Higher oil prices benefited the company's petroleum production and marketing operations.

For the first nine months of 1990, the company reported a net loss of $57.2 million or $.36 per share, compared with net income of $224.0 million or $1.40 per share for the comparable 1989 period. Net income for the 1990 period was significantly affected by the settlement of two lawsuits that resulted in a net after-tax charge of $115.0 million or $.73 per share. Included in 1989 net income is $210.0 million or $1.32 per share, representing the one-time effect of adopting new rules for accounting for income taxes as prescribed by the Financial Accounting Standards Board. The nine-month loss before extraordinary items and accounting changes was $44.1 million or $.28 per share compared with income of $14.0 million or $.08 per share in the prior year.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Knape & Vogt Manufacturing Co. (NASDAQ-NMS: KNAP) today announced that earnings for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, increased 33.2 percent to $1,507,044 from $1,131,134 a year ago. Earnings per share rose 34.6 percent to 35 cents in the current first quarter from 26 cents a share in the same period last year. The year-ago per-share figure has been restated to reflect the 10-percent stock dividend recently paid to shareholders.

Sales for the quarter declined 1.6 percent to $28,653,989 from $29,127,616 a year ago, the highest for any first quarter in the company's history.

Raymond E. Knape, chairman, president and chief executive officer, said, "The increase in net income is the direct result of our cost containment programs and reductions in debt and overhead expenses. These factors were anticipated to increase margins and the results confirm the benefits of the actions taken.

"We are pleased that Knape & Vogt was able to achieve higher earnings, even with the impact of a one-time charge of $213,000 related to the sale of our corporate airplane and the termination of our airplane department. The proceeds from this sale further reduce our debt expense level," Mr. Knape said.

Looking ahead to the balance of the year, Mr. Knape said "Our business plan is to strive to increase sales by opening new channels of distribution for our products, improve service levels to customers and, acquire and develop new products, while reducing costs and expenses. How well we work to achieve our goals will determine the levels of sales and profits for the year."

Knape & Vogt manufacturers wall-attached shelving and a wide variety of home furnishing items, and also derives about one-third of its sales from drawer slides for kitchen and utility cabinet manufacturers.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Concourse Corporation, an Eden Prairie, Minn.-based training company reported net income of $6,318 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, an increase of $123,253 from the net loss for the third quarter of 1989. Revenues of $289,991 for the period were up 57.2 percent from the third quarter of 1989.

Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $51,796, up $83,383 from the net loss for the first nine months of 1989. Revenues of $870,929 for the period were up 7.4 percent from the first nine months of 1989.

The increase in revenues were the result of increased sales of the company's training products and increases in professional services and custom development revenues. The net income increase was the result of the higher revenues and lower product development expenses.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - GATX Corporation (NYSE: GMT) today announced that net income was $20.8 million, or $0.91 per common share, for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. For the comparable quarter of 1989, net income was $17.8 million, or $0.83 per common share.

GATX earned a record nine-month net income of $58.6 million in 1990 compared to $50.5 million in 1989. Earnings per common share were $2.52 for the first nine months of 1990 compared to $2.56 for the comparable 1989 period.

James J. Glasser, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer stated, "The continuing strength of our operations, as demonstrated in our third quarter earnings, reflects GATX's ability to perform strongly in the current business environment.

"Of particular significance are the strong utilization rates in our railcar leasing and management subsidiary; the on-going disposition gains which reflect the ability of our asset base to hold long-term value; the record level of throughput and improving utilization at GATX Terminals; and the continued high demand for the services of our Great Lakes fleet."

General American Transportation Corporation, GATX's railcar leasing and management subsidiary, reported record quarterly earnings of $14.8 million for the third quarter compared to $13.7 million for the third quarter of 1989.

Improved earnings reflect primarily an increased number of railcars on lease as well as pricing improvements. Fleet utilization at Sept. 30, 1990, was 94 percent compared to 95 percent a year ago.

GATX Capital Corporation, the company's financial services and capital equipment financing subsidiary, had earnings of $7.0 million for the 1990 third quarter compared to $6.3 million in 1989. The growth in earnings reflects an increase in lease income as a result of the expansion of the lease portfolio.

Participation income on the sale of real estate investments was $1.6 million in the quarter; activity in the quarter reduced the investment in real estate to $165 million. Pre-tax gains from equipment disposition were $5.4 million in the 1990 third quarter compared to $7.1 million in 1989, reflecting the continuing income provided by the disposition of equipment which includes aircraft and rolling stock.

GATX Terminals Corporation, the bulk liquid storage and pipeline subsidiary, reported earnings of $4.1 million for the third quarter of 1990 compared to $7.5 million in the third quarter of 1989. Last year's third quarter earnings included a $1.7 million gain from the disposition of GATX's interest in a joint venture.

Although GATX Terminals' operations continue to operate at record levels, earnings are being constrained by increasing maintenance expense, claim experience, financing costs related to acquisitions, and start-up of newly acquired facilities.

NEWTOWN SQUARE, PA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Arco Chemical Co. (NYSE: RCM) today reported third quarter 1990 earnings per share of $0.58 on $56 million of net income as compared to $0.98 per share on $94 million of net income in the same quarter last year.

Year-to-date earnings per share were $2.95 compared to $3.44 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1989. Third quarter 1990 operating revenues were $681 million vs. $632 million in the third quarter 1989. Year-to-date operating revenues for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, and the same period in 1989 respectively, were $2,071 million and $2,057 million.

Harold A. Sorgenti, president and chief executive officer, said: "The third quarter 1990 results have been significantly affected by the July 5 fire and explosion, and subsequent shut-down at our Channelview, Texas plant. The MTBE and butanediol units have been restarted. The polyols unit is expected to be restarted in November and the propylene oxide/styrene monomer unit in December.

"Gross profit was $226 million in the third quarter 1990 compared to $196 million last year. The third quarter 1990 gross profit includes $50 million representing that portion of our business interruption insurance claim related to the Channelview incident accrued during the quarter.

"Margin gains in propylene oxide and derivatives and in methyl tertiary butyl ether were offset by lower styrene margins and lower domestic volumes in all major product lines as a result of the Channelview plant shutdown and subsequent product allocations."

Propylene oxide margins benefitted from lower propylene feedstock costs. Margins for methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) were boosted by higher gasoline prices, partially offset by increased feedstock costs.

Lower domestic propylene oxide, styrene and MTBE volumes relate to the Channelview plant being shut down for a majority of the quarter. Lower styrene margins in the third quarter 1990 reflect the impact of styrene purchases to partially meet the needs of customers during the Channelview shutdown.

Included in the third quarter 1990 earnings is a net before-tax charge of $28 million relating to the Channelview incident. This includes a $68 million charge related to the incident and the $50 million business interruption insurance accrual. Additional business interruption claims will be accrued as appropriate in future periods.

Interest expense of $10 million for third quarter 1990 represents an increase of $6 million from 1989 as a result of higher long-term debt outstanding this year. The company said it expects its 1990 effective tax rate to be 36.2 percent.

TULSA, OK. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - MAPCO Inc. (NYSE: MDA) today reported net income of $24.8 million, or $.81 per share, for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $22.4 million or $.58 per share, for the comparable 1989 quarter. Operating profit for the third quarter was $61.3 million in 1990, and $44.5 million in 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income was $102.9 million, or $3.23 per share, compared to $86.2 million, or $2.20 per share, for the comparable 1989 period.

Average shares outstanding for the three months were 30.6 million in 1990 and 38.5 million in 1989. For the nine month periods, average shares outstanding were 31.9 million in 1990, and 39.1 million in 1989.

James E. Barnes, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of MAPCO, noted that adjustments to reserves associated with a re- evaluation of several liabilities including employee benefit plans, various on-going litigation matters and environmental clean-up costs, combined with several positive financial adjustments, had the net effect of reducing reported earnings by approximately $.20 per share. Barnes said, "Without these adjustments, reported earnings for the quarter would have been in excess of $1.00 per share."

In reviewing results for the quarter, Barnes said, "While each of our four businesses did well, the petroleum and gas products segments had particularly strong results."

MAPCO Petroleum had operating profit for the quarter of $33.1 million. Petroleum refining margins were strong early in the quarter but declined at the end of September. MAPCO's Memphis and North Pole refineries operated at near capacity during the quarter.

MAPCO gas products had operating profits for the quarter of $4.6 million. Natural gas liquids production averaged over 7,000 barrels per day for the quarter and netbacks reached a high of over $16 per barrel in September. Propane sales were well above normal for the period reflecting an acceleration of winter fill-ups by customers.

MAPCO Transportation had operating profit of $14.2 million for the quarter. Continued strength of NGL demand on the Texas Gulf Coast increased shipments from the Rocky Mountain area on MAPCO's Mid-America Pipeline System.

MAPCO Coal had operating profit of $9.4 million for the quarter. Coal sales for the quarter were 3.5 million tons. Production from the company's new "D" mine at the Mettiki complex in Maryland, utilizing a revised and enlarged long wall miner, is expected to begin by early November.

Commenting on prospects for the refining business, Barnes noted that the outlook remains good. "Although there may be some reduction in demand as a result of higher product prices, we may also see a reduction in the supply of gasoline due to new, more environmentally acceptable gasoline specifications," he said. Overall, the company believes that the future of the refining business is good.

Barnes observed that he was optimistic about MAPCO's business prospects for the remainder of the year. "Cash generation is strong, and we are paying down debt incurred in connection with the recent stock repurchase program faster than originally anticipated. Capital investments being made this year, and a 12,000 barrel per day expansion of the Memphis refinery in 1991, should have an ongoing positive impact on MAPCO's earnings," he said.

MAPCO is a diverse energy company whose business is conducted by four operating subsidiaries: MAPCO Coal produces and markets bituminous steam and metallurgical coal; MAPCO Gas Products produces and markets natural gas liquids and fertilizers; MAPCO Petroleum operates refineries and retail marketing networks through the Mid-South and Alaska systems; and MAPCO Transportation operates natural gas liquids and ammonia pipelines, and fractionation and storage facilities.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Genus Inc. (NASDAQ: GGNS) today introduced its new integrated system, the 6000, at ceremonies held at corporate headquarter in Mountain View, Calif. The system will be displayed at Semicon Japan, a semiconductor equipment tradeshow to be held in Tokyo next week. The 6000 system integrates blanket tungsten chemical vapor deposition (CVD) and etch processes for volume production of tungsten plugs. It sets a new standard for etch- back plugs in advanced semiconductors in high throughput environments. Genus guarantees the 6000 system to provide void-free tungsten plugs with a recess specification of less then 0.2 microns across the entire wafer.

Much interest has been shown in the 6000 by semiconductor manufacturers around the world. Seven systems have been shipped to major manufacturers in the United States and Japan in pre-announcement sales and six more are in backlog.

The 6000 system is totally automatic with wafers handled in vacuum from load to unload. The system features two independent load-locks, a six-wafer batch deposition chamber, up to two single-wafer etch chambers and a central handler. It provides throughputs of 28-32 wafers per hour.

"The 6000 system is the next step in tungsten CVD multiprocessing," said Kenneth L. Schroeder, Genus president and chief operating officer. "Two processes, as well as two pieces of equipment have been totally integrated in this product. It is now being acknowledged by our customers as the best solution to increasing volume production yields in submicron applications. This is evidenced by the orders we have won to date."

"Genus has been in the business of providing tungsten CVD equipment and processes to semiconductor manufacturers around the world for nearly a decade. No one in the industry can match our experience," stated William W. R. Elder. "That experience has served us well in the two- year development of the 6000. We have worked closely with our customers to ensure that the system meets their requirements for present and next generation semiconductor manufacturing."

Tungsten plugs provide vertical interconnection of the electrical circuitry in a device. At the present time sputtered aluminum is being used for this purpose in many manufacturing lines, but its poor step coverage characteristics will prohibit its use in devices with line widths below 0.8 micron. Tungsten is rapidly taking the place of aluminum as the material of choice for interconnects and plugs.

Genus is a leading supplier of tungsten CVD and high energy ion implantation systems for advanced semiconductor manufacturers around the world.

BALTIMORE (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The following statement was issued today by Jack Moseley, chairman, president and chief executive officer of United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company, in response to a report released Monday, Oct. 15, by Public Citizen, a consumer group:

First of all, it is important to recognize that Public Citizen is a Ralph Nader organization whose primary goal is to undermine the McCarran Ferguson Act and state regulation of insurance. By establishing doubt as to the effectiveness of state regulators to prevent insolvencies, Public Citizen hopes to create greater support for federal regulation of our industry.

In using Monday's fear tactics, Public Citizen hopes to unit insurance consumers behind it. They missed their mark. Through gross misrepresentation of data and inappropriate conclusions, the response has caused much confusion at a time when our economy can least afford it.

This report is a flagrant misuse of information. USF&G is a financially strong organization as evidenced by our high ratings with A.M. Best and other rating agencies. A.M. Best uses 86 tests to evaluate financial strength compared with six tests in the Public Citizen report.

Our opinion of the Public Citizen report is shared industry-wide. The Insurance Information Institute, the communications arm of the property/casualty industry, called it "inadequate, irresponsible and embarrassing to Public Citizen. No qualified actuaries or accountants were involved in developing the report. Public Citizen is inconsistent in raising insolvency alarms now, when they have spent the past few years castigating the industry for alleged bloated profits and excessive reserves."

Baltimore-based United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company is the principal subsidiary of USF&G Corporation (NYSE: FG). USF&G Corporation is composed of subsidiaries engaged in writing property/casualty and life insurance and in the sale of financial services.

RESTON, VA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Freddie Mac (NYSE: FRE) today released information about the third quarter 1990 performance of its multifamily mortgage portfolio in light of several recent programmatic changes which the corporation initiated to stem continued multifamily losses. Additional details about the portfolio's performance will be provided at the end of this month as part of the corporation's regular third quarter 1990 earnings disclosure.

Multifamily mortgage purchases represent 2.2 percent of Freddie Mac's total 1990 mortgage purchases and make up 3.4 percent of the corporation's total $322 billion single- and multifamily mortgage portfolios as of Sept. 30, 1990. Losses to be charged to reserves on both portfolios for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, total $124 million. Of that amount, $81 million is due to losses on Freddie Mac's multifamily mortgage portfolio and $43 million to the single-family portfolio. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, multifamily losses were $42 million and single-family losses were $63 million. Most of the increase in multifamily losses is the result of a recently completed property-by-property re-evaluation of the multifamily real estate-owned (REO) portfolio in order to reflect declining market conditions.

Of Freddie Mac's total $11 billion multifamily portfolio as of Aug. 31, 1990, approximately $400 million was at least 60 days delinquent or in foreclosure. In addition, some mortgages which are currently performing will become delinquent over time. If the entire $400 million of presently non-performing loans were to become REO over the next several quarters -- a scenario which the corporation does not anticipate -- applying Freddie Mac's loss experience in the Southwest of 60 percent loss per multifamily property would result in total additional losses of $240 million over the next several quarters. As of the end of the third quarter of 1990, $35 million of this $240 million had been charged against reserves. Of the remaining $205 million, Freddie Mac believes that a significant portion will be recognized in the fourth quarter of 1990 as a result of accelerated foreclosure policies.

Brendsel said existing loan loss reserves, which were $552 million as of June 30, 1990, are more than adequate to absorb third quarter chargeoffs, and third quarter earnings will not be affected. "The corporation continuously evaluates the adequacy of its loan loss reserves, and it is possible that this normal review process will result in a special loan loss provision and/or an increase in the normal rate of loan loss provision in the fourth quarter if market conditions warrant," he said.

The largest concentration of the corporation's multifamily exposure, Brendsel explained, is in New York City and Atlanta -- two metropolitan areas which have experienced significantly deteriorating housing market conditions. New York represents 20.9 percent and Atlanta 6.2 percent of Freddie Mac's multifamily mortgage portfolio. Credit statistics for these two areas as of Aug. 31, 1990, are as follows:

BALTIMORE (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Legg Mason, Inc. (NYSE: LM) announced today operating results for its second fiscal quarter and the six months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

For the quarter, revenues were $61,929,000 compared to $62,001,000 in the corresponding quarter of 1989. Net earnings rose 1 percent to $3,475,000 from $3,429,000. Earnings per share rose to $.41 from $.40.

For the six months, net earnings were $6,655,000 compared to $6,483,000 in the corresponding period of the prior year. Revenues rose 1 percent to $122,067,000 from $121,404,000. Earnings per common share rose to $.78 from $.75.

Net earnings for the quarter and six months include $1.8 million ($.21 per share) attributable to gains on the company's previously reported sale of 240,616 shares of Environmental Elements Corporation common stock, offset in part by an increase in various litigation reserves and charges for sublease differentials on excess space in one of the company's subsidiaries. These charges reduced after-tax earnings by $700,000 ($.08 per share). The company retains 445,384 shares of Environmental Elements common stock, which are carried on its balance sheet at cost (cost: $67,500; market as of Oct. 17, 1990: $5,846,000).

DALLAS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American Airlines said today that it will inaugurate daily nonstop service between its Miami hub and Madrid on May 1, 1991.

The route, which will be operated with 177-seat Boeing 767-200ER aircraft, will be American's second to Spain and the airline's second European service from its Miami hub. American has operated a Dallas/Fort Worth-Madrid service since May 1988 and began Miami-London service last July.

American is building its Miami hub into a major Latin American gateway providing easy connections for passengers and cargo shipments moving between Madrid and a number of major points in the western Caribbean and Central and South America.

These will include such destinations as Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Lima, La Paz, Bogata, Panama City, Caracas, Santo Domingo, Puerto Plata, and Port au Prince.

"This is another important step in the continuing development of the Miami hub " said Peter J. Dolara, the airline's senior vice president for Florida, the Caribbean and Latin America. "As we add domestic destinations to the hub and expand the range of services to Central and South America, we also want to build our services to Europe."

American announced on Oct. 4 that it will begin new service this fall between Miami and Managua, Nicaragua; St. Thomas and St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands, and Islip, N.Y., near New York City.

The Madrid flight will leave Miami at 7:10 p.m. each day and arrive in Spain at 10:22 a.m. (local time) the next day. The westbound flight will leave Madrid at 12:40 p.m. and arrive in Miami at 4:02 p.m.

The 767-200ER is arranged in three passenger cabins that offer 14 sleeper seats in first class, 30 seats in business class, and 133 seats in economy class.

American's Miami-Madrid air fares will include a one-way first class fare of $2,264, a one-way business class fare of $1,376, a one-way economy fare of $893, and a roundtrip excursion fare (with certain restrictions) of $768.

DETROIT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - General Motors (NYSE: GM) announced today it is voluntarily recalling approximately 64,000 model year 1990 cars due to a potential safety defect with the shift selector operation.

Affected owners are being notified directly by mail. GM dealers will perform all necessary inspections and repairs at no charge to owners.

Vehicles included in the safety recall are certain 1990 Buick Riviera and Reatta, Oldsmobile Toronado and Trofeo, and Cadillac Eldorado and Seville models with floor console shift selectors. Vehicles with shift selectors on the steering wheel column are not affected by this campaign.

The shift control cable on the subject vehicles may disconnect from the console shift selector. If this happens, the transmission would remain in the gear position last selected, and the driver would experience a loss of gear indicator reference and shift selector operation. Depending on if and when the cable disconnection occurs, normal starting, driving and/or parking operations could be impaired.

GM is unaware of any accidents or injuries resulting from the above condition.

GM dealers will install a retaining clip on the shift control cable to ensure its connection to the console shift selector.

Customers with questions on the above condition should contact their GM dealer or call their respective divisional customer assistance center at the following toll-free numbers: Buick (1-800-521-7300), Oldsmobile (1-800-442-OLDS) or Cadillac (1-800-458-8006).

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Aril Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ARIL) announced that it has offered to acquire Alpha Microsystems (NASDAQ: ALMI) for approximately $10 million plus approximately 10,500,000 shares of Aril common stock (2,100,000 shares after Aril'S pending 1:5 reverse stock split). If the offer were accepted and the transaction completed, each outstanding share of Alpha Microsystems would be converted to $3.25 plus 3-3/4 shares of Aril common stock (3/4 share after the 1:5 reverse split). Alfred Shoenberg, president of Aril, said that the offer is conditioned on, among other things, negotiation of a formal merger agreement. On Oct. 16, 1990 Aril was reported to have traded in the NASDAQ system at $1/16 per share ($5/16 after the reverse split) and Alpha Microsystems at $1-3/8. Aril, Shoenberg said, is not currently contemplating a tender offer for Alpha Micro because given the substantial premium being offered for a negotiated transaction, more than 235 percent of Alpha Microsystems' current market value in cash alone, he would anticipate a favorable response from Alpha Microsystems' board. Shoenberg also said that Aril has retained Ventana International, Ltd. as its financial advisor and to assist Aril in obtaining financing for the proposed transaction. In addition, Shoenberg said Aril, Ventana and Alpha Microsystems had begun an exchange of confidential information and strategic plans pursuant to signed confidentiality agreements.

Aril has requested a response from Alpha Microsystems by Oct. 18, 1990. If no response, or a negative response, is received by that date, Aril and Ventana will consider alternative courses of action, Shoenberg said.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Unocal Corp.'s (NYSE: UCL) SCRAP project to rid the Los Angeles basin of the worst polluting automobiles removed 10.7 million pounds of pollution from the air - 53 percent more per car than expected.

In a press conference today to review the results of the five-month program, Richard J. Stegemeier, Unocal chairman, president and chief executive officer, said the company scrapped 8,376 pre-1971 cars.

"Based on extensive testing, SCRAP vehicles emitted as much as 60 times more pollution per mile than 1990 model cars," he said. "Prior to the program, environmental experts believed the worst polluting vehicles in Los Angeles were 15 to 30 times more polluting than new cars."

Stegemeier said the vehicles scrapped under the program were driven an average of 5,500 miles per year and emitted 10.7 million pounds of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides annually. By comparison, a similar-size fleet of 1990 model cars would be expected to travel an average of 15,000 miles per year and emit only 700,000 pounds of pollutants annually.

"The South Coast Recycled Auto Project (SCRAP) demonstrated the immediate and cost-effective impact we can make on air pollution by removing pre-1971 vehicles from the roads," Stegemeier said. "It is certain; it is measurable; and it is happening now, not in 1996, or 2000, or 2007.

"SCRAP is an outstanding example of industry-government cooperation. We had the enthusiastic cooperation of every agency we approached, and the result has been tremendous efficiency, cooperative analysis, the promise of a greater data base than has existed before and the outlook for improved regulations and regulatory policy based on better information than was previously available."

Air quality officials strongly supported Unocal's innovative SCRAP project from the beginning. Norton Younglove, chairman of the South Coast Air Quality Management District (SCAQMD), said, "Unocal's contribution not only meets the challenge, but also illustrates the commitment and leadership we all must exert to make clean air a reality in Southern California.

Unocal's SCRAP project set out to remove 7,000 pre-1971 vehicles from Los Angeles basin roads by purchasing them from owners for $700 each. The project was expected to rid the air of 5.9 million pounds of pollutants.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Trump Taj Mahal Funding, Inc. and Trump Taj Mahal Associates Limited Partnership announced today that they have filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission with respect to certain proposed amendments to their $675 million aggregate principal amount of publicly traded 14 percent bonds due 1998.

The primary purpose of the amendments, which are subject to various conditions including approval of the New Jersey Casino Control Commission, is to enable the Taj Mahal to reduce its annual debt service requirements.

The amendments would, among other things, permit the Nov. 15, 1990 interest payment on the bonds to be made in additional bonds, reduce the rate of interest on the bonds to 9 percent, permit the partial payment of future interest in additional bonds, and extend the maturity of the bonds to Sept. 15 2000.

In connection with the amendments, holders of bonds would also receive 100 percent of the common stock of a newly formed company that will hold a partnership interest representing 19.9 percent of the equity of Trump Taj Mahal Associates Limited Partnership, the owner of the Trump Taj Mahal Casino Resort.

As previously reported, the Steering Committee representing certain holders of the bonds has not endorsed the amendments, although the company is continuing to work with the Steering Committee to restructure its debt.

MOUNT CLEMENS, MICH. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - First National Bank Corp. (NASDAQ: MTCL) today reported earnings climbed 10 percent in the third quarter 1990, to $756,000 from $688,000 for the same period in 1989.

Primary earnings per share for the quarter rose to $0.63 as compared to $0.57 a year earlier. Fully diluted earnings per share for the quarter were $0.56 as compared to $0.53 a year earlier.

Earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, rose 8 percent to $2,221,000 from $2,054,000. Primary earnings per share increased to $1.84 compared to $1.70 for the first nine months of 1989. Fully diluted earnings per share totaled $1.65 as compared to $1.66 for the first nine months of 1989 reflecting the corporation's 9.5-percent convertible subordinated debentures issued in July 1989.

Corporate assets reached an all-time high, totaling $416,314,000 at Sept. 30, 1990, up 15 percent from Sept. 30, 1989.

Net interest income, after the provision for loan and lease losses, rose 12 percent to $10.7 million in the first nine months of 1990, largely as a result of the increase in the volume of loans and leases.

In addition, to keep pace with the continued loan growth and the potential for increases in loan loss due to the current economy, the corporation increased the provision for loan and lease losses to $750,000 from $405,000 in the year-earlier period.

Non-interest income rose 23 percent in the first nine months of 1990 to $2.1 million. A 32-percent increase in service charge income from deposit accounts to $1.4 million, was primarily responsible for this increase. It was offset by a 14-percent increase in non-interest expense, to $10.2 million. These increases were largely the result of the corporation's continued growth.

At Sept. 30, 1990, the corporation's loan portfolio totaled $271 million, up 15 percent from $235 million at Sept. 30, 1989. Total deposits increased 15 percent, to $372 million at Sept. 30, 1990, from $323 million a year earlier. Stockholders' equity rose 8 percent, to $26 million from $24 million. During the third quarter, the corporation also purchased 10,000 shares of its common stock under its stock repurchase plan.

First National Bank Corp. is the parent of First National Bank in Macomb County and Bankers Fund Life Insurance Co. All are headquartered in Mount Clemens. The corporation has 1,208,786 shares of common stock issued and 1,198,786 shares outstanding.

BRYN MAWR, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bryn Mawr Bank Corp. (NASDAQ: BMTC) today reported a net income of $16,000 for the third quarter of 1990, down from $1,001,000 reported for the third quarter of 1989.

Third quarter earnings per share were 1 cent compared to 92 cents in 1989.

For the first nine months, net income decreased 50 percent, from $3,161,000 in 1989 to $1,583,000 in 1990. Primary earnings per share for the nine-month period were $1.46 in 1990 vs. $2.91 in 1989.

A major factor responsible for the decreased third quarter earnings was a one-time cost of $405,000 for severance and outplacement expenses associated with the previously announced 9 percent staffing cutback in August at The Bryn Mawr Trust Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of the corporation.

The bank's total loan portfolio increased by 3 percent to $222.8 million as of Sept. 30, 1990, up from $216 million at Sept. 30, 1989. Offsetting this, non-performing loans -- those loans on which interest and/or principal payments have not been made for 90 days or more -- grew from $3.6 million at Sept. 30, 1989, to $11.4 million in 1990. The increase was primarily in real estate-related loans, including $2.2 million in other real estate owned. This increase in non-performing assets, which do not accrue interest income, along with declining interest rates are primarily responsible for a decrease in interest and fees on loans during the third quarter of 1990 to $6.2 million from $6.7 million in 1989.

In order to maintain adequate reserves for an expanded non- performing loan portfolio, third quarter net income was further reduced by an increase in the provision for loan losses from $310,000 for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1989, to $525,000 for the third quarter of 1990.

Although total deposits increased only 1 percent to $251.7 million at Sept. 30 1990, from $248.7 million in 1989, interest expense on deposits has increased 4 percent from $2.8 million to $2.9 million in 1990 because of a shift in the bank's deposit base. Demand deposits decreased from $66.8 million in 1989, to $59.8 million in 1990, while interest-bearing deposits grew from $181.9 million to $191.9 million.

For the third quarter, non-interest income grew from $1.2 million in 1989 to $1.3 million in 1990. Fees for trust services were up 14 percent. Other operating income showed a 22 percent increase.

Total other expenses -- all expenses except for interest expense, loan loss provision and income taxes -- increased 21 percent, including the non-recurring cost of $405,000 necessary to accomplish the 9 percent staffing cutback in August. One of the major reasons for this growth in expenses is related to the increased non-performing loan portfolio, such as increased legal fees and related appraisal fees. The cost of maintaining the bank's

FDIC insurance has also increased by 46 percent for the quarter, from $50,000 in 1989 to $73,000 in 1990 and 49 percent for the nine-month period, from $148,000 in 1989 to $220,000 in 1990.

According to Robert L. Stevens, corporation president, "The bank's regular salary costs were down 7 percent in September compared to the month of July, the month prior to the August staffing reduction.

TULSA, OK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Parker Drilling Co.(NYSE: PKD) announced today net income for its fiscal year 1990 (ended Aug. 31) of $7,032,000 which includes a gain on disposal of selected gas transportation and treating assets of $16,645,000. This compares to a net loss for the prior year of $42,104,000. Revenue of $108,541,000 increased from 1989 revenue of $103,676,000.

Per share results reflect an income of 14 cents compared to per share loss of 98 cents reported for the prior year. The company's fiscal 1990 year-end total asset position of $265,384,000 shows an increase from $236,151,000 at fiscal 1989 year end.

For the fourth quarter, the company earned $6.56 million (13 cents per share) on revenues of $27.93 million as compared to losses of $18.33 million (42 cents per share) on revenues of $27.25 million for the same quarter last year.

"We are extremely pleased to release these year-end figures which reflect our best balance sheet in several years," said Robert L. Parker, Jr., president and chief operating officer. "With our large cash position, little debt and excellent outlook for improved markets, fiscal 1991 should be a very good year for Parker Drilling," he added.

In a letter released to shareholders, the company said that increased trading volume in shares over the past several weeks is largely attributable to a single institutional shareholder who has been divesting shares.

Parker indicated that from Securities and Exchange Commission filings, the company has learned that the institutional holder has sold six million shares over the last three months and as of October 5th, still owned 500,000 shares.

"There are no development within the company to precipitate such action," Parker reiterated. "In fact, we are more enthusiastic about Parker Drilling's financial outlook than we have been for a long time," he said.

"With happenings in the Persian Gulf and an anticipated increase in drilling activity, we believe that our stock will return to a market value which is more representative of current energy prices," said Parker. Parker Drilling is a world wide oil and gas contract drilling company with operations in 14 countries.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - CyberOptics Corporation (NASDAQ: CYBE) reported third quarter net income of $40,000 ($.02 per share) on total revenues of $1,032,000. These results compared to net income of $96,000 ($.04 per share) on revenues of $1,013,000 in the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine month period ended Sept. 30, CyberOptics' revenues increased 10 percent to $3.2 million, compared to $2.9 million in 1989. Net income for the period was $191,000 ($.08 per share), compared to $321,000 ($.13 per share) last year.

"CyberOptics' real progress is not fully reflected in the third quarter financial statements," said CyberOptics President Steven K. Case. "In the quarter, we booked over $1.5 million of new business, our best quarter ever. In addition, the fourth quarter is off to an excellent start with an additional $650,000 of new orders since Oct. 1. This increase in bookings is a direct result of the investments we have been making to focus and strengthen our sales, marketing and development efforts."

CyberOptics has now received two orders totaling over $540,000 for its next generation process control system, the Model 2001. Two divisions of a major computer manufacturer will use these fully automated systems in producing surface mount electronic circuit boards. CyberOptics will deliver the first Model 2001 in the fourth quarter of 1990 and the second system in the second quarter of 1991.

CyberOptics is a technological leader in the design and manufacture of laser systems for non-contact measurement and process control.

BOISE, IDAHO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The cost of living in the Boise area rose 0.5 percent in September, the fourth consecutive month of higher overall costs, according to First Security Bank's monthly Boise area Cost of Living Report.

First Security chief economist Dr. Kelly K. Matthews said the Boise area cost-of-living hike compared with a non-seasonally adjusted increase of 0.8 percent reported nationally today by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Local increases were measured for transportation, groceries, clothing and health care, while utilities, housing and restaurant prices remained stable during September, according to the report.

Transportation costs in the Boise area rose for the fourth consecutive month due to higher gasoline prices. The rate of increase in September was 2.1 percent, compared with a 2.0 percent increase nationwide. A 17.2 percent hike in local transportation costs has been recorded during the past six months, according to the report.

Grocery prices in the Boise area also jumped during September, by 0.4 percent, compared with a 0.2 percent increase on a national basis.

Decreases measured for produce were offset by increases for meat, shelf items and alcoholic beverages. During the past six months, a 0.1 percent increase has been seen for local grocery prices.

Following one month of stability, Boise area clothing prices rose by 0.4 percent, according to First Security. Higher price tags were recorded across the board for children's clothing, men's wear and women's apparel. A 2.4 percent increase has been recorded for local clothing costs during the past six months, compared with a 1.3 percent national increase.

A gain of 0.2 percent was computed for Boise area health care in September. Higher prices were seen for non-prescription medicines, reversing their August trend. During the past six months, an increase of 0.7 percent was noted for local health care costs, compared with a 4.4 percent rise nationally.

Stable prices locally were reported for utilities, housing and restaurant prices during September.

For the 11th month in a row, Bosie area utility costs were the same, compared with a 1.2 percent increase nationally. Local electric rates have been stable for the past 20 months, while both gas and water costs have remained the same for the last 11 months.

Bosie area housing costs were unchanged for the fourth month in a row, compared with a 0.2 percent national increase. During the past six months, however, a 0.5 percent increase has been seen for local housing expenses, according to First Security.

The cost of dining out in the Boise area also remained stable in September, the third consecutive month that costs have computed the same. During the last six months, however, a 2.2 percent increase was registered for local restaurant costs, compared with a 2.1 percent increase nationwide.

The local Boise area price data are produced for First Security by an independent research firm.

BIRMINGHAM, AL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Today AmSouth Bancorporation (NYSE: ASO) announced third quarter 1990 unaudited net income of $19.4 million or $.83 per common share. This represents a 3.3 percent increase in net income and a 3.8 percent increase in earnings per common share compared to the prior quarter.

"Our third quarter earnings appear relatively strong considering these uncertain economic times, and we continue to be pleased with our key measures of soundness and strength," AmSouth chairman and chief executive officer, John W. Woods said.

"Our capital, or shareholders' equity, increased $11.7 million during third quarter and totaled $578.8 million at Sept. 30, while our allowance for loan losses remained at $82 million. Both of these key measures of strength are the largest totals of any bank headquartered in Alabama," Woods added.

Third quarter 1990 earnings per common share increased 1.2 percent compared to the third quarter of 1989, while net income decreased 2.6 percent. The increase in earnings per common share reflected the impact of the purchase of 1 million shares of AmSouth stock into treasury during the last quarter of 1989 and early 1990.

The earnings for the third quarter of 1990 represented an annualized return on average equity of 13.46 percent and an annualized return on average assets of 0.91 percent. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, earnings totaled $58.7 million or $2.49 per common share vs. $62.0 million and $2.55 for the first nine months of 1989.

AmSouth's gross interest margin improved $4.3 million or 6.5 percent compared to the third quarter of 1989. The gross interest spread for the third quarter of 1990 was 3.94 percent compared to 3.81 percent for the prior year's third quarter.

The provision for loan losses increased $1.3 million for the third quarter of 1990 compared to the same period in 1989 reflecting AmSouth's continuing conservative approach to the weakening economy.

At Sept. 30, AmSouth's allowance for loan losses was $82.7 million or 1.49 percent of loans net of unearned income compared to $71.8 million and 1.32 percent at Sept. 30, 1989. Net charge offs for the third quarter 1990 were $6.4 million.

This figure annualized as a percentage of third quarter 1990 average loans net of unearned income is 0.46 percent. In the last 12 months, AmSouth has reported net charge-offs of $38.8 million while providing $49.7 million. Nonperforming assets have increased $34.0 million during the same period.

ROSEMEAD, CA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - SCEcorp (NYSE: SCE), parent company of Southern California Edison Co., today reported that earnings for the third quarter of 1990 were $1.31 per share. This is $.53 per share below the third quarter of 1989, but when adjusted to provide a valid comparison with prior year earnings, third quarter earnings are unchanged from the same period last year.

Earnings per share were $3.31 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, a decrease of $.20 when compared to the same period last year. However, when similarly adjusted, earnings increased $.07 per share over the same period last year.

These adjustments are necessary to provide a valid comparison of earnings because a January 1990 California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) decision shifted some of Edison's 1990 earnings from the third quarter to the other quarters, with no impact on total annual earnings.

SCEcorp's nonutility businesses contributed $.22 per share for the third quarter of 1990, unchanged from the third quarter of last year. They contributed $.42 per share for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, an increase of $.01 per share over the same period last year.

Mission Energy and Mission First Financial continued their strong performances with a combined 15 percent earnings increase for the third quarter 1990. Mission Land's third quarter 1990 earnings were slightly lower than for the third quarter last year because of a slowdown in real estate transactions. However, it continues to be well positioned for future growth. SCEcorp has discontinued operations at Mission Power Engineering, and third quarter results reflect these costs.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CALIF (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - California Biotechnology Inc. (NASDAQ: CBIO) today reported a net loss of $1.1 million (9 cents per share) for the company's third quarter, ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to a net loss of $2.9 million (26 cents per share) in the same quarter last year. For the first nine months, the net loss was $3.9 million (34 cents per share) compared to a $7.4 million net loss (64 cents per share) for the first nine months last year.

Revenues for the third quarter were $3.7 million, compared to $2.5 million last year. The increase is attributed to a higher level of revenues for contract research and development and to revenues earned for the achievement of certain development milestones during the quarter. Costs and expenses of $5.6 million for the third quarter were slightly higher than the $5.3 million last year due to increased patent costs.

The net loss of $1.1 million for the third quarter was $1.8 million less than the net loss in the same quarter of 1989 as a result of increased revenues and the elimination of equity losses of a foreign affiliate. The company's investment in the affiliate was reduced to zero in 1989. At quarter-end, Cal Bio had more than $33 million in cash and marketable securities.

#90291p6799 10/18/1990 ~PR Newswire

TORRANCE, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - City of Torrance and Mobil Oil Corp. jointly announced today the resolution of the civil lawsuit filed early in 1989 by the City. Representatives of both parties indicated that the settlement required a great deal of hard work and was entered into in the spirit of cooperation between the parties.

The suit was filed in April of 1989 and was scheduled for trial in November 1990. The lawsuit sought assurances that the Mobil Refinery met community safety standards and addressed the specific community concerns regarding the storage and use of hydrofluoric acid.

Prior to the trial date, Judge Harry V. Peetris conducted settlement discussions with Mobil and the City in a final effort to resolve the suit. The judge was able to develop with the parties a settlement agreement, encompassed in a consent decree, which provides for the assurances which will establish safeguards for the ongoing review and enhancement of the refinery with respect to many safety, health and environmental issues. By terms of the settlement, Mobil has also agreed to the phase out of the use of hydrofluoric acid by December 1997. Mobil has the option prior to 1995 to commit to a alkylation catalyst process if it eliminates the formation of a vapor cloud.

The consent decree also calls for the appointment of a qualified, independent safety adviser who will study specific safety and environmental elements at the refinery and develop recommendations. In addition, the adviser will approve in advance and verify the safety of any modified hydrofluoric acid alkylation catalyst. The consent decree provides the assurances the City originally sought in its lawsuit.

The agreement also calls for the study of a number of other measures, including: an off-site monitoring and alarm system for hazardous and explosive materials; a TV monitoring system tied to the Torrance Fire Department; traffic control systems on sensitive streets; and refinery perimeter programs.

The safety adviser, as well as all aspects of the agreement, would be under the supervision of the court, and Judge Peetris would act as judge pro tem. The fees of the court and in certain cases, the fees of the City, will be paid for by Mobil. The fees of the safety adviser, although initially advanced by the City, will also be fully reimbursed by Mobil. The safety adviser has yet to be identified but will be jointly selected by the parties.

Both parties are very pleased with the continuing role of Judge Peetris in the supervision of this consent decree. The judge has a long and distinguished judicial career serving as a municipal court judge from 1962 to 1964 and as a Superior Court judge from 1964 until his retirement in December 1984. He has served as a special master or judge on major civil litigation cases such as the federal environmental lawsuit involving the Stringfellow hazardous waste site (United States vs. Stringfellow). He also served as judge pro tem in the state Superior Court case involving the environmental lawsuit against the Casmalia hazardous waste dump (Adams vs. Hunter).

Both the Mobil Corp. and the City of Torrance see this agreement and the consent decree as a bold new initiative to assure the safety of the Torrance Refinery and to guarantee that any and all necessary measures related to safety standards will be implemented and maintained.

SHELTON, CT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Forschner Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: FSNR) today announced sales and earnings for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, reporting increased sales and a decline in earnings in both time periods.

Sales for the quarter were $13.4 million compared to $12.6 million in 1989, an increase of 7 percent, and were $34.3 million for the nine months compared to $30.6 million a year ago, a 12 percent gain. Net earnings of $1.1 million for the quarter were down 15 percent from last year's $1.3 million. For the nine months, earnings were $1.9 million against $2.0 million, a drop of 3 percent.

Earnings per share for the quarter were $.27 compared to $.32 in 1989, and $.48, down $.01 for the year to date.

Forschner imports most of its products from Switzerland and pays for them in Swiss francs. In an August announcement, the company expressed concern about the effect of the weakening dollar on earnings. Although Forschner's hedging program was able to limit the impact of dollar/Swiss franc relationship on the gross margin in the third quarter, the company expects a further decline in the gross margin in the fourth quarter and subsequent periods.

During August, Forschner's majority shareholder, The Prospect Group, Inc., distributed its holdings in the company to Prospect shareholders, increasing the number of Forschner shareholders from approximately 350 to approximately 6,000.

Forschner is the exclusive United States marketer of Victorinox Original Swiss Army Knives and Victorinox cutlery, other high-quality, Swiss-made products bearing the Swiss Army Brands label, and other imported cutlery for professional and consumer use.

OCALA, FL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Mid-State Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: MSSB) announced today that its shareholders have approved the revised terms of the proposed acquisition of Mid-State Federal by First Florida Banks, Inc.

The proposed combination with First Florida was approved by the necessary vote of the shareholders of Mid-State Federal at a special meeting of shareholders held in Ocala, Fla. earlier today. Under the terms of the new acquisition agreement, which was approved by Mid-State Federal and First Florida effective July 2, 1990, First Florida has agreed to pay $48 million, or approximately $22.43 per share, in cash for the outstanding shares and stock options of Mid-State Federal in the acquisition.

At the shareholders' meeting, Charles E. Harris, chairman of the board of Mid-State Federal, stated that the Office of Thrift Supervision has approved First Florida's application to acquire Mid-State Federal but that the acquisition was still subject to the satisfaction of certain conditions, including the receipt of approvals from the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. Harris further stated that he continues to hope that all approvals will be received and all conditions satisfied in time for the transaction to be consummated by year-end 1990, but delays could occur and no assurances could be given that all such approvals or conditions will be received or satisfied.

Mid-State Federal is a publicly held, federally insured and federally chartered stock savings bank with its common stock traded over-the-counter and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "MSSB". With its home office in Ocala, Fla., the thrift has assets of just under $1 billion and operates 26 branch offices within a five county area in west central Florida.

HARTFORD, CT (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - ITT Hartford Insurance Group said today that Public Citizen made serious factual errors in its report on the financial solvency of The Hartford and asked the organization to issue a retraction.

The report, which supposedly examines the nation's top 20 property-casualty insurance companies, alleges that The Hartford, along with four other major insurers, is potentially at risk in a severe economic downturn.

Executives of The Hartford met in Washington today with representatives of Public Citizen, challenging the validity of the report and specifically charging that Public Citizen made an egregious error in concluding that The Hartford's 1988 surplus - the available backup funds used in case of catastrophic or unexpectedly severe losses - was 33 percent below its 1972 surplus (in constant 1967 dollars).

In fact, The Hartford's 1988 surplus, compared with its 1972 surplus, grew six percent. The Hartford's surplus has not deteriorated, and the company should not have been listed as one of the five companies that were found to have failed this test, said Donald R. Frahm, chairman, president and chief executive officer of The Hartford.

This calculation has been confirmed by The Hartford's independent auditors, Arthur Andersen & Co. Moreover, independent analysts have publicly disagreed with the findings in the Public Citizen study and have charged that the methods used in the report are flawed.

"Public Citizen, in fact, has flunked the test," said Frahm. "Not only are Public Citizen's tests inconclusive and without credibility, but the organization's researchers applied their own data incorrectly," said Frahm.

Frahm noted that reputable and experienced rating organizations continue to evaluate The Hartford as one of the strongest and most responsible companies in the industry. "Public Citizen's study and the tests it used are so far off the mark it makes the whole thing ludicrous.

"Since the beginning, we have seriously questioned the validity of the study and we are skeptical of Public Citizen's capability of analyzing the insurance industry," said Frahm. "We believe the only purpose of the study is to further Public Citizen's legislative agenda."

ITT Hartford Insurance Group, a subsidiary of ITT Corp. (NYSE: ITT), is one of SHAMOKIN, PA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Central Pennsylvania Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: CPSA) today reported earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, amounted to $902,000 or $.44 a share.

In addition to the earnings report it was also announced that the company received regulatory approval to complete the purchase of four branch offices.

John M. O'Brien, president, said net income for the second quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, declined when compared to the same period in the prior year. Net interest income, however, increased when compared to the prior period.

Although net income declined in the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, the prior year included a one-time gain of $380,000 generated through the sale of an asset. During the current period the provision for taxes was increased by $23,000 because Pennsylvania's Mutual Thrift Taxes increased to 20 percent. Also, the provision for general loan loss reserves was increased by $90,000 in order to be best prepared for future eventualities in light of a deteriorating real estate market.

The acquisition of four offices in the York-Lancaster markets of southcentral Pennsylvania will be completed on Nov. 1, 1990. These four offices will allow the company to enter one of the fastest-growing economies in the state and nation.

Since the company announced a buy-back of up to 5 percent of its common stock some 39,880 shares have been repurchased. The board of directors approved the repurchase program in August because of depressed market prices on the company stock.

Central Pennsylvania Financial Corp. is the parent company of Central Pennsylvania Savings Association. The association is the 18th largest federally insured savings institution in Pennsylvania. Originally chartered in 1873, Central Pennsylvania conducts business from offices in Williamsport, Danville, Lewisburg, Shamokin Dam, Sunbury, Camp Hill, Mount Carmel, Shamokin and Hershey. Its Hamilton- Reliance division conducts business from offices in Norristown, Wayne, Warminster, West Point and Philadelphia.

David A. Jollin, president and chief executive officer of Corroon & Black of Massachusetts, Inc., has been appointed chairman, and will retain the title of chief executive officer. Brian C. Miller, executive vice president and chief operating officer, has been promoted to president, retaining the chief operating officer designation. The promotions were announced by James M. Corroon, director of the Northeast Region of Corroon & Black's Brokerage Services Group.

Jollin, who has more than 16 years of insurance industry experience, has been president and chief executive of Corroon & Black of Massachusetts since 1986. Previously senior vice president and director of sales, he has also served as a vice president and account executive on major accounts with another international insurance brokerage firm. He is a graduate of Brown University and holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and English. Jollin is on the board of trustees of the Beaver Country Day School and is active in the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Miller has served as executive vice president and chief operating officer since joining Corroon & Black of Massachusetts in 1986. Before joining Corroon & Black, Miller was first vice president with a subsidiary of another insurance broker, where he managed the firm's large accounts technical service and marketing operations and new business development for multinational accounts. He began his insurance career in 1972 with a major insurance company in Hartford, Conn. He is a graduate of Eisenhower College with a bachelor's degree in economics and political science and has completed a management program at the College of Insurance.

NORTHBROOK, IL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc. (NYSE: IFL) shareholders reelected three directors for three-year terms at today's annual meeting held at the company's general office in Mundelein, Ill.

Reelected were Billie B. Turner, IMC Fertilizer's chairman and chief executive officer since its incorporation as a publicly traded corporate entity in 1987, Dr. M. Blakeman Ingle, president and chief operating officer of IMCERA Group, Inc., and George D. Kennedy, chairman and chief executive officer of IMCERA Group, Inc. (NYSE: IMA).

Immediately following today's formal proceedings, the company's board increased its size with the appointment of Raymond F. Bentele, executive vice president of IMCERA Group, Inc. as its eighth director. Bentele, whose term is for two years, also serves as president of Mallinckrodt Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of IMCERA Group Inc.

The expansion of the company's board and appointment of Bentele was accomplished to more accurately reflect the fact that IMCERA Group, Inc., formerly known as International Minerals & Chemical Corporation, currently holds a 38 percent interest in IMC Fertilizer, a spokesman explained.

IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc. is the world's leading producer and supplier of phosphate rock and potash, two basic fertilizer materials, and a manufacturer of phosphate chemicals and nitrogen crop nutrients. ST. PETERSBURG, FL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Florida Progress Corporation (NYSE: FPC) released its 1990 third quarter unaudited report of earnings today it was announced by Richard Korpan, executive vice president and chief financial officer.

For the quarter, the company's earnings were $58.1 million ($1.13 per share) on revenues of $591.8 million as compared to earnings of $75.2 million ($1.47 per share) on revenues of $551.5 million in 1989.

This decrease in earnings is principally due to a reserve being taken in anticipation of a loss resulting from the divestiture of the building products companies. (Previously announced on Oct. 8, 1990).

Talquin Corporation, the development subsidiary of Florida Progress Corporation, announced last week that it plans to sell the companies comprising its building products operations.

While expecting some gains and losses from the sale of individual companies, the company established a reserve in the third quarter of $.28 per share primarily for the disposition costs and potential losses associated with the sale of its window manufacturing unit. The company will report this provision, as well as the operating results of building products, as "discontinued operations."

Third quarter earnings per share for Florida Progress' continuing diversified operations were $.06 for 1990 as compared to $.14 in 1989. The third quarter results for 1989 included an after tax gain of $.09 per share for the disposition of a business forms manufacturing subsidiary and a $.03 per share benefit from the use of a capital loss carry forward.

The utility had quarterly earnings of $1.35 per share compared to $1.29 in 1989. Florida Power Corporation's quarterly results were boosted by residential and commercial sales growth that averaged about four percent primarily due to continued customer growth.

In 1990, customer and usage growth partially offset the impact of higher depreciation rates and the rate reduction from an extension of customer billing credits by the Florida Public Service Commission. During the prior year, third quarter earnings were reduced by $.10 per share due to an August 1989 decision by the Commission to disallow certain fuel costs.

Florida Progress is a holding company that combines its primary electric utility business with diversified operations in energy and transportation, development and financial services.

BOHEMIA, N.Y. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Symbol Technologies, Inc. (NYSE: SBL) announced today that the declaratory judgment action recently filed in Oregon by Spectra-Physics is without merit and that Symbol will seek dismissal.

In 1986, as a result of a patent lawsuit brought against it, Spectra-Physics was enjoined from infringing Symbol's hand-held laser scanner patents by a federal court in California but was granted a limited patent license by Symbol. In May 1990 Symbol won a patent lawsuit against Opticon, Inc. and its Japanese parent Opto Electronics Co., Ltd. A New York federal court ruled that Symbol's basic patents on hand-held laser scanners for reading bar codes, which were licensed to Spectra-Physics, were valid enforceable and infringed by Opticon.

Earlier this month, Spectra-Physics, now a subsidiary of Pharos AB of Sweden, announced that it "has acquired a license...from Opticon for their hand-held laser bar code reader." In a collateral release Spectra-Physics announced that it intends to manufacture and sell a hand-held laser scanner (Model SP300) under the limited license it obtained from Symbol.

Dr. Jerome Swartz, chairman and chief executive officer of Symbol Technologies said, "In spite of their announcement concerning the applicability of the Symbol license, Spectra-Physics is apparently concerned that its Opticon-designed scanner is not covered by its limited license with Symbol, and their action appears to seek a declaration that it is covered. Symbol believes that Spectra-Physics will be unsuccessful and that the action will be dismissed."

Symbol Technologies, Inc. is the world leader in bar code-based data capture systems with over one million scanners and terminals installed. The company designs, manufactures and markets bar code reading equipment, portable data terminals and radio frequency data communications products which are used as strategic building blocks in data collection systems for retail, manufacturing distribution, military, health care and many other applications.

NORTHBROOK, IL (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc. (NYSE: IFL) shareholders at today's annual meeting heard Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Billie B. Turner cited a number of positives that offer "reason for optimism that demand for the company's products could continue strong during coming months."

Speaking to about 200 shareholders and guests at the company's third annual meeting, held at IMCF's general office complex in Mundelein, Ill., Turner cautioned that the recently announced first quarter results of $23 million or 87 cents per share, a 15 percent improvement over the same period a year ago, "marked a good start for the current year, but really just that ... a start."

That earnings gain, announced Oct. 11, was credited to improved prices for several of the company's major products, phosphate chemicals and ammonia. Prices for potash and phosphate rock were reported as holding steady during the quarter.

Turner warned against attempting to make a full-year earnings projection based on the first quarter results.

Reasons cited for caution against unlimited optimism include the "vagaries of the marketplace, unknowns surrounding current tensions in the Middle East, uncertainties involving the U.S. budget and tax issues as well as any potential impact of new farm legislation."

Positives Cited

Having made that proviso, Turner listed some welcome positives that could help IMCF recover from recent problems caused by a variety of external conditions.

"For one thing, we see continued demand growth in both the large U.S. fertilizer market as well as continued improvements in overseas activity," he explained.

"For example, the fundamentals appear positive at this point," the IMCF chairman added. "Record net farm income, comfortable grain stocks and low fertilizer inventories held by producers and dealers must be viewed as positive factors concerning the domestic market outlook.

"Overseas, it is welcome news that major customers such as China and India have remained in the international market after periods of inactivity and uncertainty.

"Within the IMCF organization, continued excellent financial performances, including aggressive programs to control costs, deserve recognition as important contributors to our company's first quarter performance," Turner told shareholders.

Turner also assured shareholders the long-range growth potential for fertilizers remains bright.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Silicon Graphics Inc. (NYSE: SGI) today reported revenues totaling $115.8 million for the first quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, a 34 percent increase over the comparable quarter a year earlier. Net income was $9.6 million for the quarter compared with net income of $5.2 million in the like period for the prior fiscal year, an increase of 84 percent. Earnings per share increased to $.44 per share from $.28 per share (fully diluted), a 57 percent increase.

Edward R. McCracken, Silicon Graphics' president and CEO commented, "We are pleased with our first quarter's results, particularly in light of the normal seasonal slowdown in the summer quarter and the unsettled state of the economy. The Company's sustained emphasis on financial execution resulted in a reduction in operating expenses from fourth quarter's levels and in positive cash flow for the quarter," McCracken added.

During the quarter, Silicon Graphics announced the availability of several software products intended to extend the application of its systems in the corporate environment. The Company introduced NetVisualyzer(TM), a set of visual network monitoring and diagnostic tools for multivendor computing environments. The Company also jointly announced several software packages including database, spreadsheet and desktop productivity packages, developed by third party software developers. "Leadership in the visual processing market not only requires that we have the best graphics technology and the broadest product line, but also a complete set of productivity tools. We believe that this market is one of the fastest growing computer industry segments," McCracken concluded.

Silicon Graphics, Inc. is a leading manufacturer of high- performance graphics systems, servers and software for three-dimensional distributed visual processing applications. The Company's products, which range from advanced project supercomputers to low-end desktop models, are used by engineers, scientists and creative professionals in design, analysis, manufacturing and simulation. The Company's stock trades on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SGI.

ATLANTA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - KnowledgeWare Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: KNOW), a leading developer of Computer-Aided Software Engineering (CASE) products, today announced financial results for its first fiscal quarter which ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The company reported that in the quarter it attained both total revenues and product license revenues that exceeded any prior quarter in the company's history.

The company reported net income for the quarter of $2,532,000 or $.20 per share. Total revenues for the quarter were $23,517,000, up 84 percent from revenues of $12,754,000 for the corresponding period of 1989. Product license revenues for the quarter were $19,262,000, up 136 percent from $8,171,000 for the same period last year.

Historically, the company has experienced a decline in revenues between its fourth quarter and first quarter due to the cyclical nature of market buying patterns. This year, for the first time, both total revenue and product license revenue increased during the first quarter over fourth quarter totals.

Total revenue for the September 1990 quarter was up five percent from $22,323,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990. Product license revenue was up 15 percent from $16,723,000 in the fourth quarter.

"The revenues we are reporting today are the highest of any quarter in KnowledgeWare's history," said Fran Tarkenton, KnowledgeWare's chairman and chief executive officer.

"As we attended several prominent investment community forums during September we addressed numerous concerns about the potential for a slow down in our revenue growth based upon a general economic slow down.

"We responded by stating that CASE products, such as ours, are increasingly being viewed by businesses as competitive necessities, not discretionary purchases. This quarter's record revenues lend support to that assessment. Further, we saw no reluctance by businesses to commit to expenditures for these products in record volumes as evidenced by the vast majority of contracts and resulting receivables falling within payment terms of 30 days."

"Year to year first quarter comparisons of our earnings per share yield a 300 percent rate of growth on a recurring revenue basis," said Terry McGowan, president and chief operating officer.

"During the quarter ended September 30, 1989, the company realized the final $2,400,000 in revenue from a $5 million technology license agreement with IBM. That revenue accounted for $.15 of the $.20 per share we earned during the September 1989 quarter."

MIAMI (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American Savings and Loan Association (NASDAQ: ASLA) ("American Savings") and Fortune Savings Bank ("Fortune") jointly announced today a proposed exchange of branch offices that will strengthen both institutions.

The transaction, which is subject to regulatory approval, involves the sale of all American Savings offices in Pinellas and Pasco counties, Fla. to Fortune, and the sale of Fortune's six Broward and Palm Beach branches to American.

"This exchange will strengthen the competitive positions of both institutions in their key marketing areas," said Harris Friedman, chairman and chief executive officer of Miami-based American Savings, and Rausey W. Mason, president and chief executive officer of Fortune, which is headquartered in Clearwater, Fla.

The agreement calls for American Savings to sell 13 branches in Pinellas County and two in Pasco County, along with their deposits, to Fortune. The aggregate deposits of these 15 branches are approximately $515 million. In turn, Fortune will sell its six Southeast Florida branches and their deposits, which total about $210 million, to American Savings.

"The extra deposits Fortune receives will be used directly to reduce other higher cost funds, thus maintaining our balance sheet at the current level," Mason said.

The transaction does not include the purchase of loans or investments by either party. In each case, the institutions will eliminate operations that are distant from their home bases and will enhance their marketing positions in areas where they are major competitive factors.

"The transaction will eliminate our West Coast presence and give American a total of 43 branches in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties, thereby enhancing our position in Southeast Florida, where we already have a strong market position. Also, this transaction will strengthen our capital position even further," Friedman said.

"Fortune, which already has about 10 percent of all Pinellas bank deposits, will increase its Pinellas presence to 36 branches from 23 at present," Mason said. "We're especially pleased at the way the transaction will enhance our South Pinellas coverage. It also will increase our market presence from four to six branches in rapidly growing Pasco County.

"The move will give Fortune a total of 55 branches and will solidify our dominant position on the West Coast of Florida, while eliminating our presence on the East Coast," Mason said.

Fortune, with more than $3 billion in assets, is a subsidiary of Fortune Financial Group, Inc., (NASDAQ-NMS: FORF) whose common stock is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "FORF."

American Savings has assets of $4.9 billion and its common shares are traded on NASDAQ under the symbol "ASLA." Both American Savings and Fortune currently exceed all capital requirements.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Cellular Communications, Inc. ("CCI") (NASDAQ: COMM) announced today that it had set a record date of Nov. 5, 1990 for a special meeting of stockholders that was tentatively scheduled for Friday, Dec. 28, 1990. At such meeting, stockholders would be asked to consider and act upon the amended and restated agreement and plan of merger and joint venture organization, dated as of Oct. 5, 1990 between CCI and Pacific Telesis Group ("PacTel") (NYSE: PAC). CCI said proxy materials would be distributed as soon as available (currently anticipated to be mid-November) following their review in normal course by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

CCI also announced that it expected to report favorable revenues for the third quarter of 1990, and favorable operating income (before interest, depreciation taxes and expenses relating to the transaction with PacTel). In the third quarter, CCI's Ohio Systems had a record number of gross new customers activated, although a higher deactivation rate in the third quarter of 1990 led to lower than expected net customer additions. CCI said that it believed its deactivation rate in the third quarter remained lower than the average rate reported by industry sources for other cellular operators in the United States. Full third quarter results are expected to be released in the second week of November in accordance with CCI's normal practice.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Jostens Inc. (NYSE: JOS) today reported record sales and earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

Net sales for the three months ended Sept. 30 were $141.3 million, a 9 percent increase over last year's volume of $129.5 million. Net income for the first quarter was $2.8 million, an 11 percent increase over the $2.5 million reported a year ago. Earnings per share rose 17 percent to 7 cents, compared with 6 cents per share reported for the same period last year.

H. William Lurton, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said, "I am pleased with our results for the first three months and am confident that fiscal 1991 will be another excellent year for Jostens."

He added, "All of our businesses reported sales increases over the prior year quarter. For the full year, I expect our sales increase to be in the 12 to 14 percent range."

SAN JOSE, CA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Chips and Technologies Inc., (Chips) (NASDAQ: CHPS), today reported net sales of $59.5 million and net income of $0.7 million, or 5 cents per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 (First Quarter 1991). This compares to net sales of $70.9 million and net income of $9.1 million, or 58 cents per share, for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1989 (First Quarter 1990).

Gordon A. Campbell, president and CEO of Chips, said that the decline in net sales and net income for First Quarter 1991 compared to First Quarter 1990 was principally attributable to lower average selling prices (ASPs) on some of the company's more mature solutions for machines compatible with AT(TM) personal computers; a shift in product mix to CHIPSets with comparatively lower margins; and lower unit shipments due to a softening in overall PC market demand over the past several months. "Over the past year, Chips has been executing a product transition towards CHIPSet solutions offering significantly higher levels of integration and performance. During this period competition for our more mature CHIPSets -- which currently comprise the bulk of our shipments -- has intensified resulting in price declines and commensurately lower margins. Gross margin for First Quarter 1991 was 42 percent of net sales, compared to a 47 percent rate for First Quarter 1990."

Campbell continued, "We have made good progress on the development and introduction of new generation products, including two families of system solutions based on Chips' Single Chip AT (SCAT) and PEAKset(TM) product architectures. The SCAT architecture addresses the volume markets for low-cost, non-cache machines using 286 and 386sx microprocessors, while our PEAKset family of products offers tightly integrated high-performance solutions for 32-bit PC applications. Several of these products have begun to ship in volume and customer acceptance has been encouraging."

During First Quarter 1991 Chips purchased $10.9 million of its outstanding common stock under an existing stock repurchase program. The Board of Directors recently approved the repurchase of up to an additional $10 million of Chips' outstanding common stock, The Board has previously approved an amount up to $30 million for the repurchase of the company's common stock $24.7 million of which had been utilized as of Sept. 30, 1990. Treasury stock which remains unissued at any period-end is treated as retired, and therefore has the long-term benefit of restricting growth in the number of common shares used in calcualting earnings per share. Accordingly, the company believes that this program benefits its stockholders and is a strategic use of cash.

Cash and cash equivalent balances remain strong at $54.9 million. Inventories increased to $29.2 million, but still represent less than three months' product shipments.

Chips has continued to invest in product research and development, committing $12 million or 20 percent of First Quarter 1991 net sales, to projects important to its future growth. At the same time Chips has controlled overall expense growth; First Quarter 1991 operating expenses were $24.6 million, a decline of $2 million compared to the preceding quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Chips and Technologies Inc. is the world's leading supplier of VLSI proprietary CHIPSets and software solutions for high performance microcomputer systems based on evolving industry standards. The company's common stock is traded over the counter under the symbol CHPS and is listed on the NASDAQ National Market System.

NEWPORT NEWS, VA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSIWRE - The Flight International Group, Inc., a leading provider of military readiness training, today reported consolidated operating results for the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

For the three months ended July 31, 1990, Flight International reported a net loss of ($1,968,300), or ($0.54) per share, on revenues of $11,484,500, versus a net loss a year earlier of ($887,200), or ($0.27) per share, on revenues of $13,825,800. "While we were able to reduce operating costs during the period, which should lead to greater profit margins in the future, first-quarter profitability suffered as a result of unusual charges for legal and professional fees associated with the company's operational and debt restructuring," said J. Nelson Happy, chairman and chief executive officer. "But once the restructuring is complete, these costs will cease to be a continuing burden on earnings."

"Fluctuations in demand on some of our government contracts resulted in a reduction in flight operations revenue, but we fully expect to make up the difference in later periods," Happy said. "The contraction in revenue had nothing to do with the transfer of U.S. forces to the Persian Gulf. In fact, training missions have been increasing during the current quarter," he added.

He also pointed out that comparative figures for 1989 included revenue from the now sold Fixed Base Operations (FBO) in Carlsbad, Calif., and Atlanta. "We sold the FBOs to improve profitability and allow us to focus on our core flight operations business," Happy said. "Ultimately we intend to replace these revenues from other operations."

With today's SEC filing of Form 10Q for the quarter ended July 31, 1990, Flight International is completely up to date in terms of its SEC filing requirements. "Now that we have dealt with the financial reporting issues that prompted Flight International's delisting in 1989, the company will immediately apply for relisting on NASDAQ," Happy said.

Flight International also announced that Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1990 has been selected as the record date for the company's annual meeting of shareholders, which is scheduled for Nov. 30, 1990. The 9 a.m. meeting will be held at the Halloran House, 525 Lexington Ave. in New York City.

GLEN ROCK, NJ (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Rodney T. Verblaauw, president of Citizens First National Bank of New Jersey, announced today that the board of directors of the bank has consented to a regulatory order issued by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency to undertake measures which the regulators expect the bank to implement in the next few months.

The main purpose of these measures, and the procedures outlined, is to strengthen internal procedures, improve asset quality, and achieve stated capital levels by March 31, 1991 and Dec. 31, 1991.

Verblaauw stated that included among the items outlined by the comptroller were an ongoing review of the bank's loan portfolio, a program for monitoring and taking corrective action regarding problem loans and other criticized assets, and the development of short and long term capital plans.

The comptroller directed that the bank shall achieve certain capital levels including Tier 1 capital level of at least six percent of adjusted total assets by March 31, 1991 and seven percent by Dec. 31, 1991. As of Sept. 30, 1990, the Tier 1 ratio of the bank was 4.62 percent.

He further reported that because of the recent increase in the bank's provision for loan losses and the general economic conditions in the marketplace, the board has already implemented a number of the steps outlined by the comptroller and that the bank will aggressively pursue implementation of the remaining items.

"Throughout this period," said Verblaauw, "our major objective will be to continue to provide our well known high level of service to depositors, borrowers and other financial service customers in our market area."

DULUTH, MN (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Chromaline Corporation, a Duluth-based manufacturer of photochemical imaging systems for the screen printing industry reported continuing improvement in sales and profits.

For the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, sales were $999,098, a 47 percent increase over the same period of 1989. For the quarter, earnings were $99,392 or $.11 per share. This compares with $.05 per share for the same quarter of last year.

According to the company's president, Tom Erickson, sales were led by continuing growth in demand for the company's new Magna/Cure line of products which were introduced one year ago. Erickson said that he expects this growth to continue.

Erickson also said that the company has yet to feel any clear effect of the recession. Although some segments of the domestic market are recession prone, said Erickson, the weak dollar will help our export business.

COLUMBIA, MD (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of The Ryland Group, Inc. (NYSE: RYL) today amended the company's stockholder rights plan.

This plan was initially adopted by the company in December 1986.

The amended stockholder rights plan includes several new provisions designed to give additional protection against abusive takeover tactics and to further insure that all Ryland stockholders receive fair and equal treatment if an attempt is made to gain control of Ryland.

One of the amendments reduces the trigger for the stockholder rights plan to go into effect from 40 percent to 20 percent of the outstanding common stock. The amendment also makes a number of other changes that should enable Ryland's board of directors to administer the stockholder rights plan on a more flexible basis.

"The rights are intended to enable all Ryland stockholders to realize the long-term value of their investment in Ryland," said C.E. Peck, chairman and CEO of The Ryland Group. "The rights are designed to encourage anyone seeking to acquire Ryland to negotiate with the board of directors before making a takeover attempt."

The amended plan is not being adopted in response to any specific effort to gain control of Ryland, and the board of directors is not aware of any such effort. The Ryland Group, Inc., one of the nation's largest homebuilders, has built more than 90,000 homes since it was founded in 1967.

MINNEAPOLIS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Norwest Corporation today reported record net income of $71.5 million for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, a 37.3 percent increase over the $52.1 million earned in the third quarter of 1989. Net income per common share was 70 cents, compared with 50 cents in the third quarter of 1989, an increase of 40.0 percent. Return on common equity was 19.5 percent and return on assets was 1.08 percent for the third quarter of 1990, compared with 15.5 percent and 0.84 percent, respectively, in the third quarter of 1989.

Norwest's results for prior periods include the results of First Interstate Corporation of Wisconsin (FIWI), which merged with Norwest effective May 1, 1990 and has been accounted for as a pooling of interests. Earnings for the third quarter of 1989 include $13.5 million of one-time FIWI charges.

Lloyd P. Johnson, Norwest's chairman and chief executive officer, said, "Record earnings were achieved due to strong performance from practically all units of the Community Banking Groups, Norwest Financial, the Mortgage company which earned $6.8 million in the quarter, fee based revenue units of the Corporate Bank, credit card, insurance, investment services, and trust. The Corporate Bank lending units and venture capital were below plan for the quarter, but both are expected to show stronger results in the fourth quarter.

"Many economists feel the nation is heading into a recession or already in the initial stages of one. However, we feel Norwest is especially well positioned to withstand a downturn in the economy. During the third quarter, our non-performing assets increased 6.9 percent to $245.4 million or 1.5 percent of total loans and leases and includes $15 million of loans on which all principle and interest payments are current. Our allowance of $327.1 million, which is 133.3 percent of non-performing assets, and 1.97 percent of loans and leases outstanding, continues to be among the strongest in the industry.

"Nationwide, many other banks have been significantly impacted by commercial real estate losses and loans meeting the regulatory definition of highly leveraged transactions (HLTs). Our exposure in both of these areas is low, even as compared with our peers. At Sept. 30, 1990, Norwest's commercial real estate portfolio of loans to investors, developers or builders (development loans) was $1,195 million, or 7.2 percent of total loans, with over 90 percent located in our eleven-state Midwest banking region. Total non- performing development loans were $86 million, or 7.2 percent of total development loans. HLTs have decreased $116 million, or 33.0 percent, from Dec. 31, 1989 to $235 million at Sept. 30, 1990 and are less than 1.5 percent of total loans," said Johnson.

Norwest Corporation is a $26.7 billion diversified financial services organization providing banking, banking related and specialized financial services through a total of more than 1,290 offices in 47 states and internationally.

TROY, MI (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Today Standard Federal Bank (NYSE: SFB) reported net income of $9.9 million, or $0.32 per share, for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $9.3 million, or $0.30 per share, for the comparable period in 1989, an increase of six percent.

The third-quarter results brought earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, to $29.5 million, or $0.96 per share, compared to $35.6 million, or $1.15 per share, for the comparable period in 1989.

Pre-tax operating income, which excludes gains and fees recognized from sales of earning assets, totaled $14.6 million and $44.5 million for the three- and nine-month periods ended Sept. 30, 1990, respectively, compared to only $8.8 million and $42.2 million for the same periods in 1989.

The bank's net interest margin increased 48 basis points to 1.91 percent during the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to the 1.43 percent achieved during the comparable quarter in 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the bank's net interest margin increased 20 basis points to 1.84 percent, compared to 1.64 percent for the same period in 1989.

The improvement in earnings for three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was accomplished despite lower levels of average earning assets and higher costs associated with FIRREA, while the reduction in net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was primarily attributable to the lower level of gains and fees recognized from sales of the bank's originated loans.

Costs associated with FIRREA, which include lower dividends on FHLB stock, higher examination and supervisory fees and higher deposit insurance premiums, reduced the bank's after-tax earnings by $1.1 million and $3.3 million, or approximately ten percent, during the three and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, respectively.

Single-family loan originations for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, totaled $272.9 million, bringing total originations for 1990 to $810.5 million. The volume originated during the first nine months of 1990 represents an increase of approximately 18 percent, when compared to the $688.4 million of single-family mortgage loans originated by Standard during the comparable period in 1989.

Nonperforming assets continued at low levels, representing only 0.38 percent of assets at Sept. 30, 1990. This level of nonperforming assets remained unchanged from Dec. 31, 1989, despite a reduction in assets of $153.3 million.

NEW MILFORD, NJ (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Polifly Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: PFLY), the holding company for Polifly Savings and Loan Association, today announced a net loss of $699,000 or $.32 per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The loss is primarily due to high levels of non-performing assets caused by a continuing deterioration in the New Jersey real estate market. Polifly recorded income of $802,000 or $.37 per share in the comparable period last year.

Polifly has submitted a capital restoration plan to the Office of Thrift Supervision as required by federal regulations and is awaiting response from said office.

Polifly had total assets of $574,076,000, net loans of $389,900,000 and deposits of $410,437,000 at Sept. 30, 1990. Stockholders' equity totalled $24,634,000 or $11.27 per share; tangible equity, net of goodwill and investments in non-includable subsidiaries represented $12,309,000 or $5.63 per share.

TORONTO, ONTARIO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bell Canada has signed a two-year contract with Rockwell International (NYSE: ROK) of Canada for new SONET-based intelligent digital cross-connect equipment.

Under the newly executed contract, Bell Canada has initially purchased six units of Rockwell's digital cross-connect equipment. The contract can be extended for a further three year period.

"We believe this will be the first SONET-based cross-connect to be implemented in any multi-node communications network in the world," said David E. Orr, vice president of Rockwell's network Transmission Systems located in Richardson, Texas.

"The equipment will be used in Bell Canada's fiber optic communications network," Orr said. "The Rockwell digital cross-connect will allow Bell Canada to reroute traffic (DS-3) over alternate facilities when faced with an emergency situation, such as a fiber optic cable cut."

SONET is an acronym for synchronous optical network, a new operating standard recently adopted by the worldwide communications industry for fiber optic telecommunications.

The sale was the result of a team effort involving Rockwell personnel in Richardson, and at Rockwell's Canadian Telecommunications Division headquartered in Georgetown, Ontario, Canada.

Lou Mitrovich, Canadian telecommunications vice president, said all six units or nodes of Rockwell cross-connect equipment have been shipped to Bell Canada.

Rockwell's RDX-33 Digital Cross-Connect system and DXC-2000 Multi-Node Cross-Connect controller enable a telephone company to restore communication links by implementing pre-programmed stored connection maps and thereby dynamically rerouting high bandwidth traffic through alternate facilities.

Mitrovich said, "This can be done in the event of any catastrophic transmission failure, unexpected high demand or calling rate, or in the event of the loss of an entire switching node or cable facility."

Bell Canada will be able to implement network protection in the form of route diversity, a counter rotating ring, and dynamic route restoration-all provided through the inherent capabilities of the Rockwell equipment.

Major features of Rockwell's digital cross-connect system are its high level of software intelligence, high-speed network restoration ability, and its evolving 2,048 port size and SONET capability.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Marriott Hotels, Resorts and Suites today officially opened two resorts in Mexico -- the 450-room Marriott CasaMagna Resort in Cancun and the 433-room Marriott CasaMagna Resort in Puerto Vallarta.

Both properties are the results of a joint partnership between Marriott Corporation (NYSE: MHS) and CEMEX, the fourth-largest cement company in the world and one of Mexico's largest family enterprises. The co-development of the luxury resorts typifies the joint ventures now possible under the liberalized trade and investment policies of Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

J.W. Marriott Jr., chairman of the board and president of Marriott Corporation and Lorenzo Zambrano, chief executive officer of CEMEX, cut ribbons opening each resort in a special "sunrise/sunset" ceremony that began in Cancun and ended with a gala reception in Puerto Vallarta. For the same-day ceremonies, more than 225 invited VIPs were flown from Cancun to Puerto Vallarta via private jet including Pedro Joaquin Coldwell, Mexico's secretary of tourism.

On Wednesday, prior to the grand opening festivities, Marriott and Zambrano met with Salinas in Mexico City to discuss future investment opportunities in Mexico.

Both resorts feature beachfront locations and offer a full range of recreational facilities, dining and entertainment, meeting space and easy access to local attractions.

Set against the lush green mountains of Mexico's west coast, Marriott's CasaMagna Resort in Puerto Vallarta welcomes its guests with a spacious open-air lobby overlooking a large ceramic tiled swimming pool and the Pacific Ocean. Visitors to Marriott's CasaMagna Resort in Cancun will enjoy breathtaking views of the Caribbean Sea and raised pool area showcased from the grand lobby featuring marble-tiled floors, 44-foot-high ceilings and handmade wrought-iron chandeliers.

Guest rooms in Puerto Vallarta and Cancun are appointed with tile floors, ceiling fans, balconies, servi-bars, TVs with cable stations, hair dryers and in-room safety-deposit boxes. In addition, sophisticated engineering systems for water purification and advanced refrigeration equipment ensure the highest health standards.

The "CasaMagna" brand (Grand House) will be carried only by those properties developed by Marriott and CEMEX.

Marriott Corporation currently operates 622 hotels worldwide with more than 149,000 guest rooms. The company's Marriott Hotels, Resorts and Suites division includes 222 full-service properties in the United States, Canada, Central America, the Caribbean, Mexico, Western and Eastern Europe, Far East and the Middle East.

CEMEX, founded in 1906, is the largest producer of cement in the Western Hemisphere.

RICHMOND, VA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Owens & Minor, Inc. (NYSE: OMI)

announced today its third quarter and nine month results. For the third quarter ended September 30, 1990, sales were a record $310.0 million, up 18.7 percent from $261.3 million during the third quarter of 1989. Earnings for the three-month period were $2.5 million as compared to $1.3 million for 1989, an increase of 85.7 percent. Net income per share for the third quarter was $.29 as compared to $.16 for the same period in 1989, an increase of 81.3 percent.

Sales for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 were a record $903.3 million, an increase of 33.7 percent from the $675.8 million level for the same period in 1989. Earnings for the nine-month period were $6.0 million as compared to $2.2 million for the same period in 1989, an increase of 167.5 percent. Net income per share for the nine-month period was $.70 as compared to $.27 for the same nine months in 1989, an increase of 159.3 percent. The 1989 nine-month results included a $2.5 million pretax, or a $.17 per share loss from the devaluation of foreign gloves which was recorded in the first half of the year.

According to G. Gilmer Minor, III, President and CEO: "Our third quarter results are a continuation of the steady earnings improvement we have experienced throughout the year. We are working hard to balance the relationship between sales growth, margin management, expense control and asset management. This is being accomplished through the fundamental emphasis on better internal controls and disciplines, and the teamwork of all of our employees. This direction should allow us to continue to build value in our future.

The recently announced sale of our Harbor Medical subsidiary to Sterile Concepts, Inc. is timely. We will convert an investment that has not been profitable into a positive distribution agreement with the second largest sterile tray packager, thereby allowing us to solidify our position in this important growing segment of the health-care industry. The transaction should be completed by the end of the year."

Owens & Minor, Inc. is a wholesale distributor of medical and surgical supplies, pharmaceuticals and other related products. Through its Vanguard Labs subsidiary, the Company also packages generic and brand name pharmaceuticals.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Silicon Graphics Inc. (NYSE: SGI) today reported revenues totaling $115.8 million for the first quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, a 34 percent increase over the comparable quarter a year earlier.

Net income was $9.6 million for the quarter compared with net income of $5.2 million in the like period for the prior fiscal year, an increase of 84 percent. Earnings per share increased to $.44 per share from $.28 per share (fully diluted), a 57 percent increase.

Edward R. McCracken, Silicon Graphics' president and CEO commented, "We are pleased with our first quarter's results, particularly in light of the normal seasonal slowdown in the summer quarter and the unsettled state of the economy. The company's sustained emphasis on financial execution resulted in a reduction in operating expenses from fourth quarter's levels and in positive cash flow for the quarter," McCracken added.

During the quarter, Silicon Graphics announced the availability of several software products intended to extend the application of its systems in the corporate environment. The company introduced NetVisualyzer(TM), a set of visual network monitoring and diagnostic tools for multivendor computing environments.

The company also jointly announced several software packages including database, spreadsheet and desktop productivity packages, developed by third party software developers.

"Leadership in the visual processing market not only requires that we have the best graphics technology and the broadest product line, but also a complete set of productivity tools. We believe that this market is one of the fastest growing computer industry segments," McCracken concluded.

Silicon Graphics, Inc. is a leading manufacturer of high-performance graphics systems, servers and software for three-dimensional distributed visual processing applications.

The company's products, which range from advanced project supercomputers to low-end desktop models, are used by engineers, scientists and creative professionals in design, analysis, manufacturing and simulation. WEST BEND, WI (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The Ziegler Company, Inc. (NASDAQ: ZEGL) a financial services holding company, announced today a decrease in earnings for the third quarter of 1990.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990 total revenues were $7,353,000 compared with $7,825,000 in the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the quarter was $59,000 compared with net income of $437,000 in the third quarter of 1989. Earnings per share in the third quarter were 3 cents compared to 16 cents in 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, total revenue and net income were $24,101,000 and $1,237,000, respectively, compared to $24,177,000 and $1,717,000 in 1989. Earnings per share in the first nine months of 1990 were 47 cents versus 64 cents in the same period last year. As pointed out in the second quarter shareholders report, the comparable period in 1989 was favorably impacted by a non-recurring insurance settlement of $500,000 recorded in the second quarter of 1989.

Peter D. Ziegler, president and chief executive officer, said, "The third quarter was not a good quarter for the company's largest subsidiary, B.C. Ziegler and Company. The fixed income markets were negatively impacted by the Middle East conflict in August. While this made efficient distribution of underwritten product difficult, the primary reason for the small operating loss at B.C. Ziegler and Company was the shortage of new underwritings. This will change in the fourth quarter with more underwritings coming to market."

The four other operating subsidiaries of The Ziegler Company, Inc. were profitable in the third quarter. Operating results in the fourth quarter should be much improved over the third quarter said Ziegler.

OKLAHOMA CITY (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Palo Duro Production Co., an Oklahoma City-based independent, today announced that its two year fight to foreclose various oil and gas properties in Oklahoma culminated Wednesday in a judgment of foreclosure against Unit Petroleum Co., Unit Drilling and Exploration Co., the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Senco Development Co. Inc. and Rambler Oil Co. Both Unit companies are subsidiaries of Tulsa-based, Unit Corp., a publicly-held company listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol UNT.

The total value of Palo Duro's judgments, including pre and post judgment interest and accounting for proceeds could well exceed five million dollars. The judgments affected over 150 producing wells in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas. The Oklahoma action encompassed notes and mortgages exceeding 3.4 million dollars in value. Pre-judgment interest awarded on the notes exceeded half a million dollars.

Unit Petroleum Co., Unit Drilling and Exploration Co., Rambler Oil Co. and other parties were also ordered to account to Palo Duro for past production on certain wells and mortgaged property going back to 1979. Unit had about 50 wells involved in the lawsuit, and has been ordered to account for production received from the wells since 1985.

Joe Vaughan, Palo Duro president, excited by the outcome, stated, "This was a highly contested lawsuit involving millions of dollars against some real heavyweights. For that reason, it was a major victory for Palo Duro. This was a tremendous victory and will enable us to maximize our potential in the changing oil and gas environment of the 1990s. We are ecstatic!"

VALPARAISO, IN (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Indiana Federal Corp. (NASDAQ: IFSL) today authorized the repurchase of up to five percent, or approximately 130,000 shares, of Indiana Federal's common stock, from time to time, in the open market, as market conditions permit.

President Peter R. Candela said the board approved the repurchase program because, "It still believes that the true value of Indiana Federal's stock is not reflected in the stock price due to negative publicity concerning the thrift industry, therefore making the repurchase of stock a prudent investment by Indiana Federal." On Oct. 11, 1990, the corporation completed the repurchase of five percent of its shares which it announced back in April of this year.

The board also declared a quarterly dividend of ten cents per share to be paid Nov. 30, 1990, to shareholders of record as of Nov. 15, 1990. The dividend amount is unchanged from the previous quarter.

As of Sept. 30, 1990, Indiana Federal had 2,671,200 shares outstanding. DALLAS (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - American Petrofina Inc.'s (AMEX: APIA) third quarter net earnings were significantly lower than anticipated due to the turmoil in international crude oil markets caused by hostilities in the Middle East, according to FINA President and Chief Executive Officer Ron W. Haddock.

Net earnings for the quarter that ended Sept. 30 were $26.5 million, a 50.8 percent decrease from the record earnings reported in this years's second quarter, but a 75.7 percent increase compared with the same period last year when earnings were weak due to a refinery unit maintenance shutdown.

Net earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $106.5 million, essentially flat with the same period last year when a nonrecurring profit of $23 million was recorded in the first quarter of 1989 from the adjustment to deferred taxes associated with the Financial Accounting Standard Board's Statement 96.

Haddock said, "FINA's third quarter earnings were strong during the month of July, but began to deteriorate after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent, precipitous rise in crude oil prices.

"Upstream results in the third quarter were up compared with the corresponding period last year due to the substantial increase in crude oil prices and a small increase in oil production volumes, which were only partially offset by higher operating expenses.

"Downstream results were up substantially due to an increase in refining throughput and higher refining margins compared with a year ago, when profitability was low because a refinery unit was down for maintenance. However, after a very strong July, crude oil prices rose much more than product prices, and substantial profits in Refining and Marketing in July turned into losses during August and September.

"In Chemicals, third quarter results were up compared with the same period last year due to higher volumes and improved margins."

Sales and other operating revenues for the third quarter of 1990 were $1.1 billion, a 48.2 percent increase compared with the same period last year. The increase was due mainly to higher crude oil and product prices during August and September.

Sales and other operating revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were $2.8 billion, a 22.2 percent increase compared with the same period last year.

American Petrofina, Incorporated (AMEX: APIA), through its main operating subsidiary, Fina Oil and Chemical Co., engages in crude oil and natural gas exploration, production, and marketing; petroleum products refining, transportation, and marketing; and chemicals manufacturing and marketing. STURBRIDGE, MA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - SpecTran Corporation (NASDAQ: SPTR) today reported a continuation of profitable results for its third quarter and nine month periods ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues for the third quarter of 1990 increased 47.4 percent to $2,950,238 compared with revenues of $2,002,006 for the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the 1990 third quarter of $304,969, or $.07 per share, compared with a net loss of $58,942 ($.01 per share) for the same period in 1989.

Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 increased 30.8 percent to $7,199,826 compared with revenues of $5,503,300 for the first nine months of 1989. Net income for the 1990 nine month period of $459,599, or $.10 per share, compared with a net loss of $439,246 ($.10 per share) for the same period last year.

Commenting on the results, SpecTran's President and Chief Executive Officer,

Raymond E. Jaeger said, "The company has now sustained profitable results for four consecutive quarters. The net income of $304,969 earned during the 1990 third quarter was the highest of the four quarters, and enabled the company to return to positive cash flow from operations for the first nine months of 1990 despite the payment during that period of approximately $456,000 for settlement costs and legal expenses incurred in connection with the company's class action litigation. The recently announced conclusion to the class action litigation and the million dollar order, approximately half of which will be shipped in this year's fourth quarter, strongly position the company to achieve its stated goals of positive cash flow from operations for the entire year, increasing revenues over the prior year and a return to annual profitability."

SpecTran Corporation develops, manufactures and markets glass optical fibers.

SYRACUSE, NY (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Community Bank System, Inc. (CBSI), a Dewitt-based multi-bank holding company with assets in excess of $635 million, has announced that net income for third quarter 1990 was $669,000, off 45.3 percent from the comparable period last year; earnings per share was $.25, down 44.4 percent from a year earlier. For the first nine months of 1990, net income was $1.973 million and earnings per share was $.73; these results are off 42.8 percent and 41.1 percent, respectively, from the first three quarters of last year.

Edwin J. Lyons, president and chief executive officer, stated that the principal reasons for the depressed earnings were the continued building of the company's loan loss reserves to an all-time high and operating income falling slightly without a commensurate reduction in overhead. Loan loss reserves were increased by more than $260,000 during the quarter to .93 percent of total loans, net of unearned discount; for the nine months, the loan loss provision exceeded net charge-offs by 151 percent.

Lyons went on to say that a change in organizational structure has recently been initiated which will significantly reduce overhead expense and improve management control. The first step of this major structural change, in which the company's five independent banking affiliates will be consolidated into a single bank, was taken in September when the company incurred a $169,000 pre-tax charge to close its four-year-old mortgage banking affiliate, Community Financial Services, Inc. The operation had consistently been only marginally profitable, experiencing further deterioration this year due to industry-wide overcapacity and a slowdown in mortgage originations.

Company-wide loan loss reserves presently cover 88 percent of non- performing loans, defined as credits which are non-accruing or delinquent 90 days or more. With the exception of the Exchange National Bank affiliate, non-performing loans have been trending downward to a level now 33 percent below a year ago. This improvement has been more than offset by a weakening of several commercial loan credits at Exchange, where non-performers rose by $2.0 million during the third quarter. Management continues to carefully monitor the viability of these borrowers, and will set aside additional reserves as necessary.

Earning assets reached $581 million on average for the quarter, up a strong 4.2 percent from the preceding quarter. The greatest portion of this increase was fueled by time deposit growth in the Exchange and St. Lawrence affiliate bank markets. With the exception of expanded borrowing under home equity lines of credit, loan demand continues to soften owing to a lackluster economy throughout our service area. As a result, core deposit growth is being placed at attractive taxable yields in the affiliate investment portfolios.

A primary focus of CBSI during the remainder of the year is to develop a detailed implementation plan for converting, both legally and operationally, to a single bank organizational structure, a process to be completed in phases over the next 12-15 months. Non-recurring expenses necessary to accomplish this restructuring, in addition to those incurred during the third quarter, will be determined within the next 90 days; no modification in dividend policy is planned.

CBSI presently has five commercial banking affiliates and a data processing subsidiary. The five banking affiliates are: Community National Bank, headquartered in Addison, with four branches in Steuben County: The Exchange National Bank, located in Olean, with two branches in Cattaraugus County; Horizon Bank, N.A., having its principal office in Waterloo, with five branches in the Finger Lakes region; The Nichols National Bank, located in Nichols; and The St. Lawrence National Bank, headquartered in Canton, which operates 17 branches throughout northern New York and a representative office in Ottawa, Canada. Based in Syracuse, the data processing subsidiary, Northeastern Computer Services, Inc., provides services to the affiliate banks and to other financial institutions in upstate and central New York.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Cypress Fund Inc. (AMEX: WJR) today declared a special distribution to shareholders, consisting of the 816,000 shares of Frisch's Restaurants, Inc. currently held in Cypress Fund's portfolio. The shares of Frisch's will be distributed, at the rate of 0.1313 shares of Frisch's for each share of Cypress Fund, on a payment date of Oct. 30, 1990, to fund shareholders of record as of the close of business on Oct. 26, 1990.

Fractional shares of Frisch's will not be paid in the special distribution and shareholders will receive cash in lieu of fractional shares, based on the closing price of Frisch's over the American Stock Exchange on the record date. It is expected that a substantial portion of the special distribution will represent a return of capital to Cypress Fund's shareholders.

Joyce N. Fensterstock, chairman and president of Cypress Fund, said: "The Frisch's holding represents the fund's most concentrated securities position and represents approximately 15 percent of the Frisch's shares outstanding. Making this special distribution to our shareholders will provide greater diversification of the fund and will preserve its status as a pass-through tax entity, thereby giving the board more flexibility in determining future actions to realize net asset value for the fund's shareholders."

Cypress Fund had net assets before declaration of the special distribution of approximately $45.8 million; the Frisch's shares to be distributed have a current market value of approximately $14.3 million.

As previously announced, on Sept. 18, 1990, the fund's board of directors requested the fund's investment adviser, Mitchell Hutchins Asset Management Inc., to consider all available options to allow shareholders to realize the net asset value of fund shares, and to report its recommendations to the board at its next meeting. The board intends to consider the available options, including or converting the fund into or merging it with an open-end fund or liquidating (with or without distributions in kind to fund shareholders), and to present a proposal as necessary to the fund's shareholders for consideration at the fund's next annual meeting in spring of 1991 or an earlier special meeting.

DEDHAM, MA. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Multibank Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: MLTF) reported a net operating loss for the three month period ended Sept. 30, of $3,480,000, or 38 cents per share, compared to earnings of $3,276,000, or 35 cents per share, during the same period last year. As forecast in the company's news release of Sept. 25, third quarter performance showed improvement over second quarter results, when a net operating loss of $11,912,000 was recorded.

Results for the first nine months of 1990 showed a net operating loss of $12,636,000, or $1.38 per share, compared to earnings of $17,334,000, or $1.86 per share, realized in the first nine months of 1989.

The loss resulted primarily from additions to the provision for possible credit losses made necessary by the continuing softness in the regional economy. During the quarter, Multibank added $12,657,000 to its provision, bringing the total provision to $50,791,000 for the first nine months of the year.

At quarter-end, the company's non-performing assets totalled $155,037,000, or 6.99 percent of total loans and leases, compared to $111,460,000, or 4.89 percent at June 30. The allowance for possible credit losses was $50,967,000 at Sept. 30, or 33 percent of non- performing assets.

The third quarter 1990 results also include a write down of $2,494,000 to the company's investment portfolio reflecting the devaluation of marketable equity securities.

During the second and third quarters, five of the company's six banks and the holding company were examined by various regulatory authorities. Although not finalized, it is believed that each of these examinations may result in some form of understanding or agreement.

Commenting on the company's performance, Chairman David B. Lynch said, "We continue to operate in extremely difficult economic conditions. While we incurred a loss for the quarter, as we had projected earlier, results showed an improvement over the second quarter of the year. Going forward, we hope to see a return to profitability during the fourth quarter."

Multibank Financial Corporation is a registered bank holding company with six Massachusetts banks and several related financial service companies. The companies stock is traded on the over-the- counter market and is listed and quoted through the NASDAQ National Market System (NMS) under the symbol of MLTF. #90291p6940 10/18/1990 ~PR Newswire

ATLANTA, (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Bank South (NYSE: BKS) today reported a third quarter loss of $13.9 million, or 41 cents per share, compared to earnings of $12.2 million, or 36 cents per share during the third quarter of 1989.

Third quarter performance reflects a $46.7 million provision to the loan loss reserve, compared to $34.3 million in the second quarter of 1990 and $3.8 million during the third quarter of 1989. The third quarter 1990 provision increases the reserve for loan losses to $90.3 million, or 2.65 percent of total loans, compared to $57.7 million or 1.66 percent at the end of the second quarter.

"For the consecutive quarter our performance has been impacted by a large provision to the loan loss reserve," said Robert P. Guyton, chairman and chief executive officer. "This is disappointing as we are accustomed to much better results. However, in this regulatory and economic environment we are taking a very conservative approach to the rating of our credits, and earnings inevitably are being affected. We want to take our medicine now, and move forward."

During the second quarter Bank South provided $34.3 million to its loan loss reserve after an intensive internal and regulatory review of the bank's commercial real estate portfolio. During the third quarter, the bank's internal analysis of its other commercial loans resulted in the $46.7 million provision.

"We have reviewed carefully both our commercial real estate and commercial loan portfolios in detail, and believe that we have taken the appropriate action," Guyton said. "The economy continues to weaken, however, and prudence will require that our provisions continue to reflect economic conditions."

Guyton noted that, while earnings have been affected by large loan loss reserve provisions, core earnings power has continued to grow. Pre-tax income before provisions for loan losses and writedowns and reserves on foreclosed properties rose 15 percent to $17.4 million during the quarter. Year-to-date, this figure has increased 19 percent compared to the first nine months of 1989. Also, primary and tangible primary capital ratios remained strong at 8.04 percent and 7.39 percent, respectively.

Third quarter results reflect a more vigorous approach for evaluating credits and establishing loan loss provisions. This method is consistent with the cautious approach of federal regulators in the weakening economy. Consequently, earnings were impacted during the quarter as loans were downgraded and the reserve was increased.

Including the effects of additional provisions to the loan loss reserve, the net loss for the first nine months of 1990 totaled $10. 8 million, or 32 cents per share, compared to net income of $33.5 million, or 99 cents per share for the first nine months of 1989.

Among other third quarter results, non-performing assets increased $47 million, to $168 million. Non-performing assets at the end of the third quarter represented 4.87 percent of total loans and other real estate owned, compared to 3.45 percent for the second quarter of 1990 and 1.42 percent for the third quarter of 1989.

Non-accural and renegotiated loans totaled $117.5 million at the end of the third quarter, compared to $75.6 million at the end of the second quarter. Loans current in both principal and interest included in non-accrual loans totaled $19.1 million at the end of the third quarter. Other real estate owned (OREO) increased to $50. 6 million at the end of the third quarter from $45.9 million at the end of the second quarter.

Charge-offs for the quarter totaled $14 million, or .41 percent of total average loans, compared with $17.8 million, or .51 percent of total average loans for the second quarter of 1990 and $4 million, or .12 percent during the third quarter of 1989.

Also affecting earnings were several non-recurring expenses totaling $7.2 million, consisting primarily of the write-off of capitalized system development costs. Additionally, in a conservative step recognizing the weak real estate market, additional reserves were provided against potential losses related to foreclosed properties. As a result, the properties are being carried at a net book value of 90 percent of current appraised value. These non-recurring charges were partially offset by a $4 million gain from the retirement of subordinated debt.

Efforts at controlling expenses through the company's ongoing restructuring effort have been successful. In fact, non- interest expenses during the first nine months of 1990 have decreased by 2 percent, excluding non-recurring charges. The restructuring program, begun during 1989, has resulted in a smaller workforce, consolidation of operations, and innovative new ways of doing business such as the outsourcing of operations and systems software. These are in addition to a number of smaller expense control programs thorughout the company, including a voluntary salary freeze by the corporation's executive officers.

"We are having success in our efforts to control expenses, and realize these efforts must be ongoing and a part of our corporate culture," Guyton said. "As we continue this program we are also focusing on sales and marketing to develop good new business, and on quality service to take care of our customers.

"In this economic environment, we also recognize that nothing is more important than credit quality," Guyton said, adding that a number of actions are being taken to enhance credit quality safeguards in light of the weakening economy.

Among those actions, the bank has agreed informally with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) to assess and improve credit procedures. A committee of the board of directors and a consultant are working with management on this program, and a restructuring of the bank's credit organization is expected to result.

These actions are in addition to programs initiated previously, including an intensive review of the bank's commercial loans, and conservative reserving based on those reviews. Also, a group of experienced lending officers have been designated to focus on large problem loans, allowing other lending officers to focus their time on servicing customers and developing new business.

In addition to today's other announcements, Bank South said that its board of directors declared a quarterly dividend of 13 cents per share, payable Jan. 1, 1991 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 14.

Bank South Corp. is a $5.3 billion, multi-bank holding company with 140 offices through Georgia and the Florida panhandle.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Consistent with the previous press release James Madison Limited today reported a third quarter 1990 net loss of $16 million, or $1.61 per share.

This figure represents a decrease from net income of $786,000, or 7 cents per share, reported in the prior quarter and $951,000, or 9 cents per share, recorded in the corresponding quarter of 1989. Events adversely affecting current quarter earnings included a continued rise in non-performing assets, an increase in the loan loss provision, a loss on other real estate owned, and certain write-offs resulting from a restructuring of the company's subsidiaries.

K. Donald Menefee, chairman and chief executive officer, stated: "JML owns community banks that both accept deposits from the community and invest back into the community. Therefore, as the community has suffered due to the weakened real estate market, so has JML. We continue to manage our assets aggressively based on the most current and prudent assessments of our loan portfolios. JML is fortunate to be well capitalized with a primary capital ratio in excess of 8 percent and, under the more stringent 1992 standards, risk-based primary capital of 9.8 percent."

The accompanying table sets forth information with regard to credit quality. JML has experienced an increase in non-performing assets from $25 million to $37 million, paralleling the weakening economy and commercial real estate market. In the current quarter, non-accrual loans also increased from $10 million to $27 million, while restructured loans decreased from $10 million to $5 million, and other real estate owned was unchanged at $5 million.

Consistent with prior disclosures and the continued uncertainty as to the future performance of the commercial real estate market, the company increased the provision for loan losses. The provision for loan losses in the third quarter was $18 million, compared to a provision for loan losses of $2.5 million in the prior quarter and $655,000 in the same quarter a year ago.

James Madison Limited is a $900 million holding company located in Washington.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - UAL Corporation (NYSE: UAL) announced today a long-term resolution of issues with respect to its largest shareholder that involves active support for the company's highly successful strategic plan. Keith R. Gollust and Paul E. Tierney Jr. of Coniston Partners will join the 13 current members on UAL Corporation's board of directors. For the next two and a half years, Coniston and its affiliates will not acquire additional UAL shares to any material extent nor sell shares in any major block, and will direct their efforts at assisting UAL and its shareholders through their director designees. The company also announced contemplated repurchases of up to two million shares of UAL stock in the open market, as the board deems appropriate, to improve shareholder value. The company's previously announced enhanced employee stock programs are not affected by this announcement.

Stephen M. Wolf, chairman and president of UAL Corporation, said: ''By putting the uncertainty over ownership behind us, we can move forward to focus our full attention on United's long-term strategic plan and industry opportunities as they arise. We welcome Messrs. Gollust and Tierney to our board and look forward to working with them in fulfilling our promise to increase shareholder value, to protect employee job security and to meet the needs of our customers. In today's industry environment, a relationship such as that cemented today, will go a long way in enabling United Airlines to meet these objectives.''

Paul E. Tierney Jr., a member of Coniston Partners, said: ''In consideration of worldwide economic conditions, including the price of oil, working with management and the board will produce the greatest value for shareholders. Also, with United employees now able to work in an environment of stable ownership and corporate governance and with the parties working together toward a common goal, the ultimate result will benefit all.''

Tierney added, ''We are hopeful that our decision to participate on the board will help to build an even stronger United Airlines.''

HOUSTON (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Mesa Offshore Trust (the trust) today announced that it has been advised by Mesa Limited Partnership (Mesa) that Mesa has signed a letter of intent to sell certain producing oil and gas properties and undeveloped leasehold acreage to Seagull Energy Corp. (Seagull) of Houston. Mesa has advised the trust that the properites to be sold to Seagull include Mesa's 10 percent interest in the royalty properties of the trust and Mesa's 0.01 percent interest in the Mesa Offshore Royalty Partnership (the partnership). The transaction is expected to close in December 1990 and is subject to Seagull obtaining financing, the negotiation and execution of a definitive agreement, and to customary regulatory clearances.

Mesa has further advised the trust that, in connection with the acquisition, Seagull is expected to replace Mesa as the operator of the royalty properties and the managing general partner of the partnership and to assume Mesa's obligations under the instrument conveying the royalty properties to the trust. Following the Seagull acquisition, the royalty properties will continue to be subject to the trust royalty and it is expected that the trust and the partnership will, in general, continue to operate without change.

AMARILLO, Texas (Oct. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Southwestern Public Service Co.

(NYSE: SPS) today reported fiscal 1990 earnings of $2.73 per common share, up 28 cents from earnings of $2.45 for fiscal 1989.

W.R. Esler, SPS chairman of the board and chief executive officer, attributed the increased earnings to recognition of $13.4 million in investment tax credits related to a previously disclosed Federal Energy Regulatory Commission order, as well as to $1.6 million in related revenues and interest. Together these factors contributed 35 cents per share to earnings.

The electric utility reported operating revenues for the year ended Aug. 31, 1990, of $769.5 million, a decrease of $29.3 million, or 3.7 percent, compared with the previous year. Esler said the decline in operating revenues reflects lower fuel-related collections due primarily to decreased purchased-power costs in 1990.

Operating income of $145.5 million was down 3.2 percent. Lower operating income resulted from higher operation and scheduled maintenance expenses at the company's major generating stations -- excluding fuel, purchased power and taxes. Kilowatt-hour sales, excluding non-firm sales, were up 4.2 percent. Kwh sales rose primarily due to periods of unseasonably hot, dry weather. Additionally, slightly improving economic conditions in the service area resulted in modest improvements in kwh sales.

Consolidated construction expenditures of $50.3 million in fiscal 1990 were up $4.3 million, or 9.4 percent, from the previous year. Fiscal 1991 consolidated construction is budgeted at $80.2 million.

SPS is a regional electric utility that provides electric service to a population of about 1 million people in a 52,000-square-mile area of the South plains and Panhandle of Texas, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the Panhandle of Oklahoma, and southwestern Kansas. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo, Texas.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Navistar International Corp. (NYSE: NAV) today announced that Neil A. Springer, president and chief operating officer, will retire on Oct. 31, 1990, the close of the company's fiscal year. He will continue as a consultant to the company during his retirement.

"After more than 30 years with Navistar, I have accomplished many of the objectives I set for myself and for the company," Springer said. "I have an enormous amount of confidence in the strong management team that is in place now to lead Navistar through the challenges of the next decade."

James C. Cotting, chairman and chief executive officer, said that "through his leadership and commitment to excellence, Neil Springer has contributed greatly to Navistar's leading position in North American truck manufacturing.

"During his tenure as president and chief operating officer, Neil has helped to successfully steer Navistar through some of the most challenging times in the company's history," Cotting said. "We are very fortunate that he has agreed to be available as a consultant so that Navistar can continue to benefit from his vast knowledge of the company and the industry."

Springer started his career with Navistar in 1960, progressing through a number of manufacturing positions with the company's facilities in Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Springfield, Ohio; and Bridgeport, Conn. In 1970, he moved to the Navistar's Chicago headquarters, where he held progressively more responsible positions in the company's agricultural equipment, finance and truck organizations. He was named head of the truck group in 1979 and president and chief operating officer of Navistar in 1984.

SPOKANE, WA (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Key Tronic Corp. (NASDAQ: KTCC) has unveiled its Universal Expansion Station, a peripheral product that enhances the performance of portable computers.

Key Tronic's Universal Expansion Station (UXS) expands the capabilities of laptop and notebook computers by offering add-on functions such as network connectivity, floppy disk access, hard disk storage, video upgrades, and fax and modem capabilities.

"The primary problem portable computer users face is their inability to achieve the full functionality that exists with a desktop computer system," explained Mike Snyder, Product Manager for Key Tronic's Universal Expansion Station. "With the UXS, they can add the functions they need at their desk, yet benefit from the portability of the laptop or notebook when they're away from the office."

The new product, which Key Tronic anticipates will be available for sale in late 1990, will list for $895 and carry a one-year limited warranty. It will be manufactured in Key Tronic's facilities in Spokane, Snyder said. The expansion station will be marketed through Key Tronic's network of retail distributors and dealers throughout North America with eventual sales in Europe.

Key Tronic, the leading manufacturer of keyboards and other computer products, is a publicly held corporation traded over the counter under the NASDAQ symbol KTCC.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Lewis Galoob Toys Inc. (NYSE: GAL) a South San Francisco-based toy company, today announced that the United States District Court for the Northern District of California has ordered Nintendo of America to post a $5 million bond to cover any costs or damages Galoob Toys may incur if it is found that the company was wrongfully enjoined from selling its new Game Genie (tm) video game enhancer.

U.S. District Court Judge Fern Smith granted Galoob Toys' motion for additional bond following yesterday's hearing. Judge Smith is expected to preside over Nintendo's copyright infringement suit, which is scheduled for trial early next year.

"We are pleased with the court's decision to require Nintendo to increase its bond to $5 million in order to cover the damages we may incur if we are found to have been wrongfully enjoined from selling the Game Genie," said Steven M. Klein, executive vice president and general counsel of Galoob Toys. "We maintain that Galoob Toys has in no way infringed on any Nintendo copyright and that we will prevail at the final trial of this case."

In June, Judge Robert H. Schnacke issued a preliminary injunction enjoining Galoob from distributing the Game Genie, pending the formal trial of Nintendo's suit. Galoob's expedited appeal was heard in September by the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and a decision is expected shortly.

The Game Genie is the world's first and only video-game enhancer. It offers a new dimension to video-game play by allowing players to modify game play to explore all "levels" of an individual game by giving players infinite lives, enhanced "fire" power or increased jumping abilities.

Lewis Galoob Toys Inc. designs, develops, markets and distributes a variety of toy products sold worldwide.

AREQUIPA, PERU (OCT. 17) UPI - A moderate earthquake rocked Peru's second largest city Wednesday, causing jitters among its 1 million inhabitants but no damage or injury, officials said.

The quake struck at 6:25 p.m.

A seismologist at the Peruvian Geophysics Institute in Lima said the temblor felt in the southeastern city of Arequipa and surrounding areas was not related to a quake Wednesday morning in the Amazon region near the Brazilian border. That quake registered 6 on the open-ended Richter scale.

The first quake caused minor damage, such as cracked walls, in Rio Branco, a city of 200,000 about 350 miles northeast of the Peruvian capital Lima.

A number of people ran out of their homes, but no one was reported injured by the quake, which lasted about 20 seconds.

The seismologist did not give the strength or epicenter of the second quake.

(OCT. 18) UPI - A convicted killer died Wednesday night in Virginia's electric chair... hours after the U-S Supreme Court declined to issue a stay of execution. Governor Douglas Wilder ignored a plea that Wilbert Evans' sentence be commuted from death to life in prison. Evans is the 141st American executed since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976.

A bi-partisan deficit reduction plan survived its first test vote in the Senate. Senators voted 67-32 in rejecting an amendment Wednesday night that would have raised income taxes for the rich and would have scaled back a proposed gasoline tax. Democratic leader George Mitchell says he personally favored portions of the proposal, but opposed it because it would have led to a presidential veto.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (OCT. 18) UPI - The government of President Elias Hrawi froze $30 million allegedly embezzled by Gen. Michel Aoun, the former rebel army leader now holed up in the French Embassy.

Official sources said the government instructed several local banks Wednesday to freeze money deposited in Aoun's accounts during the two years in which he claimed to be the legitimate Lebanese prime minister.

Aoun's mutiny ended Saturday when he was routed by Lebanese and Syrian troops that moved into Christian east Beirut and captured the presidential palace in Baabda, 5 miles southeast of the Lebanese capital.

Aoun and the forces under his command had refused to recognize the authority of the Hrawi government, installed as the result of an Arab- brokered accord last year designed to settle Lebanon's 15-year civil war between Christians and Moslems.

He fought the presence of Syrian forces in Lebanon and also this year battled the forces of a rival Christian militia leader.

Sources said Wednesday that Hrawi's government was also attempting to freeze a reported amount $60 million deposited in banks abroad, notably French banks.

''The government has taken a decision to freeze a large amount of money Aoun had collected from taxes and sales of wheat and gasoline,'' Agriculture Minister Mohsen Dalloul told United Press International.

Dalloul said a large amount of the missing money had been located at 13 local banks.

The pro-Syrian As-Safir daily newspaper reported that $98 million was in bank accounts in the name of a number of political and military figures close to Aoun, including Brig. Gens. Edgard Maalouf and Issam Abu Jamra.

Abu Jamara was believed to have $9 million in local banks alone, As- Safir said.

As-Safir quoted government sources as saying that Aoun and his aides had collected the money from taxes and from funds sent by Lebanese emigrants who supported their military campaign against Syrian forces in Lebanon last year.

Aoun and a number of his associates have taken up refuge at the French Embassy in the district of Hazmiyeh on the eastern outskirts of Beirut.

Hrawi's government rebuffed a French offer to grant Aoun political asylum and has insisted on putting him on trial for embezzlement.

Red Cross and hospital sources said at least 600 people were killed and more than 700 were wounded during Saturday's battles. The sources said that among the dead were some 300 Syrian soldiers.

Aoun has remained holed up as France, through its ambassador to Beirut, Rene Ala, tried to settle his fate.

Ala, emerging from a meeting with Prime Minister Selim Hoss, said efforts continued with the Lebanese government to end Aoun's ordeal through diplomacy.

Asked about reports that Aoun had suffered heart problems while at the embassy Ala said: ''Nobody is ill at the embassy.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The Senate's bipartisan deficit reduction package faces a second day of assault Thursday after weathering two threats during a heated opening day of debate.

In a Wednesday session that lasted until midnight, the Senate fought off amendments to the deficit reduction that could have scuttled the plan, the major elements of which are favored by President Bush.

The Senate defeated an amendment offered by Sens. Kent Conrad, D- N.D., and Max Baucus, D-Mont., to raise income tax rates for the rich to 33 percent from the current 28 percent and impose a 10 percent surtax on Americans whose annual taxable income exceeds $1 million. The defeated measure also proposed to hold the gas tax increase to 5 cents a gallon, down from the 9.5-cent hike contained in the bipartisan plan.

Later, Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas combined in a parliamentary maneuver to avoid a floor vote on an amendment offered by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, to remove the gas tax hike from the package.

The Senate bill would cut the deficit by $28.4 billion in fiscal year 1991, which began Oct. 1, and by $252.5 billion over five years. It is the cornerstone of the Senate's broader effort to cut the deficit by $40 billion in 1991 and by $500 billion over five years.

Senate debate on the deficit-cutting measure began a day after the House narrowly approved a plan crafted by Democrats.

Without agreement on a deficit-cutting plan, the government faces the possibility of another shutdown at 12:01 a.m. EDT Saturday. Bush has said he will not sign another emergency spending measure to fund the government without a budget accord in place.

Bush said Tuesday he would veto any measure like the one passed by the House, expressing support for the Senate version. But on Wednesday, the administration released a statement saying Bush's advisers would recommend a veto of the Senate bill unless two provisions were removed.

Those provisions reauthorized the Federal Aviation Administration with language dealing with labor protection, aviation noise reduction and landing rights that Bush opposed. It also increased fines federal health and safety agencies could impose for violations.

The administration also expressed ''serious concerns'' about 10 other minor provisions of the Senate bill.

Crafted by the tax-writing Finance Committee, the Senate bill does not change the nation's income tax rate structure. However, it contains the gas tax hike along with increases in cigarette, alcohol and luxury taxes and proposes $48.9 billion in Medicare cuts over five years.

The House bill extends the top tax rate to 33 percent for the wealthiest Americans from the current 28 percent - a move that would raise $50 billion over five years. It also would impose a 10 percent surtax on millionaires and a 10 percent luxury tax on expensive cars, boats, airplanes, jewelry and furs.

The House legislation proposed a $43 billion cut in Medicare over five years.

Mitchell and Dole repeatedly urged their colleagues to refrain from amending the Senate package, warning of a possible White House backlash.

Among amendments that could be considered Thursday is one to be offered by Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., that also would create a 33 percent income tax rate for the wealthiest taxpayers.

Mitchell said he personally favored many portions of the Conrad- Baucus plan, particularly the 33 percent top rate, but said its inclusion in the deficit reduction plan would lead to a certain Bush veto.

''As is so often the case in life generally, and certainly in the political process, we must play with the cards that are dealt for us. We must deal with the situation as it exists,'' Mitchell said.

Mitchell called the Symms measure, which would have eliminated $42.6 billion in deficit reduction over five years, ''a killer amendment'' that ''would destroy this deficit reduction effort.'' Symms, an opponent of the bipartisan plan, argued that ''raising the gas tax on working Americans is not the solution'' to the deficit problem.

CINCINNATI (UPI) - The Cincinnati Reds have taken a stunning 2-0 lead over the Oakland Athletics in the World Series by beating two of baseball's best in Dave Stewart and Dennis Eckersley.

Very few thought the Reds could win this thing before it started. Now everybody knows they can.

Joe Oliver grounded a single off Eckersley with one out in the 10th inning Wednesday night to score Billy Bates from second base and give the Reds a thrilling 5-4 victory over the heavily favored American League champions.

''We didn't come here just to be an opponent,'' said Cincinnati Manager Lou Piniella. ''We came to win the World Series.''

Oliver, a catcher in the lineup primarily for his defensive skills, tagged baseball's premier reliever with his first postseason loss since the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the A's with Kirk Gibson's dramatic ninth- inning homer in the 1988 Series.

Eckersley started the 10th and got Eric Davis to ground out, but Bates reached on a chopper to third - his first hit with Cincinnati - and went to second on Chris Sabo's single. Oliver then singled just inside the third-base bag and Bates coasted home.

''When it was called fair I felt a lot of excitement,'' said Oliver, who hit just .143 in the National League playoffs but is 3 for 9 in the Series. ''This is a real big thing. This should give us a lot of momentum.''

Speaking of momentum: Billy Hatcher of the Reds went 4 for 4 to set a Series record with seven straight hits. The mark of six was set in 1924 by Washington's Leon ''Goose'' Goslin and equaled in 1976 by Thurman Munson of the Yankees.

Hatcher has not been retired in his first Series, collecting four doubles, a triple, two singles and two walks.

''I'm just getting a big part of the bat on the ball right now,'' said Hatcher a career .404 hitter in the postseason. ''I'm getting good pitches, and getting a chance to play regularly is another reason.''

For the A's, this Series is beginning to resemble 1988 when Oakland entered as big favorites against Los Angeles but lost the first two games on the road en route to losing in five games.

Asked if he sees any comparisons to the Series two years ago, third baseman Carney Lansford said. ''Not at all. We played a lot better than we did last night (a 7-0 loss in Game 1). We just didn't add on with the big hit.''

Rob Dibble pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. The Cincinnati bullpen hurled 7 1-3 innings without surrendering a run after starter Danny Jackson faltered.

''The bullpen did the job tonight,'' said Reds shortstop Barry Larkin, refering to Scott Scudder, Jack Armstrong, Norm Charlton and Dibble.

The best-of-seven series continues Friday night at the Oakland Coliseum. The A's are scheduled to start Mike Moore against left-hander Tom Browning.

The game came on the one-year anniversary of the Bay Area earthquake that delayed the Series between the A's and San Francisco Giants for 11 days.

With the Reds trailing 4-3 in the eighth, Hatcher produced his fourth hit, a leadoff triple that glanced off the glove of right fielder Jose Canseco. Starter Bob Welch followed by walking Paul O'Neill on four pitches, but got Davis on a short fly to right. Hatcher did not dare test Canseco's arm but admitted later he had made a mistake.

Welch was replaced by left-hander Rick Honeycutt, and that brought on Glenn Braggs to bat for Hal Morris. Braggs, celebrating his 28th birthday, then hit a chopper up the middle. Shortstop Mike Gallego tagged O'Neill near second but threw too late to first to complete the double play as Hatcher scored to tie it.

Left fielder Rickey Henderson threw out Sabo trying for a double in the sixth, and helped send the game into extra innings in the ninth with a leaping stab of Todd Benzinger's liner.

Honeycutt got O'Neill to fly out with runners at first and second in the ninth forcing the first extra-inning Series game since Game 6 in 1986.

With Oakland trailing 2-1, Canseco gave the A's their first postseason homer this year when he drilled a 2-0 pitch from Jackson into the second deck in right field. It was only his fourth homer since Aug. 2 and first since Sept. 16.

Mark McGwire followed with a single, and walks to Dave Henderson and Willie Randolph loaded the bases. Ron Hassey's sacrifice fly pushed Oakland ahead, and Gallego's two-out single up the middle made it 4-2 and drove Jackson from the game.

Jackson, a Series star with Kansas City in 1985, entered with a 3-1 record and 1.43 ERA in the postseason but lasted just 2 2-3 innings and was tagged for six hits.

Gallego's hit was the A's first in 15 tries with a runner in scoring position.

Larkin opened the Cincinnati third with a single and Hatcher hit his fourth Series double, but Welch escaped the jam. He got O'Neill on a short fly to left, Davis on a comebacker and Morris on a groundout.

But a two-out pinch-hit by Ron Oester - the Red with the most tenure with the club at 13 seasons - brought Cincinnati to within 4-3 in the fourth. Oliver, who had doubled, scored when catcher Hassey was unable to handle Dave Henderson's throw from center for an error.

In the first, Rickey Henderson singled, stole second without a throw, moved to third on Carney Lansford's sacrifice and scored on Canseco's groundout.

The Reds, though, countered with two runs in their half of the first. After Larkin doubled, Hatcher followed with another to tie it. Hatcher then came home on O'Neill's flyout and Davis' bouncer.

(OCT. 18) UPI - White supremacist Tom Metzger cross-examined himself on the witness stand in a 10-Million-dollar wrongful death case being heard in Oregon. The Fallbrook, California, T-V repairman says he canNOT afford an attorney for the lawsuit brought by two civil rights groups. The suit stems from the 1988 fatal beating of an Ethiopian student by three so- called ''skinheads'' allegedly sent to Portland by Metzger.

economically from the Persian Gulf crisis. A spokesman for one Paris fashion house says his and other firms are suffering cancellations of hand-made, costly, high-fashion clothes from oil-rich clients in Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (OCT. 18) UPI - Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon and his North Korean counterpart Yon Hyong-muk ended two days of talks in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang Thursday after agreeing to meet in Seoul in December.

Though that was the only agreement reached at their meeting held for two hours behind closed doors at the People's Cultural Palace in Pyongyang, the prime ministers had solid discussions on how to achieve rapprochement and end 45 years of national division.

The coming round of the inter-Korea prime ministerial talks, which started in Seoul in September, will be held Dec. 11-14, reported journalists accompanying the Southern delegation.

At the first session in Pyongyang Wednesday, Kang renewed a call that an eight-point basic agreement for improved relations be signed and exchanges of people and goods be promoted to build mutual trust.

Yon, insisting priority should be on ending political and military confrontation, offered a draft seven-point non-aggression declaration.

At the meeting Thursday, the two prime ministers elaborated on their respective proposals. In the process Kang proposed an eight-point ''joint declaration for South-North reconciliation and cooperation,'' Seoul officials said.

Kang did not want to use the word ''non-aggression declaration'' which, under South Korean law, will require parliamentary consent before signing, the officials said.

Kang's draft declaration provided that the South and the North, reconfirming the three principles for unification of independence, peace and national unity spelled out in the July 4, 1972, South- North joint communique, shall recognize and respect each other's system and shall not interfere in each other's internal affairs.

It said the South and the North shall promote economic exchanges and cooperation and realize exchanges and cooperation of people in various fields.

The two sides shall not use force of arms or stage any form of aggression and subversive activity against each other, it further said, and shall peacefully solve differences and disputes through dialogue and negotiation between their authorities.

Kang's draft accommodated some of North Korean demands including the three principles for unification that the North insisted on at the Seoul round and in Pyongyang.

Kang's version was similar in key aspects to the North Korea- proposed non-aggression declaration which said ''the North and the South as one nation shall not use arms against the other party in any case'' and ''shall settle possible differences and disputes peacefully through dialogue and negotiation.''

Seoul officials said they were hopeful that the two sides will be able to sign an agreement through further discussions at the Seoul round of talks in December.

Kang and his party were scheduled to pay a call on North Korean President Kim Il-sung later in the day. Kang will relay a verbal message from President Roh Tae-woo to Kim, officials said.

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA (OCT. 18) UPI - Controversy flared Thursday over orders that Australian sailors should not wear their uniforms in public in Australia to avoid harassment from Moslems angered by a video made on a Persian Gulf warship.

The ban on uniforms came into force Friday but was not made public in Australia until this week, prompting complaints from veterans and other groups.

Defense Minister Robert Ray, caught in a backlash over the no- uniforms rule, said Thursday he would review the order for off-duty sailors not to wear their uniforms in public.

Military officials said the no-uniform rule went into effect Friday, the same day as a video shot on board the HMAS Success, on duty in the gulf, was released, drawing strong protests from Australia's Arab community.

In the video, Australian sailors wrapped in sheets and towels bowed toward Mecca from the deck of the supply ship HMAS Success during a training exercise with sister ships HMAS Darwin and HMAS Adelaide.

Acting Defense Minister Gordon Bilney Friday apologized to the Arab community on behalf of the Australian government.

Since the video was screened, a number of sailors have complained they have been harassed by Moslems in Sydney.

Australian-Arab Welfare Society head Hassan Moussa said the 300,000- strong Arab community in Australia felt insulted but said he and his organization were unaware of any incidents involving Arabs and sailors.

The president of the Australian Navy League, retired Cmdr. Geoffrey Evans, said the no-uniforms order will only increase feelings of a division within the nation.

''I feel it was very regrettable to instruct sailors not to go to shore in their uniforms in their own country,'' Evans said. ''It indicates there are groups within the country who are carrying their old national feelings into our country and I think this is a matter of great regret.''

THUNDER BAY, ONTARIO (OCT. 18) UPI - Convicted murderer and former Playboy model Lawrencia ''Bambi'' Bembenek ignored the T-shirts that extolled her to ''Run, Bambi, Run'' and stayed put during her three months on the lam.

She was captured Wednesday on a tip from a viewer of ''America's Most Wanted'' who was vacationing in Thunder Bay, where Bembenek worked as a waitress since her prison break and lived with her fiance, Dominic Gugliatto. He also was arrested.

Bembenek, 32, squeezed through a window in a Wisconsin prison on July 15, possibly with the help of Gugliatto, 34, and quickly became a cause celebre whose plight was described in a pop song that helped make her famous throughout the United States and across the Atlantic Ocean.

The two were being held in Thunder Bay and will be expelled from Canada for violating immigration laws, Fond du Lac County Sheriff Jim Gilmore said. He said the earliest a hearing could be held would be next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Bembenek's flight sparked widespread interest, and many people perceived her as an innocent victim of the system who was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

The escape, Bembenek's beauty and the controversy surrounding her conviction led to headlines and reports of possible sightings of her around the globe - including reports that she may have fled to Great Britain.

Bembenek was convicted of first-degree murder in the 1981 slaying of Christine Schultz, the ex-wife of Bembenek's then-husband, Elfred Schultz. Schultz was bound, gagged and shot in a scheme, prosecutors said, to improve the couple's financial situation by reducing his alimony and child support payments.

Bembenek has maintained her innocence and has drawn many admirers who believe she was set up to take the blame for the killing. Prosecutors and police have characterized her as cold and calculating, and said she manipulated Gugliatto into helping her escape.

Ira Robbins, a private investigator who has been looking into her case and believes she is innocent, has fought without success for a new trial. ''I was relieved nothing happened to her,'' Robbins said. ''I think it's about time now we can get this back in court again.''

But Milwaukee County District Attorney E. Michael McCann said again he feels justice was done when Bembenek was convicted and said he doubts she will get a new trial.

Bembenek was once a Playboy model, and flattering pictures of her often were printed with newspaper and magazine stories on her.

The couple, both from Milwaukee, were arrested about 3 p.m. in Thunder Bay, about 40 miles northeast of Grand Portage, Minn., in the extreme northeastern point of the state, and about 400 miles north- northwest of Milwaukee, Royal Canadian Mounted Police Constable Andy Rozdolsky said.

John Dobyns, a sheriff's investigator in Fond du Lac, said Gugliatto and Bembenek were arrested at the couple's apartment. Bembenek was using the pseudonym Jennifer Lee Gazzana and Gugliatto was using the name Anthony Gazzana, he said.

Dobyns said the two at the time of the arrest appeared to be packing a car in an effort to flee the area. The RCMP officers ''looked at (Gugliatto) and looked at our fax ... and said, 'You're the guy.' And (the couple) said, 'You've got us' and admitted who they were,'' he said.

Rozdolsky said Bembenek was charged with violating Canadian immigration laws for working illegally in Thunder Bay.

Bembenek and Gugliatto apparently had been in Thunder Bay since July 16, the day after Bembenek fled a dormitory at the medium-security Taycheedah Correctional Institution near Fond du Lac by climbing a chain-link, barbed-wire fence. She had been serving a life sentence.

Bembenek also was being charged in Wisconsin with felony escape, and Gugliatto is charged with aiding and abetting a felony escape, Gilmore said.

Rozdolsky, the RCMP officer, said Bembenek ''was arrested as the result of someone who had watched the Fox Network television show ''America's Most Wanted.'' Bembenek's story was broadcast Friday.

Fox spokesman Jack Breslin told Milwaukee television station WTMJ the network got a call from a ''California viewer vacationing in Thunder Bay'' who had seen the Bembenek broadcast. He said the viewer was visiting a restaurant in Thunder Bay where Bembenek was working as a waitress, saw her and informed authorities in Canada and the United States.

Elfred Schultz, whose ex-wife Bembenek was convicted of killing, told WTMJ-TV in Milwaukee that he and his family were relieved at the fugitives' capture, but expressed concern for Gugliatto's family, which he said had been ''destroyed'' by Bembenek.

Commenting further on the arrests, Schultz quipped, ''It's kind of reminiscent of the Packers winning the Super Bowl.''

(OCT. 18) UPI - The head of the United Nations said military intervention against Iraq would be legitimate if its troops fail to leave Kuwait, while U.S. Secretary of State James Baker insisted that resolving the Persian Gulf crisis must include eliminating Iraq's ''capacity for future aggression.''

Iraq, for its part, reiterated its uncompromising stance.

''There is no change in Iraq's stand on current national and pan-Arab issues '' an Information Ministry spokesman told Baghdad Radio Wednesday. ''Kuwait became an eternal part of Iraq ... no Iraqi official has ever said that the whole of Kuwait is not Iraqi.''

Iraq also denied allegations of mistreatment of Kuwaiti citizens by Iraqi soldiers in the occupied emirate, and accused the United States of presenting ''obstacles to a comprehensive settlement of all outstanding issues in the Middle East.''

In statements issued by the Iraqi Embassy in Washington, the Iraqi government reiterated its ''resolve to seek peaceful means to effect a comprehensive solution'' to all regional disputes and echoed support for French President Francois Mitterrand and ''other peace-seeking arbiters.''

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said in remarks published Wednesday in the German weekly magazine Stern that ''the members of the U.N. Security Council will have to wait a little and see whether sanctions will after all show some effect.''

The diplomat said if the economic sanctions do not work, military action against Iraq ''would be perfectly legitimate'' should the Security Council sanction such a move.

Perez de Cuellar, however, added if the United Nations managed to resolve the crisis, ''we will then have to immediately make efforts concerning the Palestinian problem.''

Saddam Hussein sought earlier in the crisis to link an Iraqi pullout from the oil-rich emirate to an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

Jordan's King Hussein told Amman Radio that Iraq had considered pulling out of Kuwait 48 hours after the Aug. 2 invasion provided the Arab League gave Saddam full backing. But the Arab League failed to do so and Saddam incorporated Kuwait into Iraq a few days later, the radio quoted Hussein as saying.

Kremlin diplomatic troubleshooter Yevgeny Primakov indicated a possible weakening in Iraq's resolve after meeting Saddam in Baghdad. After talks in Paris with Mitterrand Wednesday, Primakov said his country believes a peaceful solution is possible.

President Bush is scheduled to meet with Primakov. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, however, said the conversations between Saddam and Primakov evidently produced ''no real change'' in the standoff.

The specter of full-scale war hung over a Senate hearing Wednesday as Secretary of State James Baker insisted that resolving the Persian Gulf crisis must include eliminating Iraq's ''capacity for future aggression.''

Both Republican and Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee expressed concern Bush could order an attack on Iraq without a formal declaration of war after Congress adjourns, expected later this month, until early next year.

Baker said the administration ''would expect to consult with Congress, but we don't know what's going to happen.''

A plan aimed at sending Japanese troops to the Middle East is stirring fears throughout the nation and other parts of Asia that Japan's pacifist Constitution is in peril.

Takako Doi, forceful leader of the largest opposition party, the Japan Socialists, denounced the bill as a ruse to send troops overseas. She said it would provoke a constitutional crisis.

Until now, Japan has always excused itself from military commitments to peacekeeping efforts since World War II, saying its constitution forbids involvement in collective defense.

In other developments Wednesday:

-Three British men who worked in Baghdad escaped Iraq Tuesday in a four-wheel-drive vehicle, crossing safely to the Saudi Arabian border 300 miles away, officials said.

-The United Nations said Perez de Cuellar's request that Iraq allow a charter plane to fly to occupied Kuwait with medicines for hospitals was rejected by Iraq.

-Iraq refuted reports of mistreatment by Iraqi soldiers in Kuwait.

''We were taken aback by the widely reported stories of flagrant and rampant disregard for human rights which these reports asserted were committed by our servicement,'' an Iraqi government statement said.

''While we acknowledge that in any conflict which involves the use of force there are likely to be isolated incidents in which individuals misinterpret their mission and display inhumanity, we categorically deny that such incidents, if they occurred, represent any official policy of any level of our government.''

-Saudi Arabia's defense minister suggested in a rare interview that Iraqi troops should rise up against the rule of Saddam Hussein and ''correct'' the crisis in the gulf themselves.'' Prince Sultan Ibn Abdul Aziz, a brother of King Fahd's, told Egypt's Al Akhbar newspaper that Arab states such as Jordan and Tunisia, along with the PLO, which sided with Saddam, had made a grave error.

-Defense Secretary Dick Cheney arrived in Moscow for talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Cheney discussed the gulf crisis with Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, but no details were released.

-Iraq's official news agency quoted the captain of the Iraqi tanker Tedmur interdicted by allied vessels in the gulf last week as saying the Australian Navy ''stole the crew's food, which was not more than a few kilograms of rice, wheat and sugar.''

TOCCOA, GA (OCT. 18) UPI - A Stephens County High School sophomore is trying to force school administrators to change a rule that prohibits him from holding hands with his girlfriend in school.

The student, Ricky Hollifield, asked the Stephens County school board Tuesday to overturn a rule that defines holding hands as ''inappropriate bodily contact.''

Hollifield noted that while school rules prohibit hand-holding, another rule requires the homecoming queen and her court to hold hands with their escorts during a homecoming ceremony.

Hollifield and his 15-year-old girlfriend, Toni Standridge, presented the board with a letter and a petition signed by 170 students, parents and local residents who support hand-holding.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

10 prison guards are among the mourners for a convicted cop-killer who was executed in Virginia Wednesday night. Wilbert Lee Evans died in the electric chair in Richmond... even though he saved the lives of prison guards during a break-out by other convicts on death row six years ago. 10 guards had asked that he be spared. .

Blood dripped profusely from beneath the brown leather mask covering the condemned killer's face as corrections officials gave him two 55- second bursts of electricity. Prison officials say nothing went wrong. A doctor says Evans had a nose-bleed. A prison spokeswoman says the pressure of the mask against the condemned man's nose caused the bleeding.

Attorney General Thornburgh reports a new push for education behind bars. Thornburgh says the federal prison system will start requiring new inmates who DON'T have the equivalent of a high school education will have to take classes. The program goes into effect January 1st.

Another day of Senate debate on the budget is coming up. The Senate fought off amendments to its deficit-reduction package in a session that lasted until midnight. Senate debate began Wednesday, one day after the House approved its own version. Senators fought off two amendments that would have scuttled the plan.

A civil rights bill is on its way to the White House. The House gave final congressional approval to the Civil Rights Act of 1990 Wednesday. If President Bush signs it, the measure will overturn or modify up to 10 Supreme Court decisions in the past five years that narrowed victims' rights in job bias cases.

The United Nations says Iraq has refused to let a charter plane fly into Kuwait with medicines for hospitals. Iraq denied reports its soldiers are mistreating people in the occupied country... saying if any such incidents have occurred, they are NOT official policy.

(OCT. 18) UPI - A convicted murderer and former Playboy bunny called ''Bambi'' is back in custody... three months after she escaped from a Wisconsin prison and became the subject of a popular song. Lawrencia Bembenek was captured in Thunder Bay, Canada, where she had been working as a waitress. She will be extradited.

The prime minister of the Ukraine says he will resign. The Soviet news agency Tass made the announcement. Prime Minister Vitaly Masol's resignation is in response to students who have been staging a hunger strike and demonstrations in Kiev. The Ukranian parliament also agreed to several other student demands.

Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel fired his defense minister. NO reason was given but the defense official had been accused of failing to cooperate in a probe of an alleged army plot to take over the government a year ago. Havel gave temporary control of the armed forces to Prime Minister Marian Calfa.

Christie's auction house in New York City reports a record price for a single photograph. A bidder paid 126-thousand dollars for a unique gelatin silver print of a photograph by the late surrealist Man Ray. The photo, taken sometime during the 1920s, depicts a bow-tie shaped pair of brushes magically floating above a lit candle.

MANILA, PHILIIPPINES (OCT. 18) UPI - A U.S. Navy ship on routine duty rescued 50 Vietnamese refugees aboard a crippled wooden boat in the South China Sea, a navy spokesman said Thursday.

Lt. Lee Saunders of the 7th Fleet said the guided missile frigate USS Curts took in the refugees Tuesday, 350 miles off the Philippine coast, after determining their wooden boat was ''unseaworthy, overcrowded and unable to navigate.''

Saunders said by telephone from Subic Bay Naval Base north of Manila crewmen of the Curts were attracted by a small fire the refugees lit.

The refugees - 34 men and 16 women - told the servicemen they had been at sea for 10 days, Saunders said. They received initial medical treatment by Navy doctors dispatched from the command destroyer, Saunders added.

He said the refugees will be turned over ''to the appropriate authorities.'' He declined to say where the ship was going.

TOKYO (OCT. 18) UPI - Three Japanese hostages were released Thursday by Iraq, and a fourth was expected to follow, Japan's Foreign Ministry said.

At least two of the four men were ill, a Foreign Ministry official said. He said he did not know why the other two were being released.

Yoshitomo Takeuchi, Kikuo Tomioka and Misao Kobori, all employees of Japanese companies, flew out of the Iraqi capital of Baghdad Thursday morning aboard an Iraqi airliner, officials said.

The flight was headed for Amman, Jordan, she said. The other hostage was being brought from somewhere outside Baghdad and was expected to fly out in the afternoon, a Foreign Ministry official said earlier.

The men ranged in age from 36 to 53, according to Japanese television reports.

Before this move, Iraq had been holding 141 Japanese as part of its ''human shield'' against attack, according to the ministry. Approximately 200 other Japanese are trapped inside Iraq and Kuwait but are not under detention, the ministry has said.

GENEVA (OCT. 18) UPI - The Swiss National Bank said Thursday that restrictive monetary policy will be maintained and interest rates may even temporarily rise further to keep a cap on inflation.

National Bank President Markus Lusser said inflation had been falling because of tight money policies and high rates but began climbing again because of the jump in petroleum prices due to the Gulf crisis.

''We have to fight with determination against this tenacious inflation,'' Lusser said. ''Such a fight of necessity implies a temporary rise in interest rates.''

Switzerland ''has no other choice'' than to maintain a restrictive monetary policy, he told reporters at the National Bank's regular fall meeting with the press.

Inflation in Switzerland currently is increasing at an annual rate of 6.1 percent and pressure on prices remains high because of rising mortgage rates, rents, salary increases and petroleum product costs.

National Bank Vice President Hans Meyer said medium- and long-term Swiss monetary policy depends to a great extent on inflation and interest rates in the European Community.

''But interest rates will undoubtedly remain high on capital markets in coming months, and with credit demand remaining strong, the National Bank sees no reason at this time to modify its restrictive policies,'' Meyer said.

BONN, GERMANY (OCT. 18) UPI - A former West German diplomat authorities say spied for East Germany out of conviction appeared in court Thursday to face charges of espionage and corruption.

The court case started amid a wave of arrests of East German spies that reportedly caused serious concern within the Soviet KGB.

Hagen Blau is accused of passing on to the East German Ministry for State Security - known as Stasi - details of West Germany's eastern policy and of western consultations on disarmament.

The state prosecutor said Blau refused payment for most of his 25 years as an agent but that he recently accepted $12,000 because his control insisted on it.

The prosecutor told a Duesseldorf court that Blau turned to ''socialist ideas'' during his studies and became a Stasi agent in 1960.

From 1965 until his arrest in April he worked in the West German embassies in Tokyo, London, Vienna and in the Sri Lankan capital of Colombo.

''His extraordinary knowledge, his excellent memory and his analytical capabilites gave the Stasi a good insight in German foreign policy,'' the state prosecutor said.

Blau is one of dozens of agents uncovered since East Germany's hardline communist leader Erich Honecker was ousted last Oct. 18. The arrests have continued since East Germany formally ceased to exist upon Oct. 3 German unification.

The latest wave of arrests reportedly caused serious concern within the KGB, which had worked in close cooperation with the Stasi.

The German Quick weekly said in its latest edition the KGB was planning to increase its activities in Germany to counteract its recent loses.

It quoted a former KGB top official, Maj. Gen. Oleg Kalugin, as saying that the KGB was moving away from military espionage and increasingly concentrating on ''industry, technology, economics and politics.''

Kalugin, who was recently stripped of his honors and pension after speaking out against the KGB, said the arrests caused ''a serious headache'' for the Soviet agency.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Sharp increases in energy costs due to the Persian Gulf crisis pushed consumer prices up 0.8 percent in September, the same gain as the month before, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

Private economists had expected prices to gain as much as 0.9 percent because of the lingering impact of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

More than one-third of the gain in the department's Consumer Price Index stemmed from higher petroleum-based energy prices. The index for gasoline prices gained a steep 9.5 percent and fuel oil prices soared a staggering 15.9 percent.

Excluding the often volatile energy prices, inflation at the consumer level increased 0.4 percent during the month, the same as in August.

Consumer prices rose at an annualized rate of 7.9 percent in the third quarter after gaining 8.5 percent in the first quarter and 6.6 percent in the second quarter.

The annual inflation rate stood at 6.6 percent at the end of September, compared to a gain of 4.9 percent during the same period last year.

In other areas, shelter costs moderated substantially during September while apparel prices rose more rapidly than in August and food prices gained 0.2 percent.

But it was the runup in energy prices that had the greatest effect on the economy, the department said. The index for energy commodities has advanced at an annual rate of 36.9 percent so far this year compared to a gain of 7.9 percent last year.

Food prices have moderated after a strong weather-related surge in the first quarter but shelter costs have advanced at a sharper pace than during the first nine months of last year.

During September, the index for food and beverage prices gained 0.3 percent, the same as the month before. Food on grocery shelves cost 0.2 percent more during the month, led by higher prices for fruits and vegetables.

Dairy products cost less during the month, with the index gaining only 0.2 percent after rising 1.3 percent in August. Prices for meats, poultry and fish rose while pork and egg prices declined.

Restaurant dining was more expensive during September, with meal prices rising 0.2 percent and alcoholic beverage prices up 0.5 percent.

Housing costs gained 0.4 percent after rising 0.7 percent in August. A small gain in shelter costs helped offset larger increases in household fuels and utilities.

The index for household fuels and utilities rose 1.3 percent for the second consecutive monthly gain. Fuel oil prices have risen 33.7 percent since the invasion of Kuwait.

Charges for natural gas and electricity advanced 1.5 percent and 0.6 percent, respectively, during the month.

Transportation costs rose 2.3 percent during September, with more than four-fifths of the increase attributed to skyrocketing gasoline prices.

Gasoline prices gained 9.5 percent during the month for a 17.9 percent two-month rise. Gasoline prices have gained 27.2 percent during the first nine months of the year.

Apparel and upkeep costs gained 0.7 percent in September and reamined 9.3 percent more expensive than a year ago.

Overall prices for medical goods and services continued to be more expensive, rising 0.7 percent in September to a level 9.3 percent above year-ago prices. Prescription drugs, non-prescription drugs and medical supplies rose 0.9 percent while medical services cost 0.6 percent more in September.

Consumers found little relief from higher prices by turning to entertainment, where costs gained 0.8 percent in September, the largest increase this year. Ticket prices rose for movies, concerts, plays and sporting events.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Senators are backing up President Bush in his opposition to a tax hike for the wealthy. The Senate yesterday defeated an amendment to raise income tax rates for the rich from 28 percent to 33 percent... plus a 10 percent surtax. The defeated measure also would have held the proposed gas tax hike to five cents a gallon... instead of nine-and-a- half cents. The Senate will resume debate on the budget this morning.

House and Senate negotiators have agreed on a 288-BILLION dollar military budget for 1991. There is some dispute over what the deal means for the B-2 stealth bomber. Democratic Representative Lee Aspin says the proposal includes only enough money for 15 of the planes. The Pentagon once hoped for 75. The legislation must clear both chambers before it can go to President Bush for his consideration.

The secretary general of the U-N says that military action against Iraq ''would be perfectly legitimate'' should the Security Council sanction such a move. But Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar added that if the United Nations manages to resolve the crisis... it ''will then have to immediately make efforts concerning the Palestinian problem.'' The remarks were published yesterday in the German weekly magazine Stern.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh says the federal prison system will begin requiring new inmates who do NOT have a high school degree to take classes to raise their literacy and educational levels. In Ottawa yesterday, Thornburgh announced the program with the goal that ''every inmate can leave prison a better person than when he or she entered.'' A recent government study shows that almost 75 percent of prisoners did NOT have a high school education.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The trade deficit edged up 2.4 percent to $9.34 billion in August on record imports and a surge in petroleum prices in the aftermath of Iraq's invasion of oil-rich Kuwait, the government said Thursday.

Private analysts expected a deficit of $9 billion.

August imports totaled $41.97 billion vs. $41.24 billion in July, while August exports - a source of economic strength this year - totaled $32.63 billion vs. $32.13 billion in July, the Commerce Department said.

In July, the nation's merchandise trade deficit stood at a revised $9.12 billion, adjusted for seasonal factors, according to the department's Census Bureau. In June, the shortfall fell to $5.34 billion.

The United States has been importing record levels of foreign oil to feed the nation's huge appetite for gasoline and other petroleum products.

But the number of barrels of oil entering the country actually dropped in August, even though the embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti allowed imports already in transit to enter U.S. ports.

But government data said the cost of August imports of petroleum products, not adjusted for seasonal factors, hit $4.81 billion compared with $3.98 billion in July - a jump of nearly 21 percent.

The price of crude oil imports alone shot up to $3.5 billion in August from $2.98 billion in July - an increase of about 17 percent.

The trade deficit with the Organization of Petroleum Countries, OPEC, hit $2.16 billion in August compared with $1.55 billion in July. The United States also ran deeper deficits with the oil producing countries of Saudi Arabia, Mexico, Venezuela and Nigeria.

The deficit with non-oil trading partner Japan also worsened in August, widening to $3.78 billion from $2.97 billion in July. But the deficit with Western Europe shrank, apparently reflecting the still healthy export sector.

''The July to August change in exports reflected increases in industrial supplies and materials, foods feeds and beverages, and automotive vehicles parts and engines,'' the Commerce Department said.

In addition to petroleum products, the August increase in imports reflected increases in industrial products and motor vehicles, the department also reported.

(OCT. 18) UPI - A report from Germany says four former collaborators with the East German secret police are in the new German parliament. A daily German newspaper yesterday reported that the now-defunct East German parliament discovered the collaborators but let them remain lawmakers. In another development... a German counter-intelligence official says the Soviet K-G-B is concentrating on stealing knowledge of industry, technology, and politics.

Senate Ethics Committee documents reportedly show three senators made extra efforts to help Charles Keating protect his failing savings and loan. Today's report says the papers detail the involvement of Democratic Senators Donald Riegle of Michigan, Alan Cranston of California and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona. The Ethics Committee's counsel recommends that the panel drop its investigation of Senators John McCain and John Glenn.

The E-P-A says one in every five American homes has health- threatening levels of radon in indoor air. The Environmental Protection Agency yesterday released new studies done in nine states last winter. The survey found the highest radon risks were in Nebraska... where more than half the homes have radon levels at which the E-P-A recommends protective action.

A new study finds nearly half of high school students have either joined in a racial or religious attack or believed the victims got what they deserved. But the survey released yesterday also found that 30 percent of the students were prepared to stop or condemn a racial or religious attack. The survey has prompted a national educational program by Northeastern University and Reebok International.

NASHVILLE, TENN. (OCT. 18) UPI - The award-winning mother-daughter country music team the Judds is breaking up because of mother Naomi's chronic hepatitis but daughter Wynonna Judd will continue as a solo act.

''Today is pretty much the most difficult day of my life,'' Naomi Judd said Wednesday. ''It's the day I hoped would never come. I have to resign. I have to retire from the music industry that I love so much.''

The Judds have won six Grammy Awards and sold 6 million records since 1983. The duo was named the Country Music Association's vocal duo of the year for the third straight time Oct. 8.

''There's no way to tell you what these seven years have meant for me. It's been the adventure of a lifetime,'' Naomi Judd said.

Naomi, 44, was diagnosed with hepatitis in early January. The Judds took three months off but the layoff did not improve her condition, officials said.

In the spring, tests at the Mayo clinic in Minnesota showed that her condition was much more serious than she thought. She also discovered that she had been sick for four years.

''I will try to do a farewell tour. It will give me a chance to say goodbye to the fans who have meant so much to me,'' Naomi said.

Wynonna Judd, 26, said although her mother will not be a part of the team, she will remain a 50 percent partner in her solo career.

No date has been set for a finale performance.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 18) UPI - British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said Thursday British and Israeli views on the Persian Gulf crisis were similar and he considered Israel's position a ''very shrewd one.''

Hurd ended his four-day visit to Israel with talks with Defense Minister Moshe Arens. Arens told Hurd he believed Palestinian support for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had harmed progress to an Israeli- Palestinian dialogue, Army Radio reported.

During their discussion, Arens also told Hurd that Saddam had threatened to destroy Israel with chemical weapons before Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, but no one took the threat seriously.

Hurd told reporters after the meeting the two men primarily discussed the security situation in the region, the Persian Gulf crisis, and Saddam's possible next move. Hurd, the first British foreign secretary to visit Israel since 1984, said, ''Our views about the gulf crisis were very similar.''

''I think the Israeli position on the gulf crisis has been a very shrewd one and I quite understand the anxieties which (Iraq's invasion) caused,'' Hurd said, before departing for Athens.

Before the Oct. 8 Palestinian riots in Jerusalem's Old City, Israel had maintained a low profile regarding the Persian Gulf crisis, while consistenting repeating the country was prepared to defend itself if necessary.

Hurd did not make a departing statement at the airport.

During his earlier meetings with Israeli officials, Hurd also discussed Israel's refusal to cooperate with a U.N. inquiry into the Oct. 8 slayings of Palestinians on the Temple Mount. Arens told Hurd he wondered whether the violence had been instigated by Moslem radicals rather than politically motivated, Army Radio reported.

In an earlier interview with Israel Radio, Arens said Thursday the U.N. Security Council resolution on the Temple Mount slayings had condemned Israel before the inquiry began and there was no room for accepting such a delegation.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Senate Ethics Committee documents show three senators made extra efforts to help Charles Keating protect his sinking thrift and had more frequent contact with the powerful businessman over a longer period than previously thought, The New York Times reported Thursday.

The newspaper said the confidential documents detailed the relationship between Keating and Sens. Donald Riegle of Michigan, Alan Cranston of California and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, all Democrats.

They are among five senators under investigation by the Ethics Committee for their ties to Keating, who has been held on $5 million bail in Los Angeles since his indictment last month on charges of misleading investors about deals at his failed thirft, Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif.

The other two under investigation are Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and John Glenn, D-Ohio. The Ethics Committee's special counsel, Robert Bennett, has recommended that the panel drop their investigation of McCain and Glenn.

After interrogating the senators individually over the past two weeks, the the committee announced it would begin its deliberations Thursday but did not expect to disclose its decisions before the end of the day.

The committee can order public hearings as the next step in the investigation or dismiss the allegations against any or all of the five senators.

The five senators deny their involvement with Keating, an important political contributor, resulted in impropriety. The Ethics Committee is trying to decide whether to proceed with a formal investigation. A decision could be made this week, the Times reported.

Aides to some of the senators under scrutiny said it was unfair to draw conclusions based on documents that they contend were leaked to discredit their employers for political purposes.

The Times reported that people familiar with the investigation said there is no single document or event that constitutes a ''smoking gun.''

The documents show that Cranston and DeConcini used their elected positions to perform favors for Keating, including early-morning and late-night telephone calls to federal regulators on the businessman's behalf and urging the White House to name an associate of Keating to a federal banking agency.

Riegle was portrayed in the documents as the chief arranger of meetings between Keating and the senators.

The documents obtained by the committee showed examples of how DeConcini, Riegle and Cranston or their aides kept in close and frequent contact with Keating through letters, memos and meetings. The documents showed that the senators were informed of Keating's fund raising for them and they were told what help Keating expected from them.

The documents showed many links between Keating and the three senators long before and as long as two years after the much-publicized 1987 meetings between the senators and regulators on Keating's behalf at a time when the government was threatening to seize the California thrift.

Roger Martin, then a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, said in an affidavit Cranston called him at home late one night in March or April of 1989 concerned that an investor group led by former Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., that wanted to take over Lincoln before it failed, was not getting a fair hearing from federal regulators.

Martin, who said he received a similar call several hours later from DeConcini termed the contact unusual, saying he had never received a telephone call at home from a member of Congress regarding a board member.

The board eventually rejected the acquisition and the government seized Lincoln.

While it had been known Keating championed the appointment of Lee Henkel, a business associate, for an opening on the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the documents show DeConcini encouraged the White House to make the appointment in June 1986. Henkel was later appointed.

The documents are among materials subpoenaed by the commitee investigating whether the senators broke Senate rules that forbid lawmakers to exceed the bounds of appropriate conduct in helping their supporters.

The nine-month investigation has been difficult for the committee because the rules are murky on what constitutes proper behavior for senators working on behalf of their constituents.

BONN, GERMANY (OCT. 18) UPI - The Soviet KGB, alarmed by a wave of arrests of former East German spies, plans on increasing its activities in Germany, a top aide to German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said.

Since the beginning of the month, more than a dozen agents from the now-disbanded East German ministry for State Security, known as Stasi, have been arrested by the German authorities.

The weekly Quick magazine Wednesday quoted a top Soviet KGB official, Col. Kalugin, as saying the arrests caused ''a serious headache'' for the Soviet intelligence agency.

With the unification of East and West Germany on Oct. 3, the Bonn authorities have been able to gain insight on the extensive activities of the Stasi and Soviet intelligence services in Germany.

Lutz Stavenhagen, a German junior minister in charge of counter- intelligence, said the KGB is interested in Germany's financial and political future.

''The Soviet Union is particularly interested in high technology,'' Stavenhagen told the weekly. ''We're anticipating an increase of espionage activities in Germany.''

He said the KGB is moving away from military espionage and increasingly concentrating ''above all on industry, technology, economics and politics.''

Kalugin said East Germany had several top-ranking spies, particularly Markus Wolf, who headed the country's foreign intelligence agency.

Wolf, reputed to have been the most successful East-bloc spy, is on the wanted list in Germany. But when spycatchers knocked at his door just after unification, they found he had left - probably for the Soviet Union.

Several ex-Stasi agents joined the KGB after the East German agency was officially disbanded in February, Kalugin said. He said he did not know how many joined the Soviet agency.

CAIRO, EGYPT (OCT. 18) UPI - Egyptian police have arrested hundreds of men who resemble composite sketches of five suspected pro-Iraqi terrorists sought for last week's assassination of Egypt's parliament speaker, Interior Ministry sources said Thursday.

Authorities also have received almost 2,000 tips from Egyptians reporting that tenants, neighbors and strangers resemble the widely published drawings of the men who killed Rifaat El Mahgoub and five others Friday, in a machine-gun attack on the speaker's car in Cairo.

The interior minister received a detailed report on the assassination Thursday morning and officials said it would be released on Saturday.

Egyptian newspapers and security sources have said the gunmen were non-Egyptian, well-trained assassins working for Iraq, a bitter enemy of Egypt's in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Iraq, which triggered the crisis by invading Kuwait on Aug. 2, has denied the reports, alleging Mahgoub was killed by Egyptians unhappy with President Hosni Mubarak's pro-U.S. policy in the gulf.

Only a week prior to the assassination, Egypt had publicly accused Iraq of sending Palestinian terrorists into the country with a hit list of government officials and orders to destabilize the Egyptian government.

Investigators released composite sketches of the five suspects over the weekend and they have been prominently published on the front pages of Egyptian newspapers and in magazines.

Interior Ministry sources said hundreds of people have been arrested at airports and at the border as they attempted to leave the country. Most have been questioned and released.

Newspapers reported Thursday that the Interior Ministry had received 1,800 reports from suspicious tipsters who believed they recognized one or more of the suspects.

Egypt's state of emergency, imposed almost a decade ago following the assassination of President Anwar Sadat, gives police broad powers to arrest and question suspects.

The Al Gomhouria newspaper also reported that the Interior Ministry was providing special training for the guards of government officials. The newspaper said a special center was being established to better train guards how to ward off attack.

Security in general has been tightened in the country and the interior minister reportedly has ordered officials to carry weapons with them at all times.

Cairo was thrown into a panic Tuesday when a fake explosive device was discovered in a trash can at a crowded downtown Metro station. Officials said the device was an empty can of insect repellent attached by wires to small batteries.

The initial reports a bomb had been discovered prompted a street demonstration by hundreds of Egyptians, who chanted anti-Iraq slogans.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (OCT. 18) UPI - A new international agency including the West and the Soviet Union may be needed to control the spread of new military technologies to countries like Iraq, NATO's top official said on Thursday.

''We must ensure that the global arms trade does not use the declining demand in our countries to pursue a ruthless export policy,'' said NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner.

He said the new agency would resemble the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls, or COCOM, the Paris-based Cold War agency that strictly limited Western technology exports to Warsaw Pact countries.

''We should consider the creation of a new, but now global and enlightened 'COCOM,' based on the cooperative participation of all technologically advanced countries, including the Soviet Union,'' Woerner said in a speech at the University of Istanbul, where he received an honorary doctorate.

Copies of the speech were made available in Brussels.

Woerner said the Persian Gulf crisis, triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, shows that new dangers exist to replace four decades of Cold War tensions.

''The indiscriminate proliferation of new military technologies, and in particular, of weapons of mass destruction, would destabilize our globe at a moment when we are just overcoming the former East-West rivalry which has often nourished regional conflicts in the past,'' he said.

Woerner has called for re-examination of the NATO charter's restriction on ''out-of-area'' military involvement, but said there are limits on the alliance's role.

''Let me state clearly that I am not advocating an alliance which would claim responsibility for every global problem and attempt to police every regional dispute,'' he said. ''This would not only over- stretch our physical capacities, but also undermine our solidarity to no one's ultimate benefit.''

Woerner praised Turkey, which has NATO's second-largest army, for its unwavering opposition to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Mayor Marion Barry is threatening to invoke curfews in some neighborhoods and request help from the National Guard if violence in the nation's capital does not subside.

Barry, who was convicted on a misdemeanor drug charge in August, cited the ''hideousness'' of nine slayings that occurred in the city last weekend and said the dramatic rise of violence calls for ''something drastically different.''

Barry, who is not seeking a fourth term as mayor, is one of seven candidates competing for two at-large seats on the City Council. He made the comments at a political forum Wednesday night.

While Barry has rejected past suggestions to summon the National Guard, even as the city set a homicide record last year, he said the recent violence has gotten ''out of hand.''

''Now there are people getting killed and they're found with tape wrapped around their mouths,'' Barry said. ''We've got to find new, creative ways to stop it.''

Police described three of the nine killings last weekend as ''execution-style'' and two of the victims were found handcuffed in a Volkswagen with their faces bound with duct tape. The three murders were apparently drug-related, police said.

The spate of violence has pushed the district's murders for 1990 to 373, 21 more than this time last year.

In response to the crime wave, Police Chief Isaac Fulwood has established a special unit of 100 officers to help curb the violence. The unit has a 90-day mandate to achieve some results, Fulwood said.

But Barry said that if there is no sign that the unit has slowed the violence after a month, he would establish a nightly curfew in neighborhoods where crime and violence are high.

If that doesn't work, the National Guard will be summoned to set up nightly roadblocks in high-crime areas around the city, Barry said.

''That would aid us greatly at night,'' Barry said. ''We could have 40 roadblocks. We could check for illegal licenses, for guns, drugs, any other illegal contraband being brought in here from Maryland and Virginia.''

Barry said he has spoken to Fulwood about his plans and also has asked city attorneys to research the legality of imposing an emergency curfew in parts of the district.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Iraq offered to sell its oil at half price to all comers Thursday but it appeared few countries would take up the offer to crack the economic embargo against the besieged country.

''Iraq is ready to sell oil to all companies and powers, including the United States, with a price of $21 a barrel,'' Oil Minister Issam Abdul Raheem told the official Iraqi news agency INA.

Oil prices on the world market had hovered at $40 a barrel because of the Persian Gulf crisis, although they have dropped recently due to optimistic Soviet reports the 8-week-old crisis may be settled peacefully.

Iraq last month offered its embargoed oil free to Third World countries but none were known to have accepted the crude.

''This is just another example of Iraq trying to grab the spotlight but like the other offer it's just an empty gesture,'' said a Cairo- based Western diplomat.

In Vienna, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his French counterpart Roland Dumas arrived for discussions expected to include the gulf crisis.

Shevardnadze reiterated the Soviet view that no compromise is acceptable short of Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and that there is ''no direct connection'' between the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the conflict in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The crisis triggered by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 remained a divisive issue at an Arab League meeting in Tunis called to discuss a united Arab response to the massacre last week of Palestinians in Jerusalem by Israeli security forces.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency said Yemeni delegates walked out of the meeting early Thursday morning, followed by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

MENA said the meeting was beset by disputes, including a vocal one between the Saudis and the Yemenis over the recent expulsion of thousands of Yemeni workers from Saudi Arabia.

Yemen, one of the few Arab countries sympathetic to Iraq during the cris, has criticized the multinational force deployed in Saudi Arabia to counter Iraqi aggression.

The Yemenis and the Iraqis eventually left the meeting, MENA said. The news agency reported Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat spoke for an hour on the Palestinian stand in the gulf, which has been favorable toward Iraq.

Middle East news reports said Arafat held an unusual meeting Wednesday with Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal in Rabat, where the two attended a meeting of the Jerusalem Committee, an Arab group that determines Arab-Israeli policy.

Details of the meeting were not disclosed.

In other developments Thursday, Iraq released three Japanese hostages and the Voice of America reported Iraqi soldiers were deserting from occupied Kuwait.

Officials in Tokyo said the three Japanese men, who were ill, flew from Baghdad to Amman and that a fourth man was expected to follow.

Japan has pledged billions of dollars to help fund the multinational force assembled against Iraq but has not sent troops because it is prohibited by its constitution.

Iraq, holding thousands of foreign men hostage as insurance against Western attack, has released a few each day as gestures of good will.

MENA said the VOA quoted a high ranking Washington official as saying Iraqi soldiers were deserting, but provided no details.

Soviet envoy Yevgeny Primakov left Thursday for Washington from Paris, where he met with President Francois Mitterrand. The Soviet trouble-shooter, who met with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad two weeks ago, has repeatedly indicated Iraq's resolve may be weaking.

''I can tell you that in a diplomatic manner I do not dismiss the possibility that the Iraqi position could be more flexible,'' Primakov told reporters Wednesday.

But publicly, there seemed few indications of peace by the major players in the gulf. Iraq reiterated Wednesday it would never pull out of Kuwait and U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said military intervention against Baghdad would be legitimate if sanctions do not budge Iraqi troops from the occupied emirate.

Iraqi first deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan arrived unexpectedly in Amman Thursday. His tour of North Africa has put him in contact with Tunisian President Zain Al Abedeen Ben Ali, Morocco's King Hassan II and Chadian officials. He delivered messages from Saddam

Sources in Amman said that Ramadan may meet with Jordan's King Hussein to brief him on the results of the tour.

NAIROBI, KENYA (OCT. 18) UPI - Rwanda has asked that a European Community peace-keeping force be sent to guarantee a proposed ceasefire in its 19- day civil war, the east African country's Kenyan ambassador said Thursday.

Kenyan Ambassador to Rwanda, Cyprien Habimana, told United Press International that Rwandan President Juvenal Habyarimana, in talks Wednesday with Uganda's Yoweri Museveni, had proposed the idea to prevent more rebels crossing from Uganda into his country, and that the Ugandan president had accepted it.

He also said Rwanda had agreed to accelerate moves to convert its military government into a multi-party democracy, originally planned to come into force in 1992.

''This will happen very soon,'' Habimana said, but could not give a date. ''If the opposition wants democracy we will let them form parties, '' he said.

A Belgian Embassy spokesman confirmed the EC monitoring force proposal and said the idea would be mooted at an EC ministerial meeting in Luxemburg Monday.

''If it were agreed, this would be an EC first,'' he noted, however. ''There may be countries among the 12 who would be opposed.''

He said he was not in a position to comment on the possibility of a joint Franco-Belgian peace-keeping force. French and Belgian troops are already in Rwanda, sent two weeks ago to protect Europeans living in the former Belgian protectorate.

Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens, together with his foreign and defense ministers, flew Thursday to Rwanda's southern neighbor Burundi for talks with the government on the crisis.

About 2,000 exiled refugee Rwandans stormed into the north of the country Sept. 30 demanding the removal of President Habyarimana and causing a political storm across east Africa as regional governments accused Uganda of stirring up trouble.

Uganda's Museveni has sworn he knew nothing of invasion plans and agreed Wednesday to propose a ceasefire to the rebels.

Habyarimana for his part agreed to talk to them if a ceasefire was put in place.

''There are no other conditionalities,'' Museveni said Thursday in Kampala. ''President Habyarimana said that he would have talks with the rebels if they accept a ceasefire.''

A spokesman for the rebel Rwandese Patriotic Front told reporters in Brussels Wednesday, however, that his group was not prepared to talk to Habyarimana and continued to demand his resignation.

The rebel force, mainly composed of long-term refugees from tribal persecution in the 1960s, has accused Habyarimana's government of being corrupt, cliquish and regionalist.

Habyarimana, who flew to Paris Thursday to meet President Francois Mitterand, is a member of Rwanda's majority Hutu tribe. The Hutu overturned centuries of domination by the minority Tutsi in brutal massacres between 1959 and 1963, a year after independence of Belgian rule.

Museveni said Rwanda had agreed in principle that all Rwandese refugees should be allowed to return to their country but that how this was to be achieved was not yet clear.

There are close to half a million Rwandese scattered over assorted east African countries, with 80,000 in Uganda alone.

Habyarimana said this year that Rwanda - the most densely populated country in Africa - had no room for returning exiles, a statement which the rebels havelisted among their grievances against him.

He and Museveni agreed Wednesday to contact the United Nations High Commission for Refugees and the Organizationof African Unity to sponsor a regional conference on the refugee problem.

MANILA, the Philippines (OCT. 18) UPI - Communist guerrillas raided a northern military communications relay station Thursday and set it ablaze, killing two army soldiers and wounding four others, the armed forces chief said.

Gen. Renato de Villa said the guerrillas of the communist New People's Army struck at 1:20 a.m. at the relay station in San Jose, 85 miles north of Manila.

De Villa said the rebels killed two troopers and wounded four others, including a captain. After setting the station on fire the guerrillas fled with seven assault rifles and a walkie-talkie.

The 19,000-member NPA has been waging a 19-year-old war to set up a Marxist state.

In Cotabato city, 500 miles south of Manila, troops killed six Moslem separatist guerrillas Thursday.

National Police Capt. Gani Asera said the soldiers were tracking down a suspect in the recent killing of Norodin Matalam, 14, son of the Cotabato province governor, when they clashed with about 40 Moslem guerrillas.

Asera also reported unidentified gunmen shot and killed Mama Pandala, son of a provincial official, as he was riding a tricycle in Cotabato city.

KARACHI, PAKISTAN (OCT. 18) UPI - A second high court Thursday upheld the constitutionality of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan's decision to sack Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto last summer and dissolve the National Assembly.

The ruling by the high court of southern Sind Province ended the last legal challenge to the president's order and was seen as a blow to Bhutto's chances of returning to power.

The five-member bench of the high court dismissed petitions filed by the ousted prime minister and members of her Pakistan People's Party challenging the president's decree as unconstitutional.

The high court in the northeastern city of Lahore issued a similar ruling Sunday.

Ishaq Khan dismissed Bhutto's 20-month-old government on Aug. 6, accusing it of corruption and nepotism and of failing to keep law and order, and dissolved the National Assembly.

He appointed opposition leader Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi as caretaker prime minister until elections he set for Oct. 24.

Bhutto, 37, is facing charges of corruption while in office before Special Disqualification Courts that Ishaq Khan established in what many believe was an attempt to bar her and members of her administration from the elections.

She has denied the charges but if convicted could be barred from politics for seven years.

Bhutto's husband, businessman Asif Ali Zardari, was charged last week with kidnapping and extortion and remanded to custody until Oct. 23.

However, some analysts say the attempts to malign Bhutto and her administration and keep her from power have been counter-productive and have evoked a wave of sympathy for her.

Bhutto Thursday addressed more than 50,000 cheering supporters in the city of Mardan, about 70 miles west of Islamabad, and later traveled in a massive and colorful procession to Peshawar, capital of Northwest Frontier Province, to tour the city and attend an evening rally.

She reiterated her contention she i being victimized by the president and the caretaker government.

''The president's action was illegal and unconstitutional,'' she told the crowd in Mardan. ''Our party stand for fair play and justice.''

Bhutto is a candidate for a National Assembly seat in Peshawar and from her hometown in Larkana, in Sind Province.

MOSCOW (OCT. 18) UPI - Economist Abel Aganbegyan Thursday defended Mikhail Gorbachev's abandonment of a dash to a market economy and said new government guidelines will allow the republics to chose whatever reform formula they want.

In a political shock Wednesday night, the co-author of the radical 500-day plan, Grigory Yavlinksy, 36, resigned his post as deputy prime minister of the Russian Republic because of Gorbachev's rejection of the formula.

Thursday, Aganbegyan, one of Gorbachev's earliest economic advisers, all but buried the radical formula, telling Parliament the 500-day blueprint was too detailed, unrealistic and could lead to hyperinflation.

But Aganbegyan stressed Gorbachev's new outline, a 70-page document of guidelines to stablize the economy, allows the 15 Soviet republics to chose any formula they want and then implement it.

''For instance, the Russian Republic can select the 500-day plan and Kirghizia (a Central Asian republic) may be leaning to the moderate radical government program,'' Aganbegyan told the Supreme Soviet, or parliament.

But Aganbegyan's detailing of the guidelines almost page by page seemed to rule out the 500-day plan's abandonment of subsidies, closing of unprofitable factories, privatization of property and enteprises, and eventual disbandonment of most industrial branch ministries.

He said flatly the central command of the economy was still needed for a while and mocked the radical formula's promise to balance the budget within a year. He said even the current goal of reducing the 1989 deficit of $204 billion to $102 billion this year might not be met.

Aganbegyan said the new Gorbachev formula would seek to cut the deficit to $40 billion or $51 billion ''and even to get down to that will need super-tough measures that will produce super hostility in some quarters.''

But in stressing that prices might indeed go up but gradually, Aganbegyan was assuaging the fears of deputies and their constituents who are mortified by the idea of a market economy after 70 years of cradle-to-grave socialism.

Likewise, his assuring the deputies that on Jan. 1, ''we will not close down all unprofitable collective farms and enterprises'' also soothed fears about unemployment in the nation that guarantees each person a job in a constitutional clause.

The debate on how to extricate the nation from its economic crisis began last spring with the touting of a regulated economic plan. It then dragged on through the summer with the appearance of a 500-day plan initiated by Boris Yeltsin, the Russian Federation's president, and is now raging into its seventh week this fall in Parliament.

Observers were forecasting that a formal vote might be likely Saturday in part because of the feeling that some step must be taken and that Gorbachev would institute the new guidelines anyhow by decree.

Oleg Bogomolov, the head of the Institute of World Economy and a radical economist, noted Gorbachev had already issued two economic decrees on wholesale prices and contracts.

''He has already been implementing the program,'' Bogomolov said. ''It is a fact.''

Stanislav Shatalin, 56, the co-author of the plan alongside Yavlinsky who resigned Wednesday, was in the United States while his plan was in effect buried. He is a member of the Presidential Council.

Aganbegyan, a stout Armenian who fell out of favor in 1988, re- emerged suddenly in late summer as Gorbachev waffled between the moderate plan of Nikolai Ryzhkov and the Shatalin plan. He was given the task of looking at alternatives.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Government figures show inflation grew last month. Consumer prices rose eight-tenths of one percent. The Labor Department says sharp increases in energy costs due to the Persian Gulf crisis caused higher prices for Americans. The September increase is the same as the month before. More than one-third of the gain in the Consumer Price Index stems from higher petroleum-based energy prices.

Another unfavorable economic report also came out this morning. The government says the merchandise trade deficit increased by two and four- tenths percent in August. Again, the part of the reason was higher petroleum prices. August imports totaled 41-BILLION 970-Million dollars... while exports totaled 32-BILLION 63-Million dollars.

Northwest Airlines said today it has grounded 12 planes and canceled up to 50 flights because liquid soap was pumped into the hydraulic systems of some of its McDonnell Douglas D-C-9 jets. An airline spokesman says the soap looks like hydraulic fluid. Northwest says a mechanic in Atlanta made the mistake several days ago. Northwest discovered the problem yesterday and immediately grounded the planes involved. The airline says it would take a few weeks for the soap to cause hydraulic systems to fail.

The only clean air issue left for Congress to tackle this year is acid rain. House and Senate negotiators reached a tentative agreement yesterday on requirements for industry to reduce pollution caused by toxic and cancer-causing chemicals. They are expected to meet today to ratify the accord. Cuts in smog and ozone-depleting emissions were agreed on previously.

A tribal court jury on the nation's largest Indian reservation has convicted the suspended Navajo tribal chairman, Peter MacDonald, of bribery, conspiracy and violating tribal ethics standards. MacDonald's son also was convicted by the jury in Window Rock, Arizona. They were accused of collecting about a quarter-Million dollars in kickbacks from companies doing business on the reservation.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - Constantine Nicandros, the president of Conoco Inc., said Thursday there would be a significant increase in the oil industry's third-quarter profits due to spiraling crude prices from the Persian Gulf crisis.

The earnings increase would vary depending on whether particular companies are focused more on pumping crude oil than on refining and marketing, but ''on average there is going to be a significant increase in earnings over last year's third quarter,'' Nicandros told a meeting of energy reporters.

He said Houston-based Conoco, a subsidiary of E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. of Wilmington, Del., had planned before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait to raise its total capital investment spending in 1991 to more than $2 billion compared to this year's $1.5 billion to $1.6 billion.

The $2 billion could be increased about 10 percent as a result of the greater cash income from higher prices, he said.

BERLIN (OCT. 18) UPI - Berlin authorities Thursday were investigating a massive scandal in which former East German state security agents allegedly defrauded Berlin's Foreign Trade Bank of as much as $2 billion.

Police said they arrested four men in Berlin and Leipzig earlier this week. The suspects allegedly ran a complicated racket making use of regulations in treaties covering the July 1 economic union of East and West Germany and the Oct. 3 reunification of the two countries.

Three of the four men arrested were officers of the state security agency, known as Stasi, assigned to ''special operations.'' The fourth is a West German with a police record. Police said they were searching for a fifth suspect.

The four men apparently created several companies on paper and forged documents showing exports of non-existent goods to eastern European countries in order to obtain huge sums of money from the bank - estimates run at between $335 million to $2 billion.

Formerly, the then-East German Foreign Trade Bank paid exporters in East German marks for deals conducted in ''convertible'' units for transactions within the East Bloc. Since the July 1 German economic and monetary union, the firms have been paid in German marks.

''This kind of thing could not have been set up by individuals,'' said Wolfgang Schomberg,'' Berlin's state secretary for justice. ''It is '' justice. ''It is Stasi, the state security police of the communist leadership ousted one year ago, was officially disbanded early this year, but recent reports indicate former agents have organized themselves in groups which one German daily compared to the mafia.

''In any case, the amount involved is over one billion marks, and probably three billion,'' Schomberg said.

But Berlin justice senator Jutta Limbach denied the sum was that high and said the fraud involved at most $335 million, of which the bank recovered $171 million.

The formally state-owned East German Foreign Trade Bank is now 51 percent owned by the Staatsbank of Berlin and 24 percent by the federal government.

OTTAWA (OCT. 18) UPI - Canada's trade surplus fell $205.8 million to $797 million in August after shipments of automobiles, trucks and aircraft dropped significantly, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The federal government's information agency said merchandise exports, which fell for the third consecutive month in August, totaled $9.9 billion, off $438.2 million from the previous month. At the same time, imports fell $207 million to $9.2 billion.

Specifically, machinery and equipment imports fell $255.6 million, while imports of motor vehicle parts decreased $283 million. Car imports rose in August, resulting in an overall drop of $43 million in the automotive products sector.

According to agency figures, the merchandise trade surplus of $797 million posted in August was $231 million lower than the surplus registered in July. However, the decline was smaller than the $530 million decrease noted between June and July.

The merchandise trade surplus for the first eight months of the year totaled $5.9 billion compared to $4.3 billion for the same period in 1989.

Canada also posted a trade surplus with the United States of $1.2 billion, down from the $1.4 billion surplus recorded in July.

WASHNGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Social Security and Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries will receive a 5.4 percent cost-of-living increase starting next year, the government said Thursday.

The automatic cost-of living adjustments for the nation's retirees are made annually based on the rise in the Consumer Price Index. Beneficiaries will receive these increases regardless of the federal deficit reduction package that may eventually emerge.

The 40 million Social Security recipients will see a 5.4 percent increase in their Jan. 3, 1991, check. The average monthly Social Security benefit amount for all retired workers will rise from $571 to $602.

The 4.5 million Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries, who are low-income Americans, will receive their increase in their Dec. 31, 1990, check. The maximum SSI monthly payment will go up from $386 to $407 for an individual and from $579 to $610 for a couple.

Here is how the average monthly Social Security check will look after the 5.4 percent increase:

-For all retired workers, from $571 to $602. -For an elderly couple, both receiving benefits, from $970 to $1,022. -For a widowed mother and two children, from $1,141 to $1,203. -For a elderly widow or widower living alone, from $528 to $557. -For a disabled worker, spouse and one or more children, from $970 to $1,022. -For all disabled workers, from $557 to $587.

Also, the maximum Social Security benefit a worker can receive retiring at age 65 will be $1,022 a month, up from last year's $975.

MEXICO CITY (OCT. 18) UPI - Rotting garbage, industrial waste and vehicle fumes have fouled the atmosphere in the Mexican capital and other major Latin American cities, but a once aesthetic concern is only beginning to be treated as a serious health problem and major threat to future generations.

After years of paying lip service to the growing haze over their big cities, the governments have awakened to the fact that the pollution levels are not just unacceptable by international standards, but dangerous and ''terrifying '' in the words of Chilean Health Minister Jorge Jimenez.

Mexico has initiated a number of programs in the past two years, and this week announced an ambitious cleanup program that will cost $2.5 billion, 40 percent of that in soft loans from Britain, Japan, the United States, France and Germany.

''Without the program, pollution levels in Mexico City would double by the year 2000,'' said Mexico City Mayor Manuel Camacho Solis.

The government has pledged to stop major new water or oil-consuming industries from setting up in the capital, and says it will seek ways to relocate others.

Vehicle emissions tests that forced motorists to tune up their cars, and a ''day-without-a-car'' program under which drivers must leave their automobiles at home one day a week have had limited effects on reducing pollution in the past year, particularly in lead levels that continue to exceed international standards.

The government oil company Petroleos Mexicanos - singled out by environmentalists as a major culprit - has put oxygenating additives in its leaded gasoline and begun selling a new unleaded gasoline for 1991 model cars that are fitted with catalytic converters.

Industry has been mentioned in the past, but the new plan is the first time the government has made a commitment to relocate factories or ban new construction.

Opinions vary on the effects of general levels of pollution on health.

Gonzalo Juarez of the Mexican Health Ministry acknowledged the pollution aggravates respiratory conditions, particularly in the very young and the old, and is a major cause of conjuntivitis.

''The pollution doesn't actually cause respiratory diseases, but it aggravates them, particularly in small children and old people,'' he said. ''Health clinics generally advise people to stay indoors when the pollution is bad.''

Juarez said there are no exact statistics on the percentage of people suffering from respiratory disorders caused by pollution.

But doctors have expressed concerns about the effect of high lead concentrations on children's mental and physical development, and some have even advised people with youngsters to leave the capital.

Other plans in Mexico City include further expansion of the subway system, and the use of more electrically driven means of public transport - namely tramcars and trolleybuses - in order to reduce demand for polluting buses.

Extensive drainage and sewage works are also under way in parts of the city where open sewers and flooding in the rainy season pose an additional threat to health.

The state of Mexico, which borders the Federal District on three sides and houses most of the industry in the Metropolitan area, has plans to plant 100 million trees in the next five years.

Trees are badly needed in Lima, Peru, where 6.2 million inhabitants suffer from ''smog,'' a deadly combination of fog that shrouds the capital nine months a year and the emissions from half a million mostly outdated vehicles.

There are only about 200,000 trees, and authorities have said at least one tree should be planted for each vehicle.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) UPI - Beware the love-crazed male deer. Amorous young bucks have are wreaking havoc throughout the Chicago area and have done nearly $50,000 in damage to a newly landscaped park.

Lt. James Christopherson of the Lake County sheriff's office said Thursday more motorists are encountering rutting males on roads in Cook and Lake counties.

''The roadkill is starting to build up right now,'' Christopherson said. ''Sometimes we see two or three accidents a day at this time of the year. It's hard to avoid them. Sometimes they'll run right into the sides of cars.''

Accidents are not the only problem. Primping bucks rub their antlers on rough surfaces to clean away ''velvet'' and leave their scent to attract does. Their favorite method of sprucing up is to rub against young saplings.

A Lake Villa landscaper reported 275 of 450 ash and maple trees his company planted in a Libertyville Township park have been stripped of bark. The landscaper estimates the damage, the cost of removing the dead trees and replanting and protecting will total $50,000.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Iraq is trying to raise some cash and crack the U-N embargo strangling its economy. Iraqi Oil Minister Issam Abdul Raheem today told the official news agency that Baghdad is ready to sell its oil at half price to all comers. That's 21 dollars a barrel. Radeem says the offer includes the United States, but so far it appears few countries are interested. Iraq offered free oil to Third World nations last month and NONE accepted.

The government says the sharp increases in energy prices helped fuel another eight-tenths of one percent surge in consumer prices in September... the same gain as the month before. The Labor Department says more than one-third of the jump in the Consumer Price Index came from higher petroleum-based energy prices. The index for gasoline prices soared nine-point-five, and fuel oil prices were up a staggering 15- point-nine percent. Excluding energy, consumer prices were up four- tenths of one percent, also the same as in August.

The government also says soaring petroleum costs contributed to a two-point-four percent climb in the nation's trade deficit, which reachd nine-BILLION 340-Million dollars in August. The total was about 300- Million dollars higher than private analysts had expected. The Commerce Department says the cost of crude-oil imports alone soared to three and one-half-BILLION dollars in August... a jump of 17 percent from the July figure.

The Labor Department, meanwhile, reported that initial claims for state unemployment insurance benefits totaled a seasonally adjusted 395- thousand for the week ended October 6th. The department says the total was down two-thousand from the previous week.

Facing the prospect of another government shutdown, the Senate is continuing debate on its own bi-partisan deficit-reduction plan. Last night, lawmakers rejected raising taxes for the weathly from the current 28 percent, to 33 percent. The Senate budget package would hike taxes for gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes and luxury items... but would cut Medicare by 49-BILLION dollars over five years. Congress must send President Bush a budget plan acceptable to him by midnight Friday or the government runs out of money again.

LONDON (OCT. 18) UPI - Amnesty International called Thursday for the immediate release of 12 government opponents who have been held for more than a year without a charge or trial in the Central African Republic.

The men were forcibly repatriated from Benin in West Africa in August 1989, the international human rights watchdog said.

Amnesty said they were being held in military custody without access to lawyers or family and some have reportedly been beaten and ill- treated.

''The 12 should be immediately released if they are not to be charged with recognizable criminal offenses and given a fair trial,'' an Amnesty report said.

Amnesty said it was concerned that they may be prisoners of conscience, detained because of their membership in nonviolent opposition groups.

There was no comment from the government.

Six prisoners were believed to be members of the opposition Oubangui Patriotic Front-Labor Party and six may have been arrested because of their links with the clandestine People's Movement for Reconstruction of the Central African Republic, an opposition organization led by Francois Bozize.

The 12 opponents, including Bozize, formerly minister of information, have been in military custody in Bangui, the capital of the Central African Republic, since Sept. 1, 1989, Amnesty said. The republic, with a population of 2.9 million, is bordered by Cameroon to the west, Sudan to the north and Zaire to the south.

The Benin authorities arrested and handed the men over to the Central African authorities in July 1989 on allegations they were involved in a 1982 coup attempt.

''The repatriation appears to have been agreed between the two governments outside any legal framework,'' Amnesty said.

Bozize and his followers are not known to have organized any acts of opposition against President Andre Kolinbga's government, nor have any of its members been detained in the past, Amnesty said.

The country became independent from France in 1960, and was set up as a parliamentary democracy called the Central African Empire. Emperor Bokassa I was overthrown in 1979 and the empire was abolished. A bloodless military coup staged in 1981 ousted President David Dacko and Kolingba took power.

(OCT 18) - Intriguing geysers on Neptune's frigid moon Triton appear to be powered by sunlight that passes through transparent nitrogen ice on the surface, melting subsurface material and generating towering 5-mile-high gas plumes, it was reported Thursday.

NASA's Voyager 2 probe sailed past Neptune and its largest moon in August 1989 and an analysis of data collected in the close encounter shows Triton to be one of the most bizarre bodies in the solar system, researchers reported in 10 papers published in the journal Science.

Perhaps the strangest features found to date are active geysers that spew ice and other particles high into Triton's tenuous nitrogen atmosphere.

Figuring out where the energy comes from to drive these plumes has been a major challenge given that Triton's surface temperature never rises beyond about 37 degrees above absolute zero - minus 393 degrees Fahrenheit.

''The problem all along was trying to understand how you could drive such phenomenon, where do you find the energy?'' said Laurence Soderblom, who wrote two of the papers. ''What's interesting is that now we have numerous mechanisms that have come up as possibilities.''

At least four active plumes were discovered in pictures of Triton that were radioed back to Earth by Voyager 2, including two plumes that show up in more than one image.

Photographs of the plumes show what appear to be very narrow, dark columns that rise vertically upward and then trail off to one side as if blown by a high-altitude wind.

''They consist of particulate material embedded in narrow columns of nitrogen gas, which rise to an altitude of roughly (5 miles), where the material then trails westward,'' wrote Jonathan Lunine in an introduction to the papers.

All of the observed plumes were found in areas of constant sunlight, indicating ''the mechanism by which they are generated is associated with absorption of solar visible radiation,'' wrote Lunine, a professor with the University of Arizona's Lunar and Planetary Laboratory.

R.H. Brown and Torrance Johnson of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., and R.L. Kirk and Soderblom of the U.S. Geological Survey in Flagstaff Ariz., argue that sunlight passing through transparent nitrogen ice can create a sort of ''solid-state greenhouse effect.''

''The most favored one is still solar greenhousing in which you have a solid state greenhouse made up of a layer of ice that either overlies or has embedded in it these dark particles,'' Soderblom said in a telephone interview. ''Solar radiation is trapped in this subsurface solid greenhouse environment.''

In much the same way that sunlight passing through a car's windows can heat up the interior on a cold day, sunlight passing through nitrogen ice on Triton may raise temperatures below the surface, melting the ice and producing reservoirs of gas under pressure.

''It turns out you only have to raise the temperature a few degrees, we suspect, to drive these almost explosive geysers that issue gas at perhaps 100 meters per second (224 mph),'' Soderblom said.

But calculations indicate not enough gas would be generated in areas as small as the diameter of a plume to power the geysers as long as the ones on Triton are believed to be active - several Earth years.

Solar heating could drive nitrogen vapor sideways through a fractured subsurface layer over a much larger area, giving rise to long-lived plumes, Soderblom, Brown and Kirk wrote in a second paper.

This strange greenhouse effect, Soderblom said, ''pressurizes the gas in a sub-surface porous reservoir, which then feeds inward radially to a vent where it's concentrated, picks up the dark particles (and) launches at a velocity of about 100 meters per second.''

The scientists conclude that ''lateral transport of energy by gas flow in a porous (nitrogen) layer with a block size on the order of (three feet) can supply the required amount of gas. The decline of gas output ... may occur over a period comparable with the inferred active geyser lifetime of five Earth years.''

Subsurface pathways for the solar-heated nitrogen gas could be maintained by temperature stresses that cause repeated fractures in the ice.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - ABC News will close its Chicago, Boston and Dallas bureaus, the network announced Thursday.

The network will, however, continue to maintain a reportorial presence in each city.

In Chicago, correspondent Chris Bury and three other newsmen will work out of station WLS-TV, owned and operated by ABC.

In Dallas, correspendent Charles Murphy will work out of his home.

In Boston, Dr. Timothy Johnson and a small staff will continue to cover medical news out of their old ABC News office, but general news coverage will be handled out of network headquarters in New York.

A spokesman for ABC News said 12 people in the three bureaus will either be reassigned, offered other positions or fired.

The changes take effect Dec. 31.

ABC News, which had been expected to earn a $75 million profit, is now reportedly projecting profits of just $50 million. The network's ''World News Tonight'' program with Peter Jennings has been the top- rated evening news program for 40 consecutive weeks.

PARIS (OCT. 18) UPI - Wine has won a round against Coca-Cola in the great French health battle of 1990.

In a rebuke to the Socialist government, the French Senate rejected late Wednesday a proposed law banning most advertising for alcoholic beverages.

The vote came after hours of sharp debate in which senators from wine growing regions passionately and at times poetically argued that alcoholism was not caused by the consumption of wine but by hard liquor.

The government bill to ban all cigarette advertising and most publicity for alcoholic beverages within three years must now go back to the National Assembly, which passed the measure last Spring. If the body approves the bill again, it will become law under the French constitution despite Wednesday's Senate vote.

Social Affairs Minister Claude Evin said he was ''unfortunately not surprised'' by the Senate action, adding that the same arguments were made at the turn of the century when absinthe, a potentially lethal liquor made from plants, was banned.

''I refuse to consider the death of 110,000 persons each year because of tobacco and alcohol abuse as inevitable,'' Evin said.

''The suppression of all direct or indirect advertising for tobacco and the strict control of advertising for alcoholic drinks are still my objectives,'' the minister added.

But in this consummate wine producing country, where sharing a bottle of ''rouge'' at dinner is a sacred rite, wine growers and their representatives in the conservative Senate won the day.

More than an matter of public health, the proposed law issue was seen as an attack on tradition and on French values that put special emphasis on sensual pleasures such as eating and drinking.

''We will no longer have the choice between a glass of Medoc and Coca-Cola,'' Marc Boeuf, a Socialist senator exclaimed. ''Only Coca-Cola will be proposed, with the dangers it represents to the health of young people.''

Although wine consumption has been dropping rapidly in recent years, each French person over the age of 15 still drank 252 gallons of wine in 1987, down from 372 gallons in 1970. Total wine sales amounted to $16.8 billion last year.

The arguments presented during the Senate debate ranged from the political - ''next week a young person will be rewarded by the government for having exported a lot of wine, where is the logic?'' - to the poetic - ''Sir (Alexander) Fleming said: if penicillin cures, wine makes one a bit more joyful.''

Many senators insisted that the rate of alcoholism was low in heavy wine consuming regions.

''Allow people to drink wine or beer and you will fight against alcoholism,'' Sen. Louis Jung argued. ''It was with that goal in mind that Polish authorities asked French companies to build breweries, to fight against alcoholism.''

While the Senate approved the government's proposed ban on tobacco advertising its adopted an amendment exempting ''agricultural products'' from the ban on publicity.

The loophole allowed not only wine but also liqueurs such as Calvados, which is extracted from apples, to be included in the agricultural products definition.

''The Senate has once again shown that it no longer represents the general good but that it defends individual interests,'' Socialist Senator Julien Dray complained.

But the last word belonged to Claude Barate of the neo-Gaullist Rally for the Republic Party, who lamented: ''If we cannot value our products our young people are going to drink Coca-Cola. How sad''

BUCHAREST, Romania (OCT. 18) UPI - Prime Minister Petre Roman vowed Thursday to speed up Romania's economic reform program, but he warned unemployment may increase tenfold as unprofitable state-run businesses are liquidated.

In a state-of-the-nation address to a combined session of the bicameral parliament, Roman announced a series of measures designed to accelerate the transition to a market economy, including a further devaluation of the Romanian currency.

''We have reached a level where we have no alternative and no compromise is possible,'' he said. ''The state is determined to get rid of the relics of the past, and the old system.''

Roman blamed insufficient investment over the past two decades and communist-style central planning for the problems faced by Romania's industry, much of which operates with antiquated equipment and outmoded practices.

Warning that difficult times lie ahead, he urged Romanians to work harder: ''Working harder now will reduce the time taken to reach our targets,'' he said.

With the speech, Roman released statistics showing that overall production is down 20 percent from already low levels at this time last year, in the final days of communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu's government.

Roman said unemployment was expected to worsen even more dramatically, soaring from the present level of 120,000 jobless to more than 1 million next year.

Of the 120,000 currently unemployed, more than half are high school graduates, he said.

Saying government must not shrink from painful reforms, Roman announced a series of economic measures, including the further devaluation of the lei. Effective Nov. 1, the value of the lei will be pegged at 35 lei to the dollar, from the current rate of 21 to a dollar. The black market rate is about 100 lei to a dollar.

The measure will help bring Romania closer to a convertible currency, which economic officials hope to achieve early next year, Roman said.

He said the government will also impose both a minimum and a maximum wage to help combat inflation and will eventually introduce income and sales taxes, although no date was set.

Reforms also will be made to the banking system in a country where few citizens have ever seen a check book, Roman said.

To protect the economically vulnerable, prices for fuel and rent will remain unchanged through early 1992, while food costs will be allowed to rise slightly, he said.

OAK BROOK, Ill. (OCT. 18) UPI - Seven of 10 adults responding to a nationwide survey released Thursday say their vehicle bumpers are too weak and they want carmakers to include information on bumper strength on window stickers in dealer showrooms.

The Roper Organization interviewed 1,496 adults in June for a poll sponsored by the Insurance Research Council, a nonprofit agency that conducts public policy studies for U.S. property-casualty insurance industry.

The survey said 70 percent of adults surveyed said bumpers should be stronger than currently required by the government. U.S. standards require bumpers to withstand crashes up to 2.5 mph, down from 5 mph in 1983.

Only 16 percent of those surveyed said the standard should remain as it is.

In addition to the 72 percent of those surveyed who said they wanted bumper information on vehicle window stickers, 18 percent said such information should be available on request only and 10 percent had no opinion.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The closer Congress gets to enacting a mandatory seafood inspection program - a step that could be its major consumer act of the year - the more it fuels a nasty fight over the right way to do it.

Only a fraction of the nearly 4 billion pounds of fish and shellfish consumed each year by Americans is inspected under the voluntary federal program now in place. Americans ate an average of 15.9 pounds of seafood last year, up 24 percent from 1980.

The seafood industry is supporting creation of a mandatory inspection program and the Senate, after a fight of its own, has passed an inspection bill.

But a welter of disputes is clouding action in the House. Just this week, consumer groups split on which of two versions to support in the House, partly out of distrust over who should regulate the industry.

The dispute also involves a struggle between some powerful committee chairmen for jurisdiction over the new program. There are estimates seafood inspection could cost $100 million a year.

House debate on the issue was expected Friday, with representatives having two choices: The Senate-passed plan to split duties among three federal agencies, and a plan drafted by two House committees to establish shellfish rules now and to keep the current fish inspection program in place while improvements are studied.

''I believe that all members who really are concerned about protecting consumers will support (the Senate bill) so we may begin a mandatory seafood inspection program as soon as possible, not at some far-distant date,'' said Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, of the House Agriculture Committee.

The Senate bill would put the Agriculture Department in charge of inspections while the Food and Drug Administration would set limits on residues and the Commerce Department would monitor harvesting grounds for pollutants.

Supporters like the consumer group Public Voice for Food and Health Policy say the approach draws ''on the strength of the three relevant federal agencies.''

However, labor unions, the Consumer Federation of America, Consumers Union, the National Consumer League and two avowed public interest groups prefer the alternative plan.

They say they trust FDA more than the Agriculture Department in protecting public health, and the alternate plan includes ''whistle- blower'' protection for workers who report health violations. That safeguard was deleted from the Senate bill, but the House Rules Committee attached a whistle-blower provision to the Senate bill before releasing it for debate.

''The fishing industry is demanding a $100 million taxpayer- subsidized advertising program, not a public health shield,'' said Tom Devine of the group Public Citizen, which has battled the Agriculture Department over the adequacy of meat and poultry inspections.

Backers of the three-agency plan say the FDA has its own shortcomings. It inspects only a quarter of seafood plants annually now and has no experience in large-scale food inspection programs, they say.

Some meat industry groups have thrown their weight behind the Senate bill, partly to make sure inspection is government-funded and partly to make sure any government seal given to seafood was based on the same standards meat has to meet.

In July, the administration announced it is planning to expand the government's voluntary seafood inspection program with user fees supplying the money for the expansion.

MIDLAND, Mich (OCT. 18) UPI - Dow Chemical Co., citing soaring oil costs and a faltering economy, Thursday posted third-quarter earnings $282 million, down 52 percent from $589 milion in the same period of last year, despite a 16 percent increase in sales.

Earnings per share plunged 53 percent to $1.04 from $2.19 last year. The earnings included an increase in the provision for income taxes based on a projected effective rate for the year of 38.5 per cent from 36.5 percent.

Revenues rose to $4.91 billion from $4.25 billion in the third quarter of last year, mostly because the company increased its prices by about 5 percent from the second quarter. A lower dollar also helped inflate the value of higher foreign sales.

Operating income in the third quarter was down 29 percent to $664 million from $939 milion.

The diversified chemical company said manufacturing costs rose as a result of higher feedstock and energy costs. It said the operating rate increased slightly to 90 percent with sales volume declining about 3 percent from the second quarter.

John Henry, analyst at Merrill Lynch in New York, said third quarter earnings were actually better than expected.

''Most analysts were looking for 80 cents to 85 cents a share but they came in at $1.04,'' Henry said. ''The company hasn't felt the full effects of the cost jump in energy and hydrocarbon costs which will happen in the fourth quarter and next year.''

He said he expected fourth quarter earnings to be considerably lower, estimating them at about 75 cents a share. He forecast Dow to close the year with about $4.75 a share and only about $3.25 a share for the whole of 1991.

Enrique Fall, Dow's financial vice president, said by the end of the third quarter pricing initiatives were in place to offset much of the increases in feedstock. However, he said, soft industry fundamentals may deny total recovery.

''Dow's global purchasing capability, distribution infrastructure and feedstock flexibility have allowed us to delay most of the cost impact until the fourth quarter when price increases have been implemented,'' fall said.

Merrill Lynch's Henry also welcomed the company's decision to postpone several capital projects and intensify its expense control program.

Henry said the company may cut between $200 and $300 million from such projects as thermoplastics and other chemicals.

''Thank god for that decision. The industry is going to be awash in capacity in the next two to three years,'' he said.

For the nine months, Dow earned $1.11 billiion, or $4.09 a share, down sharply from $2.06 billion, or $7.61 a share, in the same period of last year. Revenues were $9.47 billion, compared with $7.77 billion last year.

LONDON (OCT. 18) UPI - Stocks prices closed higher in light trading Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange, bolstered by the strong performance on Wall Street and lower global oil prices.

Stock prices also ended higher in Frankfurt and Paris.

The London blue chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 15.6 points Wednesday, rebounded 14.6 points to 2,082.6. The narrower top 30 industrial average gained 17.3 points to 1,618.1.

Volume amounted to around 253 million shares, well below the 546 million shares changing hands on Wednesday.

Uncertainty over the situation in the Persian Gulf left many professional market-makers on the sidelines, analysts noted.

Stocks rebounded from midday lows boosted by the bullish Wall Street session and the better-than-expected report on the U.S. trade picture for August, analysts explained.

The Commerce Department reported the U.S. trade deficit edged up 2.4 percent to $9.34 billion in August from a revised $9.12 billion in July.

Market forecasters expected a deficit of around $9 billion.

Stocks were also boosted, analysts said, as the price of oil fell sharply on global markets after Iraq offered to sell its oil at $21 a barrel to any buyer.

Meanwhile market watchers said local investors all but ignored several key reports on Britain's economy.

The Bank of England reported Britain's narrow money supply M-0 rose a provisionally estimated 4.6 percent in September from a year earlier.

M-4 lending, a measure of bank and building society sterling lending to Britain's private sector, rose a seasonally adjusted $14.2 billion - or 1.4 percent - in September from August and was up 14.6 percent from September 1989.

The figures compare with market forecasts for a 4.7 percent rise in M-0 and the government's target range of 1 percent to 5 percent growth in the fiscal year ended March 31.

M-4 lending was forecast to rise about $12.2 billion, analysts said.

Meanwhile, the Deaprtment of Employment reported unemployment in Britain's was a seasonally adjusted 5.8 percent of the workforce in September, unchnaged from August.

Market frorecasters were expecting the report to show a 28,000 rise in unemployment.

In a seperate report, the Department of Employment reported the underlying rate of increase in average earnings in Britain was 10 1/4 percent in August, unchnaged from an upwardly revised July figure.

Average earnings as a whole rose a seasonally adjusted 0.8 percent in August from July and were up 10.9 percent from August 1989.

The market discounted the marginal increase in Britain's unemployment figures, and ignored the other reprts analysts said.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Albert Fisher, a foods distributor, gained 4 cents to $2.13 after reporting its latest earnings surged 65 percent for the year and issued a positive outlook for its international fresh food markets.

Eurotunnel, the consortium building the Channel Tunnel between France and Britain, gained 29 cents to $8.42 on a positive progress report and recently acquired fresh financing from creditors.

Oil and related issues were generally lower as the price for crude on the spot market eased. British Petroleum ended unchanged at $6.42 but London Scottish & marine Oil eased 8 cents to $8.26.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices closed higher in thin trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange.

The closely watched German Stock Index of 30 selected blue chip stocks, which lost 19.43 points Wednesday, rebounded 29.28 points or 2 percent to 1,470.07.

Traders said lower oil prices on global market helped to boost investor enthusiam.

On the local economic front, the Deutsche Bundesbank reported the broad M-3 measure of money supply in West Germany gew 4.3 percent in August on an annualized basis, more steeply than the 3.8 percent rate of increase in July.

The latest growth rate figure was a revision of the originally published August rate of 4.5 percent reported last month and it remains at the lower end of the 4 to 6 percent targeted M-3 growth range for 1990.

The data exclude money supply growth in the area that formerly was East Germany.

In Paris, stocks prices ended broadly higher in active trading on the Paris Bourse as local investors shrugged off news the French government would boost the capital gains tax to 25 percent from the current 19 percent.

The French CAC 40 Index, which slipped 10.95 points Wednesday, surged 31.67 points to 1,647.67.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (OCT. 18) UPI - Defense Minister Miroslav Vacek ordered the army to prepare to put down the peaceful revolution last November that toppled the Communist Party from power, a report released Thursday by a blue-ribbon commission said.

Vacek was fired Wednesday by President Vaclav Havel.

The report said Vacek, who was army chief of staff at the time under the Defense Ministry, organized ''Operation Wave,'' a plan to take control of all radio and television stations.

But the Communist Party Central Committee failed to approve a military move against the protests, and the plan was abandoned.

The report said it is unclear whether the army was to act to support the fading power of the Communist Party, sapped by a week of massive pro-democracy demonstrations, or whether it was acting on behalf of renegade Communist Party officials.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK said Lubos Dobrovsky, the current deputy foreign minister, has been tapped as the new defense minister.

Dubrovsky, who has held his present position since last July and before that was Foreign Ministry spokesman, is a signatory of the Charter 77 human rights document and a journalist.

The day after the Central Committee meeting, hard-line party leader Milos Jakes and his associates were dropped from the Politburo.

On Dec. 3, the communists formally yielded power to a government with a majority of non-communist ministers and on Dec. 29, Parliament elected Havel president.

''The whole structure was in place for an emergency decree, but what is peculiar is that no state of emergency was declared,'' said Vojtech Deyl, chairman of the special presidential commission investigating the November events.

Havel's spokesman, Michal Zantovsky, said the president decided to sack the minister Tuesday night after receiving the commission's report.

According to the report and Zantovsky, Vacek carried out with equal diligence the orders of the communist regime when he was army chief of staff and Havel's orders when he was defense minister after the communists lost power.

''The results of the commission's report do not cast doubt on Vacek as minister of defense, but they do show that in 1989 he followed certain orders and instructions leading to the possibility that the army could be used against the Czechoslovak people,'' Zantovsky said.

''All this year the army has acted as a state-forming element. That is to the credit of Vacek,'' he added.

When Havel announced he had fired Vacek Wednesday, Havel praised Vacek for never having allowed the army to be misused against the people, for having loyally observed all orders, and for having started ''

BRUSSELS (OCT. 18) UPI - The European Community executive Commission objected to a proposed compromise in the EC proposal to cut farm subsidies in world trade talks, a top official said Thursday.

The Commission objected to a plan that would toughen new tariffs aimed at two large U.S. exports to the EC - oilseeds, such as soybeans, and protein animal feeds.

''It has to be clear that the Commission made a proposal and it has made a balanced proposal,'' said Frans Andriessen, the EC trade Commissioner.

The Commission's proposal for talks on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade would cut farm supports by 30 percent from the 1986 level to 1996, but add would new tariffs to ''rebalance'' the proposal. The tariffs would be based on import quotas at 8 percent above average 1986-88 levels.

The 8 percent provision would be deleted under a new compromise proposal to be considered Friday by EC agriculture ministers in Luxembourg. The compromise was unveiled after the ministers failed to reach agreement in a 13-hour meeting Tuesday.

Andriessen, who has taken a relatively conciliatory approach toward the United States, said such an amendment was unacceptable.

The United States has considered any new tariffs unacceptable, and also said the EC's proposed 30 percent cuts were insufficient.

The U.S. proposal, submitted Monday to the GATT talks in Geneva, called for cuts of 75 percent in internal farm supports and 90 percent in export subsidies by the year 2000.

The meeting of EC agriculture ministers will be followed Monday by a meeting of the Community's foreign ministers, also in Luxembourg. If the stalemate is not broken, the issue could be decided at the Oct. 27-28 EC summit in Rome.

The current round of GATT talks, the Uruguay Round, began at a Uruguayan resort in 1986 and was slated to end in Brussels in December.

The United States said large cuts in farm supports were needed to convince developing countries to agree on new trade rules for services, investment and intellectual property.

DETROIT (OCT. 18) UPI - The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said Thursday it has reopened and upgraded a probe into possible front brake problems on virtually all Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable cars, more than 2.2 million vehicles in total.

A spokeswoman for Ford Motor Co. said the No. 2 automaker is cooperating fully with the investigation, which the government agency closed in June but reopened and upgraded to an engineering analysis Sept. 28 after receiving additional owner complaints.

''The problem concerns alleged separation of the rotor braking surface from the center hub in vehicles that use a composite front brake hub and rotor assembly,'' Ford spokeswoman Joy Stinson said.

Stinson said Ford is aware of seven reports of rotor separations among U.S. owners and several more in Canada, but she said most complaints came from high-salt regions. NHTSA spokesman Tim Hurd said the two-piece hubs could be suceptible to corrosion and cause loss of braking ability.

But the condition could affect more than just the Taurus and Sable cars, first introduced in late 1985.

Ford's 1988-91 Lincoln Continental and 1989-90 Ford Thunderbird and Mercury Cougar use the same composite rotor design. Combined with the Taurus and Sable about 2.7 million cars could be involved, Stinson said.

On Wednesday, Ford announced it would double the warranty on the front brake rotors and linings on about 407,000 1989-90 Thunderbirds and Cougars to two years or 24,000 miles, or until May 31, 1991, whichever provides the greater coverage.

But Ford said less than a third of the cars are expected to have that condition at 24,000 miles.

Ford will replace rotors and linings for free with revised components on all affected Thunderbird and Cougar cars except the Thunderbird SC and Cougar XR7 cars, which get new rotors only.

The upgraded investigation into the Taurus and Sable does not necessarily mean there will be a product recall, although NHTSA has the authority to order a recall if it feels one is warranted.

NHTSA also opened preliminary evaluations into a wide range of 1985- 90 cars produced by General Motors Corp., Ford, Chrysler Corp. and Honda Motor Co., according to its latest report.

Included are:

-1986-model Ford Bronco, Bronco II, for possible fuel tank corrosion from the skid plate. About 170,000 vehicles could be affected.

-1989-90 Jeep Cherokee, Wagoneer, Comanche, for possible front brake hose chafing. About 328,000 vehicles potentially affected.

-1989 Buick Reatta, for severe front brake steering pull. 6,300 vehicles possibly affected.

-1988-89 Chrysler Eagle Medallion, for electrical overload. 33,130 vehicles possibly affected.

-1990 Honda Accord, for door lock failure on front passenger door. Number of units not known.

The agency also opened an investigation into possible buckle breakage on Fisher Price child seat Model 9100, made in 1985.

Several other investigations were terminated because no defect trend or unreasonable risk was found, the NHTSA report showed.

Those included a probe into 1989-90 Ford Festiva subcompact cars for possible seat separation, 1985 Toyota Vans and Cargo Vans for possible steering wheel failure, and 1984-88 Dodge Caravan and Plymouth Voyager minivans for possible spare tire carrier failures.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The House, seeking to punish China for its continued poor human rights record, voted Thursday to end that country's privileged status for trade with the United States.

The disapproval measure was passed on a 247-174 vote despite warnings it would curb U.S. influence on the Chinese government and harm American firms that sell goods to China.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, likely will be vetoed if it reaches the White House. President Bush has strongly supported most- favored-trade status for China despite objections from Congress.

Most-favored-nation status means that a country's imports to the United States are charged the lowest tariffs available to any nation. China currently enjoys a $6 billion surplus in its trade with the United States.

Bush and President Ronald Reagan granted favored status for China by issuing annual waivers to a 1974 law covering trade with communist nations that have restrictive emigration policies.

The last waiver was granted in May despite protests from lawmakers that China has done little to improve human rights there since suppression of the democracy movement in Tiananmen Square in June 1989.

Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., sponsor of the disapproval measure, said it would ''send a necessary message to the angry old men who are hiding out in the so-called Great Hall of the People.''

He said the Chinese government continues to jail and execute political dissidents, restrict emigration and rule by martial law.

Solomon said Bush is trying to change Chinese government policies ''by extending to it the carrot of continued American trade privileges.'' But, ''while the president offers this carrot ... someone has to show that there is a stick out there.''

Solomon's measure would discontinue the favored trade status in effect for the current year fiscal year ending next June. The House also was expected to pass a second bill that would impose several conditions on the president in granting the status for the following year.

The disapproval measure was opposed by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, although he acknowledged ''the desire of members to send a strong message to the leadership of China that we condemn their actions.''

''However, I do not believe that cutting off China's most-favored- nation status hurts the leaders of China. They do not rely on trade with the United States for their livelihood,'' Rostenkowski said.

''We have a much greater chance of pushing for change if we remain engaged with China,'' he said.

House Republican leader Robert Michel, of Illinois, said China's actions ''are indeed reprehenible,'' but said the trade curb would be ineffective. ''When the United States does something unilaterally like this it very seldom works. ... It makes us feel good, but does not change the other country's policy.''

Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., arguing for the trade curb, said, ''Nothing has changed since (Tiananmen Square) in terms of human rights. The release of one or two people for public opinion and some other hundreds ... is small in terms of the maybe 10,000 who may be imprisoned because they spoke up (for democracy)''.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The Senate rejected Thursday an amendment to a deficit cutting bill to raise taxes on the rich and use the money to lower a proposed gasoline tax increase to 6 cents a gallon and scrap new costs for Medicare beneficiaires.

In a procedural vote, the Senate voted 55-45 against allowing consideration of the amendment sponsored by Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and Barbara Mikulski, D-Md.. The amendment fell far short of the ''super majority'' of 60 votes needed to clear that procedural hurdle.

The showdown came as the Senate moved toward a final vote later Thursday on the huge deficit reduction bill and a day before an earlier temporary funding bill to keep the government running expires at midnight Friday.

President Bush has repeatedly threatened to veto another stop-gap spending bill to keep the government open unless Congress presents him with a deficit reduction package he can sign by midnight Friday.

However, the White House has indicated that Bush may approve another short-term funding bill if it has some spending cuts in it to lower the deficit, and if Congress is near completion of the deficit bill.

The House on Tuesday passed its version of the deficit reduction bill that Bush vowed to veto because it did increase tax rates to 33 percent. A final version will be worked out between House and Senate negotiators once the Senate acts on its bill.

Gore said the key decision his amendment raise is ''do we want to have the senior citizens in our hospitals pay more (in Medicare costs) so the wealthiest can pay less?''

Mikulski said she was speaking for the middle class because ''they have no more to give'' to cut the deficit while the rich do.

''The poor have nothing to give, so let's go and get it from those who've got it,'' Mikulski said.

In rejecting the amendment, senators heeded the warnings of Senate leaders of both parties that the provision would scuttle a delicately crafted bipartisan deficit reduction plan that Bush has indicated he could support if a few relatively minor provisions he dislikes are removed.

Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, who helped draft the bipartisan deficit bill that Gore would have amended, opposed the amendment even though he supports raising income tax rates on the rich.

''The reality is ... that this amendment cannot and will not become law,'' said Mitchell, who with other Senate leaders successfully fought off two amendments Wednesday night that would have undermined the bipartisan bill, which he said makes the tax code more progressive than a deficit plan drafted by the bipartisan budget summit but rejected by the House.

''The president has said he will veto any legislation that inclues a 33 percent rate on the highest (income) individuals,'' Mitchell said.

If the Gore amendment were adopted, Mitchell said, ''the certain result is that we end up with a current law that is significantly less progressive than what we are trying to do with the (bipartisan) Senate bill.''

The amendment would have raised individual tax rates for the richest Americans from the current 28 percent to 33 percent, bursting the so- called tax bubble that now sees upper-middle class taxpayers taxed at a higher rate than the rich.

It also would have raised the alternative minimum tax on individuals, who might otherwise escape taxation through various deductions and exemptions, from 21 percent to 25 percent. And it would have imposed a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million

Under the amendment, the extra money raised from the higher tax rates and surtaxes would have been used to delete from a bipartisan deficit reduction bill before the Senate all of the extra costs that bill imposed on Medicare recipients - higher annual premiums, a higher Part B deductible and higher clinical laboratory service co-payment requirements.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 18) UPI - The U.N. Security Council's five permanent members are discussing a resolution demanding that food be sent to trapped Western diplomats and foreigners in Kuwait, diplomats said Thursday.

But the diplomats said some non-aligned nations preferred the 15- nation council deal immediately with the killing of 21 Palestinians by Israeli forces because of Israel's opposition to a U.N. inquiry into the deaths.

The new resolution from the permanent members - the United States, the Soviet Union, France, China and Britain - was seen as an effort by Washington to keep diplomatic pressure on Iraq and maintain the unity of the Arab coalition against the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Arab states were drawn together to condemn the Oct. 8 riots at the Temple Mount in Jerusalem and they preferred to keep the momentum on a resolution of the Israeli-Arab conflict despite their deep division on the Iraqi invasion, the diplomats said.

Diplomats said the five permanent members agreed on main points in the new resolution, which would demand that food be sent to the few remaining Western diplomats and foreigners in Kuwait. They said only the American, British and French embassies remained open in Kuwait City in defiance of an order by Iraq, after annexting Kuwait, that all foreign embassies be closed and their personnel be transferred to Baghdad.

They said the United States and Britain do not agree on whether to press in the same resolution for an inquiry into atrocities by Iraqi troops in Kuwait and to require Iraq to pay for damage caused its military occupation, which was mainly a British demand.

One Western diplomat said the resolution was being ''kicked around'' among the five countries and more discussions will be needed. A draft of the new document was sent Wednesday night to capitals of the five countries for discussions by their governments.

Secretary of State James Baker told a news conference in Washington Tuesday that priority should be given to a ''humanitarian resolution'' dealing with supplying the embassies with fresh food, drinking water and other necessities.

Iraq denied this week a request by Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to send a charter plane with medicines for hospitals in Kuwait. Kuwaiti officials said patients in Kuwaiti hospitals were dying for lack of medicines because Iraqi troops confiscated all medical supplies.

Representatives from non-aligned countries were to meet with Perez de Cuellar Thursday afternoon to press for the U.N. mission to Israel and discuss further action by the council on the issue, the diplomats said.

Perez de Cuellar told reporters Thursday he is still awaiting assurances from the Israeli government that it would cooperate with his mission. He said he would send the U.N. team as soon as the assurances were received.

The Security Council last Saturday condemned the killing of 21 Palestinians by Jerusalem police and asked Perez de Cuellar to report on ''findings and conclusions'' on the incidents before Oct. 31.

The government of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir strongly protested the council resolution and criticized the United States for voting to censure Israel. It rejected any official U.N. probe on the incidents.

CAIRO, Egypt (OCT. 18) UPI - President Hosni Mubarak reiterated Thursday that Iraq's invasion of Kuwait is different from Israel's occupation of Palestinian territories and appealed to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from the oil-rich emirate.

''Seizing land by force is a serious violation of principle that could lead us to lose all our (Arab) issues,'' Mubarak told reporters at Cairo International Airport after brief talks with Rwanda's President Juvenal Habyarimana.

Mubarak remains a staunch supporter of U.S.-led efforts to force Saddam out of Kuwait. Cairo's relations with Baghdad reached their lowest ebb in more than a decade after Egypt sent troops to Saudi Arabia to help defend the kingdom against Iraqi aggression.

The Egyptian president rejected any linkage between the Palestinian question and the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

Saddam has tried to link the issues to muster greater Arab and Moslem support for his lonely cause in the Persian Gulf. But Western governments and the Soviet Union insist he must withdraw from Kuwait before the world can turn its attention back to the Palestinian issue.

''Palestine will never be liberated by the occupation of Kuwait,'' Mubarak said. ''The Kuwait issue is an Arab issue but the Palestine issue is an Arab-Israeli problem. We should not fool ourselves about this because the whole world is aware of the problem and understands it in a positive way'' to the Arab cause.

Mubarak expressed hope the gulf crisis would end without war and urged Saddam to respond to the will of the world and pull out of Kuwait.

''I have asked President Saddam Hussein more than once and I am still asking him to respond to the peace appeal to avert evils, but (the Iraqis) are saying they do not want to respond when they come with daily statements saying Kuwait is their land,'' Mubark said.

The Egyptian leader refused comment on a U.S. newspaper report Tuesday in which Jordan's King Hussein expressed disappointment at Mubarak's stance on the gulf crisis.

''I read King Hussein's statement in the New York Times and I don't want to comment on it because we do not seek revenge from anyone,'' Mubarak said without elaborating.

Commenting on the assasination Friday in Cairo of Egypt's Parliament Speaker Rifaat El Mahgoub, Mubark said if the terrorists succeeded ''in killing one individual, they cannot succeed in killing 55 million Egyptians,'' a reference to Egypt's entire population.

The Egyptian leader said Mahgoub's killing would not force Egypt to alter its policy toward the gulf crisis and other issues.

''Egypt will remain Egypt ... it will not alter its principles under whatever circumstances,'' Mubarak said.

OTTAWA (OCT. 18) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis and accompanying high oil prices could trigger a new round of inflation and higher interest rates, the governor of the Bank of Canada warned Thursday.

John Crow, who has been under severe pressure for his tight money policy, made the statement before a Parliamentary finance committee while the Canadian dollar was being battered in a selloff by foreign investors.

The dollar opened Thursday at 85.38 cents U.S., down from Wednesday's close of $85.43 cents U.S., then dropped even further by noon to 85.11 cents U.S. The dollar was worth 86.48 cents U.S. when markets closed Wednesday.

The sell off was apparently triggered by foreign investors who are worried about Canada's recession-bound economy, although two other international currencies, the Australian dollar and the British pound, also took a beating Thursday.

In response to the weakened dollar, the Bank of Canada raised its trend-setting bank rate Thursday to 12.66 percent, up from last week's level of 12.59 percent.

Crow warned that even though interest rates have declined a little in recent months, they could be pushed higher because of escalating oil prices.

Achieving a non-inflationary environment, Crow said, would produce ''durably low interest rates.''

Inflationary pressures have subsided somewhat since the Bank of Canada began raising its trend-setting bank rate, the levy charged by the central bank on loans to financial institutions. The central bank has allowed interest rates to fall an average of 10 basis points in each of the last 13 weeks.

However, Crow warned that rapid oil price increases could set off a new round of inflationary pressures.

''It is imperative that we achieve gradual but progressive reductions in inflation if confidence in the value of our money is to be preserved, '' Crow said.

Finance Minister Michael Wilson caused the Canadian dollar to tumble Thursday beside its U.S. counterpart after he told an Ottawa conference that economic agencies had accurately stated that the economy was in a recession.

Wilson said weak economic activity, higher oil prices and strikes among some of the largest unions had made a second consecutive quarter of negative growth - the standard definition of a recession - a probability.

SMYRNA, Tenn. (OCT. 18) UPI - Options have been taken on sites in Tennessee and Alabama for a components plant for Nissan Motor Manufacturing Corp. U.S.A. company executives said Thursday.

The Tennessee plant site is in Franklin County near Decherd in the south-central part of the state, and the northern Alabama site is near Athens, in Limestone County, executives said.

Nissan Vice President and general counsel Gail Neuman, who is heading up the search, said the Japanese auto manufacturer is still examining the two locations, and no recommendation has been made to the board of directors.

The company has taken an option on an 800-900-acre tract in Franklin County, executives said.

Nissan said plans call for the plant to produce major components such as engines. The company said there is not enough room at its existing Smyrna, Tenn. assembly plant for such a major expansion.

Nissan's Smyrna plant, which produces Sentras and light trucks, is undergoing a $500 million expansion which will add 1.7 million square feet and a third car line by 1992.

Neuman said the company would like to build the components plant in the United States, and a decision on that is expected by the end of the year. The actual site location would be decided on by next June.

State officials had little comment on Nissan's plans.

''Whatever role we have is a customary role of being helpful, but it's not something we can talk about until the company makes a decision, '' said Bill Boozer, a spokesman for the Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker, rejecting any partial settlement of the Persian Gulf crisis as ''self-defeating appeasement '' said Thursday that Middle East peace depends on removing Saddam Hussein's capacity to make war.

Just before his Capitol Hill appearance, Baker met with Soviet Dpeuty Foreign Minister Yevgeny Primaklov, who met last week with Iraqi officials in Baghdad, reportedly bringing back an offer from Saddam of partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, under certain conditions.

Baker, in testimony prepared for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, reiterated themes he stressed Wednesday to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, where he encounter the first signs domestic support for President Bush's gulf policy is splintering.

Senate Democrats and Republicans both expressed apprehension and concern that the administration might send U.S. forces now based in Saudi Arabia into battle against Iraq without a formal declaration of war by Congress.

Baker said the administration would consult Congress but, in practical terms, the president would lose needed flexibility to respond to Iraqi threats if he had to seek consent before acting.

In his review of the Persian Gulf situation for the House panel, Baker insisted there could be no partial solution, such as allowing Iraq to retain some strategically unimportant islands that once were part of Iraq.

''The only truly effective action we can take now is to continue to heighten Iraq's political, economic and military isolation,'' he said.

He warned, ''Action that moves toward a partial solution would be self-defeating appeasement.''

He also suggested the administration's line is hardening and would no longer be satisfied with a total withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and the restoration of the Kuwaiti government now in exile in Saudi Arabia.

Baker said, ''Every hope for peace in this conflict-ridden region depends on stopping Iraq's aggression and ultimately reversing its capacity for future aggression.''

On Wednesday, several senators suggested that would require removing Saddam from power after a military clash, since it is not likely the Iraqi president would voluntarily step down and dismantle the largest military machine in the Middle East, including the largest arsenal of chemical weapons.

As a side effect of the crisis and the administration's failure to predict or deter the attack on Kuwait, the first public call for Baker's resignation appeared Thursday.

Nationally syndicated columnist Michael Kinsley said the honorable thing for Baker to do would be step down since he was responsible for the ineffectual policy at the time of the Iraqi invasion.

At the same time, there were new signs of growing friction between Washington and the Israeli government of Yitzhak Shamir.

Shamir has angrily denounced the U.S.-led action by the United Nations Security Council condemning Israel for excessive use of force against a Palestinian demonstrators last week in which at least 21 died.

The Israeli government also has announced its intention to continue constructing civilian settlements in East Jerusalem, which Baker's aides consider a violation of an Oct. 1 letter to Baker from Foreign Minister David Levy.

In the letter, which was negotiated between Levy and U.S. officials, Israel agreed not to use U.S. funds for the construction of new settlements in territory that had not been under Israeli control before the Six Day War of 1967.

The Americans say that clearly means East Jerusalem, as well as the West Bank and Gaza. The Israelis, who have annexed East Jersualem, says it does not.

CHICAGO (OCT. 18) UPI - Hyatt Hotels Corp. Thursday announced a new service that will allow members of its frequent guest program to check into their rooms before they get to the hotel.

The new service, called 1-800-CHECK-IN, starts Nov. 5 and will be available to members of Hyatt's Gold Passport frequent traveler program at 107 Hyatt hotels in the United States, Canada and the Caribbean.

By calling 1-800-CHECK-IN, members can get a room assignment - including room number - by telephone prior to their arrival at the hotel. Once they arrive at the hotel, they will proceed to a special check-in area, present a credit card sign the registration card and pick up their room key.

Hyatt said the service - the first of its kind - is designed to reduce the stress and aggravation associated with business travel.

WESLACO, Texas (OCT. 18) UPI - The dreaded ''killer bees'' from South America have finally landed on U.S. soil, but other than a quarantine slapped on beekepers in eight Texas counties Thursday, the arrival of the bees came with little fanfare.

''We've been expecting it for the past four or five years,'' said Glenn Mace of Edinburg, president of the Texas Beekeepers Association.

''At first we got a lot of adverse publicity scaring people to death. They were looking at clouds of bees coming in. It's calmed down now,'' Mace said.

Federal officials Wednesday confirmed a swarm of about 3,000 of the so-called ''killer bees'' was found in a bee monitoring trap outside Hidalgo at the southernmost tip of Texas. The bees are a hybrid of South American honey bees and bees introduced from Africa.

The bees earned their ominious nickname because they are easily provoked to sting, especially when traveling in swarms. Hundreds of people have reportedly been killed through the years as the bees made their way up through South America and Latin America after being brought to Brazil in 1956 for research and interbreeding with local honey bees.

The 3,000 bees were destroyed, and Texas authorities do not expect to see many more of them for at least another year.

''I would be surprised if we find more than 10 swarms in the next 18 months,'' said John Thomas, an entomologist with the Texas A&M University agricultural extension service assigned to an A&M monitoring station in Weslaco.

''These are pioneer swarms that are way out in front of the major population density,'' Thomas said. ''There are very few of them for 200 miles south of here.''

Texas officials still imposed a quarantine on beekeepers in Hidalgo, Willacy, Cameron, Starr, Zapata, Webb, Jim Hogg and Brooks counties, prohibiting beekeepers from taking their bees outside the eight-county area.

All beekeepers within a two-mile radius of the monitoring trap were placed under a stricter quarantine, prohibited from traveling outside the two-mile area until all their bees could be inspected.

The Africanized bees were found in one of 500 monitoring traps set up along the Texas-Mexico border. Thomas said the number of traps likely will be doubled, and that monitoring will increase.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower Thursday called on Gov. Bill Clements to release emergency funds for use in stepped up monitoring and quarantine enforcement.

''The Africanized bees are not a major health threat. But, unfortunately, it may create serious problems for honey production and pollination services in Texas,'' Hightower said. ''The yearly value of hive products, including honey, is estimated at $9 million to $11.5 million, and crop pollination is worth $480 million annually.''

Mace said the quarantine likely will force business costs up 10 percent to 20 percent.

''The beekeepers have been anticipating the problem, and they're pretty much ready,'' Mace said.

Thomas, who labeled the Africanized bees ''a honey bee with a personality problem,'' said the general public probably won't notice the arrival of the bees for at least another year.

''In 12 months to 18 months we should have enough in the Rio Grande Valley where people will see a lot more swarms of bees. There will be several stinging incidents,'' Thomas said. ''These bees will behave like yellow jackets.''

Swarms of killer bees initially were expected to arrive in Texas in 1987 or 1988.

Since that time, beekeeper groups, researchers and area officials have spearheaded a far-reaching public education program, telling their audiences at civic clubs, schools and other meeting places not to panic.

VIENNA (OCT. 18) UPI - French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas, in Austria for talks on the Persian Gulf crisis with Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze, expressed hope Thursday that Iraq would ''change its attitude'' and allow a peaceful resolution of the conflict.

Dumas made the comment following a hastily arranged meeting in Vienna at which the two officials also set a date for Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's trip to Paris. Dumas said the visit would take place Oct. 28-29.

The Soviet Union and France have taken leading roles in seeking a peaceful solution to the crisis sparked by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. Two weeks ago Gorbachev's troubleshooter, Yevgeni Primakov, held what were described as exploratory talks in Baghdad with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Primakov has since repeatedly indicated Iraq's resolve may be weakening but publicly there seemed few indications of peace by the major players in the gulf.

While acknowledging that no magic solution was at hand, Dumas told reporters he still believed war could be avoided.

''We have hope Iraq will change its attitude ... and allow a peaceful and political solution to the gulf crisis,'' Dumas said.

Shevardnadze, speaking to reporters upon his arrival in Vienna, said he brought with him ''no ready concept'' for solving the crisis but reiterated the Soviet position that no compromise is acceptable short of Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

The Soviet official also said Moscow sees ''no direct connection'' between the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the conflict in the Israeli- occupied territories. Saddam Hussein last month proposed that a solution to the gulf crisis be linked to a parallel settlement of the Arab- Israeli disupte.

The private talks in the Soviet Embassy were announced late Wednesday by the two governments. Both foreign ministers also met separately with Austrian Foreign Minister Alois Mock before returning to their capitals.

The bilateral discussions also included the year-end meeting in Paris of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The Soviet news agency Tass, commenting on the meeting between Shevardnadze and Dumas, said, ''Analysts here draw attention to the similarity of approaches by the Soviet Union and France to the possibility of a peaceful resolution of the Gulf crisis and the need to convene an international Middle East peace conference.''

(OCT. 18) UPI - The government says inflation at the consumer level was up to six- point-six percent on an annual rate at the end of September, largely because of soaring fuel prices resulting from the Persian Gulf crisis. That's up from four-point-nine percent last September. The increase comes with a sharp eight-tenths of one percent jump in consumer prices last month, most of it energy related. Economists say the upward spiral will continue to the end of the year.

Iraq says it will sell oil for 21 dollars a barrels. There's one catch... getting the oil out of the country. The bargain-basement price... a little more than one-half of current world levels... comes because of the U-N embargo that has stopped shipments of any oil from Iraq and Kuwait. Analysts say the offer shows the embargo is hurting. Western diplomats in Cairo say the offer is as hollow as an earlier one Iraq made of free oil to Third World countries... only to have NO takers.

What a difference a day makes. Residents of the Midwest had to get out the heavy coats and gloves this morning less than 24 hours after basking in summer-like sunshine and temperatures. A cold front moved in from the West, dumping up to a foot of snow in central and northeastern Minnesota. 40-mile-an-hour winds sent the chill factor down to zero. The first snow of the season greeted Chicagoans, in stark contrast to yesterday's 78-degree weather.

In Fort Lauderdale, Florida, today the defense questioned a police detective at the obscenity trial of three members of the rap group 2 Live Crew. Vice officer Eugene McCloud testified that nude dance shows and adult bookstores are scattered throughout Broward County. The defense is trying to show that the group's sexually explicit concert at Club Futura in Hollywood, Florida, last June did NOT violate community standards of decency.

Ousted Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto has lost a second legal challenge against the constitutionality of her being turned out of office by Pakistan's president. Bhutto's 20- month-old government was dismantled on August 6th on charges of corruption and nepotism and the National Assembly was dissolved.

Communist guerrillas today attacked a military communications station 85 miles north of Manila. Philippine armed forces chief General Renato de Villa says the rebels killed two soldiers and wounded four others... then set the relay station ablaze fleeing with seven rifles and a walkie-talkie. JERUSALEM (OCT. 18) UPI - Israeli soldiers shot and wounded at least 26 Palestinians who attacked a new Israeli army observation post in a Gaza Strip refugee camp in an incident Thursday that turned the U.S. crude market upward.

Hundreds of residents in the Rafah refugee camp's Shabura neighborhood threw stones and bottles at the soldiers who had just set up the observation post on the roof of a three-story building, Palestinian sources said.

The residents were enraged that the army had put a post in the center of the neighborhood for the first time since the start of the 34-month- old uprising against Israeli occupation, the sources said.

The posts, a common site in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, usually are manned by several soldiers and fly an Israeli flag.

The soldiers used ''a variety of means'' to disperse the stone- throwing crowd ''including plastic bullets fired in a very controlled manner,'' the army spokesman said.

Palestinian sources said 35 people with gunshot wounds were brought to the hospital, including five in serious condition, but the army said 26 Arabs, most lightly wounded in the incident.

The area was reported quiet by nightfall.

The news of the shooting helped U.S. crude prices rebound in afternoon trading after they fell more than $2 a barrel as the market's downward bias gained strength from Iraq's offer to sell oil at lower prices.

The U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery was down only 2 cents from Wednesday's close at $36.70 a barrel in afternoon trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange after trading as low as $34.40 a barrel.

Analysts were looking for WTI to drop to around $34 a barrel, the Oct. 2 low price of recent weeks, once selling drove prices through the Merc's key $37.15 support level late Wednesday.

But the story of the shooting turned the market upward in late afternoon trading, said Tom Bentz, director of trading at New York's United Energy Inc.

RICHMOND, Va. (OCT. 18) UPI - A designer of execution equipment said Thursday excessive bleeding from the nose of convicted cop killer Wilbert Evans during his electrocution may indicate his death was inhumane.

One media witness reported seeing ''blood bubbling ... down his belly and his shirt'' as Evans was executed Wednesday night for murdering an Alexandria deputy sheriff during an attempted jail escape.

Evans was put to death with two 55-second bursts of electricity just hours after the U.S. Supreme Court declined to stay his execution. Also, Gov. L. Douglas Wilder refused to commute his sentence to life in prison.

Deborah Groome, acting operations officer at the State Penitentiary, said the attending physician who examined the body found a nose bleed ''and that was it.''

Groome said Evans jerked against the mask with the first jolt to cause the nose bleed, and the death mask made the blood spread to make ''it look like more than it was.''

The state medical examiner's office, however, issued a report Thursday morning saying the nosebleed was caused by a temporary increase in blood pressure from the electrocution and that there was ''no evidence of trauma.''

Fred Leuchter, whose Boston company has helped numerous states design and maintain execution equipment, said if the mask caused the bleeding, ''something is wrong with the design. It's not particularly humane. ... If that's the case, the equipment would have to be examined.''

Groome also suggested the death mask may have been too small for Evans' nose, considering he weighed 258 pounds.

''If they put something on his face that was too small for his physical features, that would be inhumane, medieval,'' Leuchter said.

Leuchter said in theory the the 2,400 volts used in an electrocution shoulddestroy the nervous system in 1/240th of a second - 24 times as fast it takes the system to record pain. ''That should guarantee there's no pain,'' he said.

Laura Dillard, the press aide for Gov. L. Douglas Wilder, said no review of execution procedures is in the works because the Corrections Department had offered ''an acceptable explanation of what occurred.''

Leuchter, noting he was an engineer and not a doctor, said he couldn't comment on blood pressure, but said in any electrocution, ''bleeding is extremely unusual. It should probably be examined and probably should be investigated... I don't know of any (execution) that included bleeding.''

Although Leuchter has worked with dozens of states on executions, his professional credentials are under assault. He faces arraignment next week in Middlesex County, Mass., on charge of practicing engineering without a license.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (OCT. 18) UPI - Engineers geared up Thursday for a final series of rocket firings to complete a subtle course adjustment that will give the Ulysses probe an extra week of science observations over the polar regions of the sun.

Engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., ordered Ulysses to fire its small thrusters in pulses over a 26-hour period Monday and Tuesday to slightly alter the probe's trajectory toward a 1992 course-changing flyby of Jupiter, which will fling the craft back toward the sun.

Ten hours of rocket firings were planned late Thursday to boost the craft's velocity by about 220 mph. As a result, Ulysses will sail past Jupiter on Feb. 8, 1992, three days earlier than originally planned, which translates into more time for observing the sun in 1994 and 1995.

''The bottom-line end-result is, it buys us an extra week of scientific observing time in the polar regions of the sun,'' said JPL spokesman Frank O'Donnell.

Built by the European Space Agency, Ulysses was launched Oct. 6 from the space shuttle Discovery. Engineers planned to begin activating and checking out the probe's nine science instruments Friday.

The shuttle's five-man crew - commander Richard ''Dick'' Richards, 44, co-pilot Robert Cabana, 41, flight engineer William Shepherd, 41, Bruce Melnick, 40, and Thomas Akers, 39 - held a news conference Thursday at the Johnson Space Center in Houston to discuss the results of the flight.

Richards told reporters the flawless launch of Ulysses was the clear highlight of the four-day mission, NASA's first in nearly six months because of a series of hydrogen fuel leaks and other problems that grounded the shuttles Columbia and Atlantis.

''People were absolutely ecstatic about it,'' Richards said. ''I would characterize it as a big shot in the arm. We needed a flight like this given the long summer that we had. We knew we could fly a flight like this, but we hadn't had an opportunity to do that in a long while.''

Ulysses was built to fly over the never-before-seen poles of the sun to give scientists their first three-dimensional view of Earth's star, its magnetic field and the solar wind, a supersonic stream of electrically charged particles blasted away from the sun.

The problem for NASA and the European Space Agency was that no existing rocket was powerful enough to overcome Earth's orbital velocity of nearly 50 miles per second in the direction of the planet's orbit around the sun's equator.

To achieve an orbit around the sun at right angles to Earth's orbit, Ulysses was fired to Jupiter for a 1992 flyby in which the probe will utilize the giant planet's gravity for a boost down, out of the plane of the solar system and back toward the south pole of the sun.

This week's rocket firings marked the first of two such course corrections planned for this year. The next is scheduled to begin Nov. 2.

''The burns Monday and Tuesday were to steer the spacecraft, to adjust our targeting and the aim point we want to hit at Jupiter,'' O'Donnell said. ''The burn (Thursday) was a speed-up burn that will increase the craft's speed by 220 mph. Taken together, these basically get us to Jupiter sooner.''

DETROIT (OCT. 18) UPI - General Motors Corp. said Thursday it is recalling about 64,000 1990-model Buick Riviera and Reatta, Oldsmobile Toronado and Trofeo, and Cadillac Seville and Eldorado luxury cars with console- mounted gearshifts.

GM said the shift control cables may disconnect from the selector, causing the transaxle to remain in the last gear selected and render the vehicle inoperable.

GM spokesman Tom Pyden said the automaker knows of no accidents or injuries related to the condition. GM will install a retaining clip on the shift control cable free of charge at authorized dealers.

Models with steering column-mounted gear shift levers are not affected by the recall, GM said.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 18) UPI - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir reaffirmed Israeli sovereignty over Jerusalem Thursday, saying it was a ''grave mistake'' for the U.N. Security Council to humiliate Israel in an effort to maintain unity in the U.S.-led coalition against Iraq.

Despite the veiled criticism of the United States in his comments, Shamir also attempted to play down tensions between Israel and its No. 1 ally that have increased since Israeli police killed 20 Palestinians on the Temple Mount nearly two weeks ago.

Last week, the U.N. Security Council, including the U.S. representative, condemned the Israeli action and ordered a delegation to Israel to investigate the violence.

Israel's Cabinet rejected cooperating with the U.N. delegation, and Israeli leaders have characterized the resolution as one-sided with its condemnation of Israel but no denouncement of stones thrown by Palestinians onto Jewish worshippers at the nearby Western Wall.

Without referring directly to the United States, Shamir denounced the condemnation of Israel, urging Israel's supporters to turn away from attacks against his country and concentrate on confronting Iraq.

''The main factor in the camp fighting evil in the Middle East made a grave mistake when it tried to buy the unity of its camp in return for humiliating and endangering the state of Israel,'' Shamir told a convention of Israel's Union of Farmers Thursday.

The prime minister repeated his opposition to the U.N. delegation, which right-wing Israelis view as an encroachment on Israel's control over Jerusalem.

In letters to President Bush and Secretary of State James Baker this week, Shamir and Foreign Minister David Levy also said Israel would continue construction in all parts of Jerusalem, Israel Radio reported.

At the same time, Israeli officials have said Israel would cooperate with the monitoring of how U.S. funds and bank guarantees for housing construction were used. Washington opposes use of its funds for projects outside Israel's pre-1967 borders, which includes East Jerusalem.

''We do not want a conflict with the United States. We do not want any political confrontations at all,'' Shamir told the convention. ''But Israel can in no way sign with its own hands on a verdict of resigning its sovereignty over Jerusalem.

''We call on our friends to turn the unfortunate leaf, to erase it and to concentrate again on the main mission of destroying the terrible danger and (concentrating on) peace and stability in this important part of the world.''

Israel annexed Arab East Jerusalem and the Old City after its troops captured the territory from Jordan during the 1967 Israeli- Arab war and declared Jerusalem the nation's capital. But most nations, including the United States, consider East Jerusalem occupied territory.

Levy said Thursday he believed tension between Israel and the United States had been reduced after Baker on Wednesday reaffirmed the need for a unified Jerusalem. Levy also indicated Israel might consider cooperating with a U.N. delegation on the Temple Mount violence if it was not connected to the Security Council resolution.

Shamir has appointed a three-member committee, led by a former chief of Israel's Mossad, to investigate the violence. On Thursday, the Israeli investigation team interviewed Border Police involved in the rioting.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Last week, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., with an eye focused on protecting Israel's southern flank, proposed slowing the rapidly escalating U.S. arms sales to besieged Saudi Arabia.

In the past, such a resolution would likely have brought widespread support from senators concerned with Israel's defense. This time, it didn't.

Earlier this week, Secretary of State James Baker sat before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which in normal times would have taken him to the woodshed for drafting a United Nations resolution condemning Israel. This time it didn't.

In fact, not one senator even mentioned the U.N. resolution condemning Israel for the deaths last week of 21 rock-throwing Palestinians at Jerusalem's Al Aksa Mosque.

Senate aides say members are reluctant to criticize the administration's support of the resolution for fear that such remarks could unravel the fragile Arab unity President Bush believes is necessary to keep the pressure on Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

But the members are equally reluctant to openly rebuke Israel, whose American supporters could harm their re-election efforts.

''There is a message in the silence,'' said one Senate aide. ''In this case, people may be a little slower to defend Israel but not so quick to criticize the Israelis.''

''Jewish groups are very politically attuned and they maximize their potential '' said Larry Sabato, a University of Virgina political scientist who has written several books on political action committees.

The top 26 Pro-Israel PACs, which generally act in unison by supporting and opposing the same candidates, contributed $2.2 million to congressional races, from Jan. 1, 1989, through September, according to a United Press International review of Federal Election Commission records. The amount represents more than any other ideological groups, including abortion activists, gun-control organizations, conservative or liberal PACs.

''I would put them at the top,'' Sabato said. ''I think they are at least as well organized as the abortion lobby and better financed.''

Sabato added that pro-Israel PACs are only part of the equation. ''Some people might say it's anti-Semitic, but it's just a fact of life (that) a substantial amount of money (for campaigns) is coming from (individual) Jewish citizens,'' he said.

Six years ago, Jewish groups and Jewish voters helped defeat incumbent Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who showed support for PLO Chairman Yasir Arafat and criticized Israel.

Pro-Israel PACs and supporters began contributing money to Democratic challenger Paul Simon.

Today, Sen. Simon is seeking a second term in a tough campaign against moderate Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill.

Despite Martin's favorable voting record toward Israel, the congresswoman received only $1,000 from pro-Israel PACs, from Jan. 1, 1989, through September. Simon netted $172,600, nearly 20 percent of his total PAC account. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., topped the list, with $172, 800.

Many strong supporters of Israel who face tough re-election bids next month also have received large donations from pro-Israel groups. What's more, their opponents, some of whom like Martin are lawmakers with strong pro-Israel voting records, have received only token donations.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, engaged in a bitter contest against Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, ranks third in overall receipts, with $166,500 from pro- Israel PACs. Tauke, though supporting Israel, has received nothing.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, received $111,300 and faces a stiff challenge from Rep. Claudine Schneider, a moderate Republican who received only $1,000.

Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., who also faces a competitive contest, was the fifth top recipient, collecting $101,600. Democratic opponent, Harvey Sloane, received nothing.

Meanwhile, top House recipients of pro-Israel money are among the powerful lawmakers who face little or no opposition next month.

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., topped the list, netting $34,000. He was followed by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, who received $25,000, Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., who collected $24,500, and Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who got $20,000. Reps. Vin Weber, R-Minn. and Eliot Engel, D-N.Y. each received $19,950.

Predictably, Arab groups contend unequivocal support for Israel comes at a price.

''Those who are recipients of funds from pro-Israel PACs are punished if they do not toe the line,'' said Khalil Jahshan, associate executive director of the National Association of Arab Americans.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the Republican leader, a consistent supporter of Israel, knows that even a benign foreign policy initiative can be construed as ''anti-Israeli.''

Last January, American Jewish groups led the charge to scuttle a proposal by Dole to cut ''across the board'' U.S. foreign aid and transfer the savings to developing democracies like Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

''Unfortunately because of the politics surrounding the issue it became a Senate vs. Israel issue,'' recalled Dole's spokesman, Walt Riker. ''We got a lot of heat.''

(OCT. 18) UPI - Higher energy costs sent consumer prices up a sharp eight-tenths of one percent last month. Economists say almost all of the big September price jump was energy related due to the continuing crisis in the Persian Gulf. Gasoline prices rose nine and one-half percent, and fuel oil was up a staggering 15-point-nine percent. And the upward spiral may NOT be over. Georgia State University economist Don Ratajczak predicts rising prices through the rest of year because of uncertainty in the Middle East.

They apparently have gone to ''Game Plan B'' in the Soviet Union with burial of an earlier 500-day plan to turn the centralized economy into a market-driven one. The new outline from President Mikhail Gorbachev lets the 15 republics choose whatever plan they think will work and then go ahead with it. His earlier program was called too detailed, too unrealistic and capable of producing hyper- inflation.

There were NO great celebrations in what had been East Germany today to mark the one-year ouster of former Stanlinist leader Eric Honecker . Parliamentarians from the former East Germany met in a now-united Berlin to deliver speeches marking the occasion. Honecker ruled the East for 18 years before the infamous wall came down. He now reportedly lives with his wife in a simple two-room apartment at a Soviet military hospital outside Berlin, drawing an old-age pension of 337 dollars a month.

It's now Hurricane Nana. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Florida say Nana's maximum sustained winds intensified to near 75 miles an hour today, making it a minimal hurricane. At noon, E-D-T, Nana was centered about 45 miles south of Bermuda, moving north-northwest at close to 10 miles an hour. The hurricane is expected to pick up steam during the next 24 hours.

Four years of emergency rule is over for the troubled South African province of Natal. President Frederik de Klerk lifted the state of emergency on the Indian Ocean province today, citing improved security in the area. Natal has been torn by bloody clases between rival black groups that has claimed more than three-thousand lives since 1987. Lifting of the emergency does NOT mean there are any immediate plans to reduce army or police forces in the area.

Washington Mayor Marion Barry is threatening to get help from the National Guard if violence in the nation's capital does NOT subside. The threat also includes placing curfews on residents of some areas of the city. There were nine violent deaths recorded in Washington just last weekend alone, pushing the total to 373 so far this year. Police Chief Isaac Fulwood has set up a special unit of 100 officers to help curb the violence.

PORTLAND, Ore. (OCT. 18) UPI - Attorneys for a dead black man's family suing white supremacist Tom Metzger for $10 million dropped one count of their civil lawsuit Thursday and indicated they might later drop a second.

However, the attorneys claimed their move midway through the closely watched trial was not a result of constitutional free-speech questions raised about the allegations, only that the other two counts of their suit were adequate.

The American Civil Liberties Union had filed a friend of the court brief in the case, claiming it would be a violation of the First Amendment for a jury to find that Metzger, 52, Fallbrook, Calif., and son John, 22, had unintentionally incited the November 1988 slaying of Mulugeta Seraw, 27, by things they said or published.

However, the ACLU said the White Aryan Resistance leaders should be held liable if it was proved they intentionally tried to inflame skinheads to racial violence, leading to the baseball-bat beating death of the Ethiopian student outside his Portland apartment.

But before the ACLU could present its arguments orally Thursday, attorneys for the Southern Poverty Law Center and Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith amended their wrongful-death suit against the Metzgers and two of the convicted skinheads, based on evidence presented so far in the 2-week-old trial.

Attorney Richard Cohen withdrew count three of the lawsuit, accusing the Metzgers of gross negligence. He also moved to drop count four, alleged under Oregon's racial intimidation law.

But when Circuit Judge Ancer Haggerty raised questions about whether the gross negligence count alone could result in punitive damages, Cohen withdrew his request to drop count four, asking to return to the motion after the Metzgers present their case. Haggerty later said he believed there had been enough evidence to submit the conspiracy claim in count four to the jury.

Cohen said the one and possibly two counts were being dropped because they were covered in count one of the lawsuit, alleging intentional misconduct, and count two, alleging ''reckless selection of agents,'' namely Dave Mazzella and two other WAR members who met with Portland skinheads before the killing.

The plaintiffs' attorney said the racial intimdation claim was ''part and parcel'' of the wrongful death allegation.

''We're not trying to water down our debate,'' Cohen told the judge.

''This whole complaint is water,'' Tom Metzger interjected.

Due to the late moves, ACLU attorney Michael Simon said the plaintiffs had ''stricken from this case many of the portions we find to be most offensive.'' However, he called for dismissal of the ''reckless selection of agents'' claim.

''The ACLU does not represent the Metzgers or come here on behalf of the Metzgers,'' Simon said, calling it a ''struggle'' to take a stand that conceivably could help the white supremacists.

''We find many of the Metzgers' views to be repugnant and socially and morally abhorrent,'' Simon said. ''But the law protects all.''

Haggerty also rejected the Metzgers' motions to dismiss the case or other counts of the lawsuit. But he said he was not sure punitive damages could be awarded solely on the basis of alleged recklessness by the Metzgers. Haggerty, one of Oregon's two black circuit judges, said he would review a prior ruling om a similar case.

The lawsuit seeks $10 million in compensatory damages, based on the loss of income to Seraw's estate and the pain and suffering to his family. It also seeks unspecified punitive damages to punish Metzger and the other defendants for their actions - to ''put them out of business,'' in Dees' words.

The plaintiffs rested their case Wednesday. The Metzgers, who are defending themselves, said they would call Mazzella, the plaintiffs' key witness, back to the stand. Mazzella testified earlier that the Metzgers taught him to commit acts of violence against minorities.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - An advisory panel has criticized the Energy Department for rushing restart of the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant and failing to face up to ''root'' safety problems at the troubled Colorado facility, documents showed Thursday.

In a Sept. 11 letter to Energy Secretary James Watkins, the department's Advisory Committee on Nuclear Facility Safety said it appeared top department officials were more interested in meeting restart schedules than assuring safety improvements at the aging plutonium-processing plant.

The panel urged the department to ''put aside a schedule'' and focus on the fundamental cause of safety problems at the plant - ''management failure to implement previously defined commitments.''

Responding to the letter, Watkins told the committee the department would not restart Rocky Flats until it complied with ''applicable (safety) standards.'' He added that the department would ''assure that exceptions to full compliance will pose no threat to the health or safety of the public or on-site workers.''

Watkins also said Rocky Flats officials were evaluating safety issues through risk assessment analyses that ''provide a logical process for deciding whether the issue has short-term urgency or can be factored into long-range planning.'' The document did not specify which issues might be deferred.

Watkins' response drew criticism from officials at Greenpeace, the international environmental group, which obtained and released the Energy Department documents.

''Why bother to set safety standards if you are simply going to disregard the ones you can't meet,'' said Stephen Scwartz, legislative coordinator for Greenpeace USA.

Department officials had no immediate comment.

Since taking office in 1989, Watkins has repeatedly pledged that the department would make safety its first priority at its 1950s-vintage nuclear weapons production facilities, many of which - including Rocky Flats - are badly contaminated and deteriorating.

Rocky Flats was shut down in December 1989 due to concerns over deteriorating equipment and poor safety and waste disposal practices.

Watkins says restart of Rocky Flats is essential to maintain the government's nuclear weapons program because it fashions the plutonium ''triggers'' needed for atomic weapons. Department officials said earlier this year they hoped to restart plutonium processing by the end of 1990.

However, the advisory panel told Watkins the department appeared to be putting too much emphasis on its restart schedule, to the detriment of the safety improvement program at Rocky Flats.

''There are clear signs of a management perception (at Rocky Flats) that the Energy Department is pushing a specific restart schedule, rather than letting the restart schedule follow from the progress on necessary improvements,'' wrote John Ahearne, chairman of the advisory panel. ''That has affected everything that has been done at Rocky Flats.''

Ahearne said EG&G Inc., the private contractor that operates Rocky Flats for the government, as well as department officials had ''significantly overestimated'' their ability to correct safety problems at Rocky Flats within the tight schedule laid out by top agency officials.

''The committee is concerned that the Energy Department and its contractor may be attacking symptoms with reassignments of responsibilities and changes in Rocky Flats' policies, rather than truly facing up to the root cause, management failure to implement previously defined commitments,'' said Ahearne former chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

He told Watkins that over the last few months the advisory panel had seen ''less progress than we had hoped for'' in resolving problems at Rocky Flats.

''Many of the problems are so serious that the committee sees a need for the department to put aside a schedule and concentrate on identifying the problems developing a plan for their solution, and devoting sufficient resources to complete the plan,'' Ahearne wrote.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - Weekly injections of the hormone testosterone can be highly effective as a male contraceptive and may lead to the first easily reversible, reliable form of birth control for men, researchers reported Thursday.

In the first study of its kind, the hormone injections worked better for some men than birth control pills used by women and were much more reliable than such methods as the condom and IUD.

''We are very excited about this,'' said Timothy Farley of the World Health Organization in Geneva, Switzerland, which coordinated the international study. ''It's an important step on the road to developing a reliable, reversible male contraceptive.''

While weekly injections are not considered practical, the study suggests variations of the approach, such as shots given every three or four months or testosterone implants or patches, could be effective, he said.

The only forms of contraception currently available to men are condoms, which protect against sexually transmitted diseases like AIDS but are not highly effective in preventing pregnancy, and the surgical sterilization procedure called vasectomy, which is not usually reversible.

''There is a great need for a reversible contraceptive method for men,'' Farley said by telephone.

Family planning experts, however, were cautious, saying it is difficult to evaluate the results because the study eliminated a significant number of men whose sperm production was only reduced, not stopped, by the injections. ''There may be something to come out of it, but from this test one can not say it looks promising as a contraceptive or whether it doesn't look promising as a contraceptive,'' said Dr. C. Wayne Bardin of the Population Council in New York.

The study should, however, stimulate research to improve the approach, said Gabriel Bialy, chief of the contraceptive development branch of the government's National Institute on Child Health and Human Development.

''This tells us that if we can find the right combination of drugs ... we may have something that one could offer for family planning,'' Bialy said.

Testosterone is produced by the testes and stimulates sperm production. Previous studies have shown high doses of the hormone trick the testes into believing testosterone production can be reduced, which halts sperm production.

The new study, published in the British medical journal The Lancet, is the first to examine whether the approach is an effective contraceptive by testing whether men whose sperm production has been stopped that way avoid pregnancy in their female partners.

The study involved 271 healthy men in China, Australia, England, France, Finland, Sweden and the United States. The U.S. part of the study led by Dr. C. Alvin Paulsen at the University of Washington in Seattle.

After an average of four months, 157 of the men had stopped producing any sperm. The remainder either dropped out, mostly because they did not like the weekly injections or it was impractical to continue them, or had only reduced sperm production. Researchers are studying whether that would be enough to prevent pregnancy.

Of the 25 men in the U.S. part of the study, one dropped out and 16 of the remaining 24 men experienced a complete halt to sperm production.

The men who achieved a halt to sperm production went on to the second part of the study, in which they continued normal sexual habits with their partner but stopped using any other type of birth control method.

After an average of 12 months of followup, only one pregnancy had occurred, which works out to a failure rate of less than one per 100 person-years, the researchers reported.

That compares to a failure rate of three per 100 person-years for oral contraceptives used by women, six per 100 for the IUD and 12 per 100 for condoms.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 18) UPI - A group of earthquake experts who studied a New Mexico climatologist's prediction of an increased chance for a major quake along the New Madrid Fault in December said Thursday the theory has no scientific basis.

The 12 scientists who prepared their report on the prediction for the National Earthquake Prediction Evaluation Council gave their views on the projections by Iben Browning of Sandia Park, N.M., which have gained nationwide publicity in recent months.

Browning said there is a 50-50 chance for an earthquake measuring at least 7.0 on the Richter scale somewhere along the New Madrid Fault, which runs through southeastern Missouri, on or about Dec. 2 or Dec. 3.

However, the scientists from the council, the U.S. Geological Survey, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Central United States Earthquake Consortium said they disagreed with Browning's prediction.

''Based on a detailed scientific evaluation of Dr. Browning's methodology, there is no scientific basis for concluding that there is a higher probability of a large earthquake on or about December 2nd or 3rd, or any other day in the next several years,'' said Robert Wesson, chief of the Office of Earthquakes, Volcanoes and Engineering for the Geological Survey.

Duncan Agnew, a professor at the University of California at San Diego and a member of the working group that drafted the report, said Browning's method of correlating tides and earthquake occurrence is nothing new or different. Agnew said previous studies have employed the method, but very few have shown any correlation.

Wesson said Browning based some of his conclusions on the moon's gravitational pull on the Earth when the moon is at its northernmost point in the sky and close to Earth.

However, Jerome Hauer, director of the Central United States Earthquake Consortium, admitted there is a chance of an earthquake happening in the New Madrid Fault zone at some time. The Central United States Earthquake Consortium is made up of seven states - Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi - in the region of the fault zone.

''There is in fact a risk of an earthquake in the central United States, and I don't think anyone would dispute (Browning),'' Hauer said. ''I think what they are telling us today is that the risk of an earthquake is as great today, tomorrow or the day after as is it is on December 3rd. There is nothing magical about the date December 3rd.''

Browning's prediction has been publicized heavily throughout the Midwest, and concern grew following an earthquake Sept. 26 measuring 4.6 on the Richter scale that had an epicenter about 10 miles southwest of Cape Girardeau in southeastern Missouri.

Several school districts in sections of Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky and Illinois that surround the fault have canceled classes on Dec. 3 and 4 as a precaution. The Carrier Mills Unit 2 School District in Saline County, Ill., Thursday became the latest district to call off school on those dates.

City employees in Carbondale, Ill., have been told they may not take vacations that week, and state agencies in Missouri plan to hold earthquake preparedness drills in early December.

Hauer said the public, authorities and scientists should continue to promote earthquake awareness in the Midwest even if the Dec. 3 prediction fails to come true.

''We need to continue and not become complacent,'' he said.

WESTBORO, Mass. (OCT. 18) UPI - The U.S. Interior Department stuck to its guns Thursday on its choice of troubled Data General Corp. for a crucial $127 million contract, despite a congressional investigation into the agency's decision.

The department released a letter in which it responded to questions raised about the award and said it believes ''this matter is now closed.''

The contract, to set up a nationwide data communications network for Interior's U.S. Geological Survey, is important to Data General's efforts to end more than five year's of losses because it would amount to an endorsement of a new product line by a major customer.

The contract could also pave the way for more government work.

The department's letter and an accompanying memo, sent to Rep. Peter H. Kostmayer, D-Pa., head of a House subcommitee that reviews the agency's operations, defended its selection of Data General over SMS Data Products Group Inc. of Reston, Va., and a subsidiary of Lockheed Corp. of Burbank, Calif.

However, a spokesman for the department, Robert K. Walker, said: ''I guess we'll give the congressman a few days to respond to us. The action is back in his court.''

Among his objections to the choice of the big Massachusetts computer maker, Kostmayer had charged in an earlier letter to Interior that there was ''the appearance of bias'' in Data General's receiving the contract.

Also, he said, SMS had been low bidder, but was excluded late in the bidding process on technical grounds.

Interior first awarded the contract to Data General last December. However, the unsuccessful bidders got the contract award overturned in U.S. District Court in Washington. But just last week, the court decision was overturned by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington and the Data General award was reinstated.

In a detailed memo accompanying its letter to Kostmayer, Interior cited the appeals court ruling as proof of the correctness of its choice. Moreover, it said SMS had changed its bid late in the bidding process to a form that did not meet specifications.

A staff member of the House Interior Committee, John O'Donnell, said the subcommittee is still evaluating the department's response.

ANKARA, Turkey (OCT. 18) UPI - Turkish Defense Minister Safa Giray said Thursday he had resigned from the Cabinet of Prime Minister Yildirim Akbulut.

Giray, 59, was the second senior minister to resign from the Cabinet in six days. Last week Foreign Minister Ali Bozer resigned his job saying he was being ignored in important decisions of foreign policy.

In a similar complaint, Giray told Akbulut in his letter of resignation: ''I have come to the conclusion that mutual trust between yourself and me no longer exists.'' Akbulut told reporters he had not yet received Giray's letter.

Giray has held several positions in Cabinets of the ruling Motherland Party since 1983, when Turgut Ozal was prime minister.

Akbulut, who took over as premier after Ozal was elected president last year, has faced internal dissent within the party. In February, Mesut Yilmaz resigned as foreign minister citing policy differences with Ozal.

Political commentators said the Akbulut government was on shaky ground because of problems arising from a high rate of inflation which the Motherland Party has been unable to control, and because Ozal, rather than Akbulut, appeared to be running the government.

Ozal was on a Middle East swing to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis with regional leaders after a meeting with President Bush last month.

Opposition leaders and several senior military officers have expressed dismay that Ozal seemed to be taking Turkey into war because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, a development which they believed was of no direct concern to Turkey.

Turkey appeared to be drawn into the conflict because of its geographical location and its position as a member of NATO. There was no hint in Giray's letter of resignation that he opposed Turkey's role in the gulf crisis.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - Foreign exchange dealers abandoned the sinking dollar in New York trading Thursday, driving the beleagured U.S. currency down through the psychologically important barrier of 1.50 German marks.

Currency traders said confidence in the dollar had ebbed to a new low after a spate of comments from U.S., Japanese and German monetary officials indicated central banks were not concerned enough to rally to its defense.

Coming on top of Washington's disarray in attempting to cobble together some compromise on the budget deficit and taxes, and the parlous state of the U.S. economy, that pulled the rug out from under the dollar.

''I think the short-term issues are so overwhelmingly bearish for the dollar '' said John McCarthy, chief foreign exchange dealer for the Amsterdam Rotterdam Bank in New York, ''it undermines confidence in the dollar.''

''There's every reason to sell,'' McCarthy added. ''Breaking 1.50 (marks to the dollar) was just a matter of time.

In late New York dealings, the dollar was quoted at 1.4970 German marks, down from 1.5120 Wednesday, and 124.40 Japanese yen, off from 125.40.

That German mark exchange rate set yet another in the long series of historic postwar lows for the dollar seen since mid-August. Until then, the record low mark rate had stood at 1.5715 since late December 1987.

Against the yen, the dollar seemed well on its way to shattering the existing record low price of 121.40, also set in late 1987.

''It's getting to be a depressing story,'' remarked international economist Jim Merrill of the McCarthy, Crisanti & Maffei investment bank.

''All the problems in Washington smell pretty bad, and the continued weakness in the economy doesn't offer any support,'' he said. ''Traders sometimes look at the dollar and say it's a garbage currency - let's dump it.''

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2585 Swiss francs, down from 1.2712; 5.0440 French francs, off from 5.0665; and 1,121.50 Italian lire, off from 1,132.50.

The pound moved up to $1.9710 compared with $1.9620.

In Europe, the dollar closed higher on the back of relatively favorable U.S. trade and price figures, but analysts expected it to decline.

The U.S. trade deficit edged up 2.4 percent to $9.34 billion in August, but the energy-driven increase was not unexpected.

U.S. consumer prices were up 0.8 percent in September, the same as in August, but economists had expected prices to rise as much as 0.9 percent.

''The trade and consumer price figures have pushed the dollar a little higher. But it could go a lot further down before the Group of Seven steps into the market,'' said David Simmonds, Midland Bank's chief treasurer.

''Japan and Germany welcome the stronger currencies and the U.S. seems willing to accept the dollar's weakness,'' he added.

The dollar closed marginally higher in Frankfurt at 1.5105 German marks against 1.5095 at Wednesday's close, and was also slightly higher in Zurich, at 1.2745 Swiss francs against 1.2710.

In London the pound skidded to $1.9540 against $1.9650.

The dollar closed unchanged in Paris at 5.0465 French francs, but was higher in Brussels and Milan at 31.10 Belgian francs against 31.08, and 1,131.75 Italian lire vs. 1,128.20.

Earlier, the perception of a recessionary U.S. economy pushed the dollar down against the yen. It ended at 124.40 yen, down 1.40 from 125.80 yen Wednesday.

The dollar dropped 2.25 yen Wednesday and has fallen more than 35 yen since April. Thursday's close was the lowest since January 1989.

''The main reason for the fall is weakening confidence in the dollar, '' said Soichi Enkyo, senior economist at the Bank of Tokyo.

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $368.50 an ounce against $367.50, but closed unchanged in London at $366.75 an ounce.

Silver closed higher in Zurich at $4.25 an ounce from $4.20, and was higher in London at $4.23 an ounce vs. $4.21.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $370.25 an ounce, up from $367.25 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $370.10 an ounce, ahead from $366.70.

Silver was unchanged in Zurich at $4.20 an ounce, and was also unchanged in London at $4.21 an ounce.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.225 an ounce, unchanged. Comex silver ended at $4.198 an ounce, also unchanged.

#90291u1676 10/18/1990 ~United Press International

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (OCT. 18) UPI - After months of lawsuits and personal problems, the heaviest issue Buster Douglas deals with these days is how much he will weigh for his fight Thursday night against Evander Holyfield.

Douglas said that is not as heavy an issue as people think. But it is a constant one as he prepares to defend his heavyweight championship.

Not since Ray Leonard's surgically repaired eye before the Marvin Hagler bout in 1987 has one subject lingered so long before a major fight.

Leonard reacted to questions about his eye by declaring it a ''non- issue.'' Douglas tackles weight questions head on.

''That's basically been the top issue,'' Douglas said Thursday of his weight. ''It's just something people choose to focus on.''

Douglas realizes the importance of the issue. He is expected to handle Holyfield unless he is so fat he cannot stand up for 12 rounds. The champion promises that will not be the case.

''I should be close, if not below, what I was when I fought for the title,'' he said, referring to the 231 1-2 mark he weighed against Mike Tyson last February. ''I'm in the high 230s now.

''The lighter I come in, the better I am. Putting on weight slows you down, it makes you work a little harder during the fight.''

Douglas ballooned to around 260 in the months following the Tyson bout. He blamed distractions for keeping him from the gym. After that fight, he sued Don King, reconciled with his wife Bertha and restructured his management team.

He has worked hard since arriving in Las Vegas six weeks ago but still appears chubby despite sparring from six to 10 rounds a night as part of three-hour workouts. His weight was enough of a concern in recent weeks that Mirage owner Steve Wynn - who has a two-fight contract with Douglas - would drop by to check on his investment.

''Steve Wynn was pulling his hair out three or four weeks ago about the weight '' Douglas's trainer J.D. McCauley said. ''It's been harder this time because we had more to work with.''

Douglas will appear fat on fight night in comparison to the finely sculptured challenger but the champion has the kind of body that will never look like Holyfield's.

''If he got down to 200 pounds, he wouldn't look like that,'' Johnson said of the champion.

There is little chance of him ever getting that low.

''He walks into a restaurant, looks at the menu and puts on five pounds,'' McCauley says.

Douglas's mental condition seems fine. Unlike Tyson, who used to snarl his way through training camps for title fights, Douglas remains loose and keeps his sense of humor. He closed workouts and shut off interviews for two weeks until this week but he had invited reporters to his Columbus, Ohio, home before leaving for Las Vegas and did interviews for his first several weeks at The Mirage.

Tyson, by comparison, usually limited his training camp accessibility to one group session several days before his fight.

''I was just getting back acclimated in the gym,'' Douglas said of the past few weeks. ''It was a matter of being intense day in and day out.

''I came out here early, I just basically wanted to get away. I didn't want no distractions. Time (by myself) was required.

''There were a lot of outside distractions but I think I kind of got a hold on it.''

Tyson took some shots at Douglas this week in a story that appeared in Thursday's New York Post. Tyson called Douglas ''a fluke champion, like a guy who won lotto.'' He also accused Douglas of quitting in a 1987 title fight against Tony Tucker.

''Once a quitter,'' Tyson said, ''Always a quitter.''

''He's being a lot more flamboyant with his mouth than with his hands lately '' Douglas said of Tyson.

Then, noting Holyfield made the same charge about the Tucker fight, Douglas said, ''It seems like they're trying to team up on me. It's like a WWF tag team. I'm getting a big kick out of it.''

Douglas also gets a kick out of reports that Holyfield has a body builder and ballet teacher helping him train up in Reno.

''I felt slighted,'' Douglas said. ''If the challenger has ballet dancers and body builders, I should have them, too. I told my manager to get (Mikhail) Baryshnikov but he was busy.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - Assets of the nation's 519 money market mutual funds rose by $3.76 billion to $415.11 billion in the week ended Wednesday, the Investment Company Institute reported Thursday.

The Washington-based institute said broker-dealer fund assets increased $652.8 million to $166.01 billion, assets of general purpose funds increased $625.4 million to $146.78 billion and institutional fund assets rose $2.48 billion to $102.33 billion.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven- day simple yields were 7.44 percent, down from 7.48 the previous week, and 30-day simple yields also were down at 7.46 percent vs. 7.47.

The average maturity of fund portfolios held steady at 45 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money-market deposit accounts, 5.86 percent, unchanged; Super-Now accounts, 4.94 percent, down from 4.95; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.47 percent, off from 7.48; 1-year CDs, 7.57 percent, down from 7.58; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.65 percent, down from 7.66; and five-year CDs, unchanged at 7.80 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.25 percent, unchanged from the previous week.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage rose in the latest week to 9.80 percent, up from 9.67 percent, while the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage rose to 10.12 percent from 9.97.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan fell to 12.13 percent from 12.18 percent last week.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Consumer prices are up again... mostly because of energy price hikes stemming from the Persian Gulf crisis. The Labor Department says the Consumer Price Index rose a sharp eight-tenths of one percent in September. Economists predict another couple of months of the same because of the Mideast crisis.

The rising consumer prices mean greater benefits for Social Security beneficiaries. The government says retirees will receive a five-point- four percent cost-of-living increase in their Social Security checks starting next year. The automatic increases are tied to the Consumer Price Index.

Iraq is offering to sell its oil at the bargain price of 21 dollars a barrel, about half the current level on world markets. It's seen as another effort by Baghdad to crack the economic embargo barring trade with Iraq. A Cairo-based Western diplomat calls the offer ''just an empty gesture.''

More violence in the Israeli-occupied territories. The Israeli army set up an observation post in a Gaza Strip refugee camp today, and residents responded by throwing stones and bottles at the soldiers who set up the post. Palestinian sources say Israeli troops shot and wounded at least 26 Arabs.

Northwest Airlines says it doesn't know how it happened. A company spokesman says a mechanic in Atlanta made a mistake and pumped hand soap into the hydraulic systems of some of its planes a few days ago. Northwest discovered the problem yesterday and has grounded 12 D-C-9's, canceling about 50 flights.

The federal government is giving eight cities 60-Million dollars for drug treatment programs for teen-agers, prisoners, public housing residents and parolees. Assistant Health Secretary James Mason says the goal is to improve delivery of existing drug abuse treatment nation- wide. Congress approved the money last year.

A-B-C News says it will close its bureaus in Chicago, Boston and Dallas, effective December 31st. A spokesman says the closings will affect 12 people, who will either be reassigned or fired. A-B-C News had expected to earn 75-Million dollars this year but reportedly is projecting a smaller profit.

A survey says the majority of Americans want information about vehicle bumpers posted on window stickers in dealer showrooms. Seven out of 10 people polled said vehicle bumpers should be stronger than the minimum standard now required under current federal law.

A homeless man in Houston found himself a home... in a closet at the offices of the city housing authority. Authorities say the man spent at least five nights in the utility closet. He was seen in the coffee lounge... and once asked where he could apply for a job. Police were called to remove the man from the closet, which is filled with circuit breakers and wiring.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said Thursday it will charge against its reserves losses of $124 million from its mortgage portfolio during the third quarter.

Leland Brendsel, Freddie Mac's chairman and chief executive officer, said existing loan loss reserves totalled $552 million at the end of June and are adequate to absorb the third-quarter chargeoffs.

He said the quarter's earnings, which will be released later this month, will not be affected.

Multifamily mortgage purchases represent 2.2 percent of Freddie Mac's total mortgage purchases this year and make up 3.4 percent of the quasi- public federally-chartered company's total $322 billion single- and multifamily-mortgage portfolios.

Freddie Mac said $81 million of the charge stems from losses in its multifamily mortgage portfolio, while the remaining $43 million is due to losses on its single-family portfolio.

The company said most the increase in multifamily losses resulted from a recently complted re-evaluation of its multifamily real estate- owned portfolio prompted by declining market conditions.

''Real estate values in certain of our multifamily markets continue to worsen. We are continuously assessing the impact of these market conditions on the corporation,'' Brendsel said.

He said the majority of Freddie Mac's exposure is concentrated in New York and Atlanta, which have both experienced deteriorating real estate markets.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - The American Stock Exchange has secured the exclusive right to use in the United States the European Community's new stock index, the Euro Top-100 Index or E100, officials said Thursday.

The E100 index, developed by the European Options Exchange or EOE, is composed of the 100 most highly-capitalized stocks in nine European countries - seven European Community members, plus Switzerland and Sweden.

''The E100 will be to Europe what the Nikkei-225 is to Japan,'' a spokeswoman for the venture said.

Under the agreement, the Amex has the exclusive right to use the E100 Index in the United States as the basis for trading options and warrants. The agreement does not include futures.

It was not immediately known when U.S. trading in options of the new European index will actually start. The agreement is still pending approval by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the spokeswoman said.

''The E100 measures the collective performance of leading stocks on the major European stock exchanges in Belgium, Britain, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland,'' the Amex said.

The E100 index includes stocks from huge European companies such as Britain's B.A.T and British Aerospace, Nestle and Ciba-Geigy in Switzerland, LVMH, Peugeot and Saint-Gobain in France, or Fiat in Italy and Ericsson in Sweden.

Countries represented in the E100 Index are weighted according to their market capitalization which must be more than 50 billion ECUs - the currency denomination for the European Community.

Stocks are included in the E100 according to their countries' representative share inside the EC, with Britain, Germany and France controlling more than 50 percent of the index.

The Amex already has one agreement with the EOE which began trading options in the Amex's Major Market Index or XMI in Europe three years ago. That agreement was the first international options trading between the United States and foreign exchanges.

''With this new agreement, we will be forging even stronger alliances with the markets of Western Europe and broadening investment opportunities between the United States and an economically united European Community,'' said James Jones, chairman of the Amex.

The Amex also said it had agreed with Societe des Bourses Francaises to trade in France XMI warrants and trade in the United States warrants of France's key CAC-40 Index, the broad indicator of leading French stocks.

The exchange pointed out that Japan's Nikkei put and call warrants have been very popular with investors, and accounted for a significant share of Amex trading volume this year.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 18) UPI - Jordan continues to import oil from Iraq, but is otherwise doing its best to comply with the U.N. embargo on Iraq despite severe economic losses, a U.N. mission reported Thursday.

Non-oil trade between the two countries has stopped, said Jean Ripert, a French diplomat who led the recent mission to Jordan. Ripert said Jordan consequently faces losses equal up to about 35 percent of the size of its economy and he called on members of the United Nations to help Jordan.

Ripert said Jordan had no alternative but to continue importing oil from Iraq, and that about 40,000 barrels a day are arriving by truck. Saudi Arabia has cut off supplies because it is not happy with Jordan's fence-straddling position on the Persian Gulf crisis, and Jordan's only port, Aqaba, is not equipped to receive large oil imports.

Iraq and Kuwait have worked out a deal whereby Iraq deducts the cost of the oil from debts incurred to Jordan during the Iran-Iraq war. The write-offs are calculated at the pre-crisis price of $16 a barrel, which is very favorable to Jordan.

The price of oil has shot up to just under $40 a barrel because of shortages caused by the embargo on trade with Iraq and Kuwait, and because of fears of a war in the Middle East. The U.N. embargo was triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, and several countries, led by the United States, have sent armed forces to defend Saudi Arabia.

Ripert said some non-oil trade continues between the countries because of smugglers, but that Jordanian customs officials are controlling the main road from Amman to Baghdad to prevent any violation of the embargo.

There have been news reports of continued truck traffic on the road, but Ripert said he was satisfied with Jordanian explanations that the trucks were leaving Amman empty and were heading to the border to pick up the furniture of refugees fleeing Iraq and Kuwait. About 120,000 Jordanians who were living in the gulf countries have returned home, Ripert said.

He said Jordanian officials were sealing the trucks as they left Amman. ''This has been checked,'' he said, adding that ''the authorities in Jordan are doing their best.''

The U.N. trade embargo will cost Jordan more than $1 billion before the end of this year, Ripert said, and could cost $3 billion to $4 billion next year. Calculating the size of Jordan's economy is difficult because of a recent 40-percent drop in the value of its currency, U.N. officials said. But Ripert said the embargo could contract its economy by 35 percent next year.

Ripert said that already Aqaba stands idle, the country's tourist attactions are empty, and many farmers are not planting because they have lost one of their major clients. Jordan's unemployment rate of 20 percent could double, he said.

''The impact is dramatic,'' he said, adding that if the Jordanians ''do their part, the international community should do theirs'' and meet these losses.

Meanwhile, the Palestine Liberation Organization mission to the United Nations has estimated that the crisis could cause losses of $750 million a year for Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan river.

The estimates, detailed in a letter to the U.N. secretary-general, include only direct losses resulting from a cut-off in remittances, aid and exports. The total impact of the crisis could be much heavier because of the cost of resettling Palestinians returning from the gulf, and because of its effect on the already fragile economies of Jordan and the West Bank.

About 650,000 Palestinians worked in the gulf countries prior to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and sent $808 million home to the occupied territories in 1987, the report said. Those remittances are expected to fall by about $567 million a year if the crisis continues.

In addition, trade between the West Bank and Jordan had dwindled, and aid from Kuwait to the Palestinians on the West Bank, which ran at about $70 million a year, has stopped, the report said.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - Stocks rallied in heavy trading Thursday, shrugging off a late rebound in oil prices tied to news of unrest in the Gaza Strip and extending their gains into the close.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 6.68 Wednesday, rang up its second-biggest gain of the year, surging 64.85 to close at 2452.72. The largest jump of 1990 came Aug. 27, when the Dow soared 78 points.

The blue chip average was first up more than 50 points in early afternoon trading, triggering the exchange's rule curbing program buying.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index jumped 3.46 to 167.05. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 6.98 to 305.74. The price of an average share surged 60 cents.

Advances thumped declines, 1,119 to 441, among the 1,978 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 204,120,000 shares, up from 161,260,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Analysts called the rally psychological rather than based on any one piece of news.

''I just think it was that the 3 or 4 major variables in the market - the budget, the Mideast, earnings - haven't gotten any worse. I'd call it a psychological rally,'' said Jeff Kaminsky, head of institutional sales trading at Mabon, Nugent & Co.

Indeed, one of those variables, the Mideast, got stocks off to a strong start

Thursday. Oil prices plunged more than $2 a barrel after Iraq offered to sell its oil at lower prices to any takers. Traders also saw significance in the offer in that it referred by implication to the end of the crisis.

But oil wiped out its losses in afternoon trading on news that Israeli soldiers shot and wounded at least 26 Arabs who attacked a newly established army observation post in a Gaza Strip refugee camp, Palestinian sources said.

In late trading, prices closed up 8 cents at $36.80 a barrel after trading as low as $34.40 a barrel.

But Kaminsky said the stock market focused on the suggestion that there might be a peaceful resolution in the Persian Gulf, and actually extended its gains into the close.

''There also appears to have been some progress on the budget, that was positive,'' he said.

The Senate moved toward a final vote later Thursday on the huge deficit reduction bill as the expiration at midnight Friday of an earlier temporary funding bill to keep the government running approached.

However, the White House has indicated that Bush may approve another short-term funding bill if it has some spending cuts in it to lower the deficit, and if Congress is near completion of the deficit bill.

Lower interest rates in the bond market also bolstered stocks, Kaminsky said. The long bond was up 26/32 in afternoon trading with its yield down to 8.81 percent.

''There's a ton of cash on the sidelines, it needs a place to go, and it appears stocks have found some fans,'' he said. ''All the bad news we've been waiting for has not yet come to pass. It may still, but it hasn't yet. People have spent so much time waiting for the other shoe to fall that they finally said 'things look cheap' and bought.''

On the trading floor, Citicorp was the most active issue, up 3/8 to 13 1/8, rebounding from the 52-week low it set Wednesday.

Philip Morris followed, up 1 7/8 to 46 7/8. Puget Sound Power & Light was third, up 3/8 to 20 5/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T added 1 1/8 to 32 after reporting flat quarterly earnings. Analysts, however, were encouraged by the results in the context of a faltering economy and the sharp rise in oil prices during the quarter. IBM rallied 4 5/8 to 105 3/8, General Electric surged 1 7/8 to 54 1/2 Coca-Cola climbed 1 3/4 to 43 3/8, Merck jumped 1 3/4 to 80 1/8 and Woolworth surged 1 7/8 to 26.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 243,283,960 shares, compared with 199,591,530 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices gained in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index rose 2.71 to close at 291.84. Advances led declines, 315 to 232, among the 776 issues traded. The price of an average share rose 8 cents. Composite volume totaled 14,279,700 shares, vs. 11,987,510 traded Wednesday.

Fruit of the Loom led the Amex issues, up 3/8 to 7 5/8 after reporting higher third-quarter earnings.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index soared 7.25 to 334.03.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Crude oil prices rebounded late Thursday on news of an Israeli shooting of Palestinians after falling more than $2 a barrel when an Iraqi offer to sell oil at lower prices added to the market's downward bias.

The U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery ended the day up 8 cents over Wednesday's close to $36.80 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange after trading as low as $34.40 a barrel.

Analysts had been looking for WTI to drop soon to around $34 a barrel, the Oct. 2 low price of recent weeks, once selling drove prices through the Merc's key $37.15 support level late Wednesday.

The Iraqi offer to sell oil at $21 a barrel and place the revenue in a special account until after settlement of the Persian Gulf crisis reinforced the market's downward momentum of recent days.

The market had already started to drift above $35 a barrel when the story of the shooting hit around 1:30 p.m. EDT and drove bidding upward, said Tom Bentz director of trading at New York's United Energy Inc.

The stock market, however, stayed focused on the early drop in oil prices and shrugged off the shooting incident. Stocks rallied on the New York Stock Exchange where the Dow Industrials average of blue-chip stocks ended the day up 64.85 points to 2452.72, a 2.72 percent rise.

''In effect, we had two trading sessions today,'' said Peter Beutel of the Pegasus Econometrics Group in Hoboken, N.J. Oil traders abandoned ''short'' positions placed in anticipation of prices going lower.

''The second, upward session was triggered by the Israeli-Palestinian clash and the short covering that accompanied it,'' Beutel said.

''It was a fun day of whipsawing,'' said Ed Kevelson of Dean Witter Reynolds' International Energy Futures Group in New York.

Israeli soldiers shot and wounded at least 26 Arabs who attacked a newly established army observation post in a Gaza Strip refugee camp, Palestinian sources said.

Hundreds of residents in the camp threw stones and bottles at the soldiers who had just set up the post on the roof of a three-story building, the sources said. Some reports placed the number of those hurt as high as 65.

Israeli-Palestinian clashes in the Gaza are standard fare, but today's clash took ''on added meaning because people believe it has given Iraqi President Saddam Hussein an excuse for an Iraqi retaliation.''

''It raised fears of an Israeli dimension to the crisis,'' Beutel said.

Such fears have been heightened since Israeli police killed 21 Arabs in Jerusalem Oct. 8 for throwing rocks at Israeli worshippers at a disputed religious site.

When news of the shooting hit, the market may have already been in a mood to rebound after dropping more than $5 a barrel since setting the Merc's all-time closing high of $40.42 a barrel a week ago.

Bentz warned that traders ''have to careful down here at these (earlier $34) prices with buying starting to look attractive again and people looking for bargains.''

Traders still look for prices eventually to move downward if the Middle East situation stays quiet for awhile. ''If it stays quiet over there, the market would like to go lower - as low as $32 a barrel,'' Beutel said.

Oil markets have been in a downward price bias since weekend reports that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was in ''a conciliatory mood'' and was willing to talk about a partial withdrawal from occupied Kuwait.

On the Merc, home heating oil for November delivery lost 1.74 cents on the day from Wednesday's close to 96.51 cents a gallon, while November unleaded gasoline was down 0.44 cent to 92.96 cents a gallon.

Prices ended mixed on the European spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent was quoted at $35.60 a barrel, down $1.05 from Wednesday.

United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - gained 25 cents over Wednesday to $32.75 a barrel after being down $1.95.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, prompt delivery WTI crude edged up 5 cents to $36.75 a barrel.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - The cost of a first-class stamp, already expected to jump a nickel early next year, could rise another 2 cents by 1995 as a result of congressional deficit reduction plans, the U.S. Postal Service said Thursday.

The Postal Service, the quasi-governmental agency that handles U.S. mail, would be forced to save $5.8 billion over the next five years in the $500 billion deficit trimming package passed Tuesday by the House. That bill carried instructions that consumers supply the missing revenue.

The budget plan being debated in the Senate would require that the Postal Service save about $4.8 billion over five years.

The Postal Rate Commission is currently considering the Postal Service's March request for a price increase for first-class stamps from 25 cents to 30 cents, with a recommendation due before the Postal Service's board of governors in January.

The 30-cent first class stamp could be in use by about Feb. 1 if the increase is approved, as expected.

Postal Service spokesman Bob Hoobing said the congressional deficit packages ''could mean as much as two additional cents on a first-class stamp by 1995. As far as any definitive statement, we would have to wait until all the figures (in the congressional deficit reduction plans) are finalized.''

Other postal rates would also rise proportionally, he said.

Hoobing said he did not know when the Postal Service would request any rate increase spurred by the deficit plans.

The congressional plans would shift responsibility for a number of health care and retirement costs from general federal revenues to the Postal Service.

The possible stamp price increase is among several measures in the House and Senate deficit reduction bills that would raise consumer costs. Excise taxes in both the House and Senate versions would push up prices on cigarettes, alcoholic beverages and luxury items such as furs, cars and boats; the Senate version also includes a 9.5 cent a gallon gasoline tax increase.

SACRAMENTO (OCT. 19) UPI - California's homebuilding slump deepened in August to a seven-year low, as requests for residential building permits dropped 4.6 percent in one month, a statewide builders group said Thursday.

During the first eight months of the year, homebuilders have pulled permits for 127,370 units, down more than 21 percent from the 161,628 permits drawn during the same period last year.

The slide prompted industry analysts to cut their housing production estimates for 1990 and 1991. The Construction Industry Research Board now projects 176,000 housing units will be built in California this year and 168,000 units will be constructed next year. The Burbank group initially estimated more than 200,000 new housing units would be built both years.

The downturn in construction is centered in Los Angeles and Riverside counties which account for nearly half of the statewide decline in building permit requests this year, said Robert Rivinius, executive officer of the California Building Industry Association.

Rivinius blamed the homebuilding slump on higher interest rates, the crisis in the Middle East, consumer fears of a recession and a stubbornly sluggish market for used homes.

''The Mideast situation must be solved, along with a decline in interest rates to allow the economy to grow and stimulate increased sales and purchases in the overall marketplace,'' Rivinius said.

''Many builders are re-evaluating and redesigning their product line in an effort to make housing affordable to more of the home-buying public,'' he said.

Residential building permits issued in August indicated an annual rate of 144,900 - the lowest annual rate for any month since the March 1983 total of 106,400 housing units. Activity in August included permits issued for 91,400 single-family units and 53,500 multi-family units.

The August annual rate total was 32.6 percent below the August 1989 mark of 214,900 housing units and 4.6 percent under the July total of 151,900.

Some areas of the state are experiencing increased production activity this year. The Yuba City area posted a 133 percent jump in the number of building permits pulled during the first eight months of the year; Bakersfield, 29 percent; Redding, 59 percent; the Visalia-Tulare- Porterville area, 9 percent; Sacramento, 6 percent; and the Santa Barbara-Santa Maria-Lompoc area, 5 percent.

WINDSOR, Ontario (OCT. 18) UPI - Kelsey-Hayes Canada said Thursday it will close its steel wheel manufacturing plant by Nov. 2, cutting 450 jobs.

The company said the plant was being closed because of ''grave operational problems and mounting losses due to significant over- capacity in the steel wheels manufacturing industry.''

Kelsey-Hayes Canada said it authorized the sale of all its production machinery and equipment at the plant and outstanding customer purchase orders to Kelsey-Hayes Company of Romulus, Mich..

Kelsey-Hayes Canada also said it would seek to sell the remaining assets of its Windsor division.

Kelsey-Hayes Canada will continue to operate its divisions in Woodstock and St. Catharines, both in Ontario, which manufacture brake components.

Kelsey-Hayes Co. was purchased last November by Varity Corp. of Toronto.

NEW YORK (OCT. 18) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, known as M1, fell $6.9 billion in the latest reporting week. The broader monetary aggregate M2 increased by $3.3 billion, and the broadest measure of all, M3, increased by $6.3 billion.

M1, including cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money available for immediate spending - slipped to a seasonally adjusted average of $821.9 billion in the week ended Oct. 8, from a revised $828.8 billion the week before.

Over the past 13 weeks, M1 averaged $816.9 billion, up 4.5 percent from where it stood over the previous 13-week period, the central bank said.

The more broadly defined M2 averaged an estimated $3,325.5 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $3,322.2 billion. M2 includes M1 plus passbook savings, small time deposits such as money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and other short-term assets.

M3, defined as M2 plus large time deposits, securities repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, and institutional money market funds averaged $4,092.0 billion in the latest week, ahead from a revised $4,085.7 billion, the Fed said.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 18) UPI - A federal judge cut businessman Charles H. Keating Jr.'s $5 million bail to $300,000 Thursday, ruling that a lower court had acted ''arbitrarily'' in setting the high bail.

Keating has been in jail since he was indicted last month on state securities fraud charges.

In his order, U.S. District Judge John G. Davies said, ''What the trial court did is rationally unsupportable. It seems to me that the trial court acted arbitrarily.''

The decision came after a hearing at which prosecutors were asked to explain why Keating should have remained jailed on the $5 million bail. They argued he is a flight risk.

Keating won his bail reduction after going through the state appellate system. A state Court of Appeals panel had refused to lower the bail and the state Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Keating, 66, is the former chairman of American Continental Corp. of Phoenix, Ariz., which owned Lincoln Savings and Loan in Irvine, Calif. The company filed for bankruptcy in April 1989, and regulators seized Lincoln the next day.

The company sold nearly $200 million in debt securities through Lincoln's 29 Southern California branches, and the small investors who bought the bonds say they were misled into believing that the bonds were safe and insured.

A 42-count indictment accuses Keating and three others of providing investors with false and misleading information and violating other state laws in selling the bonds.

(OCT 18) UPI - Heavy snow and howling winds whipped up near-blizzard conditions in Michigan's Upper Peninsula Thursday and thunderstorms along the East Coast spawned a tornado that tore through downtown Remington, Va., ripping roofs off stores, but causing no injuries.

The National Weather Service posted a heavy snow warning for much of the Upper Peninsula with as much as a foot of snow forecast in northwest sections. About 8 inches of snow fell by midday at Calumet where strong winds pushed wind chills to zero and created near-blizzard conditions.

Snow also fell over other Great Lakes states and the Cascade Mountains of Oregon and Washington. Chicago recorded its first snow of the season, but it was very light and melted quickly.

Store roofs and broken glass littered Main Street in Remington, where thetornado hit at about 1:40 p.m.

''We were lucky,'' Councilman Leo McCarthy said. ''I think we got off real lucky. Nobody got hurt, nobody got killed. Most of the roofs are laying in Main Street,'' he said. ''They're clearing it out now.''

Leilani Triplett said she watched as the twister churned past the Remington Video store where she worked.

''You should have seen it. It was awful. Everything went flying,'' Triplett said.

''It was loud. I was saying, 'Look at the wind,' and then it really picked up and then there were all these black bags twirling round. I heard things crash and the next thing I knew the Remington Video sign was flying down the street. It looked like Mary Poppins.''

Triplett said when the wind ''started getting really strong'' she backed into a corner because she was afraid the glass might shatter.

A tornado watch was posted until 9 pm for parts of Virgnina, Maryland, New Jersey and Washington, D.C.

The winter-like storm that hit Michigan pounded Minnesota Wednesday, dumping as much as a foot of snow and dropping wind chills to near zero.

The storm also brought winds gusting to 60 mph that downed power and telephone lines in parts of the Midwest Wednesday. A boater on Lake Michigan in Chicago was missing after his 35-foot power boat was capsized by 50-mph winds and 4-foot waves.

Advisories for frost and freezing temperatures Thursday night were in effect for Illinois, Indiana, north central Kentucky, western Ohio and northern Arkansas.

A flood watch was posted for east central and southeast New York State. The ground was soaked by rain of last week and additional heavy rain was expected to push rivers and streams out of their banks.

Rainshowers and thunderstorms stretched across parts of New York, Pennsylvania

West Virginia, Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and northern Florida. Showers also were scattered over parts of Indiana, lower Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Warm weather continued across the South. A reading of 89 degrees tied a record for the day in Daytona Beach, Fla.

Tampa, Fla., Wednesday, endured its 137th day of temperatures in excess of 90 degrees. The seemingly endless summer toppled the previous record set in 1975, when 133 days had temperatures of 90 or above.

The summer heat and drought, coupled with development, also has taken its toll on nature, said Richard Paul, manager of the National Audubon Society's Tampa Bay Sanctuaries program.

''We've had some dismally dry conditions these last few springs, and I think it's been reflected in the ibis breeding population,'' he said.

The white ibis has had a tough go at finding small fish, invertebrates on which to feed.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - President Bush reversed himself again Thursday and lifted a threat to shut down the government unless Congress placed a new budget on his desk by 12:01 a.m. Saturday.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told reporters Bush would be willing to sign another stop-gap funding measure provided the House and Senate were near agreement on an acceptable spending package.

Fitzwater said once House and Senate negotiators sit down to work out a compromise on their respective budgets, the president would extend government funding for at least another few days to allow the deal to be sealed.

Shortly after Fitzwater's announcement, the House passed a ''continuing resolution'' to keep the government operating until next Wednesday, Oct. 24, and sent it to the Senate, which was debating its own budget plan.

''We believe that the conference committee (Friday) night can do its business and we can get a budget,'' Fitzwater said as negotiations on Capitol Hill struggled for a solution.

''On that basis, the president agreed to sign a continuing resolution if satisfactory progress has been made in conference with significant savings comparable to the amount for the first year, or $40 billion,'' Fitzwater said.

Bush has voiced support for the Senate bill, which mirrored a bipartisan plan rejected by the House earlier this month. He has vowed to veto the new House version, which would raise the income tax rates of the wealthiest Americans as well as the taxes on middle-income citizens.

The president, under prodding by Congress, signed a stop-gap measure on Oct. 8 ending a three-day government shutdown. But he vowed not to sign another such bill.

''If by Oct. 19 the Congress has failed to pass a budget ... I will again have to withhold my signature from any continuing resolution,'' the president said.

Members of Congress, maintaining they were making progress on a new budget, have insisted nothing would be gained by closing the government again and urged Bush to relent.

Fitzwater said the president is now willing to sign a ''short-term agreement covering two or three days'' to allow the Congress to finish work.

''If you've got a budget agreement, there is no reason to shut down the government,'' Fitzwater said.

The budget debacle has become a political nightmare for the president. This summer, in an effort to reach an agreement on a new deficit-cutting plan, he dropped his ''no new taxes pledge.''

And last week, the president initially told a news conference that he would be willing to negotiate an increase in the tax rate for the rich, provided there was a reduction in the capital gains taxes.

But he later dropped such a possible deal as unachievable.

Earlier Thursday, Bush lashed out at those who have accused him of siding with the rich and scoffed at provisions in the House bill that would alter the tax indexing program, used to adjust tax rates for inflation.

''I'm not going to let the politicians who speak so passionately about 'soaking the rich' to get away with killing the indexing, the very indexing which preserves incentives and protects the family budget,'' Bush said.

''So, I will hold everyone's feet to the fire and make them up there, to the best of my ability, do the right thing,'' the president said. ''I'm going to fight the taxers and the spenders because it is right.''

He said, ''The opposition is trying to say (I'm) favoring the rich and I'm saying I'm favoring jobs, incentive, investment.''

BOSTON (OCT. 19) UPI - The Gillette Co., riding the dazzling success of its new Sensor razor in the U.S. and overseas, reported a 41 percent increase in earnings in the latest quarter from a year earlier.

Profits were $92.2 million or 80 cents a share in the third quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with $65.2 million or 57 cents a share in the same period last year.

The increase in per-share earnings was 40 percent because the company had more shares outstanding this year than last.

Gillette said sales and profits in North America and Europe ''contributed significantly'' to the performance.

The giant shaving and personal care products company is still operating two plants in Boston and Berlin, Germany, 24 hours a day, six days a week to keep pace with demand for the Sensor that is 30 percent greater than had been anticipated, said spokesman David A. Fausch.

Gillette's chairman and chief executive officer, Colman M. Mockler Jr., said more than 21 million Sensor razors were shipped in the nine months since they were introduced in January. That's more than the company had expected for the entire year, Mockler said.

Sales for the quarter climbed 11.3 percent to $1.03 billion from $922 million a year earlier.

Wall Streeet, already aware of the Sensor's success, was still pleased with Gillette's results. Gillette stock shot up $3.75 a share on the news to $59.75 in New York Stock Exchange trading.

For the year thus far, Gillette reported earnings of $261.3 million, up 27 percent from $205.3 million for the first three quarters last year. Earnings per share climbed 11 percent to $2.25 from $2.02 in the first nine months of 1989.

Sales for the first three quarters climbed 12 percent to $3.1 billion from $2.77 billion in the equivalent period a year before.

MIAMI (OCT. 18) UPI - Nana was upgraded from a tropical storm to a hurricane Thursday with winds near 75 mph, but a turn to the northwest left it moving parallel to the U.S. coastline in the general direction of Bermuda.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Nana was centered near latitude 26.9 north, longitude 65.5 west or about 380 miles south of Bermuda, the National Hurricane Center said. It was moving northwest at near 13 mph, and forecasters predicted it would turn toward the north over the next day.

''Nana is now a hurricane with maximum sustained winds near 75 mph,'' said forecaster Bob Case. ''Some increase in strength is possible during the next 24 hours.''

Computer models at the hurricane center indicated that there was a 23 percent chance that Nana's center would pass within 65 miles of Bermuda by 2 p.m. Sunday.

Hurricane-force winds extended as far as 25 miles from the center, and tropical force winds extended as far as 85 miles.

Nana became the 14th named storm of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season Wednesday.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (OCT. 19) UPI - A subsidiary of U.S. computer maker Atari Corp. has been indicted in Taiwan for allegedly using pirated copies of common software programs, a coalition of U.S. software companies said Thursday.

A criminal indictment for copyright infringement was handed down against Atari Taiwan Manufacturing Corp. and two employees earlier this month, the Business Software Alliance said.

The indictment followed a court-ordered search of the company in April that turned up several suspected unauthorized copies of Ashton Tate's dBase III Plus software and Lotus Development Corp.'s Lotus 1-2-3 spreadsheet program, the BSA said.

Atari said the unauthorized programs were used by two employees without the company's knowledge and against its policy. The company accused the BSA of blowing the case, which involved less than a dozen pirate copies, far out of proportion.

''Being a computer company, we are very sensitive to the software community,'' said August Liguori, vice president of finance. ''We fight this kind of (piracy) all the time. It would be foolish for us to cheat our own peers over a few hundred dollars.''

The case is part of a high-profile campaign by the BSA, a watchdog coalition of U.S. software developers, to crack down on software pirates who illegally copy programs for sale or for their own use. Software piracy, which is particularly bad overseas, has been estimated to cost developers $16 billion a year in lost revenue, according to Brian McEachron, vice president of the Business Software Alliance.

''That certainly was disturbing to us, that someone in the information industry apparently was not taking the care they ought to,'' McEachron said.

In addition to Atari Taiwan, the indictment named Kuo Mao Hsing, chief of Atari Taiwan's computer center, and Chen Jian Chung, an employee in the quality control department. Infringing copies of the software programs were found on Hsing's personal computer, and Chung admitted to bringing an unauthorized copy of the Lotus program to work, the BSA said.

The charges are punishable by up to three years of jail time, and fines of about $600,000, McEachron said.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 18) UPI - Israel agreed Thursday to cooperate with the U.N. secretary-general in preparing a report on the death of 21 Palestinians during the shootings last week on Jerusalem's Temple Mount.

The proposal indicated a softening of Israel's opposition to a U.N. investigation on the Oct. 8 incidents at the Temple Mount, but stopped short of fully receiving a U.N. mission to Israel.

Israel's deputy U.N. permanent representative, Johanan Bein, told reporters he conveyed ''some messages'' from his government to Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in answer to his demand that Israel receive a U.N. mission to investigate the death of the Palestinians.

''We agreed that we will cooperate to try to find ways and means to facilitate the secretary-general to write his report and present it'' to the 15-nation council, Bein said.

Bein refused to say how Israel will assist Perez de Cuellar and whether it will receive the mission.

Perez de Cuellar had asked Israel to receive the mission, but the Israeli government rejected the demand. Israel strongly protested the Security Council resolution that condemned the deaths and ordered the inquiry.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - In the latest of a series of daring operations, California surgeons saved the life of one of two fetuses with a deformed lung by performing surgery in the womb, it was reported Thursday.

Although doctors previously performed successful operations on fetuses for other ailments, the new cases are the first in which surgery was done for a condition called congenital cystic adenomatoid malformation or CCAM, the researchers said.

''Open fetal surgery has been successful in treatment of otherwise fatal anatomical abnormalities, and we now add appropriately selected cases of CCAM to those congenital lesions that are amenable to fetal surgical therapy,'' the University of California San Francisco surgeons wrote in the British medical journal The Lancet.

CCAM is a rare disorder in which damaging cysts grow in part of the lungs of developing fetuses. In mild cases, babies can undergo surgery after they are born to have the malformed lung section removed. In severe cases, however, the malformation can kill the developing fetus and endanger the life of the mother.

In the successful case, a 25-year-old pregnant woman was discovered to be carrying a female fetus stricken with CCAM and agreed to undergo the surgery in the 23rd week of the baby's development last spring.

The 72-minute procedure involved making an incision in the mother's uterus and pulling the left arm and chest of the fetus was out through the opening. Surgeons then cut open the chest of the fetus, surgically removed the malformed lung lobe, put the fetus back in the womb and closed the incision.

The baby was delivered through Caesarean section seven weeks later and was doing well five months later, the doctors reported.

A similar procedure was earlier attempted on a fetus 27 weeks into development being carried by a 24-year-old women, the doctors reported. But the child died about a week later after the mother's condition deteriorated and the child had to be delivered by Caesarean.

Dr. Michael Harrison, a professor of surgery who led the team, attributed the failure in that case to the fetus being sicker by the time the case was diagnosed.

The same team previously has successfully performed similar surgery to save the lives of fetuses stricken with a blocked urinary tract and a condition known as congenital diaphragmatic hernias.

But Harrison cautioned in a telephone interview that such procedures are far routine and are only performed when there are no alternatives.

''We're still very early in our experience. We're still feeling our way along.I don't think people should think this is routine,'' he said.

ANCHORAGE, AK (OCT. 18) UPI - Searchers scanning the arctic ice for a missing federal wildlife research team have spotted polar bears on the ice but no sign of the men on a mission to track the animals, the Coast Guard said Thursday, one week after the search began.

''The searchers can see polar bears and walruses on the ice, but just no sign of (the missing biologists) at all,'' Coast Guard spokesman Ed Moreth said from Juneau. ''And you know that if they can see polar bears from the air, the weather must be good.''

But good searching weather has not been enough to turn up even a single clue to the disappearance of the researchers' twin-engine plane, which vanished over the polar ice last week carrying two U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologists and their pilot.

Thursday was the seventh day of the search, begun when the wildlife plane failed to return as scheduled to the Deadhorse airport at Prudhoe Bay Oct. 11.

Night searches also were conducted this week in hopes that the sound of search planes would prompt the missing men to light signal flares and reveal their location.

The plane carried two weeks' worth of food, plenty of survival gear and two emergency locator transmitters - but no signal has been picked up.

A crash landing on the ice would have set off the ELTs, but if the plane crashed into a stretch of open water between the arctic coast and the polar pack ice, no signal would be transmitted from under water, Moreth said.

Searchers have covered 86,000 square miles north of Point Barrow, the northernmost point of land in the United States. Six planes, three Coast Guard C-130s and three civilian planes, were continuing the search, Moreth said. He said the search area was expanded to the east and searchers had not given up hope.

''We take each day as it comes,'' Moreth said. ''We don't decide one week later that we'll shut down the case.''

Searchers have flown as far as 250 miles north of the Alaska coast in their flights over the polar ice pack. Some search planes have had to return at times because of icing on their wings, Moreth said.

Two the federal wildlife agency's five polar bear biologists, John Bevins, 35, and George Menkens, 33, were on the plane. The pilot, with an estimated 20 years experience in arctic flying, was Clifford Minch.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 18) UPI - The Angolan ambassador to the United Nations Thursday welcomed a vote in the U.S. House of Representatives that restricted aid to rebels seeking to overthrow the Angolan government.

But Manuel Pacavira lashed out at the Bush administration for its support of the rebels, saying the Angolan government has abandoned Marxist-Leninism and wants improved business relations with the United States.

The House voted Wednesday to restrict future CIA aid to the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA.

The measure was an amendment added to a $30 billion bill authorizing spending for U.S. intelligence activities. It was sponsored by Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., and would stop military assistance to UNITA for three months once Angola's government has agreed to a cease-fire, a settlement with UNITA that would include elections within two years, and an end to Soviet military aid.

The ambassador said his government was holding talks with UNITA aimed at ending the 15-year war but that the talks were being held up by rebel demands that the government recognize it officially. He said his government was moving toward a multiparty system and had not precluded recognizing UNITA, but that to do so before a cease-fire would legitimize ''armed insurrection.''

The CIA gives UNITA about $60 million a year. Pacavira criticized the Bush administration for wanting to continue the support, saying it was leading to death and destruction in his country. ''We do not want confrontation with the United States.'' he said, ''We want to do business with the it.''

He noted the excellent relations his government has with U.S., French and Italian oil companies operating in Angola as evidence of its good intentions.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 18) UPI - A federal judge cut businessman Charles H. Keating Jr.'s $5 million bail to $300,000 Thursday, ruling that a lower court had acted ''arbitrarily'' in setting the higher bail.

''The bail level is a violation of Mr. Keating's ... Constitutional rights,'' U.S. District Judge John G. Davies said in slashing the bail. ''It seems to me that the trial court acted arbitrarily.''

Keating, the former owner of failed Lincoln Savings, has been held in a 6-by-8-foot County Jail cell since Sept. 18 after being indicted on state securities and fraud charges.

With his bail lowered, he could be released as early as Thursday evening, his attorneys indicated following the one-hour federal court hearing.

Bradley Boland, one of Keating's five son-in-laws, said, ''We'll see'' in response to questions on how soon Keating, whose home is in Phoenix, would be out of jail.

To obtain his freedom, Keating, along with posting $300,000 bail, would also have to surrender his passport, agree not to travel outside the continental United States and agree to make a weekly report of his whereabouts to the District Attorney's office.

If the bail is not met in cash, Keating or his family would be required to post property or some other type of collateral with a value of about $420,000.

Keating, 66, who made a fortune in Arizona real estate and had accumulated assets of nearly $40 million three years ago but claims he is now a pauper, did not attend the hearing.

He and three co-defendants are scheduled to go to trial Nov. 26, although attorneys for both sides say that the start of the trial may be delayed.

Superior Court Judge Gary Klausner had set the $5 million bail after Keating surrendered upon being indicted by the county grand jury on 42 counts in connection with the sale of $250 million of now-worthless American Continental Corp. bonds through branches of Lincoln Savings.

Klausner refused to lower Keating's bail, saying he represented a flight risk. The judge, defending the $5 million figure late last month, explained that it represented a traditional 2 percent of the loss suffered by those allegedly victimized by Keating's actions.

Many of the victims were elderly and lost their life savings after American Continental filed for bankruptcy in April 1989 and Lincoln was seized the following day by federal regulators.

Keating's attorneys have claimed he is more than $5 million in debt and said that his family of six children could raise enough funds to make $500,000 bail and then only through pledging their houses as collateral.

In arguing for the lower bail, Keating's attorneys portrayed him as a strongly religious family man who has been persecuted by the media and wants to vindicate himself.

''He is probably the most vilified man since Richard Nixon,'' attorney Jack Quinn told the judge. ''The prospect of his children losing the places where they live would never allow Charlie Keating to leave'' the country.

But prosecutors told Davies that Keating's contention that he is broke has never been supported through an independent auditing of his finances, only by evidence presented through his personal accountant.

Davies said in his ruling that the only issue on which he could rule was whether the lower court had acted in an arbitrary manner is setting the bail at $5 million.

''What the trial court did is rationally unsupportable,'' Davies said. ''There is no rational reason why 2 percent of $250 million should be the amount of the bail.''

Davies also said that Klausner had acted arbitrarily by setting significantly lower bails for Keating's co-defendants - former American Continental President July Wischer, 42; former Lincoln chief executive officer Robin Symes 37; and fomer Lincoln president Ray Fidel, 32.

Klausner had originally set bails for the trio at $1 million each, but lowered them to $200,000 for Wischer and $100,000 for Symes and Fidel. All bailed out of jail shortly thereafter.

Davies, noting that all four defendants are named in each count, said, ''I can see no rational reason for this disparate treatment.''

Keating won his bail reduction after going through the state appellate system. A state Court of Appeal panel had refused to lower the bail and the state Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 18) UPI - A man on trial for allegedly raping comedian Sam Kinison's girlfriend while the comic was asleep in a drunken stupor testified Thursday that the woman had sex with him willingly.

Unway Carter, 22, testified he met Kinison June 21 at a Sunset Strip rock club and that the comic paid him $100 to be his bodyguard for the night. After a night of heavy drinking by the comedian, Kinison and Carter took a taxi back to the entertainer's Hollywood Hills home, where Kinison passed out, Carter said.

The 6-foot-5, 300-pound Carter said he then heard Kinison's girlfriend yelling at the comic, accusing him of ''two-timing her, boozing it up.''

After the argument, Carter said, he went to the girlfriend's bedroom to see if she was alright and found her crying.

''I put my arm around her,'' he said. ''I was trying to make her feel better. Next thing I know, we was embraced in a kiss. We rolled around on the bed for awhile. She started to take her leotards off. I was wondering what was going on.''

Carter and the woman then had sex, he said. She didn't resist in any manner and he believed she wanted to have sex, Carter testified.

Afterwards, Carter said, the woman told him: '''We can't let Sam know what happened.' She'd be cut off (finacially).''

Carter said the woman then got up to go the bathroom and a short time later, he heard shots fired.

''My first thought was that she had shot him or he was shooting her,'' Carter said.

Carter said he dialed the 911 emergency line and waited for police to come to Kinison's home. When they did, he was arrested for allegedly raping the woman.

Kinison may be called as a prosecution rebuttal witness at the Superior Court trial.

GOLDEN, Colo. (OCT. 19) UPI - Adolph Coors Co. shareholders approved a plan Thursday to restructure the brewmaker into a holding company.

Coors execurtives said the reorganization will be accomplished by transferring most of the assets related to the company's brewing business to a wholly owned subsidiary.

The subsidiary will operate as ''Coors Brewing Co.,'' the company's current trade name for its beer business. The transfer of assets is scheduled to be effective Dec. 31.

The company said the restructuring will ''enhance management focus in each of the businesses'' and will ''provide other advantages, such as increased financial flexibility and lower financing costs and taxes.''

Other measures approved by Class A and Class B stockholders included an increase in the number of authorized shares of the company's Class B common stock from 46.2 million shares to 100 million shares, and authorization of a new class of 25 million shares of non-voting preferred stock.

The share increases are primarily designed to give the company increased financial flexibility, company executives said.

(OCT 18 -Digital Equipment Corp. and Apple Computer Inc., two of the nation's largest computer manufacturers, posted sharply lower earnings Thursday, but their stocks rose in a bull market.

Digital, suffering from a slowdown in the minicomputer market, reported an 82.6 percent decline in first-quarter earnings. Apple posted a 38.9 percent decline in fourth-quarter profits.

Digital, the nation's second-largest computer manufacturer, posted net income of $26.2 million, or 21 cents a share, down from $150.8 million, or $1.20 a share, in the first quarter last year.

Revenue for the quarter, ended Sept. 29, slid to $3.09 billion from $3.13 billion in the year-earlier quarter, reflecting a 6.5 percent drop in product sales. Service revenue rose 8 percent in the quarter.

Wall Street reacted favorably to Digital's report, pushing Digital's stock up $4.25 to close at $51 a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

Digital, of Maynard, Mass., said it was cutting expenses by trimming its work force, consolidating facilities, reducing discretionary spending and increasing automation. Last year, Digital reduced its work force by 1,800 workers through voluntary buyouts, and it said it plans to cut another 5,000 employees this year.

The company's U.S. business showed ''some improvement'' in the first quarter, said John Smith, senior vice president of operations.

''While the pace of business in Europe and other parts of the world has slowed we continue to be encouraged by positive customer reaction to both existing and upcoming hardware, software and service products,'' Smith said.

Apple, the nation's sixth largest computer company, posted net income for the quarter ended Sept. 28 of $98.5 million, or 81 cents a share, down from $161.1 million, or $1.24 a share, in the fourth quarter of the prior year.

Apple's sales for the quarter slid to $1.35 billion from $1.38 billion in the year-earlier period.

Last year's fourth-quarter earnings included a $48 million gain from the sale of Apple's stock in software maker Adobe Systems Inc.

The Cupertino, Calif., manufacturer of personal computers said it expected sales to improve in the current fiscal year because of the introduction Monday of three new Macintosh personal computers, including an entry-level model priced at $999.

Apple released its earnings after the close of the stock market. Its stock closed up $2 at $28.50 a share.

For the fiscal year, Apple said its net income grew 4.6 percent to $474.9 million, or $3.77 a share, from $454 million, or $3.53 a share, in the prior year. Sales grew to $5.56 billion from $5.28 billion in the previous year.

OAKLAND, Calif. (OCT. 18) UPI - Tom Browning was nervous enough watching Game 2 of the World Series from the Cincinnati dugout Wednesday night. And then it happened.

''A clubhouse boy came over and told me my wife wanted to talk to me when we were up to bat in the seventh inning,'' said Browning, the Reds starter in Game 3. ''I knew then what it was.''

What Browning knew is that his wife was about to give birth to the couple's third child.

Browning told the clubhouse boy to tell the coaching staff he was heading to the hospital with his wife, Debbie, and would not be back.

''That was first mistake,'' said Browning during batting practice Thursday in the Oakland Coliseum. ''I should have told them myself.''

Somehow, word never got back to the Reds coaching staff, and when manager Lou Pinella saw how many pitchers he was using, he told coach Stan Williams not to let Browning go anywhere.

''I was down to three pitchers, so I thought just maybe I'd have to use Tom if the game went into extra innings,'' Pinella said. ''Williams said no problem, Tom would be ready.''

By the eighth, it looked like Browning may just get the nod as the Reds tied the contest 4-4.

''I was shocked (when he couldn't find Browning on the bench),'' said Williams. ''Lou said 'What the hell is going on?' I said I didn't know. I didn't think a guy would just up and leave the World Series.''

Williams was soon informed of Browning's plight and sent word to the clubhouse to start calling all the hospitals in the Cincinnati area. In the meantime, the local radio announcer Marty Brennamen issued the all point bulletin over the airways.

''I really didn't hear about it (the call for his return to the stadium) until Tim McCarver said something about it over the television, '' said Browning, who has an impressive 7-1 record with a 2.71 ERA on the road this season. ''I had my own situation to worry about. I wasn't going to be able to get back to the stadium.''

While the Reds were searching the countryside for Browning, the Cincinnati pitcher was pacing in the delivery room in full uniform.

''I had to do what I had to do,'' Browning said. ''I didn't even have time to change. Thank goodness I had my turf shoes on.

When Joe Oliver's double bought Bill Bates home with the winning run in the 10th, no one was more thankful than Browning.

''The baby (Tucker Thomas Browning) was born about a half an hour later,'' Browning said. ''Two thrills in a row - a two-game lead in the Series and a new son.''

Williams said there was no hard feelings over Browning going AWOL.

''It's perfectly understandable what he did,'' Williams said. ''In a situation like that a man has to do what's best for his family.''

The last pitcher whose wife gave birth during a World Series was Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen, who tossed a 5-hit shutout in Game 7 of the 1985 Series a day after the birth of his son.

DALLAS (OCT. 18) UPI - The agency that oversees the state's interest in the superconducting super collider Thursday voted to accelerate the state's appropriations by $60 million in anticipation of federal budget cuts.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission already had planned to commit $89 million to the project, bringing the state's fiscal 1991 contribution to $149 million.

Joseph Cipriano, the manager of the Department of Energy's SSC project office, asked for the accelerated funding, saying it was essential to keep the giant atom-smasher program on schedule.

The House and Senate appropriations conference committee last Friday removed approximately $50 million in federal funding for the SSC project as part of deficit-reduction measures included in the 1991 energy and water development spending bills.

Cipriano told panel members that 1991 funding is particularly important because of several crucial programs, including demonstrating that the massive magnets that are central to the project's success will function properly.

''If we can proceed in 1991 on schedule, we will have a very firm and strong technical basis'' for continuing the high-energy physics project, he said.

Commission Chairman Morton H. Meyerson said without the state increase, the project would have been delayed ''six months or one year'' and would ultimately cost more.

''If you extend the time to build it, it obviously is going to cost more because of inflation,'' he said.

The state has committed at least $1 billion to the project's total cost, which the DOE put at $5.9 billion earlier this year. The SSC is now expected to cost $8 billion, although sources in government and industry say the figure could go much higher. Four audits conducted this summer estimated the collider would cost between $7.8 billionand $11.7 billion.

The state in May sold the first $250 million in general obligation bonds to fund the project.

Only about $4 million of the $250 million has been spent, with the rest earning interest in short- to medium-term U.S. Treasury notes. With state funding projections for fiscal year 1992 ranging from $101 million to $200 million, the entire $250 million could be spent by the end of fiscal 1992.

''Before too long, at this rate of expenditure, we'll have to go back to the market again to raise more money,'' Commissioner Peter O'Donnell Jr., who is in charge of finance and budget matters, told the panel.

In other action Thursday, the commission voted to provide up to $5 million for the magnet development laboratory and agreed to a ''Memorandum of Understanding'' clarifying the state and DOE roles in the joint effort.

The commission also agreed in principal to develop a plan for a state-owned office building of up to 200,000 square feet at a cost of up to $16 million to be located near the main SSC campus in Ellis County.

The office project, which would require DOE approval, would combine state and federal offices in a central location. The state would own the building and collect rent on the office space, Meyerson told panel members.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Senators heeded the warnings of their leaders and today rejected an amendment that might have doomed a deficit-cutting budget bill. The amendment called for higher taxes for the rich and a lower increase in the federal gasoline tax.

It also would have eliminated higher costs for Medicare beneficiaries, including a proposal for higher annual premiums. Senate leaders warned earlier that President Bush threatened to veto tax hikes for the wealthy.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 18) UPI - President Bush warmly welcomed Prime Minister Jozef Antall to the White Hosue Thursday, declaring ''Hungary is a democracy'' and promising to urge world financial institutions to complement U.S. aid with more loans.

''Hungary is no longer an emerging democracy,'' said Bush. ''Hungary is a democracy.''

The Bush administration has sought to back democratic reforms in Hungary and the rest of Eastern Europe with economic assistance, food and energy as well as trade.

In his remarks the president noted that he has asked Congress for $300 million in assistance for Hungary and $47.5 million in credits for feed grain purchases.

In addition, he said that American companies are committed to over $500 million in investments in the former communist country.

Bush said that Hungary, like other new democracies in Eastern Europe, is ''paying a price a high price for resolutely supporting the United Nations resolutions'' against the Iraqi takeover of Kuwait.

The president said the United States is asking the International Monetary Fund to increase its lending to Hungary by as much as $5 billion and also will ask the World Bank to accelerate its assistance in the energy field because of a recent unexpected cutback in Soviet oil deliveries.

The cut has forced Hungary to delve into its meager hard-currency reserves to buy additional petroleum at world market prices.

The government has been criticized for its cautious approach to economic reform and privatizing state-owned property. The government has failed to implement a comprehensive economic program or to take effective measures to curb inflation, now running at an annual rate of nearly 30 percent.

Antall said that ''economic change is far more difficult than political change'' as his country is attempting to transform its government centrally controlled economy to a free market.

''Hungary today is a parliamentary republic and we have laid the groundwork for a free market economy,'' said Antall, 58, a former library and museum director.

Antall's center-right Hungarian Democratic Forum won parliamentary elections in March and April - the country's first free balloting in 43 years - and now heads the three-party governing coalition.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) UPI - The stocks of MGM/UA Communications and Pathe Communications jumped Thursday on rumors that Pathe is on the verge of completing its $1.3 billion deal for MGM/UA ahead of next week's deadline.

MGM/UA rose $1.50 to $15.75 a share on the New York Stock Exchange, while Pathe was up 62.5 cents to $4.375 a share on the Big Board.

Pathe, which is controlled by Italian financier Giancarlo Parretti, has until Oct. 23 to close the deal for MGM/UA, where production has slowed to a trickle during the past two years while the studio has been on the block.

Despite widespread skepticism in the entertainment industry that Parretti could finance the deal, Pathe has made a total of $353 million in non-refundable down payments to MGM/UA and all but $100 million of that has been distributed to its shareholders.

Pathe has indicated in filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission that it would obtain the additional financing through a complex series of deals involving Parretti's European assets.

''I have heard the rumors about the deal closing soon, but I am still not sure that Pathe will be able to complete the deal,'' entertainment analyst Steven Hill of Sutro & Co. in San Francisco said Thursday.

Pathe originally announced the deal in March and subsequently obtained an agreement from Time Warner Inc. to provide a $650 million loan in exchange for distribution rights to Pathe and MGM/UA films and the valuable United Artists film library.

The library, with more than 1,000 titles, includes ''One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest'' and the James Bond and ''Pink Panther'' films. It is viewed as the key MGM/UA asset.

That agreement fell through in June and both companies subsequently sued each other, alleging breach of contract. However, reports have emerged this week that Time Warner may again be involved with financing the deal.

Time Warner stock rose $1.375 to $68.50 a share Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

(OCT. 18) UPI - Workers in Alvin, Texas, have UNearthed 33 bodies from two fields officials say were used as illegal dumpsites for as many as 80 bodies donated to a chiropractic college. The digging began yesterday following the indictment of Richard Herrin. For more than three years, Herrin had been paid by the Pasadena school to cremate the remains of cadavers donated to the school. Instead, officials say Herrin buried the bodies on private land southeast of Houston.

Martin Luther DIDN'T get much credit in the 16th century when he challenged the Roman Catholic Church. Now in the 20th century, the German religious reformer has a chance at a six-thousand-dollar line of credit from a Maryland bank. The letter offering a Chevy Chase Federal Savings Bank gold card to Luther was mailed to Washington, D-C's Luther Place Memorial Church. The pastor... John Steinbruck... says he wrote back, saying Luther already had UNlimited credit, in the form of grace, and already enjoyed a ''preferred status.''

Actress Jane Fonda was in Moscow today to celebrate physical fitness. She led about 500 cheering Soviet women in a one-point-six-mile run around the red brick walls of the Kremlin. A Soviet military band played ''Stars and Stripes Forever'' as runners headed off from Red Square. Fonda's aerobic exercise videotapes have made her an international symbol of good health.

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Trimble Navigation (NASDAQ:TRMB), a leading manufacturer of GPS products, announced financial results for the quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Third quarter revenue of $16.1 million increased 137 percent over the like quarter of 1989, while nine months revenue of $39.2 million increased 87 percent over the similar period a year ago. Product sales, representing revenue other than technology licenses and research, were $39.1 million for the 1990 nine-month period, a 112 percent increase over the 1989 nine-month period.

Operating income and net income for the 1990 third quarter and nine months also improved substantially over the corresponding 1989 periods. Net income of $626,000 and $786,000 for the 1990 quarter and nine months, respectively (4 cents per share and 5 cents per share for the periods) compares to losses in the 1989 periods.

The increase in Trimble revenue is broadly distributed across all of its product lines. Customer demand for product remains strong, especially in the government systems group which was recently awarded contracts totalling over $7 million for hand-held GPS receivers.

The majority of the receivers under these contracts will be delivered during the company's fourth quarter which ends Dec. 31, 1990. Sales of GPS receivers for survey, mapping and marine applications continue at historically high levels. The company also commenced shipments of products targeted to aviation markets during the third quarter.

Trimble Navigation completed its initial public offering of 3 million shares of common stock on July 20, 1990. The company sold 2.5 million shares in the offering and 500,000 shares were sold by certain selling shareholders. The offering was managed by Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Company Inc. and Needham & Company Inc.

Trimble is the world leader in the emerging commercial market for satellite-based navigation and position data products using the U.S. Government-funded Global Positioning System (GPS). Trimble designs, manufactures, and markets electronic instruments and systems for determining precise geographic location.

These products are sold in a variety of markets including survey and mapping, Geographic Information Systems (GIS), marine, aviation, vehicle tracking, military applications, and differential GPS systems. The company, founded in 1978 and located in the heart of Silicon Valley, Calif., has been selling GPS to the world market since 1984.

SEATTLE (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Alaska Air Group, Inc. (NYSE, PSE) Friday reported consolidated third quarter net profit of $19.7 million.

This compares with last year's third quarter profit of $23.5 million. Fully diluted per share earnings for the quarter were $1.08 versus $1.26 last year.

Operating revenues for the third quarter of 1990 rose ten percent to $295.7 million, up from $268.9 million last year. Correspondingly, passenger traffic grew by nine percent. Operating expenses increased 14 percent to $264.0 million from $231.5 million last year. Available seat mile capacity increased by 13 percent. Aircraft fuel expense increased 43 percent, or $14.1 million, due primarily to sharply higher fuel prices attributed to the Kuwait invasion. The operating expense per available seat mile was 10.8 cents, up from 10.7 cents in the 1989 third quarter.

''It was frustrating to watch the price of fuel go up almost daily while it remained in ample supply worldwide,'' said Bruce R. Kennedy, chairman and chief executive officer. ''During the quarter, the average fuel price was 80 cents per gallon. However, it rose from 65 cents in July to $1.20 by the end of September. The higher fuel price added $10 million to our third quarter costs. The cumulative 9.5 percent fare increase should provide some relief, but the impact of fuel costs will be even more severe in the fourth quarter,'' noted Kennedy.

For the nine months ended September 30, 1990, the company reported consolidated net profit of $27.3 million, or $1.53 per share. This is down from 1989's net profit of $40.5 million, or $2.36 per share. Operating revenues for the 1990 period were $789.8 million, 14 percent greater than the $693.2 million posted a year ago. Operating expenses were $743.8 million, a 19 percent increase from $626.3 million for the 1989 nine-month period.

RICHARDSON, TX (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Rockwell International Corp.'s Command and Control Systems Division (CCSD) has received a $2 million contract from the U.S. Customs Service for the production and delivery of P-3 Airborne Early Warning and Control (AEW&C) communications suite equipment.

Under terms of the contract, issued by the Department of the Treasury, U.S. Customs Service, Washington, D.C., Office of Procurement, CCSD will provide P-3 AEW&C communications suite equipment for Aircraft 3 and the communications suite equipment for the ugrade of Aircraft 1 and 2.

CCSD will also provide production and delivery of the high-frequency antenna interfaces to include Radio Frequency Interference enclosures for the existing long-wire and boom antenna.

The communications suite and upgrade equipment consists of MIL-STD-1553B data bus integrated control; AN/ARC-207 high-frequency, AN/ARC-182 multiband and AN/ARC-171 UHF radios; and a bus system interface unit for flight deck radio control.

The P-3 AEW aircraft is deployed by the U.S. Customs Service in surveillance of potential traffickers operating from surface or airborne platforms. There are currently two aircraft operating with CCSD communications systems.

Work on the program will be performed at the CCSD facility in Richardson and at Rockwell's Collins Avionics and Communications Division facility in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

LONGMONT, COLO. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - PrairieTek Corp., developer and manufacturer of the industry's first 2.5-inch hard disk drives, announces the newest additions to its family of small drives.

Within the next year, PrairieTek will unveil five 2.5-inch models including low profile, dual disk 40 MB and 80 MB drives which will be available in evaluation quantities in the second half of 1991 and in production by the end of the year.

A single disk 40MB for even smaller system applications will become available in late 1991. Also slated for production are SCSI versions of these products. All of these drives will incorporate PrairieTek's patented ramp head loading mechanism and have a mean time between failure (MTBF) rating of 100,000 power on hours (POH), the highest in the industry.

The first of these new drives, the Prairie 242, a 42.8 megabyte (MB) hard drive, will be previewed at Fall COMDEX in Las Vegas. The 242 consumes an average of 0.7 watts in power savings mode and only 0.06 watts in standby mode and weighs just 7.9 ounces (225 grams). With overall dimensions of 0.75 x 2.75 x 4.0 inches, including the integrated AT/XT controller, the Prairie 242 provides manufacturers of notebook and laptop computer systems with a rugged, high performance drive that requires minimal space and power.

''This drive is based on the Prairie 120 technology to take advantage of component availability and to yield a quick production ramp,'' said Leon Malmed, senior vice president of sales and marketing for PrairieTek.

An added design feature of the 242 is a single source power supply which requires only +5 volts for operation. With this feature, smaller power supplies and fewer batteries can be used, which reduces overall computer system weight and cost.

PrairieTek Corp., a privately held company, provides original equipment manufacturers with rugged, high performance, low-power disk drives. PrairieTek manufacturers 2.5-inch hard disk drives for laptop and portable computers and has its headquarters and manufacturing facilities located at 1830 Lefthand Cir. in Longmont. In addition, PrairieTek drives are manufactured in Japan by its manufacturing partner, ALPS Electric.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Gemstar Development Corp., Friday announced that it is making its unique VCR Plus+ (TM) technology available for inclusion in all future VCR designs, according to Paul Newman, Gemstar vice president.

VCR Plus+, which will be available first as a separate remote device starting this November at a suggested retail price of $59.95, utilizes the patent-pending PlusCode (TM) technology to make taping an easy one-step process.

Consumers simply punch in the short PlusCode number which will be printed in the television listing guides of many major newspapers and TV publications. Then, the remote VCR Plus+ device activates the taping mechanism of the VCR, ensuring that the desired show will be taped at the right time, on the right channel and for the proper duration.

Gemstar's licensing program is designed to bring the benefits of the PlusCode system -- quick and accurate taping -- inside future VCRs, requiring no significant design modifications by VCR manufacturers.

According to Newman, VCR Plus+ has generated strong positive response from a number of the world's leading VCR manufacturers. Several companies, to be named shortly, have signed agreements with Gemstar to incorporate the technology into their VCR products in 1991.

''The PlusCode technology offers the only true one-step way to tape TV shows '' said Newman. ''Unlike some other proposed VCR taping systems, VCR Plus+ is the only product that has been developed with the consumer in mind.

Gemstar Development Corp. is a privately held company formed to develop and market technological products which simplify life for consumers. Headquarters are located at 135 North Los Robles, Suite 870, Pasadena, Calif. 91101; 818/588-0100.

WALNUT CREEK, CALIF. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Longs Drug Stores announced Friday that it will continue to provide pharmacy records and professional assistance to the more than 300,000 Foundation Health Plan members in California after Longs' exclusive provider contract with FHP terminates at the close of business tonight (Oct. 19).

Longs' Executive Vice President Steve Roath said, ''In spite of our business differences with Foundation, Longs will live up to its 52-year tradition of caring for the customer first by pledging to fulfill the pharmacy needs of the FHP members right up until our last store closes tonight. After today, we will then make our records available to Foundation customers so they can transfer the information to their new provider of covered benefits.

Roath added, ''Although as of tonight, Longs stores will no longer be providers of prescriptions under the FHP Drug Plan program, we don't intend to abandon our customers. Health needs not covered by FHP will continue to be provided at Longs. ''We did everything in our power to avoid this day, but now that it has come we will try to minimize the inconvenience and confusion for FHP members.''

Longs established a network of 182 chain and independent pharmacies to service the FHP contract, which went into effect in April 1988.

Roath emphasized, ''Since 1988, Longs stores and its affiliated pharmacies filled more than 2 million prescriptions without any significant complaints from Foundation or its more than 300,000 members. I'm proud of Longs' people. Their performance has helped to build on our reputation of providing quality products and courteous service.''

''Testimony to our quality service is that Foundation has chosen to renew its contract with some of the pharmacies which were our partners in the statewide network. We urge Foundation members to check with these pharmacies to see if they are continuing as providers.''

ST. JOSEPH, MO (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - St. Joseph Light & Power Co. Friday reported third quarter earnings of $1.09 cents per share of common stock.

This is 15 cents higher than the 94 cents per share the company reported in that quarter in 1989, Terry F. Steinbecker, president said.

The company had third quarter net income of $4.5 million on revenues of $22.7 million, compared to third quartrer 1989 net income of $4.1 million on revenues of $21.5 million.

Third quarter unit sales of electricity increased 7.2 percent from a year earlier, primarily the result of a warmer air conditioning season in 1990 than during 1989. This affected residential and commercial sales which increased 15.5 and 3.6 percent, respectively. Sales to industrial customers were stable.

Net income increased 9.8 percent, primarily as a result of the increase in revenues. Operating expenses, excluding taxes, increased from $14.3 million for the third quarter in 1989 to $14.9 million in 1990. This resulted primarily from increased fuel expenses caused by the higher sales.

For the first nine months of 1990, the company reported earnings of $1.95 per share, compared to 1989 earnings of $2 for the same period. Nine month revenues for 1990 totaled $60.5 million, compared to $59.7 million in 1989. Net income for the nine months was $8.1 million compared to $8.8 million in 1989.

The 1990 earnings per share amounts also were impacted by the compnay's stock repurchase program. The repurchase of 600,000 shares of common stock, authorized in January 1988, was completed in September 1990.

Light & Power has about 4.1 million shares of common stock outstanding.

SAN DIEGO (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Maxwell Laboratories Inc. (OTC:MXWL), of San Diego, has announced that it has been awarded a cost plus fixed fee contract valued at approximately $3 million by the Naval Sea Systems Command.

The contract was won competitively and is for the design and development of a mobile rechargeable Pulse Forming Network (PFN), which is capable of providing a wide range of repetitive electrical pulses to an electrothermal (ET) gun.

The PFN will be integrated with a moble turbine generator set (not part of this contract) and a government-developed control and data acquisition system prior to the integration of the PFN into the ET Gun System for demonstration of the ET gun.

The PFN will use high-energy density capacitors, also to be supplied by Maxwell, as the energy storage component. It is planned that the entire gun system will be used in a demonstration firing to be conducted at the Naval Surface Warfare Center, Dahlgren, Va., in December 1992.

San Diego-based Maxwell Laboratories Inc. designs, develops and manufactures pulse power equipment and performs research and computer- based analysis for defense, energy, industrial and environmental markets.

PORTLAND, OR (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Northwest Natural Gas Co. (OTC:NWNG) Friday reported that conversions of customers from oil to natural gas for space heating continue at a record level, contributing to substantial growth in the customer base and to third quarter operating results which kept pace with last year.

''Our strong residential and commercial sales reflect a rapid growth in customers from both new homes and conversions from heating oil and electricity '' said Robert L. Ridgley, president and chief executive officer. ''Northwest Natural Gas had more than 306,000 customers as of Sept. 30, 1990, up by 15,200 customers or 5.2 percent from last year. Our competitive position in these markets is enhanced because rates in these markets as we enter the 1990-91 heating season are lower than rates in place four years ago.''

The company reported a loss of 26 cents per share for the third quarter of 1990, the same as last year's third quarter results. A third quarter loss is customary for the company, reflecting low summertime use of natural gas.

Natural gas deliveries to residential and commercial customers for the year through September were 253 million therms, down only 2 percent from last year's pace in spite of weather that has been 11 percent warmer than last year and 12 percent warmer than average.

Gas deliveries (sales and transportation) to industrial customers were 448 million therms for the first nine months, up from last year's 433 million therms.

''The company's deliveries to its industrial markets, which are not as sensitive to weather, reflect the continuing strength of the economy of the Pacific Northwest and the success of our special contracts in maintaining and building this load,'' Ridgley explained. Earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $1.30 per share on net income available for common stock of $14,919,000. This result was down from $1.54 per share and $16,500,000 of net income available for common stock reported for the first nine months of 1989, a period highlighted by exceptionally cold weather and all-time record earnings in the first quarter.

Northwest Natural Gas has increased its quarterly common stock dividend to 42 cents per share from 41 cents per share effective with dividends to be paid on Nov. 15 to shareholders of record on Oct. 31, 1990.

PORTLAND, ORE. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Ernst G. Stoeckl, chairman and chief executive officer of Freightliner Corp., has been appointed chairman of the board of AEG, the second largest of DailmerBenz' subsidiaries.

Stoeckl's appointment was approved at the AEG board meeting today and will become effective Jan. 1, 1991. Stoeckl will succeed Heinz Duerr, present AEG chairman of the board, who has been requested to take over chairmanship of the German Railroad System at this exciting time of reunification. It is expected that Stoeckl will also be appointed to the worldwide board of management for DaimlerBenz shortly.

As AEG chairman, Stoeckl will be responsible for the overall management of AEG. AEG is a diversified company with a broad technological base in the areas of office and communication systems, microelectronics, automation and transportation systems. The company has annual sales in excess of $8 billion and has 77,000 employees worldwide with representation in 111 countries.

In the United States, AEG sales have increased considerably over the last five years since DaimlerBenz purchased AEG in 1985. AEG companies in the United States include a joint venture with Westinghouse to produce airport People Movers; ownership of AEG Olympia Office GmbH, which produces office equipment and communication systems; a partnership with Electrocom, one of the largest manufacturers of letter-sorting equipment for post offices; and other automation companies such as Modicon and Modcomp.

Stoeckl joined Freightliner in April 1988 as president and chief executive officer, and became chairman in 1990. Since then, the company's market share increased from 16.3 percent in 1988 to 19.4 percent year-to-date 1990. During that time, an unprecedented number of new products were developed and introduced, including a major breakthrough with the military for trucks for the U.S. Army.

Stoeckl led the development of a master plan for Freightliner comprising a product strategy and manufacturing strategy for the 1990s. The product strategy takes Freightliner from a heavy-duty manufacturer-only status to the design and manufacturing of a product range covering the entire medium-duty and heavy-duty segments. The new line of medium-duty products will be introduced in 1991.

Part of the master plan also comprises a manufacturing concept in the United States and Canada which included massive investments in its manufacturing facilities and parts distribution centers.

Freightliner Corp. produces and markets heavy-duty Freightliner trucks and Mercedes-Benz medium-duty trucks for North America. The company is a member of the Mercedes-Benz AG group.

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Indoor Air Diagnostics Inc. is pleased to announce it is the exclusive distributor for Young Environmental Services (Y.E.S.) in Northern California.

Indoor Air Diagnostics (IAD) specializes in the indoor environment and is dedicated to maintaining clean, healthful air in office buildings and residences.

''The Y.E.S. products are a perfect fit with our high standards for the indoor environment,'' said Rick Hendrick, IAD Vice President of Operations. ''IAD plans to introduce the complete Y.E.S. line at the Northern California Energy

Exposition, October 23-25, at the Santa Clara County Exposition Hall. At this time the extensive array of Y.E.S. sensory devices which measure temperature, humidity, air pressure, and carbon dioxide can be viewed first hand.''

The innovative YES-201 will be showcased with the rest of the Y.E.S. line at the Expo. Compact and portable, this revolutionary microprocessor-based datalogger indicates the levels of carbon dioxide, temperature, and humidity within a building. The YES-201 detects air quality problems and downloads the information into a personal computer, making it possible to chart important air quality information over a period of time.

IAD, backed by its knowledge of environmental regulations and detection methods, is joined by the EPA, OSHA, and ASHRAE (American Society of Heating, Refrigeration, and Air Conditioning Engineers) in its concern with the indoor environment.

Indoor Air Diagnostics Inc. is located at 2245-C Fortune Drive, San Jose 95131. The telephone number is 408/954-9088 and the FAX number is 408/432-8992. Contact is Rick Hendrick, Vice President of Operations.

SANTA ROSA, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - At the recent California Association of Realtors convention, American Home Shield (AHS) introduces a new, low-cost home warranty plan...Protection Plus II.

"In today's competitive real estate market, California's Real Estate Professionals can arrange for this 'marketing edge' to make their sellers' homes more attractive to buyers. Our new Protection Plus II Home Warranty Plan provides that important edge economically," according to AHS President and Chief Operating Officer Daniel J. Brinker.

According to Brinker, the new plan is priced at $225 for annual coverage, and protects more than twenty home systems and appliances. The Protection Plus II plan will repair or replace a home's water heater, its plumbing and electrical systems, and major built-in appliances, while pool/spa, ducted electrical air conditioning and heating systems are each protected up to $1,000 annually.

"When a covered item breaks down due to normal wear and tear," Brinker said, "the homeowner calls AHS toll-free, 24-hours a day, 7-days-a-week. AHS then contacts a licensed, insured Service Contractor from the caller's area who calls the homeowner to arrange a convenient time to repair or replace the covered item."

As the nation's oldest and largest provider of home warranty coverage, AHS continually offers new, enhanced products in response to the needs of its customers.

"At AHS, we're proud of the fact we listen and respond to the needs of Real Estate Professionals and homeowners. Because we listen, AHS is able to offer products and services that truly reflect their needs," Brinker said.

"This is one reason," Brinker concluded, "why AHS is the choice of Real Estate Professionals and homeowners by a two to one margin over the nation's next largest home warranty company." American Home Shield is a Partner in the ServiceMaster Quality Service Network.

ServiceMaster, with headquarters located near Chicago, in Downers Grove, Ill., is a leader in providing the services of professional cleaning, termite and pest control, maid service and lawn care to residential and commercial customers through its Consumer Services and Products segment.

These services are offered through a worldwide network of over 4,800 ServiceMaster, Terminix and Merry Maids company-owned and franchised branches - all Partners in the ServiceMaster Quality Service Network with AHS.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Fries Entertainment Inc. (ASE:FE) Friday announced operating results for the first quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990.

For the first quarter, revenues decreased to $5.05 million from $9,325,000 in the same period of the prior year. For the quarter, the company reported an operating loss of $2,636,000 plus income tax of $182,000, for a net loss of $2,818,000, or 58 cents per share. This can be compared with a net loss of $1,371,000, or 29 cents per share, in the first quarter of the prior year.

The domestic syndication sales and the two television movies to be delivered in the second quarter represent portions of a $17,972,000 backlog of unrecorded revenue as of Aug. 31, 1990. During the first fiscal quarter the backlog increased by $6,496,000.

For the second quarter the company anticipates revenues in excess of $11 million and a substantial reduction in net operating loss. In addition, the company is in pre-production on ''Mission of the Shark,'' a CBS television movie.

In the theatrical area the company will launch ''Under Surveillance'' and

''Covert Justice'' and has acquired all foreign and domestic television rights to ''Criminal Mind,'' and, in November, the domestic home video release of ''Night Angel'' is expected to set a record in video cassette sales for any Fries Home Video release.

During the first quarter the company completed the Spectrum II Facility in the amount of $15 million through which is financed the production and acquisition of home video, theatrical and television product and extended the payment date on the CLBN revolving credit facility to March 31, 1992.

Fries Entertainment develops, produces and distributes made-for-television movies, series and mini-series, as well as theatrical feature films and products for the home video market.

EMERYVILLE, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Cetus Corp. (NASDAQ:CTUS) reported a net loss of $15,651,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to a net loss of $13,175,000 for the like quarter one year earlier.

Total revenues have increased by $4,886,000 from the year-earlier quarter, mainly on the strength of improving Proleukin interleukin-2 sales in Europe and increasing profitability of the company's joint venture. Included in the total increase of $5,951,000 in costs and expenses from period to period is approximately $2,350,000 in certain one-time costs relating to a reduction in workforce which was implemented late in the current quarter.

Hollings C. Renton, president and chief operating officer, said: ''We have implemented several significant cost cutting measures to reduce our operating losses while we work with FDA officials to move the Proleukin review forward in the United States. The most notable of these was a 13 percent reduction in our workforce completed this quarter.

''Our objectives are to control spending without compromising the fundamental capabilities of the company, seek strategic alliances with other companies and to increase revenues. We are pleased with the increasing sales of Proleukin in Europe, the increasing net revenue contribution from our joint ventures, and the expansion of our forensics, licensing and other retained commercial activities in our GeneAmp polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technology business.''

Improvement in all revenue categories led to the increased total revenues from the fiscal 1990 quarter. Revenues from product sales and royalties increased substantially based principally on sales of Proleukin in Europe.

The higher equity in unconsolidated joint ventures is the result of increasing sales of the DNA Thermal Cycler instrument and related PCR reagents by PECI, the company's joint venture with The Perkin-Elmer Corp., and sales of doxorubicin by CBVT, the company's generic chemotherapeutics joint venture with Ben Venue Laboratories Inc.

In addition, the absence of operating losses resulting from the company's interest in Agracetus, an agricultural joint venture which was sold in the second quarter of fiscal 1990, has also contributed to the net equity from joint ventures.

Costs and expenses (excluding the costs associated with the reduction in force) increased from the year-earlier quarter principally in marketing, general and administrative expenses and cost of goods sold, as a result of general inflationary trends, increasing Proleukin product sales in Europe and the introductions of additional PCR products in the United States.

The company anticipates that, as a result of the reduction in its workforce, operating costs and expenses in the next few quarters (excluding demand related impacts on costs of goods sold) should decline from the levels reported for the current quarter.

The increase in the weighted average number of shares outstanding is due principally to the public sale of 2,990,000 shares of common stock in March 1990 and the purchase of common stock by employees pursuant to certain stock option and stock purchase plans.

Cetus Corp. applies the tools of biotechnology and the science of immunology to the development of novel pharmaceutical products. The company is also developing several commercial applications of its GeneAmp polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technology. Business collaborations with other firms are an important part of the company's strategy both in pharmaceuticals and in PCR.

Founded in 1971, Cetus is based in Emeryville, and also operates EuroCetus in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

COSTA MESA, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Duplication Technology of Boulder, Colo., has introduced the first DAT (Digital Audio Tape) data duplication system, the ECHO-4000 Tower, which uses Archive Python 5 1/4-inch DAT drives to duplicate up to eight 4mm tape cassettes simultaneously.

Used to provide a fast and cost-effective method of distributing data, the ECHO-4000 is just one example of the growing use of DAT technology in the computer industry.

Tape cartridges have historically been used for data backup, operating-system distribution and software updates by computer manufacturers.

However, according to Kenneth C. Campbell, president of Archive Corp.'s ARDAT subsidiary: ''The interest in data duplication utilizing DAT tapes indicates that DAT drives are gaining widespread market acceptance. We expect to see this trend continue to grow rapidly as more companies become familiar with the benefits of DAT.''

The benefits of DAT technology include a capacity of up to 2.0 gigabytes per tape, fast data-transfer rates, high-speed access to any file on tape, low per-megabyte media cost and high reliability.

''We perceive the importance of the DAT technology for the future of software production and distribution to be very significant,'' stated Art Plitt, vice president of sales and marketing for Duplication Technology.

''The large storage capacity of DAT, along with its small size and low media cost, is creating a rapid movement in the 4mm direction. The light weight of the cassette is also important in reducing the shipping costs associated with data distribution.''

Since the Archive Python DAT drive was designed specifically for the computer environment, Duplication Technology has found it to be the only drive reliable enough to be used in its DDS duplication systems. ''The Archive Python drive will be very important in this movement because it was designed specifically as a computer-grade product,'' continued Plitt.

''The heavy use that a tape drive receives in this application precludes the reliable use of a converted audio-type mechanism. In addition, the Archive Python drive adheres to the standard DDS (Digital Data Storage) format, and makes it easy for our customers to interchange tapes between various DAT manufacturers' drives.''

The ECHO-4000 is packaged in a ''tower'' cabinet which allows simultaneous duplication of from two to eight DAT cassettes; additional cabinets allow up to 12 copies to be made at one time. A separate keyboard, monitor and easy-to-use menu-driven software simplifies the duplication process.

A disk drive and a master storage option are also available so the user can copy from disk to tape or from tape to tape. Pricing for the ECHO-4000 ranges from $24,200 for the two-drive configuration to $60,800 for the eight-drive configuration.

REDONDO BEACH, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - TRW's Space & Defense Sector has named 19 of its top scientists and engineers to be Technical Fellows in a new program designed to foster, recognize and reward technical innovation and achievement, E. D. Dunford, executive vice president of TRW Inc. and general manager of the Space & Defense Sector, said Friday.

''These individuals represent the company's highest calibre of scientific, technical and systems engineering talent,'' said Dunford.

As Technical Fellows, he noted, they will be given resources and encouraged to focus on technical pursuits of mutual interest to TRW and to themselves; they will also serve as technical advisors to TRW in such diverse areas as strategic planning, proposal development, independent research activities, and principal investigator responsibilities.

The Technical Fellows were selected on the basis of demonstrated technical and professional leadership in their fields and potential for continued innovative contribution.

The 19 Technical Fellows and their main contributions are:

John E. Anderson, Ph.D. in aerospace engineering and applied mathematics from Iowa State University, for his contributions to real-time processing algorithms.

Frank C. Belz, M.S. in computer science from Purdue University, who has been a leader in the implementation of the Ada programming language, now the Department of Defense standard for computer software.

John J. Berenz, Ph.D. in electrical engineering from Cornell University, who is the acknowledged technical leader of TRW's gallium arsenide technology effort. He was also instrumental in the development of High Electron Mobility Transistors (HEMT).

Dan Botez, Ph.D. in electrical engineering from the University of California at Berkeley, who led the team that developed coherent-power diode-laser arrays opening the way for space laser communications.

Donald L. Bullock, Ph.D. in physics from UCLA, who developed a new theory of coupled optical resonators and other developments that have been key to the company's SDI-related programs.

C.C. Chen, Ph.D. in electrical engineering from the University of Michigan, who is widely known for his pioneering work in multi-beam antenna design.

Joseph M. Denney, Ph.D. in engineering science and physics, magna cum laude, from California Institute of Technology, for a wide range of work in solid-state physics, radiation effects and signal processing.

Ray Franks, B.S. in electrical engineering from Rice University, who is widely recognized for his work in radio frequency direction finding systems.

George L. Hedin, Ph.D. in electrical engineering from the University of Minnesota, who is responsible for innovations in space communications systems.

IRVINE, Calif. (OCT 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Lasarray Corp., known throughout the electronics industry for the first quick-turnaround, transportable ASIC design and fabrication system, Friday announced negotiations with a consortium of investors led by Vice President of Marketing Jon Hopper have ended.

As a result, Hopper has resigned.

According to Lasarray Board Chairman Ernst Uhlmann: ''We believe the dramatic increase in Lasarray's profits last year as well as the significant inroads we've made into both the commercial and military markets is due to our current marketing strategy.

''We currently accommodate companies just moving into the ASIC market as well as larger companies already involved in ASIC production. We believe a radical shift in direction at this time would be detrimental to the company's future success. Consequently, Jon Hopper's offer was unacceptable.''

The Lasarray System includes ASICcad software and the ASICfab, a 750-square-foot IC factory housed in three transportable modules, which may be purchased by electronics designers for internal use. The company also maintains a quick-turnaround facility in Irvine that offers ASIC designers an opportunity to utilize Lasarray's design assistance and the ASICfab for rapid production of ASIC chips.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA - (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - ASK Computer Systems (NASDAQ:ASKI) Friday announced that the Delaware Chancery Court confirmed its prior decision not to block ASK's proposed stock sale to EDS Corp., and Hewlett-Packard Co.

Proceeds from this transaction are necessary to complete ASK's proposed acquisition of Ingres Corp. (NASDAQ:RELY).

Plaintiff's actions to appeal the decision have also been denied.

ASK stated that it is continuing negotiation of a definitive agreement for bank financing, completion of which is a condition to closing its offer to purchase the outstanding shares of Ingres at $9.25.

As of late afternoon, Oct. 19, 1990, a total of 10,754,255 Ingres shares, or approximately 93 percent of the outstanding shares, had been tendered. This number exceeds the minimum tender condition of the offer.

ASK stated that it will make an announcement prior to the opening of the stock market on Monday, Oct. 22, 1990, whether it will extend the offer or accept for payment all Ingres shares tendered for purchase prior to the expiration date. The tender is scheduled to expire today at midnight, New York City time.

ASK Computer Systems is a leader in enterprise-wide information systems. There are 3,200 ASK customer sites worldwide. ASK completed its fiscal year in June with revenue of $207 million.

MONROVIA, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Vision Sciences Inc. (NASDAQ:LENZ) announced Friday that its common stock, units and Class A warrants will continue to be included for quotation in the National Association of Securities Dealer's Automated Quotations System (NASDAQ) via an exception from the capital and surplus requirements.

While the company failed to meet this requirement as of June 30, 1990, the NASD has granted a temporary exception from this standard subject to the company meeting certain conditions. While the company believes that it can meet these conditions through its proposed rights offering and its debenture financing with venture capital funds, there can be no assurance that it will do so.

If at some future date the company's securities should cease to be quoted on the NASDAQ System, they shall continue to be quoted in the over-the-counter market, however, will be subject to a Securities and Exchange Commission (the ''Commission'') rule that imposes additional sales practice requirements on broker-dealers. For the duration of the exception the company's NASDAQ symbol will be LENZC.

The company also announced that Oct. 29, 1990, has been set as the record date for the company's common stockholders and holders of outstanding Class A and Class B warrants to participate in the company's rights offering. The company will provide further information concerning the rights offering upon the effectiveness of the registration statement with the Commission.

REDMOND, WA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Providing the perfect prescription for fun, Nintendo of America Inc. has launched a ''cure for the holiday blues'' in the form of the vitamin-tossing, foot-tapping ''Dr. Mario.''

Diagnosed as fast-paced and infectiously competitive, this latest two-player software title will be available nationwide for both the Nintendo Entertainment System and Game Boy on Nov. 5.

'''Dr. Mario' combines all the qualities our players look for in a great game '' said Howard Phillips, Nintendo's official 'Fun Master.' ''Not only is it imaginative and highly challenging, but it has that universally appealing element of fun that makes it irresistible to both adults and children.''

As the central character of the ''Super Mario Bros.'' game series, Mario already has a place in 31 million U.S. households. In his new role as doctor, the ever-popular Mario will be making ''house calls,'' supplying flying vitamins for players to use as an antidote against a swarm of pulsating viruses.

In ''Dr. Mario,'' players of the NES version have two options: competition against the computer or the two-player mode in which players compete head-to-head, with split screen action.

The triumphs of one player can be the downfall of the other, as excess vitamins contaminate the opponent's screen. The speed and difficulty of the game can also be varied, with players selecting levels appropriate to their skill. And, for portable patient-to-patient play, the Game Boy version allows for two-player medical battles via Game Link.

Nintendo predicts ''Dr. Mario'' will be one of the hottest games for the holiday season, with sales projections of 2.5 million units by year end, with less than two months on retail shelves.

''Since over one third of our players are 18 years of age and older, we expect this game to be on the Christmas wish lists of young and old alike,'' commented Phillips. '''Dr. Mario' virtually guarantees fun and that will earn it a permanent place in homes, offices and briefcases nationwide.''

Nintendo of America sells personal, home and arcade video games in the United States. The Redmond-based company is the headquarters for the company's marketing operations in North America and is a subsidiary of the world's largest manufacturer and marketer of video games, Nintendo Co. Ltd.

MENLO PARK, Calif. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Cisco Systems Inc., a manufacturer of internetworking computer systems, Friday stated that its first fiscal quarter results for the period ended Oct. 28 would be higher than analysts' expectations.

Net revenue, income and earnings per share are expected to exceed $30 million, $7 million and 44 cents respectively. This compares to revenues of $14,082,000, net income of $2,519,000, or 20 cents per share, in the prior year's like quarter and to revenues of $21,783,000, net income of $4,630,000, or 30 cents per share, in the immediately preceding quarter ended July 29.

''The company's first quarter revenue growth has been fueled by growing demand for the company's internetworking products. Our factory has been able to increase production through overtime and a recently added second shift. While operating expenses have grown during the quarter, they have been outpaced by revenue growth and operating margins have expanded. We remain optimistic about the internetworking industry's growth prospects,'' said John Morgridge, cisco's president and chief executive officer.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - CLEARLY CANADIAN BEVERAGE CORPORATION (NASDAQ Symbol: CLCF; VSE Symbol: CLV) Friday announced results for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30, 1990.

The Company also stated that it anticipates a substantial net profit for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended September 30, 1990. Sales for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990 increased 116% to US $6,824,725 (Cdn. $8,016,707) compared to US $3,152,935 (Cdn. $3,780,765) reported in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the Company reported net income of US $21,957 (Cdn. $24,228), or US $0.00 (Cdn. $0.00) per share. For the comparable quarter of fiscal 1989, the Company reported a net loss of US $1,058,041 (Cdn. $1,266,095), or US $0.17 (Cdn. $0.21) per share.

Per share results for the fourth quarters ended June 30, 1990 and 1989 have been adjusted to reflect a 1 for 3.5 reverse stock split effected in May 1990.

For the year ended June 30, 1990, sales increased 150% to US $17,372,812 (Cdn. $20,373,885) compared to US $6,947,335 (Cdn. $8,315,182) reported in fiscal 1989.

The Company reported a net loss of US $1,208,243 (Cdn. $1,416,962) or US $0.13 (Cdn. $0.16) per share, for fiscal 1990. In fiscal 1989, the Company reported a net loss of US $917,791 (Cdn. $1,098,493), or US $0.15 (Cdn. $0.18) per share, which includes a US $1.4 million (Cdn. $1.6 million) extraordinary gain from the sale of distribution rights. Per share results for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1990 and 1989 have been adjusted to reflect a 1 for 3.5 reverse stock split effected in May 1990.

The Company stated that in prior years it capitalized deferred acquisition and development costs and excess of cost over book equity of subsidiaries at date of acquisition and amortized these costs over a three to twenty year period. During fiscal 1990, the Company changed its accounting policies to expense these costs against income as they are incurred.

Comparative results for fiscal 1989 have been restated to reflect these changes, causing the net loss for fiscal 1989 to increase by US $500,166 (Cdn. $ 586,587).

Douglas L. Mason, President of CLEARLY CANADIAN BEVERAGE CORPORATION, stated, ''Fiscal 1990 was a year of significant achievement for the Company. Our record revenues for the year are due to significantly increased brand awareness and expanded distribution into 17 additional states, as well as Japan. Although the costs for this expansion were considerable, we firmly believe that these expenditures have provided CLEARLY CANADIAN with a strong foundation from which we can achieve our fiscal 1991 goals of complete U.S. distribution as well as European market penetration.''

Commenting on the outlook for the first quarter of fiscal 1991, Mason added, ''During the first three months of fiscal 1991, demand for our product remained strong, attributable to increased consumer acceptance of the product in both established and new territories. As a result, we expect to report a net profit for the quarter ended September 30, 1990.''

CLEARLY CANADIAN BEVERAGE CORPORATION produces and markets ''Clearly CanadianTM'', a line of natural and flavored sparkling mineral waters. Through distribution agreements, ''Clearly CanadianTM'' is sold in 30 states, all of Canada, Japan and England.

MENLO PARK, CALIF. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Zycad Corp. (OTC:ZCAD) Friday reported a profit of $174,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenues of $7,964,000 for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

For the comparable period ended Sept. 30, 1989, the net loss was $430,000, or 3 cents per share, on revenues of $7,551,000.

For the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, the net loss amounted to $18,498,000, or $1.22 per share, on revenues of $22,167,000, compared with net income of $74,000, or 3 cents per share, on revenues of $23,713,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

The accumulative 1990 loss includes restructuring charges of $10,528,000 or 70 cents per share accounted for in the second quarter.

The $174,000 net income for the 1990 third quarter included operating income of $208,000, a $942,000 improvement over the comparable period in 1989. Operating income was reduced by certain foreign currency exchange losses.

Phillips W. Smith, president and chief executive officer who joined Zycad in June 1990, stated: ''The return to profitability is a result of the restructuring and spending reduction actions taken in the second quarter. Expenditures are now better aligned to match revenue expectations.

''We are very pleased with the company's progress over the past three months, and remain optimistic about the prospects for the future. The marketplace has shown a great deal of interest in our recently introduced XP family of accelerators. Production units of the XP product line became available in September, and shipments will begin in the fourth quarter,'' continued Smith.

In addition, Zycad formalized a new division, Protocol, to focus efforts on the federal government and the complex 'high-end' system design market. ''The company has completed the management team and made the necessary organizational changes to position the company for success and sustained profitability,'' added Smith.

Sale of System VHDL to Synopsys

Zycad announced that the sale of the company's System VHDL simulation business to Synopsys Inc. of Mountain View has been completed in escrow, pending the transfer of the assets. The terms of the agreement included $5 million in cash, an undisclosed amount in Synopsys securities, and royalties on future System VHDL sales.

SANTA CLARA, CALIF. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Applied Materials Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:AMAT) announced that because of two separate customer shipment delays identified this week, current quarter revenue and earnings would fall short of expectations for the period which ends Oct. 28, 1990. In one case, a Japanese customer's facility is behind schedule and hence shipment of a multiple system order will not occur in time to recognize revenue for the quarter. In the other case, customization of a European customer's systems could not be completed in time for quarter-end shipment. As a result of these delays, revenue for the quarter is expected to be between $133 million and $137 million with earnings per share of between 13 cents and 17 cents.

''We are disappointed that these events occurred so late in the fiscal quarter that we were unable to respond with actions that would have permitted us to achieve our goals,'' said James C. Morgan, chairman and chief executive officer. ''However, we remain committed to being responsive to our customers' requirements.''

The company also stated that orders should be approximately $150 million for the quarter, slightly below prior expectations. Applied Materials has noted recent signs of softening in order activity as some customers are delaying investment decisions due to economic uncertainties.

Applied Materials Inc. is a global growth company and the leading independent producer of wafer fabrication systems for the worldwide semiconductor industry. It is a market leader in chemical vapor deposition (CVD), dry plasma etching and silicon deposition. The company is also a leading manufacturer of ion implantation and physical vapor deposition market (PVD) systems. COSTA MESA, CALIF. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Archive Corp. (NASDAQ:ACHV), a leading manufacturer of tape drive products, Friday said it expects record revenue based on preliminary unaudited financial results for its 1990 fiscal year ended Sept. 28, 1990.

Final audited results are subject to year-end audit and will be reported in mid-November.

Revenue for fiscal 1990 is estimated to rise more than 60 percent to approximately $295 million as compared to $181.4 million in fiscal 1989.

Net income for the year is estimated to be between $11.3 and $11.9 million, or 84 cents and 88 cents per share, compared to $15.3 million, or $1.15 per share earned during the 1989 fiscal year.

Archive's financial results include the acquisition of Cipher Data Products in April 1990. Revenue and earnings are within expectations of estimates made during fiscal 1990 by several research analysts who follow the company.

''We attribute the anticipated record revenue for fiscal 1990 to the acquisition of Cipher Data Products, the continuing demand for 1/4-inch streaming cartridge tape drives and controllers in the OEM markets, and the company's growth in the reseller market,'' said D. Howard Lewis, Archive chairman, president and CEO.

The acquisition this past April of Cipher Data Products, which includes Irwin Magnetic Systems and Optimem, accounted for approximately 30 percent of the company's fiscal 1990 revenue and positions the company as the world's largest independent supplier of tape backup products to original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) and to the reseller marketplace.

Founded in 1980, Archive Corp. today is a leading manufacturer and supplier of data storage products to original equipment manufacturers and resellers. Archive and its companies offer a complete selection of drives and subsystems for economical computer data storage for minicomputers, workstations, multi-user sytesms and personal computers.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Hallwood Industries Incorporated (NASDAQ:HWDI) operator of automotive parts distributor Steel City Products, Friday announced the signing by its subsidiary A & B Acquisition Corp. of a letter of intent with A & B Auto Supply, Inc. (''A & B'') for the acquisition of the assets and assumption of most liabilities of A & B, which is based in Albany, N.Y.

Definitive agreements reflecting the acquisition are expected to be completed shortly, with a contemplated effective date before October 31, 1990.

The letter of intent provides for an acquisition price equal to the book value of the net assets being acquired, which are principally inventory and accounts receivable, less the assumed liabilities to suppliers and a small bank loan. The price, which is subject to reduction to reflect the collectibility of certain receivables, is to be paid in three annual installments, the first of which in the amount of approximately $100,000, will be payable upon closing.

Bernard Frank, chairman of the Steel City Division, noted that A & B, founded in 1948, has a long and respected reputation in the automotive parts distribution business. ''In recent years,'' Frank said, ''cash constraints have adversely affected A & B's performance. With Steel City's financial resources, A & B's business can once again grow, and this acquisition will enable Steel City to pursue new opportunities in the New York and New England markets.''

Revenues of A & B are currently running at an annual level of about $5 million. Steel City will continue to operate the Albany warehouse currently occupied by A & B, and Mark Herskowitz, President of A & B, will be retained under a long-term contract as President of Steel City's Albany-based operations.

KENOSHA, WI (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - In a move designed to provide its U.S. dealer network with ''better support in a tough competitive marketplace,'' Snap-on Tools Corp. Friday announced plans to convert to a franchise operation beginning in 1991.

Marion F. Gregory, chairman and chief executive officer, said Snap-on's dealers and the company would gain significant advantages by adopting a franchise system, noting that Snap-on will be the first tool company to convert to a franchise operation.

Gregory added that an increasing number of manufacturers have adopted franchise systems.

The planned franchise status will allow Snap-on to offer new programs and services requested by dealers, and will also permit the company to institute and maintain proven and successful marketing programs aimed at supporting dealer sales efforts, Gregory said.

''We'll have more flexibility in helping our dealers meet the demands of a competitive marketplace,'' he added.

''Quite simply, we believe a franchise operation will benefit both our dealers and the company,'' he said. ''And, since dealers are the lifeblood of this company, we think they will quickly recognize the benefits of such an arrangement.''

Current plans call for all new Snap-on dealers signed after Jan. 1, 1991 to become franchisees. Existing Snap-on dealers will be given the choice of converting sometime later in 1991.

''The establishment and operation of the franchise operation is not expected to have a material impact on the company's costs of doing business,'' Gregory said. He also pointed out that future franchise license and fee income are not expected to have a material effect on Snap-on revenues and profits.

Snap-on said it will file documents in those states requiring franchise operations to register. The registrations are expected to be completed on or about Jan. 1, 1991, when Snap-on will begin enrolling new dealers as franchisees.

Snap-on Tools Corp. (NYSE:SNA) is a leading producer and distributor of quality hand and power tools, diagnostic equipment, and storage units for professional mechanics and industry. Dealers outside of the United States are not affected by the franchise conversion, nor are Snap-on industrial sales and technical representatives, who will remain employees.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - The Foothill Group Inc. (NYSE:FGI) Friday reported net income for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, of $1,824,000, or 19 cents per share, compared with net income of $1,823,000, or 17 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

Total revenues for the third quarter were $22,808,000, compared with $23,283,000 for the same quarter last year.

For the nine-month period, Foothill reported a net loss of $47,000, while net income for the same period in 1989 was $8,474,000.

''Our core earnings, particularly at our Football Capital subsidiary, remain strong, and we've seen continued strong loan demand during 1990,'' sid Don L. Gevirtz, chairman and chief executive officer.

On Oct. 17, Foothill announced that its Foothill Partners L.P. had successfully raised $100 million in commitments to invest in bank debt of distressed companies.

The new Foothill fund will target investments in performing and non-performing senior loans of distressed and bankrupt companies, while avoiding subordinated debt or high-yield junk bonds.

Through its bank debt purchases, Foothill will attempt to influence reorganizational outcomes of the targeted companies. The Foothill Group Inc. will serve as the corporate general partner for the Fund. It will receive a management fee equal to 2 percent per annum of total commitments and has the potential to earn additional profits if certain hurdle rates of return are met.

The Foothill Group Inc. specializes in providing innovative financial services through its three highly specialized, yet complementary, operating units.

Foothill Capital offers asset-based financing tailored to businesses whose credit needs require more unique, sophisticated types of loan programs. Foothill Thrift and Loan specializes in secured commercial and industrial lending in California. The Capital Markets Division focuses on asset-management activities, arbitrage trading and investing in companies in reorganization.

MARLBOROUGH, Mass. (OCT. 19) BUSINESSWIRE - Sequoia Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: SEQS), a producer of fault-tolerant computers used in the high-performance on line transaction processing market, today reported record sales and earnings for the first quarter ended October 1, 1990.

Revenues for the three month period reached $13,038,000 million, a level equivalent to total annual sales in the Company's full 1988 fiscal year and a 55 percent increase from the $8,407,000 recorded in the comparable fiscal 1990 period.

The Company said that net income more than doubled to $1,030,000, or $0.11 per share, from $342,000, or $0.05 per share, in the last year's first quarter when 46 percent less shares were outstanding.

Sequoia, founded in 1981, completed its initial public offering on March 13, 1990.

Gabriel P. Fusco, chairman, chief executive officer and president, pointed out that first quarter gains over the prior year were in line with Sequoia's expectations. ''Market enthusiasm for the Company's systems continues despite the troubled economic climate,'' he reported.

''While economists and other observers may worry about continued demand for big ticket, capital goods in this environment, the productivity enhancement and expandability associated with our computer systems are particularly appealing in uncertain times,'' Fusco said.

He acknowledged that ''prospective customers are negotiating aggressively,'' but emphasized that the competitive features of Sequoia products result in ''compelling price/performance.''

''The ability to both meet today's processing needs and to expand are key business objectives for companies in a variety of industries,'' Fusco pointed out.

''Although we have not yet seen any direct impact on sales from a slow down in the economy, we continue to control expenses to ensure that they don't run ahead of our revenues,'' he added. ''In the recent quarter, Sequoia replaced a competitor's system after very careful benchmarking by the customer of the two systems' respective performance,'' he reported. It was a Pick-based Sequoia system that supplanted the competitive system. Actual production work was achieved ten days after installation.

Fusco said this installation was made by Sequoia's direct sales force, rather than by one of the Company's strategic partners.

This contributed to increased gross margins in the period. However, he pointed out that increased direct sales may or may not be a consistent trend.

In addition to its own direct sales force, Sequoia has strategic partnerships with Hewlett-Packard, Raytheon, The Ultimate Corp. and Samsung Electronics, each of which has the right to market Sequoia's systems to specified customer groups. Sales by these partners accounted for approximately 56 percent of the total in the first quarter. Fusco also noted that UNIX-based Sequoia product accounted for a higher percentage of sales than in the past.

To enhance the attractiveness and utility of its systems, Sequoia has been developing marketing alliances with leading third-party relational database management systems vendors. During the first quarter, the Company demonstrated Oracle software on the Sequoia system at the recent annual Oracle Users Meeting in Anaheim.

Sequoia Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: SEQS) designs, manufactures and markets fault-tolerant computer systems to serve on line transaction processing (OLTP) needs. Sequoia's system have an open architecture adhering to industry standards and a UNIX-based operating system.

The Company also offers the Pick Open Architecture operating system and provides on-line services and maintenance support to its worldwide customer base. Major customers include manufacturers, distributors, banks and financial institutions, insurance companies, telecommunications operations, and federal agencies. Sequoia has shipped over 130 systems to 100 customers in the U.S. and nine other countries.

NASHUA, N.H. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Ekco Group Inc. (NYSE:EKO) Friday announced that the Trust of the company's Employee Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP) which owns approximately 1.8 million shares of Ekco Group preferred stock, will purchase up to one million shares of the company's common stock either in the open market, in negotiated transactions, or from the company's treasury.

Purchases will be financed by a 20-year installment loan from the company or a loan guaranteed by the company.

Ekco Group President Robert Stein said, ''Our Employee Stock Ownership Plan makes the company a more competitive employer. For most of our employees, the ESOP is the primary retirement plan to which the company contributes, and this expansion will enable our employees to have more of a vested interest in the success of their company.''

Ekco Group Inc. manufactures and markets a variety of consumer products which it broadly markets through leading retail outlets, including a range of household and recreational products carrying the ''Ekco,'' ''Baker's Secret,'' ''Best Results,'' ''Victor,'' ''Woodstream'' and ''Havahart'' brand names.

STAMFORD, CONN. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Olin Corp. Friday reported third quarter primary earnings of 65 cents per share, compared with $1.15 in the third quarter of 1989.

Net income was $15 million, compared with $24 million a year ago. Sales for the quarter just ended were $656 million, up 13 percent from last year.

For the nine months of 1990, primary earnings were $3.66 a share, compared with $4.52 for the same period last year.

Chemicals net income of $7 million was off sharply from $19 million for the prior year period as a result of performance declines in the electrochemicals, urethanes, pool chemicals and electronic materials businesses.

These conditions are expected to continue in the fourth quarter. Furthermore, increased selling prices are not expected to offset increased costs.

Metals net income at $5 million was up 66 percent from last year's $3 million level, due to the strong contribution of the Indiana brass mill, which helped offset some softness in the remainder of the business. Earnings in the third quarter were lower last year due to a strike, which curtailed production, at that facility.

Defense net income for the quarter was $10 million, compared with $8 million last year, due to improved performance in ordnance and aerospace.

Increased profitability from defense ammunition sales offset increased raw material costs for lead and copper in the Winchester sporting ammunition segment.

Shipments of large caliber military ammunition are expected to boost earnings in this segment for the remainder of the year, well above third quarter levels.

As announced yesterday, Olin and Ciba-Geigy A.G. are discussing the establishment of a strategic alliance in the microelectronics field and have made the appropriate filings required under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act.

Proceeds that Olin would receive from the formation of the alliance are expected to be used for general corporate purposes, including reduction of debt.

During the quarter, the company purchased 101,300 shares of its common stock as part of a previously announced program to repurchase about 2 percent of its common stock. At the end of the third quarter there were approximately 19 million shares of Olin common stock outstanding.

NEEDHAM, Mass. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Cognex Corp. (NASDAQ:CGNX) Friday announced net income for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, of $1,765,104 or $0.40 per share, a 41 percent increase from last year's results of $1,255,043, or $0.32 per share.

Revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, increased 44 percent to $6,255,387, from $4,347,269 for the same quarter a year ago.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Cognex reported net income of $4,658,842, or $1.08 per share (on a fully diluted basis), an 80 percent increase from $2,581,967, or $0.68 per share, for the equivalent nine-month period in 1989. Revenues for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $17,129,736, up 52 percent from $11,281,614 for the comparable period a year ago.

''Cognex continued to exhibit outstanding performance in the third quarter. Our gross margins remain strong, and our operating profit reached a new high of 39 percent, reflecting the overall health of our business,'' said Robert J. Shillman, chairman, president and chief executive officer. ''We are encouraged by the increasing interest in our products in both Europe and Japan as well as the recent signing, domestically, of a $1 million OEM agreement with Hughes Aircraft Company of Carlsbad, California.''

Cognex Corp. designs, develops, manufactures and markets a family of machine-vision systems - computers that can ''see'' - which are used to replace human vision in a wide range of manufacturing processes in the semiconductor, electronics, pharmaceutical and aerospace industries.

LAGUNA HILLS, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Newport Pharmaceuticals

International Inc. (NASDAQ:NWPH) Friday announced results for its third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, which included both a profit for the quarter as well as the company's fourth conscutive quarter of revenue increases.

The company reported continued strong increases in revenue to $15,759,000 for the third quarter as well as net income of $17,000, compared with revenue of $8,771,000 and a net loss of $793,000 for the same qurter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company had revenues of $43,609,000 and a net loss of $2,577,000, compared with revenues of $27,759,000 and a net loss of $511,000 for the same period of last year.

Revenues of the company's subsidiary, America's Pharmacy Inc. (API) continued to increase, up 92 percent in the third quarter and 81 percent for the nine months vs. the same periods of 1989. These increases reflect continued growth at API as a result of the addition of new customers and increased utilization by existing customers.

A significant factor in the growth was the acquisition of Delivered Pharmacy Services from Lincoln National Life Insurance Corp. in September 1989. Revenues from API now represent approximately 86 percent of the company's total revenues.

Revenues from the production of fine chemicals at the company's manufacturing facility in Ireland, although a relatively small part of total revenues, continue to post significant increases, up $230,000, or 63 percent, and $482,000, or 58 percent, respectively, for the third quarter and nine months as compared with the same periods of last year.

Other revenues, consisting primarily of sales of Isoprinosine, increased $344,000, or 24 percent, and declined $1,406,000, or 22 percent, for the third quarter and nine months of 1990, respectively, as compared with the same periods of 1989.

The increase for the third quarter primarily reflects a comparison with the low revenues experienced in the same quarter of the prior year, while the overall decline for the nine months continues to reflect decreased demand for Isoprinosine.

The company reported an operating profit of $304,000 for the third quarter of 1990, compared with an operating loss of $634,000 for the same period of last year, reflecting both the sales volume increases at API and continued control of selling expenses and general and administrative costs. The company reported an operating loss of $526,000 for the first nine months of 1990 vs. $337,000 in 1989.

A substantial portion of the 1990 year-to-date operating loss has been caused by the legal expenses related to the class action lawsuit as well as certain non-recurring relocation costs and consulting fees recorded in the second quarter.

A significant portion of the 1990 year-to-date net loss consists of a $1,264,000 non-cash, non-operating charge relating to the successful completion of the exchange of 25 percent of the company's outstanding 10 percent notes for common stock in April 1990.

In commenting on the third-quarter results, J. Roberts Fosberg, president and chief executive officer of the company, stated: ''We are very pleased to have profitable operations for the third quarter. We believe that the third-quarter results reflect our continued efforts to generate increasing sales volume to cover our base operating costs. This will continue to be our focus in the coming quarters.''

MENTOR, OHIO (OCT. 29) BUSINESS WIRE - RB&W Corp. (AMEX:RBW) announced sales for the third quarter were $43.4 million, the same level as last year, which included sales of the Powdered Metal Products Division (PMP) sold on Aug. 21,

Sales from ongoing operations increased 2.3 percent. Net income for the current year period was $129,000, or 3 cents per share, compared to $1,014,000 or 20 cents per share last year. Excluding results of PMP and the gain on its sale, net income increased slightly from last year.

Net sales for the first nine months of 1990 were $133.0 million, down 8.9 percent from the $146.1 million in 1989. The decrease was primarily due to weaker transportation markets, as well as to the PMP sale (discussed above). Net loss for the nine-month period was $3.2 million, or 63 cents per share this year, compared to net income of $4.3 million, or 85 cents per share last year. The 1990 year-to-date loss is due to a $4.5 million charge recorded in the first quarter for the closing of the company's Cleveland plant.

John J. Lohrman, chairman and chief executive officer, said distribution segment sales are up from last year, both for the quarter and year-to-date. Customer interest in RB&W's Total Fastening Service (TFS) programs remains high. The manufacturing plants, however, have been impacted by the lower auto and truck production levels.

RB&W Corp. is a leading industrial company engaged in the manufacture and distribution of cold formed parts. With 145 years of experience, it is one of the oldest and largest companies in the metal forming industry.

RICHARDSON, TEXAS (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Convex Computer Corp. (NYSE: CNX) Friday announced record revenues and profits for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The company reported revenue of $53.3 million, an increase of 29 percent from the third quarter of 1989. Net income was a record $5 million for the quarter generating earnings of 23 cents per share. This represents a 44 percent increase over the third quarter 1989 results of 16 cents per share.

The third quarter results mark the company's 24th quarter, or 6 full years, of uninterrupted growth in revenues and the 20th consecutive quarter of profitability. Demand for the Convex C2 Series supercomputer reached record levels, comprising 47 of the 53 systems shipped in the quarter.

Some 750 Convex systems, with more than 1,000 CPUs, are now installed worldwide, representing the largest installed base of any supercomputer vendor. Cumulative revenues generated by these systems now exceed one half billion dollars.

''This quarter's results highlight the importance and success of Convex's strategy to compete in diverse geographic markets,'' said Robert J. Paluck, Convex chairman, president, and chief executive officer. ''While revenues in the United States and Europe were not as strong this quarter as in previous ones, we did see record demand in our Far East Operations.''

During the quarter, Convex also increased its worldwide market presence by delivering a system to Canadair, Canada's largest aircraft builder, a subsidiary of Bombardier; shipping two systems into what was formerly East Germany; and opening a direct sales and service office in Stockholm, Sweden. Convex now has systems installed in 34 countries.

Convex Computer Corp., a leading supplier of supercomputers worldwide, was founded in 1982 to design, manufacture, market, and service high performance systems.

EUREKA, CA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - A unique agreement to program a new cable television channel in Eureka with the highest rated shows in syndication was announced Friday by Cox Cable Communications and King World Productions Inc.

Beginning Oct. 29, the Cox Cable owned and operated cable television system in Eureka will create KCBL, Channel 4, an 18-hour a day, Monday through Friday, programming service initially consisting of ''WHEEL OF FORTUNE'' and JEOPARDY!'' -- an hour of game shows; ''THE OPRAH WINFREY SHOW'' -- an hour talk show; and ''INSIDE EDITION'' and ''INSTANT RECALL'' -- an hour of newsmagazines, repeated throughout the day. KCBL will be available exclusively on Cox Cable Humboldt Inc. in the Humboldt Bay area, serving some 30,000 customers in the environs of Eureka, Arcata, Fortuna, and Humboldt County.

''WHEEL OF FORTUNE'' and ''JEOPARDY!'' are not currently available, and ''THE OPRAH WINFREY SHOW'' has never been available in the local marketplace. What we are doing is ensuring the carriage of these immensely popular shows in this marketplace under a unique partnership arrangement,'' sad Dorothy Lovfald, vice president and general manager of Cox Cable Humboldt Inc.

Roger King, chairman of the board of King World Productions Inc., stated, ''Eureka, the 187th DMA, is one of the only markets where an experiment of this type is possible, since ''WHEEL OF FORTUNE'' and ''JEOPARDY!'' are already under contract in 94% of the country through 1992 and ''THE OPRAH

WINFREY SHOW'' is under contract in 86% of the country through 1993.

''Our blockbuster programming includes four of the top 10 shows in national syndication as well as our recently debuted newsmagazine ''Instant Recall.'' Because of the lack of broadcast licenses in the market -- only two VHF signals and one UHF signal -- Eureka's television audience has historically been underserved relative to many larger markets with four, five, or more available broadcast signals. Cable service is therefore, relatively more important in a market like Eureka. We are now making available to the Eureka TV audience some of the most popular shows in the history of television,'' he added.

David Kantor, vice president of Advertising Sales for Cox Cable said, ''Under the terms of the agreement, Cox's CableRep advertising sale subsidiary will handle advertising sales for, and the operation of, the new channel. We already have a strong advertising sales operation in Eureka, selling spots on six basic cable channels including ESPN, USA, and CNN. This new service gives us a seventh powerhouse channel to dramatically expand the value of our advertising presence in the local market.''

Cox Cable Communications is a division of Atlanta-based Cox Enterprises Inc. As owner and operator of 23 cable television systems, including Humboldt, Cox serves nearly 1.6 million customers nationwide.

King World is the leading distributor of first run programming, including WHEEL OF FORTUNE, JEOPARDY! and THE OPRAH WINFREY SHOW, the three highest rated series in first run syndication, INSIDE EDITION, the sixth highest rated syndicated strip and INSTANT RECALL, both produced by the company.

King World also distributes its own library of 68 feature films and 210 television programs, and through its barter subsidiary, Camelot Entertainment Sales Inc., sells national advertising for King World and The Disney Company television programming. In addition, King World is the owner of WIVB-TV, the CBS affiliate in Buffalo, New York.

OSHKOSH, WIS. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - C.F. Hyde, chairman and CEO of Oshkosh B'Gosh Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:GOSHA), Friday announced that consolidated net sales for the three months ended Sept. 30, were $91.3 million, a 15.4 percent decrease from the $107.9 million in net sales for the comparable period in 1989.

For the nine month period ended Sept. 30, net sales were $244.7 million, a decrease of $7.0 million (2.8 percent) from the like nine months in 1989. The reduction in sales for both periods was due primarily to lower unit volume resulting from a sluggish retail climate.

Net income for the three months and nine months ended Sept. 30, was $8.4 million and $22.0 million, respectively, compared to $14.0 million and $29.3 million for the comparable periods in 1989.

Hyde stated that the company expects consolidated net sales to show a moderate increase during the fourth quarter when compared to the like period in 1989. He also stated that while they remain cautious they are encouraged that consumer demand for Oshkosh B'Gosh products remains strong and that initial Spring orders are running well ahead of a year ago.

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - First World Cheese Inc., (NASDAQ:FWCH) announced sales and earnings for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30.

Net sales for the quarter were $34,245,216, a 14.6 percent increase over net sales of $29,887,651, reported in the same quarter of 1989. Net earnings for the quarter were $50,765, or 1 cent per share compared with $99,440, or 2 cents per share reported in the 1989 third quarter.

Net sales for the nine months reached a record $108,680,476, a 34.6 percent over net sales of $80,720,703, for the nine months of 1989. Net earnings for the nine month period reached $1,746,459, or 35 cents per share, compared with nine month net earnings of $1,729,801, or 34 cents per share in 1989.

Carl T. Wolf, president of First World Cheese said, ''We are pleased with the continued sales growth and acceptance of our PreMonde Alpine Lace brand cheese products. The introduction in June of Alpine Lace Free N' Lean fat free cheese will further add to our growth.

''Earnings for the third quarter were impacted by higher cheese costs and expense involved in the development of our fat free cheese product,'' he added.

''The outlook for the company continues strong, with the introduction of new nutritional cheese products for the supermarket deli and dairy cases, as well as marketing and sales programs directed at the food service and institutional markets.''

First World Cheese Inc. is a developer and marketer of a growing line of low cholesterol cheeses sold under the PreMonde Alpine Lace label. The company's primary product lines are designed to meet consumer taste expectations while providing the dietary benefits of lower fat cholesterol. Through its Mountain Farms Inc., and Marolf Dakota Farms Cheese Inc. subsidiaries, the company also packages and converts bulk cheeses into consumer retail packages and manufacturers a small portion of the cheeses sold under the company's brand names.

In addition, the company engages in the cheese commodity trading business.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Al Wiman, health reporter at KMOV-TV/St. Louis, has joined Wang Associates Health Communications as director of broadcast services, announced Julie Wang, the company's president.

Wang Associates Health Communications is the largest independent public relations agency specializing in health and high technology.

Wiman brings to Wang more than 20 years of experience in the field of broadcast journalism. Wiman will continue to work part time as the medical and science editor at CBS-affiliated KMOV-TV, where he has been since 1974.

During that time, he received three Emmys from the St. Louis chapter of the National Academy of TV Arts and Sciences.

''Al's experience will enable Wang Associates Health Communications to achieve our goal of producing the best videos in the business,'' said Wang.

Wiman recently produced b-roll for Wang Associates Health Communications that was aired on all three major networks, CNN, and many local stations, reaching an audience of over 100 million. ''Our client is thrilled and we were told by several network reporters that this was the best video material they had ever received from a public relations agency,'' noted Wang.

Before joining KMOV, Wiman worked as news director at WCTV-TV in Florida. Earlier, he worked as an investigative reporter for KABC-TV and KCBS-TV, two television stations in Los Angeles, where he won three Golden Mikes from the Southern California Radio-TV News Association.

Wiman has received a number of awards from health and science organizations, such as the National Kidney Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

In the summer of 1990 he received an award from the Sigma Tau Foundation for his reporting on Alzheimer's disease.

BIRMINGHAM, AL (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - At the annual meetingof Bruno's Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:BRNO) held here Friday, shareholders re-elected nine directors and added two new directors to the board.

The new directors are J. Mason Davis Jr., an attorney and senior partner with the law firm Sirote & Permutt, P.C., and Bart Starr, chairman of the board of Starr-Sanders Properties, a real estate development company.

Davis is also an adjunct professor with the University of Alabama School of Law and a past president of the Birmingham Bar Association. He graduated from Talladega College and received his law degree from State University of New York, School of Law.

Starr is a graduate of the University of Alabama. He played professional football for 17 years with the Green Bay Packers. Following his retirement in 1972, he was a game analyst for CBS-TV and then returned to football to serve as Green Bay's head coach from 1974 until 1983. Since that time, he has been involved in commercial real estate development, and currently resides in Birmingham.

Directors re-elected to the board at the annual meeting included Angelo J. Bruno, Joseph S. Bruno, Lee J. Bruno, Ronald G. Bruno, Paul F. Garrison, Glenn J. Griffin, Benny M. LaRussa Jr., Judy M. Merritt, and Richard Cohn.

Bruno's Inc. is a leading regional food retailer, operating a total of 235 supermarkets in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Florida and Tennessee. The company's shares trade on the National Market System under the NASDAQ Symbol BRNO.

PORTLAND, ME (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - The One Bancorp (NASDAQ:TONE) announced Friday a net loss of $23.7 million, or $2.89 per common share (primary and fully diluted), for the third quarter ended Sept. 30.

This loss is within the $20 million to $25 million estimated range announced on Oct. 11. Results for the quarter reflect continued high levels of loan loss provisions, reduced interest income due to a high level of non-performing assets, and operating expenses associated with the workout of problem assets.

The loss announced for the third quarter of 1990 was $24.8 million less than the $48.5 million loss ($5.92 per share) (primary and fully diluted), reported for the like quarter in 1989. The 1989 quarter was negatively impacted by significantly higher levels of provisions for loan losses than reported in 1990.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the company reported a net loss of $36.1 million, or $4.40 per share (primary and fully diluted), including an extraordinary gain of $29.7 million recorded in January 1990 when the company repurchased its capital notes.

The loss recorded for the like period in 1989 was $74.5 million, or $9.12 per share (primary and fully diluted), including an $801,000 extraordinary item.

The One Bancorp noted that as of Oct. 18, 1990, the expiration date of the offer to purchase its outstanding convertible subordinated debentures, $26.8 million or 72.8 percent of the $36.8 million outstanding principal amount of such debentures had been tendered and accepted for payment. The 72.8 percent principal amount tendered was less than the 75 percent anticipated in the company's Capital Recovery Plan.

The company anticipates an extraordinary gain of approximately $22 million in the fourth quarter of 1990 in connection with the completion of the offer.

During the quarter, non-performing assets of the company increased by $12.9 million to $310.2 million at Sept. 30. Reserves for loan losses totaled $57.4 million, or 27.55 percent and 3.72 percent of non-performing loans and total loans, respectively.

Total assets decreased by $28.3 million during the quarter, which is a result of the company's plan to reduce its size to improve regulatory capital ratios and deposits decreased by $10.6 million as a result of a decrease in brokered deposits.

The One Bancorp is a $2.2 billion Maine-based bank holding company with FDlC-insured bank subsidiaries in Maine, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Applied Microbiology Inc., announced Friday that it has reached an agreement in principle to market its veterinary product in Europe.

Applied's strategic partner in this endeavor is a vertically integrated chemical company based in Paris. Plans call for the introduction of an AMBICIN-based animal hygiene product for the prevention of bovine mastitis, a disease in dairy cows responsible for losses of $35 billion worldwide. The product will be introduced in 1991 and be marketed in eight EEC countries.

The product has been developed with Applied's joint venture partner, Babson Bros. a major distributor to the dairy industry based in Illinois. Babson will introduce a teat dip product domestically in 1991.

''This agreement signifies the next step in our marketing strategy,'' explained W. Peters, vice chairman of Applied, and president of the company's international operations. ''Now that our domestic marketing alliances are in place, we are aggressively pursuing large overseas markets.''

Peters also announced that Applied is in advanced negotiations with a major Swiss pharmaceutical company to license its bovine mastitis therapeutic for international markets.

Applied's teat dip product is a rapidly acting, non-toxic alternative to chemical germicidals. It has been developed for use both before and after milking as a dip or spray. It is estimated that the market potential for mastitis teat dips and sprays worldwide exceeds $100 million. In the next five years, the market is expected to grow by 30 percent.

Applied Microbiology Inc. has targeted the AMBICIN formulations for application in human dermatological, oral healthcare, and veterinary markets. The company has already established strategic partnerships with leading domestic and international companies including Pfizer Inc., Calgon Vestal Laboratories, a subsidiary of Merck & Co., and Burns, Philp and Co. Ltd. of Australia, a major supplier of products to the food industry.

DALLAS (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - BancTec Inc. (NASDAQ:BTEC) reported revenues of $47.8 million for the second fiscal quarter ended September 30, 1990 up 11 percent from $43.2 million for the same period last year. Net income increased 34 percent to $2.7 million or 41 cents per share for the quarter vs. $2.0 million or 31 cents per share for last year's comparable quarter.

For the six months ended September 30, 1990 revenues totaled $93.9 million, up 10 percent from $85.6 million for the same period last year. Net income for the first half of fiscal 1991 was $5.1 million or 76 cents per share vs. $3.9 million or 60 cents per share for the same period last year.

The profit improvement was due to increased gross profit from high-speed ImageFIRST systems and reduced interest expense offset in part by increased income taxes.

Grahame N. Clark Jr., chairman and chief executive officer commented, ''While we are very pleased with the financial performance reported for the first half the softening economy in the U.S. is of growing concern to companies such as BancTec that depend heavily on the general level of capital spending. In fact we have experienced some lengthening in the end-user business order cycle and a slowdown in orders received from our OEM customers.

''However, the company's products have all been recently introduced or enhanced, and provide cost savings and productivity improvements to customers in a variety of industries throughout the world. As a result, we believe BancTec is well positioned to achieve good financial performance over the remainder of this year and for the longer term.''

BancTec provides computerized systems for processing financial transactions, including checks, remittance advices, sales drafts and giro documents. BancTec designs, manufactures, markets and services products that employ optical character recognition, magnetic ink character recognition and image processing technologies to read, digitize, encode, sort and process financial documents.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - S.E. Nichols Inc., (OTC) operating as debtor-in-possession since its filing for reorganization under Chapter 11 on Aug. 2, 1990, recently reported that its net loss for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, including a provision of $15.5 million for reorganization costs in connection with its Chapter 11 filing was $21,543,000.

For the same quarter of the preceding year ended July 29, 1989, the company reported a net gain of $1,810,000 which included a gain of $4,281,000 relating to the sale and discontinuance of the operations of the company's F.R.

Schrieber wholesale division.

For the six month period ended Aug. 4, 1990, the net loss amounted to $25,031,000, which loss included the $15.5 million reorganization reserve. For the same period of the preceding year ended July 29, 1989, the net loss was $5,687,000 after a provision of $3.8 million recorded in the first quarter of the preceding year for the previously announced 11 store closing program.

Sales for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, amounted to $11,492,000 and represented solely sales related to the operation of the company's Pharmhouse deep discount super drug stores which have been reopened at various times since mid-April 1990.

At present, a total of 19 stores are in operation. Sales for the same period of the preceding year were $51,452,000 and related solely to the operation of the company's 34 discount department stores which are no longer in operation. Due to the change in the number of stores and the company's retail format, the results of operations for these respective three month periods are not comparable.

Sales for the six months ended Aug. 4, 1990 amounted to $38,012,000 which included sales of the company's discount department stores until each store began its respective inventory liquidation sale plus sales relating to the Pharmhouse retail operations as each store reopened during the period mid-April through Aug. 4, 1990.

Sales for the same six month period of the preceding year amounted to $105,398,000 and related to the operations of 34 discount department stores. The results of operations for these respective six month periods are not comparable.

S.E. Nichols Inc. operates a chain of 19 Pharmhouse deep discount super drug and general merchandise stores in the mid-Atlantic states.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Commonwealth Bancshares Corp. (NASDAQ: CBKS) Friday announced third quarter 1990 net income of $3,592,000, up from $3,553,000 for the same quarter last year.

Year-to-date net income amounted to $10,001,000, up 10.5 percent from $9,053,000 reported in 1989.

The third quarter earnings of $3,592,000 were 1.1 percent higher than the record-setting 1989 third quarter of $3,553,000 and 12 percent greater than the 1990 second quarter performance of $3,208,000. Earnings per share for the third quarter amounted to 57 cents, the same as the third quarter 1989, but up from 52 cents per share for this year's second quarter.

Year-to-date earnings per share amounted to $1.60, as compared to $1.45 for the same period last year.

Our return on assets for the third quarter was .98 percent, down slightly from 1.06 percent for the same quarter 1989, but up from .92 percent in the second quarter of 1990. Year-to-date, return on assests amounted to .95 percent compared to .92 percent in 1989.

Our return on equity was 12.93 percent compared 13.95 percent for the third quarter of 1989 and 11.92 percent for the second quarter 1990. Year-to-date, return on equity has improved to 12.37 percent versus 12.11 percent in 1989.

''With the financial industry currently showing generally lower earnings, we are pleased to report that Commonwealth Bancshares Corp. remains an exception to the rule,'' said William D. Davis, chairman and chief executive officer. ''This was accomplished by following our long-range strategy of offering quality services traditionally identified with a locally oriented, full-service regional bank.''

''We continue to be optimistic relative to earnings performance for the remainder of 1990 and throughout 1991,'' said William E. Snell Jr., president and chief operating officer. ''Our gains in productivity, strong capital position and sound loan portfolio reflecting a diversifed local economy will support our efforts to reach our budgeted goals.''

Regarding credit quality, the fundamentals of our loan portfolio continue to be sound and our lending practices remain conservative. The institution does not have a concentration in commercial real estate and, as we generally stay within our market area, we avoid the intense competition for this segment of the market that has been experienced elsewhere.

The multi-bank holding company serves 12 counties with 55 offices throughout northcentral Pennsylvania. Upon completion of The First Bank of Greater Pittston merger in November, assets will total $1.6 billion and the corporation will serve 14 counties with 60 community offices throughout northcentral and northeastern Pennsylvania.

NEW HAVEN, CT (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - First Constitution Financial Corp., the holding company that owns First Constitution Bank, reported a net loss of $12.9 million or $1.18 a share for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with a loss of $10.9 million or $1.00 a share for the same period a year ago.

This year's third-quarter loss, when added to first- and second-quarter losses of $39.4 million and $19.0 million, results in a net loss for the nine months of $71.3 million or $6.51 a share. This compares with a loss of $1.3 million or 11 cents a share for the first nine months of 1989, according to John J. Crawford, president and chief executive officer.

The 1990 third-quarter results reflect an addition to reserves for losses of $12.0 million, bringing total reserves for loan losses and real estate investments to $93.6 million. Non-performing assets were $273.4 million at Sept. 30, an increase of $36.5 million in the quarter -- consisting principally of $22.6 million in commercial real estate loans and $11.3 million in residential real estate loans.

The ratio of reserves to non-performing assets was 34 percent at Sept. 30.

''Our business continues to be affected by the widespread deterioration of the Connecticut ecnomomy and, in particular, the persistant decline in our state's real estate markets,'' Crawford said. ''That is why a priority of ours is working out problem loans.''

Shareholders' equity at Sept. 30 was $144.1 million. Total assets were $2.2 billion. The consolidated equity-to-asset ratio was 6.6 percent, and book value per share was $13.16.

Primary and total capital ratios for First Constitution Bank, computed according to FDIC requirements, were both 8.7 percent at Sept. 30. ''Similar to actions taken at other banking institutions recently, First Constitution Bank, computed according to FDIC requirements, were both 8.7 percent at Sept. 30. ''Similar to actions taken at other banking institutions recently, First Constitution Bank directors have entered into a memorandum of understanding with federal and state regulators -- following the completion of an examination of the bank. The memorandum calls principally for development of a plan to maintain a primary capital ratio of at least 8 percent, while continuing to maintain adequate loan loss reserves and working to reduce adversely classified assets,'' Crawford said.

Net interest income before the provision for loan losses was $8.9 million for this year's third quarter, compared with $12.6 million a year ago. For the nine months, net interest income was $31.0 million, compared with $40.1 million last year.

Third-quarter non-interest income was $1.2 million this year, compared with $4.0 million last year, when there was an early settlement of a large loan and income from investments. This year's nine-month non-interest income was $1.0 million, compared with $12.2 million for the same period last year. This difference is attributable primarily to gains on investment securities in 1989 and losses recognized in 1990.

Non-interest expense for the 1990 third quarter was $11.2 million, compared with $9.7 million for the same period last year. For the nine months of 1990, it was $34.5 million, compared with $26.7 million for last year's first nine months.

Because of the adverse effect of non-accruing loans, the average interest rate spread for the third quarter was 1.47 percent. The net interest margin was 1.74 percent.

First Constitution Bank is a state-chartered, FDIC-insured savings bank with 22 offices in New Haven and Fairfield counties.

The common shares of the holding company, First Constitution Financial Corp., are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System. At Sept. 30, there were 10,950,333 shares outstanding.

TINTON FALLS, NJ (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Concurrent Computer Corporation today announced that it has entered into an agreement whereby its bank group will not take any action, except on ten days prior notice, to enforce the payment of debt owed by Concurrent. Denis R. Brown, Concurrent's president and CEO, said, ''We are pleased with this arrangement. This extends the existing informal grace period indefinitely and is intended to give the company sufficient time to complete a revised business plan and capital restructuring proposal expected by early December 1990.''

''The bank group recognizes the inappropriateness of our highly leveraged capital structure and the need to restructure it in a way consistent with our revised business plan,'' Brown added. As part of the agreement, Concurrent paid $1.6 million in interest which was due to the banks in September.

Brown recently returned from an extensive tour throughout the U.S. and Europe to keep his commitment to deal directly with concerns of customers, suppliers and employees; he plans to visit other locations later this month. He commented, ''I am impressed with the level of commitment our customers have to Concurrent.''

Concurrent Computer Corporation is the leading supplier of high-performance, real-time computer systems worldwide. The company's products, marketed through the Commercial Markets, Simulation/Training and Real-Time Technical Systems Groups, provide real-time solutions to the financial, communications, public sector, technical, aerospace and simulation markets. Its common stock (CCUR) is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System.

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - On Oct. 17, after five years without a rate increase, The New York State Public Service Commission issued an order authorizing Brooklyn Union a permanent increase in base rates of approximately $20 million, or 2 percent.

In addition, the company will include in 1991 earnings approximately $12 million of tax credits, largely related to previously negotiated reductions in property and federal income taxes. (The company has approximately $24 million of tax credits remaining to offset rate relief in the future). The total increase of $32 million reflects an allowed rate of return of 11.9 percent on utility common equity.

Other components of the order included recovery of approximately $2 million more in sales promotion expenses than previously provided; denial of a proposal to adjust the company's capital structure to include debt of the subsidiaries, which would have lowered the company's allowed rate of return and impeded future diversification efforts; and allocation of the rate increase consistent with the company's objective to maintain its competitive position in certain commercial market segments.

The Brooklyn Union Gas Co. Thursday arranged with Shell Gas Trading Co. for long-term delivery of up to 80 million cubic feet of gas per day. The agreement is the largest ever, both in terms of gas volumes and monetary value between a U.S. producer and a local distribution company such as Brooklyn Union. The gas is attractively priced and will meet the growing local demand for clean-burning natural gas. Brooklyn Union currently serves 1.1. million customers in New York City.

FRAMINGHAM, MA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Liant Software Corp. Friday announced that four of its compiler products are included in the Federal Aviation Administration's "Office Automation Technology and Services" (OATS) contract awarded to AT&T in December 1989.

The FAA was the procurement agency for the Department of Transportation (DOT). Products from Liant's operating subsidiary, Language Processors Inc. (LPI), have been shipping since July 1990. The total amount of the contract awarded to AT&T is approximately $853 million. The potential revenue to Liant from this subcontract award was not disclosed.

Under the terms of the agreement, Liant, through its LPI subsidiary, will provide the DOT and the FAA with compilers that will be used to build some of the office automation applications on AT&T information systems. The LPI languages to be supplied include: LPI True BASIC-87 and LPI-FORTRAN for the UNIX operating system, and LPI True BASIC-87 and LPI-PASCAL for the DOS environment.

Robert Lapides, vice president of sales for Liant Software Corp., said, "The OATS contract is another example of Liant's unmatched success in serving the federal marketplace. Products from Liant companies are included by more than 30 prime contractors and systems integrators in more than 80 percent of all major procurement bids of UNIX-based PCs and workstations for the federal government.

"Often, several integrators for the same government procurements will simultaneously bid Liant products. We dominate this market because we understand and satisfy the needs of the federal government and its prime contractors."

Liant was previously a subcontractor to AT&T in October 1988 when it won the largest federal procurement contract to date based on the UNIX operating system - the Air Force's "AFCAC 251" procurement.

Other major federal subcontracts for Liant have included "Desktop III" (Department of Defense), awarded in November 1989, and "DIS II" (Department of the Interior).

Liant Software Corp., through its family of systems software companies, provides integrated programming tools for constructing and maintaining portable applic Liant is the parent company of three operating subsidiaries: Framingham-based Language Processors Inc. (LPI), specializing in scientific and engineering programming systems; Austin, Texas-based Ryan McFarland Corp. NASHVILLE, TN (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - DeVlieg-Bullard Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:DVLG) Friday announced that Richard W. Sappenfield has joined the company as a vice president.

Sappenfield's responsibilities will include managing the Services Group, one of the company's three major divisions. The Services Group provides aftermarket products and services nationwide to the users of machine tools.

Sappenfield is joining DeVlieg-Bullard from Nasco Holdings Inc. where he has served as president and chief operating officer since 1987. Nasco Holdings, based in Springfield, Tenn., is a privately held diversified company with annual revenues exceeding $100 million.

From 1985-1987, Sappenfield was president and chief executive officer of the Murray Ohio Manufacturing Co., which manufactures and markets bicycles and lawn mowers. Prior to joining Murray Ohio, he held managerial positions with Avco Aerostructures, including serving as the president and general manager of this major subsidiary of the Avco Corp.

Sappenfield's work experience also includes a number of managerial positions with Rockwell International, the last being vice president and general manager of the plastics division.

Sappenfield is a director of Smith, Seckman & Reid and the Bayly Corp. He serves on the board of the Easter Seals Society and is a member of the board of the Middle Tennessee Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He received his education in engineering and business management from UCLA and Santa Monica City College.

DeVlieg-Bullard is a diversified industrial concern specializing in servicing, upgrading, automating and remanufacturing precision engineered machine tools. The company also manufactures sophisticated original and replacement tooling products used in industrial machine tools.

The Services Group, which Sappenfield will manage, was effectively formed through acquisitions in March 1990 which gave DeVlieg-Bullard control of the engineering and technical drawings covering parts for an installed base of approximately 65,000 machine tools nationwide. Subsequent acquisitions of other trade names have expanded the company's market coverage to nearly 100,000 machine tools.

FITCHBURG, MA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Anthony Cetrone, president of Micron Products Inc., (ASE:PMR) reported that Micron had incurred a net loss of $2,757,138 for the year ended June 30.

Cetrone stated that while the Micron Medical Products subsidiary was profitable, the consolidated company incurred a loss from continuing operations of $331,233 due to a non-cash charge of approximately $400,000 related to litigation with former owners of the Numedco subsidiary.

As previously reported, the company discontinued operations at Numedco during June 1990. The $2,424,905 loss from discontinued operations includes all costs to close down the Philadelphia based business.

Cetrone added that the company expects to report a quarterly profit for the fiscal period ended Sept. 30. This will be the first profit achieved after eight consecutive quarters of losses.

Cetrone also announced that the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders had been set for 11:00 a.m. on Tuesday Nov. 27, at the offices of Micron Medical Products - 25 Sawyer Passway, Fitchburg. DALLAS (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Texas Instruments Inc. (NYSE:TXN) Friday reported its third quarter 1990 financial results. FINANCIAL SUMMARY

Revenues for the quarter were $1680 million, compared with $1571 million in last year's third quarter. Net loss was $7 million, compared with net income of $65 million in the third quarter of 1989.

Loss per share was 19 cents, compared with earnings per share of 67 cents in the same period of 1989. Losses in TI's semiconductor business, caused by sharply lower prices for semiconductor memories and substantially higher investments in new products and capacity, were primarily responsible for the unfavorable change from last year's third quarter.

Third-quarter financial results were also impacted by the temporary disruption of business at our semiconductor assembly-and-test operation in the Philippines following the earthquake in July. There was major damage in the area, with disruption of water, electrical power and transportation for an extended period.

Our facilities in Baguio sustained some structural damage, but through the extraordinary efforts of our people, full production was reestablished in less than four weeks with minimal impact on our customers' business activities.

TI develops, manufactures and markets semiconductors, defense electronics systems, software productivity tools, computer systems and peripheral products industrial automation and control systems, electrical controls, metallurgical materials, and consumer electronic products.

BELLEVILLE, IL (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - William S. Badgley, chairman of the board of Magna Group Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:MAGI), reported third quarter earnings of $5.0 million or 39 cents per share compared to $4.9 million or 40 cents per share for the third quarter of 1989.

Year-to-date 1990 earnings totaled $13.2 million or $1.04 per share compared to $14.7 million or $1.21 per share for the first nine months of 1989. Although net interest income in 1990 increased 4.9% over 1989 net interest income, the net interest margin declined 18 basis points from 4.63% in 1989 to 4.45%. The increase in 1990 net interest income was more than offset by the increase in the provision for loan losses and the costs associated with the Enhanced Retirement Incentive Program, the acquisition of two thrifts from the Resolution Trust Corp. and the increase in FDIC assessments. The Enhanced Retirement Incentive Program was completed in Feb. 1990.

Total assets as of Sept. 30, 1990 were $2.36 billion, an increase of 7.2% from $2.20 billion a year earlier. Total deposits increased 7.4% to $2.05 billion from $1.90 billion. Loans net of unearned income were $1.46 billion up 6.0% from $1.38 billion at Sept. 30, 1989. Stockholders' equity rose 9.6% to $183 million from $167 million. Primary capital as a percent of total assets was 9.25% at Sept. 30, 1990 making Magna a strongly capitalized banking company.

The allowance for loan losses totaled $17.2 million or 1.18% of loans compared to 1.08% at Dec. 31, 1989. Non-performing loans (loans 90 days or more past due and accruing, non-accrual loans and restructured loans) totaled $34.7 million as of Sept. 30, 1990 a decrease of $1.3 million from June 30, 1990. Net loans charged off during the first nine months of 1990 totaled $6.3 million or .59% of average net loans.

Badgley announced the board's declaration of the fourth quarter dividend of 17 cents per share. Such dividend will be paid to all stockholders of record Nov. 15, 1990 and is payable on Dec. 10, 1990.

Magna Group Inc., a multi-bank holding company headquartered in Belleville, owns eight banks with 50 locations throughout central and southern Illinois, a trust company and a data processing company.

MT. LAUREL, NJ (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Tyco Toys Inc. (NASDAQ:TTOY) Friday announced that, despite record sales, it is now projecting lower net income and earnings per share for the year, compared to last year.

Richard E. Grey, president and chief executive officer, said, ''We are aggressively responding to sluggish retail toy sales by increasing our advertising expenditures by $4 million for the fourth quarter. At the same time, our 1990 net income will be reduced by losses at our Nasta subsidiary.

''Net losses of Nasta International Inc. are now projected to exceed $5 million this year, compared to net income of $1.4 million last year,'' Grey added. ''However, we expect that our acquisition of Playtime will be completed in about two weeks, and that the combined Playtime/Nasta business will be profitable in 1991.''

Grey further added that Tyco now expects 1990 results to range between $1.60 and $1.80 per share, fully diluted, including a projected 40 cent per share loss from Nasta. Tyco reported $2.25 per fully diluted share last year, including 10 cents per share income from Nasta.

Tyco, which markets a broad line of toy products, expects to report third quarter results by month end.

LOUISVILLE, KY (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Thomas Industries Inc. (NYSE:TII) announced Friday that its Board of Directors adopted at its Oct. 18, 1990 meeting certain amendments to the existing preferred stock purchase rights which are attached to each outstanding share of the company's common stock.

The purpose of the amendments is to update the rights in light of current business practices so as to appropriately protect the interests of the company's shareholders.

Under the amendments, the rights will separate from the common stock in the event of an announcement or commencement of a tender offer for at least 20 percent of the company's outstanding common stock. Formerly, the threshold had been 30 percent. The amendments also reduce to 20 percent the threshold of ownership by a shareholder at which the rights will separate.

The amendments revise the shareholder rights plan so that the provisions which allow a shareholder to purchase company stock at a 50 percent discount will be operative solely on the basis of a shareholder crossing the 20 percent ownership threshold.

Among the amendments are provisions to also: add an exchange feature; allow the Board of Directors to delay the separation date in the event of a tender offer which would trigger the rights; delete the provision for a 10 day redemption period after the stock acquisition date; and extend to 45 trading days from 10 trading days the period for determining the current market price. The amendments do not require redemption of the rights or issuance of new rights.

Thomas Industries Inc. designs, manufactures and markets a broad array of commercial, industrial and residential lighting products, fractional horsepower compressors and vacuum pumps, as well as specialty products for commercial, industrial and consumer markets. Thomas, with worldwide sales last year in excess of $436 million, has operations in the U.S., Canada, Europe and Asia.

BOSTON (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Lifetime Corp. (NYSE: LFT) announced Friday that on Oct. 16, 1990, the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania dismissed all claims in the March 1988 action brought against Lifetime, Michael J. Sinclair, Anthony H. Reeves and others by Capital Care Corp.

Judge John P. Fullam dismissed all federal law claims and upheld the validity of an October 1986 Asset Purchase Agreement pursuant to which Capital Care released Lifetime, its affiliates and principals from all claims which it may have had against such persons. The state law claims were dismissed with prejudice to their being asserted in a state forum.

Capital Care has 30 days to appeal Judge Fullam's decision. The company has no indication of the course of action Capital Care intends to take.

Capital Care was seeking damages of $9 million for fraud and breach of contract as well as damages for federal securities law violations and treble damages for violations of federal racketeering laws. The claims were based on among other things, the acquisition of stock of Capital Care in 1984 by a subsidiary of Lifetime and the purchase by Lifetime of two subsidiaries of Capital Care in 1987.

Lifetime Corp., through its Kimberly Quality Care and National Mentor divisions, is one of the nation's largest providers of home health care personnel and services, psychiatric home care, and supplemental staffing for institutions. Through its ASB Meditest and Office Angels divisions, Lifetime is a leading provider of paramedical examinations to insurance companies, schools, and businesses, and is a provider of temporary and permanent office personnel.

NEW MILFORD, CT (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Colonial Data Technologies Corp. (NASDAQ:CDTX) the leading supplier of Caller ID Display Units, Friday reported third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 sales of $1,917,000 and net income of $24,000 compared to sales of $1,683,000 and a net profit of $1,000 in the prior year period.

For the first nine months, sales and net income were $9,534,000 and $496,000 respectively, compared to sales of $4,583,000 and a net loss of $19,000 in 1989.

According to R.J. Schock, president, the opportunities in the Caller ID market continue to expand as telephone companies in numerous states have announced their intention of offering this popular service to their customers during 1991.

Protests from special interest groups that favor anonymous phone calls have been effective in slowing down the regulatory approval process; however, many phone companies plan to offer per-call blocking to facilitate the implementation. Caller ID subscribers will be alerted on their Display Units when the Caller uses per-call blocking thereby providing a mechanism for screening incoming calls. He noted that a portion of the Caller ID Display Unit sales during 1990 were attributable to early stocking of inventory into areas where approval of the service is pending.

HUNTINGDON VALLEY, PA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - FPA Corp. (ASE:FPO), a residential builder with operations in the Philadelphia metropolitan area and in Florida, Friday reported a loss from continuing operations of $10,251,000, or $2.56 per share, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared to a loss from continuing operations of $8,630,000, or $2.15 per share, during the prior fiscal year.

In addition, the company incurred an extraordinary loss of $9,110,000, or $2.27 per share, resulting from an April 1990 exchange transaction in which the company exchanged the majority of its Florida real estate and other assets for approximately $43 million of its outstanding public debt and related accrued interest.

Net losses were $19,679,000, or $4.91 per share, and $9,635,000, or $2.40 per share, for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1990 and 1989, respectively. Net losses included losses from discontinued operations amounting to $318,000 and $1,005,000 during the fiscal years 1990 and 1989, respectively.

During the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the company reported a net loss from continuing operations of $4,235,000, or $1.06 per share, compared with a net loss from continuing operations of $6,903,000, or $1.72 per share, during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

The fiscal 1990 fourth quarter included an after-tax charge of $1,225,000, resulting from an adjustment to the carrying values of certain land and residential properties, compared to a similar charge of $3,945,000 during the prior year.

The loss from continuing operations for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, increased $1,621,000 over the prior year due to a comparable reduction in income tax benefit of approximately $3.5 million since the company has utilized all available tax benefits for financial reporting purposes and to a reduction in gross profit from residential sales.

Offsetting these items was a reduction in selling, general and administrative expenses of approximately $3.3 million and increased profits from land sales of approximately $2 million.

In order to improve its financial condition, and provide sufficient working capital to meet current and future operating needs, the company has developed and is endeavoring to implement a plan to modify its current operating and debt structures.

The plan seeks modifications to existing debt service requirements on its senior and subordinated debt obligations and on certain mortgage obligations, additional overhead reductions and equity financing from certain principal shareholders.

RALEIGH, NC (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - For the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, Carolina Power & Light Co. (NYSE: CPL) reported earnings of $1.82 per share of common stock compared with $1.62 per share for the third quarter of 1989.

Net income for the quarter was $153.9 million compared to $138.3 million for the like period last year. Operating revenues for the third quarter were $762.7 million compared to $712.4 million for the like period last year.

Earnings for the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 1990 were $4.54 per share compared to $4.06 per share for the like period of 1989. Net income for the current 12 month period was $414.6 million compared to $358.7 million for the like period last year.

Operating revenues for the most recent 12-month period were $2.6 billion compared to $2.4 billion for the like period last year.

For the third quarter, customer growth and an extended period of warm weather contributed to the increased earnings. Energy sales for the quarter were up 4.5 percent over the like period last year. The number of customers increased by over 18,000 compared to the third quarter last year.

During the third quarter, the company adopted a change in accounting which provides for the accrual of estimated unbilled revenues. Unbilled revenues are the amounts customers will be charged for services rendered, but not billed, at the end of an accounting period. The cumulative effect of this accouting change on the current 12-month period was to increase earnings by $99.9 million, or $1.18 per share.

The current and previous 12-month periods were impacted by write-offs related to regulatory treatment of the Harris plant. During the current 12-month period, the write-off totaled $81.6 million, or 97 cents per share. In the previous 12-month period, the write-off totaled $18.6 million, or 23 cents per share.

MAYAGUEZ, PUERTO RICO (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Miguel A. Garcia-Mendez Esq., president of Western Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ:WFPR), Friday reported an increase of 16 percent in the bank's year to date net operational income, through the third quarter of 1990, totalling $3,303,414.00 as compared to $2,849,598.00 for the same period last year, excluding non-recurring gains on sale of securities, which totalled $1,528,273.00.

Third quarter earnings increased to $890,923.00, or 59 cents per share, as compared to $859,071.00, or 55 cents per share for the same period last year. Reserve for possible loan losses was increased to 1.90 percent of all consumer commercial and credit card loans, increasing the total reserve 24.94 percent to $2,804,437.00 from $2,247,661.00 reported in the same period last year.

Garcia-Mendez indicated that the increase in third quarter earnings was the result of adequate control over the bank's cost of funds, and an increment in yield over the bank's total assets (reduced to $536,992,330.00 as compared to $591,652,728.00 for the same period last year) to accommodate an intended joint acquisition of what used to be Caguas Central Federal Savings Bank. The acquisition did not materialize when the bid presented by the acquiring group did not meet the cost test established by the Resolution Trust Corp.

Western Federal is Puerto Rico's strongest regional bank and the fourth largest savings bank on the island, with 23 full service branches mainly located on the Western, Southern and Northeastern regions of Puerto Rico.

Western Federal expects to inauguarate its 24th full service branch - on the Western region of the island - during the first quarter of 1991.

LAKEWOOD, CO (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - A series of significant new drill hole intercepts have been encountered at the London gold mine near Fairplay, Colo. during the past month of exploration.

The Alma London Venture is in the process of defining a much higher grade ore body at the property than in the past, prior to the expected resumption of mining operations in February 1991.

''We are very encouraged. The latest exploration indicates we have a significant new resource averaging about 0.68 ounces of gold per ton in place, which should be mineable at grades in excess of 0.5 ounces per ton,'' Alistair Turner, executive vice president of American Boulder, said.

''Our reinterpretation of the structural controls on mineralization and subsequent drilling show that continuos, high-grade mineralization is localized along vertical rather than in subhorizontal structures that we mined in the past,'' he added.

The Alma London Venture is comprised of 50 percent operator Alma American Mining Corp., Cobb Resources Corp. (25 percent) and American Boulder (25 percent). American Boulder N.L., an Australian public company is 61 percent owned by Boulder Gold (AASE: BGN).

Boulder Gold's American Depositary Receipts also trade on the Over-The-Counter Market. Boulder Gold is engaged in the exploration and development of strategic and other precious mineral resources through its platinum group metals and chromite ore projects in Stillwater, Mont.

The London mine has historically been Colorado's largest gold producer, yielding 2.6 million ounces between 1890 and 1940. From May 1988 - June 1989 the mine was operated by American Boulder (AASE: ABD) and Cobb Resources (NASDAQ: COBB) and produced some 36,000 ounces.

''Our costs per ounce should be dramatically lower now that we have the benefits of a venture-owned mill, flotation and gravity plant at site, combined with the new structural interpretation that permits prediction of high-grade gold veins,'' Turner noted. ''Annual output by the Alma London Venture could reach 60,000 ounces,'' he concluded.

BRAINTREE, MA (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Grossman's Inc. (NASDAQ:GROS) Friday reported third quarter sales of $229.0 million, 1.0 percent behind sales of $231.2 million from ongoing operations in 1989.

Sales from ongoing operations for the nine-month period ending Sept. 30, 1990 totaled $628.8 million, 1.7 percent ahead of sales of $618.2 million in the prior year.

Net income for the third quarter totaled $6.8 million or 26 cents per share, compared to $11.2 million or 43 cents per share for the third quarter of 1989.

Net income for the third quarter of 1989 included a $4.1 million gain from sales of the Moore's and Northwest Divisions and a $1.9 million extraordinary charge, representing premiums on the prepayment and repurchase of long-term debt.

Tom Schwarz, chairman and chief executive officer, stated ''the economic downturn in the Northeast, particularly in housing, continues to adversely impact our operating results. Sales in the product lines where our merchandise expansion program has been most broadly implemented are up significantly, while sales in our other product lines have fallen with the economy. The company continues to develop strategies to build stockholder values in a changing economy and competitive climate.''

Schwarz also expressed his gratitude to shareholders for their overwhelming support of the company's management and board of directors in the recent attempt by real estate financiers to take control of the company's board.

Grossman's, a major retailer of lumber and building materials, operates 156 stores in nine Northeastern states and in California.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (OCT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Trump Air will begin offering charter and junket air service Monday through Thursday, beginning Monday, Oct. 22.

The charter and junket trips will replace Trump Air's regularly scheduled morning and afternoon weekday flights, which are expected to resume again in the Spring of 1991.

Trump Air will continue to provide evening and weekend commercial air service between Atlantic City and New York with regularly scheduled flights.

''Trump Air has always been responsive to the Atlantic City market as well as our customers needs,'' said Michael Burke, Trump Air general manager. ''At this time, however, the demand for commercial helicopter service has shifted from weekdays to weekends.''

SEOUL (OCT. 19) - South Korea and China will exchange "non-governmental" trade missions with consular duties this week, Foreign Ministry Choi Ho-Joong said Friday.

The agreement will be signed Saturday in Beijing by Lee Sun-Ki, president of the state-run Korea Trade Promotion Corporation (KOTRA) and Zheng Hongye, the chairman of the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade (CCPIT), Mr. Choi said.

The trade mission will carry out the "functions of liaison between the government of Beijing and Seoul," Mr. Choi said.

Press reports quoted ministry officials as saying that five government officials and 15 KOTRA officials would be sent to the China office.

Seoul has long sought to establish diplomatic relations with China, but Beijing has resisted in order not to anger its ally communist North Korea.

China's trade with South Korea amounted to three billion dollars last year, and an increasing number of South Korean industrial firms are trying to invest in China.

LONDON (OCT. 19) - Venezuela, whose current oil production of 2.3 million barrels per day has outstripped its OPEC quota, will be producing over 2.5 million bd by the end of the year, the president of the Venezuela Petroleum Company (PDVSA) said here on Thursday.

Andres Sosa Pietri, speaking on the first day of a two-day conference sponsored by the International Herald Tribune and the Oil Daily in London, sharply criticized the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' quota system, saying it had been "very damaging" to Venezuelan industry.

He told Agence France-Presse that he doubted that the quota system, limiting OPEC members to a fixed daily output, would survive the Gulf crisis.

During the conference, Mr. Sosa Pietri said that Venezuela had crude oil reserves of 59 billion barrels.

He termed "ridiculous" Venezuela's quota of 1.9 million bd, set by OPEC last summer shortly before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Venezuela was planning to invest eight billion dollars to boost production to 4 million bd by the end of the century, he said.

"The current crisis underlines the need to the keep to our investment program " he said, adding that investments would be financed by PDVSA from its current earnings.

A six-million-dollar investment project to develop the petrochemical industry and a three-billion-dollar plan to build facilities for the export of natural gas would be financed in joint venture with foreign firms, he said.

Mr. Sosa Pietri sketched three scenarios for the Gulf crisis and its effect on oil prices.

Under a first scenario, the crisis would drag on for six months and end with a negotiated settlement, with oil prices ranging from 25 to 30 dollars per barrel, then dropping sharply.

In the event of a brief war terminating with the collapse of the Saddam Hussein regime, he predicted oil prices would shoot up before falling back to previous levels.

In the case of prolonged war, he said oil prices would rise sharply and then drop, but more slowly than under the second scenario.

But he said that under all three possible situations, oil prices would fall after the crisis.

JAKARTA (OCT. 19) - The Indonesian state oil and gas company Pertamina announced Friday the discovery of natural gas in three separate areas.

Occidental Berau of Indonesia Inc., a subsidiary of Occidental Petroleum Corp. struck gas at the Berau offshore field in the easternmost Indonesian province of Irian Jaya, a Pertamina press release said.

The Roabida-1 well, the third exploratory well in the Berau block, yielded a maximum sustained flow rate of 23.6 million cubic feet of natural gas per day.

Occidental Berau is the operator of the Berau block and holds a 40 percent interest while the rest are equally shared by Nippon Oil Exploration Ltd and Sun Oil Berau Indonesia Ltd.

Asamera Ltd, a subsidiary of Gulf Canada Resources Ltd, discovered gas in the Corridor block of South Sumatra.

The Gelam-1 wildcat well has a cummulative flow rate of 26.3 million cubic feet of gas per day. Additional drillings were planned to determine the extend of the discovery.

Asamera operates and holds a 54 percent interest on the Corridor Block. Bow Valley Industries and Pertamina respectively holds 36 and 10 percent.

A Pertamina exploration and production unit also found gas at the Bunyu Sei Paya-1 wildcat well near the Nibung field in East Kalimantan.

The well, less than two kilometres (miles) from a methanol Refinery, flowed 19.06 million cubic feet of gas per day.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) - The government Friday announced an upward revision of Japan's gross national product (GNP) in fiscal 1988 that ended March last year, following a regular change in the base year to 1985 from 1980.

The Economic Planning Agency makes a change in the base year every five years to minimize errors in calculating GNP data.

The revised data showed that the GNP totaled an unadjusted 379.02 trillion yen (three trillion dollars) in fiscal 1988, the latest year for which revised economic statistics are available.

The figure represented an upward revision of 6.51 trillion yen (52.5 billion dollars), or 1.7 percent from the previous figure.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) - Japanese securities firms are expected to change their accounting methods to avoid sharp drops in pre-tax profits in their mid-year financial statements for the six months to September, finance ministry officials said.

The recent sharp fall in stock prices led the Japanese firms to adopt new accounting procedures which allow unrealized dealings losses to be listed as extraordinary losses if they are large enough to reduce pre-tax profits by more than five per cent, the officials said.

It also allows statements to exclude erratic market fluctuations, they said.

Kosei Securities Co., Ltd. became the first firm Thurday to release its mid-year statement under the new accounting method.

Other brokerage houses, including Nomura Securities Co., are expected to follow suit in their mid-year earnings reports to be released on October 23, industry sources said.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) - Japan's broad measure of money supply grew at an annual rate of 12 percent in September, up from 11.9 percent in August, the Bank of Japan said Friday.

"Despite a slowdown in lending, a shift from non-monetary financial assets helped to push money supply up," the central bank said, referring to inflows of funds from investment trusts and postal-savings accounts into bank deposits.

But money supply growth - comprising cash in circulation, bank deposits and cerificates of deposit - fell on a quarterly basis from 13 percent in the three months to June to 12 percent in the latest quarter, the bank said.

Tokyo (OCT. 19) - The value of stocks held by Japanese ''big four'' brokerage houses has fallen sharply during the past six months due to the sagging stock market prices.

The stock holdings had lost approximately 825 billion yen (6.6 billion dollars) in value by the end of September, compared with the level six months earlier, securities industry sources said.

Among the big four - Nomura, Daiwa, Nikko and Yamaichi - Nomura, the biggest, was hard hit by stock market sell-offs, with its stock holding value dipping 340 billion yen, the sources added.

The Nikkei Index of 225 leading issues, the Tokyo stock market price indicator also lost ground during the period, plunging to 20,983 points at the end of September from the 29,980 points registered at the end of March.

MANILA (OCT. 19) - State-run Philippine Airlines (PAL) Friday declared a record net profit of 584 million pesos (22.7 million dollars) in 1989 and said it would have been higher were it not for last December's bloody coup attempt.

PAL president Dante Santos said in a report to stockholders that the profit, a 91.6 percent annual increase, was the highest in the airline's history and its best financial performance ever in terms of return on revenues.

He said the airline, which adheres to a fiscal year beginning in March unlike most Philippine companies, enjoyed gross revenues totalling 19.97 billion pesos (776 million dollars) in 1989, up six percent over 1988.

Mr. Santos said the December 1989 coup attempt that nearly toppled President Corazon Aquino cost PAL more than 300 million pesos in lost revenues (11.65 million dollars).

A total of 798 domestic and 38 international flights of PAL were cancelled during the two-week military uprising in Manila and Cebu, where the country's other international airport is located, he said.

PAL has a near monopoly of domestic destinations and flies to 26 cities in 19 countries.

KUALA LUMPUR (OCT. 19) - Oil prices are likely to drop below 30 U.S. dollars a barrel unless a major war breaks out in the Gulf and knocks out more production capacity, British Petroleum chairman Robert Horton said here Friday.

"In the long term ... there is an upper limit beyond which oil prices will not be sustained for more than a few months," Mr. Horton told a business luncheon here during a four-day visit.

He said he expected that limit to be below 30 dollars a barrel. But he added that crude prices would probably average between 20 and 25 dollars in the long term after taking into account the world oil surplus and after the "war premium" on oil prices wears off.

Several oil-producing countries, including Saudi Arabia and Venezuela, have boosted production to make up for lost supplies from Iraq and Kuwait following the U.N. embargo imposed on Baghdad after its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Following the invasion, oil prices doubled to 40 dollars before settling back at their current level of nearly 37 dollars.

Mr. Horton said that if war broke out, prices would go much higher, but once stability returned crude prices would rapidly drop below 30 dollars.

SYDNEY (OCT. 19) - John Elliott's Harlin Holdings on Friday announced its renegotiated sale of a large stake in Elders IXL to Japan's Asahi Breweries.

Japan's second largest brewer had renegotiated the original deal to buy a 19.9 per cent stake in the Australian brewing and industrial giant after Elders' share price recently collapsed.

Harlin said in a statement that Asahi now planned to buy 17 per cent of Elders at 2.00 dollars a share instead of the original deal to buy all the stock at 2.15 dollars a share.

Asahi has agreed to pay five cents more for each share if the Elders share price exceeds 1.85 dollars for 20 straight days.

Asahi will buy the remaining 2.99 percent of Elders shares on market.

Elders stock closed 11 cents higher today at 1.35 each but has traded as low as 99 cents in recent weeks.

Harlin, which acquired just better than half the shares of Elders at 2.50 dollars last year and is estimated to have debts of about 2.8 billion dollars (2.1 billion U.S.), said the deal "will stabilise the company's financial position."

It said the renegotiated deal followed the failure of Elders to pay a final dividend for the 1989-90 year and weakness in the Elders share price.

"It is expected that settlement of the transaction will be completed shortly after the necessary approvals have been granted and final documentation has been completed," Harlin said.

Harlin is reliant on dividends from Elders to finance its debt, but Elders failed to declare any dividend when it reported a then Australian record loss of 1.3 billion dollars (one billion U.S.) for the year to June 30.

LONDON (OCT. 19) - Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh on Friday repeated his call for the holding of a conference between OPEC and the International Energy Agency (IEA) to establish a dialogue between oil producers and consumers.

He said: "I strongly believe that the IEA instead of taking anti-OPEC stands, should now hold a joint session with OPEC to discuss oil demand and supply situations and even ways of coping with the current or future crisis."

He made his remarks in a speech to the Oil and Money conference here, which was read by the director general of the National Iranian Oil Co. (NIOC) Javad Yarjani.

Mr. Aghazadeh had made this proposal at the end of August at a meeting of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in August.

"Market stability is so serious that a number of countries, or even OPEC as the biggest group of oil producers, cannot materialise it on their own in the absence of other players," he said.

"Producer-consumer dialogue has to be launched now. It cannot be avoided or the future will force the dialogue on us.

"Unnecessary oil price fluctuations would be avoided and producers, too, would be capable of assuring consumers that no oil supply disruptions occur even in emergencies.

"A logical and fair basis has to be speculated for oil prices, adjusted also with the impacts of inflation and exchange rates, either on a yearly basis or even shorter intervals, while also allowing for a gradual annual absolute increase for the price."

The minister said that the Gulf crisis and its repercussions on oil supplies were "mainly the result of political developments that erupted in the region in the past decade, as well as the low oil prices of the past several years which confronted the oil producing countries with a serious economic problem".

KUALA TRENGGANU, MALAYSIA (OCT. 19) - Four Molotov cocktails were hurled at the residence of an opposition candidate contesting Sunday's general election in this northeastern state, causing slight damage but no injuries, police said.

They said that the candidate, Tengku Ibrahim Ismail, reported being awakened by the explosions just before dawn in the first known violence ahead of Malaysia's election campaign.

"Only three Molotov cocktails exploded while we have taken the fourth for analysis," said Mohamad Ali Nathu Khan, chief of criminal investigations in Trengganu.

Tengku Ismail, the younger brother of the sultan of Trengganu, is running for the Tanggol seat in the state legislature on the opposition Semangat '46 (Spirit of 46) ticket.

Semangat '46, headed by former trade and industry minister Tengku Razaleigh Hamzah, is giving Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad's nine-year-old government its biggest electoral challenge.

HONG KONG (OCT. 19) - The British colony's two note-issuing banks Friday announced a 0.5 percent cut in their prime rate, a move analysts said might worsen local inflation currently running in the near double digits.

The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corp. and Standard Chartered Bank said their lending rate to their most credit-worthy business clients would be cut to 10 percent from Monday.

The Hong Kong Association of Banks, the local interest rate cartel, Friday also announced a half point deduction across the board on local currency savings and time deposit rates, also effective Monday.

An association spokesman described the cuts as "fine-tuning" in response to current interbank market trends, and expressed hope that the move would not create too much inflationary pressure.

A weak economic showing further dampened by the Gulf crisis has led the Hong Kong government to forecast this year's inflation at 9.5 percent, although economists have warned the figure could go higher.

MANILA (OCT. 19) - President Corazon Aquino on Friday ordered Philippine oil companies to cut sales and deliveries to consumers by 10 percent in a bid to stretch the country's dwindling fuel supplies, an aide said.

"The measure is intended to stretch by six to seven days the country's petroleum fuel inventory, which is estimated to decline to a critical level of 59 days by year-end if the measure is not put in place," executive secretary Catalino Macaraig said.

Mr. Macaraig, concurrently chairman of government's Energy Operations Board, said in a statement that with the 10 percent slash, the inventory would be stretched to 70 days' worth of consumption at the end of the year.

He said the rise in world crude prices triggered by the Gulf crisis "is putting severe strain on our foreign exchange reserves," noting that costs had passed the 25 dollar per barrel limit set by Manila for implementing the cut.

PALMA DE MALLORCA, SPAIN (OCT. 19) - The Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe agreed here Friday on the need to intensify cooperation on enviromental protection between all Mediterranean countries.

''A deterioration of the environment would pose a further risk for the political, social and economic balance of this region'', according to a communique issued at the end of the conference.

Experts of the 34 Csce member states and seven Arab lateral Mediterranean countries - Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt, Lebanon, and Syria - and Israel, took part in the four-week conference.

In view of the damage already done to the region's ecological system, the Csce has drawn up a programme of relief measures ranging from a more rational use of water supplies to fighting forest fires.

Closer cooperation was also sought in trade and economic matters, with the Csce holding out to states on the southern an eastern shores of the Mediterranean the prospects of ''equal market access'' and ''improved financial, technical and economic cooperation''.

The conference appealed to its members to help spread the load of tourists from their countries crowding the beaches of the Mediterranean.

The influx each summer some 100 million tourists posed a serious burden on the evironment. The conference therefore urged efforts to attract out-of-season tourists and to encourage holidays inland, away from the coast.

PARIS (OCT. 19) - Shares in the French Michelin tyre company, which had lost eight percent of their value on Thursday, were suspended briefly under heavy selling pressure on Friday, and later traded down a further 11.8 percent to 60 French francs.

The stock-market regulatory authority, the COB, said that it had begun an investigation into the release of bad company reults on Thursday, and into trading in the shares.

Michelin forecast a loss of 2.3 billion francs (about 460 million dollars) for the whole of 1990.

Manila (OCT. 19) - Philippines President Corazon Aquino Friday told the major oil companies operating in the country to reduce the sale and distribution of petrol by ten per cent.

The demand, which applies to all other oil-based products as well, is meant to soften the blow of the oil crisis the Philippines have suffered since the beginning of the Gulf conflict.

The new energy saving programme will extend the Philippine oil and petrol reserves by six or seven days, officials say.

The government aims to maintain the reserves achieved on September 30 - 70 days' consumption - until the end of the year. dpa dr wo 191336 okt 90

BEIJING (OCT. 19) - Growing numbers of Africans are being used as couriers in an international heroin trade dominated by ethnic Chinese crime syndicates, top Asian narcotics agents said here Friday.

Driven to trafficking by unemployment at home, the Africans - mostly from Nigeria - are using bogus travel documents to shuttle between Asian cities, collecting heroin consignments bound for Europe and North America, the agents said.

The agents were speaking at the end of a five-day meeting of heads of national drug-law enforcement agencies in Asia and the Pacific, organized by the United Nations' Division of Narcotic Drugs.

"Nigerian (couriers) in particular are coming in big numbers to a few countries in the Asian region, primarily India, Thailand, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh and Malaysia," said Dalbir Singh of India's Narcotics Control Bureau.

"It has also been found that these people are now spreading into Singapore and Laos," he said.

Travelling direct to Paris or Amsterdam, or via the Nigerian capital Lagos to the United States, the couriers mesh with Chinese underworld gangs, or "triads " with roots in Hong Kong.

"At this moment in the world, the illicit traffic in heroin is controlled to a very large extent by ethnic Chinese mafia," said Francisco Ramos-Galino, director of the U.N. Division of Narcotic Drugs.

While triads have been moving "in greater numbers" from Hong Kong to Thailand and Taiwan, "they are also in Amsterdam, Canada and the United States," previously preoccupied with Italian mobs, he said.

Much of the world's opium and heroin comes from the notorious "Golden Triangle

" a rugged area straddling Burma, Laos and Thailand. The region yielded an estimated 2,000 tonnes of opium last year.

Most of that output goes through long-established smuggling routes through Southeast Asia, though China - which borders Burma and Laos - has emerged as an important new conduit since the late 1980's.

Some 773 kilograms (1,700 pounds) of heroin were seized in China from January through June this year, compared to 559 kilograms (1,230 pounds) in all of last year, said Liu Wen, director of the Ministry of Public Security's criminal investigation department.

Jonnasburg (OCT. 19) - An earthquake in South Africa has killed at least eight workers in the world's deepest gold mine, the Anglo-American mining company said Friday.

The bodies of the eight workers were found in the Western Deep Levels mine, a 4,000-metre-deep pit about 60 kilometres southwest of Johannesburg, while two others were still missing since the minor quake occured on Thursday.

Three workers were killed in the same mine on Wednesday during a similar small quake. An average of 800 mine workers die each year in mine accidents or disasters in South Africa.

BONN (OCT. 19) - German politicians and security officials are at odds over the type of measures which should be taken to protect candidates during the electoral campaign leading up to December 2 general elections.

Following two attempted assassinations of political figures over the past six months, security officials are proposing a wide range of security tactics, including bullet-proof vests for candidates and a variety of American-style procedures.

But Chancellor Helmut Kohl and opposition Social Democratic (SDP) leader Hans-Jochen Vogel have both opposed excessive measures which would isolate voters from their political representatives.

A cabinet meeting on Thursday was devoted to the question of security procedures for the upcoming campaign, and the question remains under discussion, according to government spokesman Hans Klein. Following Thursday's meeting, Kohl asked security officials not to reveal their plans in public, but measures are expected to be unprecedented.

Vogel has warned that "a serious distortion" of democracy would result if politicians were obliged to wear bullet-proof vests or to be kept at too great a distance from voters at election meetings.

But federal police chief Hans-Ludwig Zachert, speaking several days after the October 12 shooting of Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble, expressed admiration for the "dictatorial" methods used by U.S. security services, and emphasized that German leaders have refused to employ such procedures.

He proposed that airport-style metal detectors be installed at entrances to political rallies, that police presence be strengthened and that the public be kept at a greater distance from political figures.

Two days before the attack on Schauble, the police had unsuccessfully requested an incease in their budget of seven million Deutschemarks (4.6 million dollars) to buy 22 additional armored cars and to increase its number of body guards to 220.

But many politicians from the government and the opposition regard assassination attempts as an occupational hazard, and point out that certain types of attacks, such as those carried out by mentally disturbed individuals, cannot be prevented short of enclosing politicians in plexiglass bubbles.

"Anyone wishing to take up politics should be aware of the risks," said Vogel, who has accepted protection from bodyguards for the past 16 years only "because the state can be blackmailed through kidnapping".

SDP candidate for chancellor Oskar Lafontaine was stabbed in April by a deranged woman at an election meeting.

DAR ES SALAAM (OCT. 19) - The Tanzanian government has foiled a plot to burn down the education ministry headquarters building here in an attempt to destroy incriminating evidence, the ministry's principal secretary Wilfred Mwabulambo said.

A total of 125 ministry employees were sacked recently for alleged theft.

Mr. Mwabulambo told newsmen here that 86 of the sacked workers would soon appear in court on charges of stealing 40.3 million Tanzanian shillings (212,000 U.S. dollars) from the ministry.

The suspects included the chief accountant, senior finance officer, six teachers and 73 accounts and store clerks, as well as secretaries, file clerks and typists.

Mr. Mwabulambo said the arson attempt was futile since incriminating documents had been removed for use in an impending trial.

The scandal has unearthed after investigations into misuse of ministry funds after many school-teachers went unpaid for months.

"Instead of paying salaries and leave allowances to teachers, people in the ministry had been pocketing the money", Mr. Mwabulambo alleged.

He added: "This is what has been happening in my ministry since 1989 and I am sure it is also happening in other ministries..."

Two years ago, the Tanzanian Central Bank, interior ministry headquarters buildings and the Central Government Stores, were gutted by fire. The fires were believed to have been started to destroy evidence of thefts. But no one was ever convicted.

MOSCOW (OCT. 19) - The Supreme Soviet adopted a guideline plan on Friday aimed at reforming the Soviet economy along market principles, an AFP correspondent observed in the Kremlin.

Some 333 deputies voted in favor of a resolution approving the plan, prepared as a compromise by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, laying down the "main orientations" of the economic reform program.

Only 12 deputies voted against, 34 abstained, and five deputies did not take part in the vote.

The resolution asks the Soviet president, the presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) and the government to "prepare laws implementing the reform guidelines".

Deputies had approved the plan earlier in the day "as a basis for discussion", and final passage had been anticipated.

Mr. Gorbachev said that central management was in its "death throes", and repeated that while socialism was not being rejected, a market economy is vital to release individual initiative.

The 60-page program, couched in notably vague terms, was distributed to deputies on Tuesday.

In a 45-minute speech defending his compromise between a conservative plan advanced by the government and a radical plan written by one of his own advisors, culminating in deadlock in September, President Gorbachev said that "We could have prolonged the agony of the administrative command system, but we would have come to a historic dead-end".

He hoped that the guidelines would overcome "centrifugal and negative tendencies", but added that the center had to retain control of some areas, and particularly of finances and the currency.

LONDON (OCT. 19) - Five peasants have reportedly been summarily executed by the army in Senegal's southern province of Casamance, where a secessionist movement has been active this year, Amnesty International said here Friday.

It urged the government in Dakar to mount a "full, independent and impartial investigation".

It said the five victims, suspected of being pro-secession, were apparently held during a swoop on Kanaw village on September 21. Their bodies were found in nearby fields.

Torture and executions without any trial of supposed accomplices of the secessionists have been reported over the past few months from Casamance, Amnesty said.

It called on the Senegalese government to "issue clear instructions to the security forces indicating that the killing of prisoners is forbidden by both Senegalese and international law".

BRAZZAVlLLE, Oct 19 (AFP) - Troops and police took up positions at the main markets and crossroads in the Congolese capital on Friday to prevent a general strike.

An unknown Workers' Forum had called for the strike in leaflets distributed in the past few weeks, but there appeared to be no support either here or in the economic capital Pointe Noire, with public and private sectors operating at almost full strength.

The head of the central labour body, Jean-Michel Bokamba Yangouma, said such a strike would have been illegal because negotiations were under way with the government to settle workers' claims.

Earlier in the month there were strikes by oil company, river transport, municipal, railways and seaport workers.

FLENSBURG, GERMANY (OCT. 19) - East Germans bought 320,000 new and used cars in July and August, after German monetary union on July 1 enabled them to swap their soft-currency savings for Deutsche marks, the Federal Automobile Office reported here Friday.

Among the purchasers were about 350 people who bought Porsche sports cars, the report said, pointing to areas of hidden wealth in the former German Democratic Republic.

The post-July 1 rush has caused the price of second-hand cars in west Germany to soar and clogged east German streets that previously were noted for their ease of driving.

Roughly two-thirds of the cars on former East German territory are Trabants and Wartburgs, small two-stroke cars with a reputation for pollution and poor reliability.

Favoured purchases this summer were German-made: VWs, Audis, Opels and then Fords.

ABIDJAN (OCT. 19) - An initial shipment of 15,000 tons of U.S. rice has arrived here as part of a loan and re-sale program to finance rural development in the Ivory Coast, a U.S. Embassy communique said here Friday.

The communique said the rice shipment, which arrived Monday, was the first of four expected by the end of November totalling 57,000 tons valued at 15 million dollars.

Under the U.S. aid program, the rice was bought on credit and will be re-sold in the West African country for 35 million dollars. The proceeds will be used for agriculture and rural development projects.

The Ivory Coast government is to pay back the loan over 30 years starting in five years, at an interest rate of two to three per cent, an embassy official said.

The credit re-sale program comprises part of 24 million dollars promised to the Ivory Coast by Washington for 1990. The pledge was made during an October 1989 donor meeting in Paris of the "Friends of Ivory Coast".

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) - President George Bush met here Friday with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbechev's special envoy for the Gulf crisis and pledged that there would be no compromise with Iraq over the issue of Baghdad's withdrawl from Kuwait.

"I'm determined ... that (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein's aggression not be rewarded by some compromise," Mr. Bush said prior to his meeting with Yevgeny Primakov. "The bottom line is he can't prevail," Mr. Bush said.

Mr. Primakov, who travelled to Baghdad earlier this month then visited European capitals before coming to Washington, denied suggestions that he was carrying a possible offer of compromise from the Iraqi president.

"I'm not a messenger," he said.

After meeting Thursday with Secretary of State James Baker, Mr. Primakov ruled out any deal with Mr. Hussein that would reward Iraq for pulling out of Kuwait.

"We should look for some possibilities to avoid, from my point of view, the military clashes, but not reward Iraq, of course, with its actions," Mr. Primakov said in English.

Asked if he carried a proposal from the Iraqi leader for negotiations based on something other than a complete Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, he answered, "Let me not comment on your very wise question."

Mr. Primakov's trip to Iraq led to Soviet press reports, later denied officially in Baghdad, that Iraq might consider withdrawing from Kuwait if Baghdad could retain two strategic islands in the Gulf and a disputed oil field.

Mr. Baker Tuesday flatly rejected such a partial solution, likening it to appeasement, and restated that position Thursday in congressional testimony after meeting with Mr. Primakov.

Mr. Baker told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives "there are some indications" Mr. Hussein "might be receptive to some sort of partial solution approach" to the crisis.

But, he added, "we don't think a partial solution is acceptable. It would be an extradordinarily bad principle to set there."

Mr. Baker also said not all the European countries complying with sanctions against Iraq would be willing to take part in a military strike operation against Baghdad.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) - A four-day Daijosai Imperial ceremony is scheduled here for November 22-25 after Japanese Emperor Akihito's enthronement ceremony is held on November 12, the Imperial Household Agency said Friday.

Daijosai is a traditional ceremony to mark a succession to the throne and it consists of three rituals - Yukiden Kyosen No Gi (rite of rice offering at the Yuki hall), Sukiden Kyosen No Gi (rite of rice offering at the Sukiden hall) and Daikyo No Gi (banquet).

A group of scholars and religious representatives recently asked the government not to finance the Daijosai, which they consider to be a Shinto ceremony.

They argued that expenditures of public money for the Daijosai violate Japan's constitution, which prohibits the government from supporting specific religions.

The rituals will be held at Daijokyu halls specially built in the garden of the Imperial Palace in central Tokyo, the Imperial Household Agency said. About 1,000 Japanese are expected to attend each Daijosai ritual and foreign representatives will not be invited, it said.

The Japanese government has sent invitations to 167 countries and two international organizations for the enthronement ceremony, officials said. But recently it revoked the invitation to Iraq for Baghdad's invasion and annexation of Kuwait in early August, they said. Emperor Akihito succeeded his father, Emperor Hirohito, who died January 7 last year.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) - The United States is preparing rotation plans to replace weary soldiers in the Gulf, possibly with forces now stationed in Europe, The Washington Post reported Friday quoting Pentagon officials. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is to decide on a rotation policy over the next two weeks, the officials were quoted as saying.

The plan may come up against North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) policies which in the past barred sending U.S. troops in Europe, currently numbering about 300,000, to other hot spots around the globe.

The officials said there have been no NATO objections so far, although they pointed out that Congress and certain provisions in U.S.-Soviet arms control agreements could also pose snags to any rotation scheme involving U.S. troops in Europe. If the rotation plan goes through, it would be the first time since World War II that U.S. military units in Europe were deployed elsewhere.

The sources said the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia codenamed Operation Desert Shield should be complete within the next two or three weeks, while full logistical support taking another month in arriving. Defense Department spokesman Bob Hall said that more than 200,000 U.S. troops are facing Iraqi forces in the Gulf region.

PARIS (OCT 19) - French President Francois Mitterrand Friday instructed his defence minister to come up with "concrete proposals" in the next two months on the future of French nuclear deterrence, an official statement said Friday.

Defence Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement was asked to prepare his proposals by the end of the year "in order to safeguard the future of French nuclear defence and maintain its credibility, with the next century in sight," the statement said.

A decision from Mr. Mitterrand on the future of France's independent nuclear strike force had been expected since Monday, when he told a news conference that he would make a statement before the end of the week.

France is currently faced with the choice of whether to go ahead with the planned modernisation of France's land-based strategic nuclear missiles, or to phase them out in order to develop an air-to-surface weapon which would be carried by the new Rafale fighter.

Britain is to decide in the next few weeks whether to contribute to the air-to-ground missile known as the ASLP (air-sol longue portee) which would have a range of 1,500 kilometres (937 miles).

The military hierarchy is reported to be split on the options.

A decision to phase out the 18 ground-to-ground missiles at the southern Albion plateau base would be a major shift in France's cherished nuclear strike force, as it would involve the elimination of an entire branch of France's nuclear defence which enjoys widespread public support.

The strike force has three components: the surface-to-surface missiles with a range of 3,500 kilometres (2,200 miles), medium-range weapons carried by 18 Mirage-4 aircraft, and strategic and short-range missiles on board France's five nuclear submarines.

Mr. Chevenement on Wednesday said however it was "too early" to talk of eliminating the Albion plateau.

Parliament is to debate France's nuclear forces when deputies consider updating the military programme for four years from 1992.

The nuclear programme in 1991 is to cost some 33 billion francs (6.5 billion dollars).

Military experts say that the need to overhaul the nuclear force is dictated both by strategic and budgetary motives at a time when disarmament in Europe is gaining pace.

BUENOS AIRES (OCT. 19) - British rock star Eric Clapton made a surprise return to Buenos Aires Friday in hopes of marrying a young Argentine waitress who stole his heart when he was in town earlier this month to give a concert.

The 45-year-old musician told reporters on his arrival that he met his hopeful bride-to-be, Ana Maria Roques, 24, at a posh Buenos Aires restaurant where he and his band dined when they were in town for the concert at River Plate soccer stadium.

The convent-educated Miss Roques still lives with her parents, who friends said were not too keen on her marrying a world-travelling musician two decades her senior.

Mr. Clapton did not say if Miss Roques had accepted his marriage proposal, but said he plans to wed her in March, after he completes the current world tour to promote "Journeyman," the guitar virtuoso's latest album.

BELGRADE (OCT 19) - Yugoslavian President Borisav Jovic called in parliament Friday for the country to "avoid catastrophe" from ethnic conflict.

Mr. Jovic was speaking to the parliament after a three-day session by the legislature failed to resolve a confrontation over the future form of the government.

Ethnic Serbs advocate a centralized federation while Croats and Slovenes seek a looser confederation.

The Croats and Slovenes managed to have postponed a report by Mr. Jovic calling for a vote for the federal model. Instead Mr. Jovic, who is a Serb, called Friday for Yugoslavians to resolve their differences in a spirit of tolerance.

The debate is expected to be put off until elections are held in Yugoslavia's six republics. Only two of them, Slovenia and Croatia have so far held ballots throwing the communists out of power.

PARIS (OCT 19) - United States Secretary of Defence Dick Cheney arrived in Paris Friday from Moscow where he said the U.S. would remould its defence strategy because there was no longer a risk of attack by the Soviet Union.

''I began as a sceptic, but I have been persuaded by the events of the last 18 months that we are entering a new era of Soviet-American relations,'' he said at a joint news conference with the Soviet defence minister, Marshal Dmitri Yazov.

''The United States is undertaking a fundamental revision of its military strategy'' in the face of ''overwhelming evidence'' of changes in Soviet military capabilities reflecting the Kremlin's stated good intentions, Cheney said.

In the next four to five years, the U.S. would reduce its forces by 25 per cent and cut its defence budget by 25 per cent, he added. The Pentagon would maintain 12 to 14 ready-to-deploy army divisions instead of 18 and would cut warship strength from 600 to about 450.

Yazov said the Soviet Union would reduce construction of new intercontinental nuclear weapons by half as soon as agreement was reached with Washington to halve existing stocks.

Cheney and Yazov confirmed they had discussed the Gulf crisis. Yazov reiterated the Soviet view that a political settlement must have priority over military action, while Cheney said there were ''obviously other options'' and Washington had not ruled them out.

In Paris, Cheney is expected to discuss the Gulf crisis with his French counterpart Jean-Pierre Chevenement on Saturday and with President Francois Mitterrand on Monday.

BEIRUT (OCT 19) - The family of ousted Christian military chief General Michel Aoun was set to leave for Paris after an agreement Friday between the French and Lebanese governments.

A diplomatic convoy left from the French Embassy, where relatives and close associates have sought refuge together with the rebel general, under Lebanese military escort and arrived at the airport, correspondents said.

Two French government planes, which arrived here earlier Thursday, were waiting at Beirut International Airport to fly to Paris with the group, believed to number 16 people.

Diplomatic sources said an accord had been reached to evacuate Gen. Aoun's wife, Nadia, their three daughters as well as army officers and relatives.

Gen. Aoun himself remained holed up in the embassy. France has given him diplomatic asylum, but the Lebanese government has refused to allow him to leave Lebanon.

NAIROBI (OCT. 19) - Japan is to grant Uganda 2.7 million U.S. dollars to help finance an increased food production programme in the East African nation, the Japan Information and Culture Centre here announced in a statement Friday.

Under the agreement, the grant would be for provision of fertilizers, agricultural chemicals and equipment and agricultural machinery to the Ugandan government for distribution to and use by farmers in Uganda.

The agreement was signed here between Uganda's acting high commissioner to Kenya, Jotham Atwoki Kamanyire, and the Japanese charge d'affaires to Uganda, based in Nairobi, Shisei Kaku.

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) - President George Bush ended talks with Soviet presidential aide Yevgeny Primakov Friday confident Moscow would continue to adhere to the Gulf crisis stance adopted at the Helsinki superpower summit, a White House spokesman said.

Moscow would not press for linking the Gulf crisis and the Iraeli-Arab conflict, said the spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater.

Bush met for an hour with Primakov, who briefed the president on his recent meeting in Baghdad with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Primakov emerged from the talks with Bush saying he had not proposed any new, more detailed ideas for resolving the crisis. But Primakov added, ''I cannot say that I have become less moderately optimististic than I used to be before.''

Fitzwater said Bush ''emphasized that the international focus is on the use of sanctions and diplomacy to accomplish the peaceful withdrawl of Iraq from Kuwait, but that the international community is prepared to consider alternative options.''

He added that Bush valued the new-found close ties between Moscow and Washington as ''an important signal to Saddam that he is truly isolated''.

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) - General Colin Powell, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will head for Saudi Arabia Sunday for talks with the top U.S. field commander there as well as with U.S. and Saudi officials in Jeddah and Riyadh, the Defense Department said Friday.

It will be Gen. Powell's second trip to the Saudi Arabia since President George Bush ordered a massive deployment of U.S. forces to the oil-rich desert kingdom August 7 to deter any Iraqi attack in the wake of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The Pentagon gave no further details on Gen. Powell's trip but he was expected to discuss the complex issue of establishing a command structure for the U.S.-led multinational forces deployed in and around Saudi Arabia.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said six individuals -- U.S. citizens and their foreign-born family members --, were authorized to leave Iraq this week and were in Amman, Jordan, Friday.

Another American was turned over to the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad and was to leave Iraq via Amman in the next few days, she added.

"To the best of our knowledge, only one American is being held in the Mansou-Melia (hotel in Baghdad) at this time," Miss Tutwiler said.

She added that "the Iraqis still have not provided us with a list of the Americans that they have detained."

Several hundred Americans and other Westerners are believed to have been moved to key Iraqi military and industrial installations to be used as human shields to deter a U.S. attack.

"We still have not received a response from the Iraqis concerning our request for the immediate evacuation of all American citizens with serious medical conditions," Miss Tutwiler said.

Earlier Friday, The Washington Post quoted Pentagon officials as saying Washington was preparing rotation plans to replace weary soldiers in the Gulf, possibly with forces now stationed in Europe.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney is to decide on a rotation policy over the next two weeks, the officials were quoted as saying.

The plan may come up against North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) policies which in the past barred sending U.S. troops in Europe, currently numbering about 300,000, to other hot spots around the globe.

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) - Israel has withdrawn its assurances not to settle Soviet Jews in occupied East Jerusalem, but pledged not to use U.S. funds in building new housing there, sources said Friday.

The State Department acknowledged receipt of a letter Thursday from Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy, but said it considered the assurances still in place.

According to an account of the letter in the New York Times, Levy said Israel was under ''no obligation - directly or indirectly - not to build in Jerusalem or to limit building in Jerusalem, or in any other place.''

It said the letter noted however that Israel would not use 400 million dollars in U.S. loan guarantees to build immigrant housing on ''geographic regions'' which Israel did not rule before June 5, 1967.

The Times interpreted the letter, and the fact that it was leaked to the Israeli press, as an effort by Levy to show himself tough with Washington and uncompromising on the question of East Jerusalem's annexation.

On October 2, Levy said in a letter addressed to Baker that Israel would not settle immigrants in occupied areas in exchange for the 400 million dollar housing loan guarantees.

Baker had made it clear that Israel would not receive the loan guarantees until it pledged not to settle Jews in occupied territories.

''The United States has assurances concerning the 400 million dollar housing loan guarantee,'' State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Friday.

''We do not believe that the letter received yesterday changes those assurances,'' she said.

PANAMA CITY (OCT. 19) - A large quantity of weapons, including mines, was stolen from Rodman U.S. Naval Base on the Pacific side of the Panama Canal, the U.S. Southern Command announced Friday. The U.S. military mounted an extensive search for the robbers and the weapons, a spokesman from the U.S. Southern Command said.

It was unclear whether the theft was linked to a foiled plot by a group of Panamanian military officers, former military men, and civilians to overthrow the government of President Guillermo Endara.

Attorney General Rogelio Cruz told a press conference Thursday the coup leader was Colonel Eduardo Herrera, a former security chief now living in Miami, Florida.

One of the plotters allegedly confessed that several dynamite explosions in Chiriqui province and bombs recently set off in the homes of the comptroller and the treasury minister were intended to have a destabilizing effect.

The pro-government Diario Independiente reported Thursday that the conspirators had planned to provoke disturbances and to stir public discontent in Panama.

LUXEMBOURG (OCT 19) - European Community (E.C) agriculture ministers failed here Friday to draft a proposal on reducing worldwide farm subsidies and have now left it to the community's foreign ministers to seek a way out of the deadlock.

Only three of the E.C.'s 12 members - Britain, the Netherlands and Denmark - were prepared to accept the European Commission's proposal to cut supports by 30 per cent by 1996, diplomats here said.

Endorsement of the commission's plan is needed to present to the Uruguay Round of world trade liberalisation talks. The E.C. position should have been presented to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (Gatt) negotiations by October 15.

More than 100 nations are involved in the Uruguay Round talks which began in 1986 and hopes to reach agreement by December on a liberalised world trade system.

It was the third meeting of E.C. agriculture ministers in less than two weeks to try to find agreement on the subsidies issue. Diplomats spoke of hardening of viewpoints between the nine members who reject the plan and the three who support it.

E.C. foreign ministers will continue the search for a solution on Monday. Italian Agriculture Minister Vito Saccomandi, current head of the E.C. Council of Ministers, said he had ''great doubts'' that foreign ministers would be able to achieve a different result.

BUDAPEST (OCT 19) - Hungarian government officials and sources from the oil industry predicted Friday that petrol prices would jump by 50 to 70 per- cent as a consequence of the Gulf crisis and a shortage of Soviet oil supplies.

Raising prices cannot be delayed for long, as present prices were calculated on the basis of 16 dollars per barrel, finance ministry senior official Jozsef Lukacs said, as quoted Friday by Nepszava.

The new price of petrol can reach 62 forintslitre (one dollar), the trade unions daily was informed by another official, Barna Szeman, who is responsible for oil prices at the government's Price Office .

Experts believe the government will keep petrol prices as low as possible to avoid boosting inflation, now 30 per cent a year.

If government officials decide to raise petrol prices, it could easily turn out to be a mere beginning. The next phase is to come in 1991, when Hungary will have to pay a market price for Soviet oil, three time as much, due to the switch-over to hard currency in Eastern Eropean trade.

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) - The State Department Friday said international observers should be allowed to monitor elections in Yugoslavia and voiced concern about mounting ethnic and political tensions in that country.

Free elections have so far been organized only in the Yugoslav republics of Slovenia and Croatia, where communists were ousted from power. An election is scheduled to be held in Montenegro December 9.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler expressed concern about the potential impact of the current tensions in Yugoslavia "on the transition to democracy and free markets which we have encouraged throughout Central and Eastern Europe."

"We believe that democracy is the enduring basis for a united, prosperous, and voluntary Yugoslav union," she said. "Free and fair elections, both at the republic and federal level, are essential to establishing democracy throughout Yugoslavia.

"As in other elections in Central and Eastern Europe this year, the upcoming elections in all Yugoslavian republics should be open to international observers. We should strongly oppose any use of force that would block democratic change in Yugoslavia," she said.

BEIRUT (OCT 19) - The family of ousted Christian military chief General Michel Aoun left here for Paris after an accord Friday between France and the Lebanese government.

The general's wife, Nadia Aoun, their three daughters and eight other civilians left on board a French government plane following a five-hour delay at Beirut International Airport where they were searched by Syrian troops.

Also on board, according to reliable sources at the airport, were the wives and children of Gen. Aoun's close aides, General Issam Abu Jamra and Lieutenant-Colonel Adel Sassin.

A Lebanese Defence Ministry spokesman said 150,000 dollars were confiscated from the wife of Gen. Abu Jamra during the search.

The government decided Wednesday to freeze the assets in Lebanon of Gen. Aoun and of his closest aides, Gen. Abu Jamra and Gen. Edgard Maalouf. The three officers have taken refuge in the French Embassy.

French ambassador Rene Ala unsuccessfully argued that the luggage of the departing group was covered by diplomatic immunity and should not be searched.

French diplomatic sources said earlier an accord had been reached to evacuate 16 people, including three officers, but government sources said only women and children were being allowed to leave.

The group of evacuees was brought to the airport in a French diplomatic convoy under tight Lebanese military security.

France has given Gen. Aoun diplomatic asylum, although the Lebanese government has refused to allow him to leave Lebanon and said he should stand trial on charges of embezzling public funds.

He was ousted on October 13 from his headquarters northeast of Beirut in a Syrian-led offensive.

(In Paris the French Foreign Ministry confirmed the departure of the plane carrying 12 people including the Aoun family and said talks were continuing to obtain permission for Gen. Aoun and his aides to leave Beirut).

WASHINGTON, (OCT 19) - President George Bush met Friday with a special Soviet envoy, reaffirming bluntly that he would not accept any compromise solution to the Gulf crisis nor exclude the use of military force to push Iraq out of Kuwait.

"I'm determined ... that (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein's aggression not be rewarded by some compromise," Mr. Bush said prior to his meeting with Yevgeny Primakov. "The bottom line is he can't prevail."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater reported after the hour-long meeting that "the president's resolve was firm and firmly expressed."

"President Bush made it quite clear that we have a military presence in the Gulf ... Certainly everyone has to be aware that those forces are available should their use be necessary," he said.

Mr. Primakov, sent round the world by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to assess options in the crisis, briefed Mr. Bush about his talks in Baghdad with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and his subsequent conversations with government leaders in Rome and Paris.

The Soviet envoy's tour raised speculations worldwide over a possible compromise solution.

But, asked whether he brought any message from Iraq, Mr. Primakov said there was "no message from Saddam Hussein because I'm not a messenger."

Mr. Fitzwater said flatly, "he didn't bring any proposal."

Mr. Primakov said he had not brought any "convoluted" or "detailed" ideas, but said the Soviet Union was trying to do its utmost -- through peaceful means -- to obtain the results envisioned by various U.N. Security Council resolutions.

"I cannot say that I have become less moderately optimistic than I used to be before," he said. "I believe that we should not rule out all the possibilities of a peaceful solution until we have exhausted all options."

After Mr. Primakov's visit to Baghdad, reports published in Moscow -- but denied in Baghdad -- said Mr. Hussein had told the Soviet envoy he might pull his troops out of mainland Kuwait in exchange for continued control over two strategic Kuwaiti islands and compensation for losses suffered by Iraq from Kuwaiti overproduction of oil.

Mr. Fitzwater said that Mr. Bush had also insisted that the Gulf crisis not be linked to other problems such as the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

"We are quite firm in that there should be no linkage and I think the Soviets understand that," Mr. Fitzwater said.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker meanwhile proposed after his talks with Mr. Primakov that U.S.-Soviet cooperation be extended to near daily exchanges on a variety of economic and military affairs, including the Gulf crisis.

Madrid (OCT. 19) EFE - Spanish truckers denied Friday they have agreed to end a bitter 10-day strike that has severely curtailed the delivery of food and other goods throughout the country.

Spokesmen for the six independent truckers' federations that backed the strike said their executive committees have not had time to study what they described as a provisional accord drafted by government negotiators.

Until the union officials meet at 9 a.m. (0800 GMT) Friday and decide whether or not to accept the government's offer, the strike is still on, the truckers said.

A Ministry of Transport source said earlier Friday that an agreement had been reached after all-day talks and that the strike had been called off.

Business sector leaders estimate that the stoppage has caused an estimated dlrs 500 million in losses.

MADRID (OCT 19) EFE - Striking Spanish truckers met Friday to discuss whether to accept a provisional accord to put an end to a costly 11-day-old strike which has hit food and industry supplies throughout the country.

Union officials opened an assembly meeting in the Transport Ministry headquarters shortly after 9 a.m. (0800 GMT) to debate calling off the strike which has already cost some dlrs 500 million in lost work days and undelivered goods.

Union leaders Thursday held marathon talks with government representatives and came up with a provisional agreement which would bring recognition of the independent truckers' federations and open up detailed talks on their grievances.

Since beginning their strike action 11 days ago, the truckers have pushed for a hike in haulage rates to compensate for a 24 per cent rise in the price of diesel fuel since the Gulf crisis began two months ago.

They are also demanding pension guarantees for those who take early retirement at age 60.

The provisional accord reached Thursday would give the independent truckers representation in future meetings between central and local government officials and unions which are already officially recognized.

But Jesus Ontoria, a strike leader in the northern province of Navarre, said he doubted Friday's union assembly would call off the strike.

"We very much doubt an agreement can be reached," he said, adding that, "We are going to continue, for better or for worse."

The strike, which has brought sporadic violence, has hit the supply of foodstuffs -- especially fish, vegetables and milk -- raw materials and spare parts.

The Spanish Confederation of Business Organizations (CEOE) said Thursday that assembly lines in the automobile and home appliance industries had been reduced to a third of their normal activity.

In the northeastern province of Zaragoza, the U.S. car manufacturer General Motors and the household appliance company Balay, which combined employ more than 10,000 workers, have stopped operations due to a lack of spare parts.

The CSOE has estimated the costs of the strike at dlrs 500 million.

A breakthrough in the strike came Wednesday when the truckers lifted their pickets on major highways around the country and the government said it was ready to open talks.

But French truckers, angry at the delays caused by the strike, have continued to block road and rail traffic along the French side of the border with Spain.

Dozens of Spanish truckers have been arrested on picket lines for blocking traffic or for acts of violence, such as stoning trucks whose drivers ignored requests to halt deliveries.

Nine strikers in the Navarre region were taken to court Friday to face charges for an attack on two farmers.

The accused on Thursday allegedly threw stones at two brothers who had delivered milk from their family farm near the town of Lecumberri, prompting one of the brothers to fire warning shots into the air, police said.

The regions of Galicia, the Basque country, Catalonia, Asturias and Andalucia have been hardest hit by food shortages.

LONDON (OCT 19) EFE - The British shipping company P&O Ferries and seven of its employees were cleared Friday of manslaughter charges arising from the capsizing of the Herald of Free Enterprise ferry in March 1987, in which 192 people died.

The ship overturned shortly after leaving the Belgian port of Zeebrugge en route for England, when waves flooded an open cargo door.

The judge called for a verdict after 27 days of the trial during which only 66 of the 138 witnesses were called.

The jury decided that the prosecution could not prove its case of manslaughter and that none of the accused - including five senior employees of the company -- were aware of the dangers of leaving port with the doors open.

David Lewry, the captain of the ship on the day of the accident, said on leaving court that he was satisfied with the verdict, although he would never forget the tragedy.

But the president of an association of relatives of the victims, Maurice de Rohan, said he was +saddened+ by the decision.

De Rohan's daughter, Alison Gaillard, was selected as representing all those who died in the tragedy for the court action.

He said the association intended to form a new group with survivors and families of victims in other accidents to force companies to adopt stricter security measures.

CHICAGO (OCT. 19) UPI - Grain futures were mixed and soybeans mostly higher at the close Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Soybeans and soybean meal were supported by an increase in the weekly soybean export figure. After some early weakness, prices turned higher on short-covering and technical buying.

Corn prices were higher, although gains were tempered by liquidation. Commercials were on both sides of the corn market.

Gains in both corn and soybeans were limited by the prospect of harvest activity continuing during the weekend. There was a slight increase in farmer selling of soybeans, but movement of corn was relatively light.

Wheat prices were narrowly mixed, despite the sale of 450,000 tons of export bonus wheat to China.

Basis levels were mixed.

At the close, corn was up 1/4 to 1, soybeans up 1/2 to 4, wheat unchanged to up 3/4 and oats unchanged to off 1/4.

HONG KONG (OCT. 19) KYODO - THE SINO-FRENCH AUTOMOBILE-MAKING JOINT VENTURE PEUGEOT GUANGZHOU HAS BEEN ALLOWED BY THE CHINESE AUTHORITIES TO RAISE ITS ANNUAL PRODUCTION QUOTA, ACCORDING TO A BUSINESS REPORT IN THE SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST ON FRIDAY.

THE INCREASE, FROM 4,700 TO 8,000 VEHICLES PER YEAR, IS THE ONLY SUCH PRODUCTION QUOTA RISE GRANTED TO AN AUTOMOTIVE JOINT VENTURE IN CHINA THIS YEAR.

PEUGEOT GUANGZHOU, BASED IN THE SOUTHERN CHINESE CITY AFTER WHICH IT IS NAMED, HAS ALSO SECURED A 12 MILLION U.S. DOLLAR LOAN FOR FUTURE EXPANSION, THE POST SAID.

THE LOAN, FROM PEUGEOT SHAREHOLDER, BANQUE NATIONALE DE PARIS, IS GUARANTEED BY THE BANK OF CHINA, AND WILL BE SIGNED IN GUANGZHOU ON MONDAY.

PEUGEOT GUANGZHOU WAS FORCED TO CLOSE DOWN FOR TWO MONTHS FROM NOVEMBER 4 LAST YEAR AFTER FULFILLING THE 1989 PRODUCTION QUOTA AND BEING REFUSED ADDITIONAL IMPORT LICENSES FOR FRENCH-MADE PARTS.

PRODUCTION RESUMED IN JANUARY THIS YEAR, BUT NO VEHICLES WERE SOLD UNTIL MAY, WHEN THE CHINESE AUTHORITIES AGREED TO A PRICE RISE TO COVER INCREASED IMPORT COSTS FOLLOWING THE DEVALUATION OF THE CHINESE YUAN IN DECEMBER 1989.

THE POST REPORTED SPECULATION THAT THE PEUGEOT DEAL IS LINKED TO A PROPOSED 300,000-VEHICLE-PER-YEAR SINO-FRENCH JOINT VENTURE WITH CITROEN IN WUHAN, CENTRAL CHINA.

BY GIVING PEUGEOT SUCH A LARGE INCREASE IN ITS PRODUCTION QUOTA, THE CHINESE AUTHORITIES ARE DEMONSTRATING TO CITROEN AND THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT THEIR COMMITMENT TO THE SUCCESS OF AUTOMOTIVE JOINT VENTURES, THE NEWSPAPER SAID.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - JAPAN'S HOUSEHOLD SPENDING IN AUGUST ROSE AN INFLATION-ADJUSTED 1.6 PERCENT FROM THE SAME MONTH LAST YEAR, REFLECTING CONTINUING FIRM GROWTH IN DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION, THE MANAGEMENT AND COORDINATION AGENCY SAID FRIDAY.

"THE CONSUMPTION PICTURE WAS A BIT SOFTER COMPARED WITH THE 2 TO 3 PERCENT UPSWING DURING THE SECOND QUARTER, BUT THE LATEST FIGURE SHOWS NO SIGNAL OF A MAJOR DOWNTURN," SAID NOBUYUKI URATA, DIRECTOR OF THE AGENCY'S STATISTICAL SURVEY DEPARTMENT.

HOUSEHOLD SPENDING ROSE 3.4 PERCENT IN MAY, AND 2.0 PERCENT IN JUNE, BEFORE THE ADVANCE SLOWED TO 1.3 PERCENT IN JULY.

AVERAGE JAPANESE HOUSEHOLD CONSUMPTION IN AUGUST AMOUNTED TO 303,953 YEN, DOWN SLIGHTLY FROM 322,760 YEN IN JULY.

WAGE EARNERS' HOUSEHOLDS SPENT AN AVERAGE 322,946 YEN, UP 1.5 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER, WHILE CONSUMPTION BY NONWAGE EARNER HOUSEHOLDS, SUCH AS THE SELF-EMPLOYED AND FARMERS, GREW 3.1 PERCENT, POSTING AN OVER 3 PERCENT YEAR-ON-YEAR RISE FOR THE THIRD CONSECUTIVE MONTH.

THE INCOME OF WAGE EARNER HOUSEHOLDS CLIMBED 0.8 PERCENT IN REAL TERMS FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 455,300 YEN, FOLLOWING A 2.3 PERCENT LIFT IN JULY.

THEIR AVERAGE DISPOSABLE INCOME INCHED UP 0.2 PERCENT TO 384,387 YEN. SPENDING ON GOODS EDGED UP 1.3 PERCENT, AND ON SERVICES IT SURGED 4.1 PERCENT.

CONSUMPTION WAS STRONG IN FURNITURE AND OTHER HOUSEHOLD GOODS, POSTING AN 11.4 PERCENT YEAR-ON-YEAR UPSWING.

MEDICAL AND HEALTH-CARE SPENDING WAS ALSO BRISK WITH A 5.4 PERCENT RISE, PROPELLED MAINLY BY ROBUST DEMAND FOR STOMACH MEDICINE.

ON THE OTHER HAND, SPENDING ON HOUSING AS WELL AS ON TRANSPORTATION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS SLIPPED.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - THE BANK OF JAPAN FRIDAY PREDICTED THAT THE BROAD MEASURE OF MONEY SUPPLY, M2 PLUS CDS, WILL EXPAND BY ABOUT 11 PERCENT IN THE OCTOBER-DECEMBER QUARTER.

THE MEASURE EXPANDED BY 12 PERCENT IN THE JULY-SEPTEMBER QUARTER OF THIS YEAR, DOWN FROM 13 PERCENT IN THE PRECEDING QUARTER.

THE 12 PERCENT FIGURE FELL WITHIN THE BANK'S PROJECTIONS FOR THE TERM. A BOJ OFFICIAL ATTRIBUTED THE PROJECTED DECLINE TO PROSPECTS OF A SLOWDOWN IN YEN LENDING.

AN 11 PERCENT GROWTH IN MONEY SUPPLY IS STILL VERY HIGH RELATIVE TO THE NATION'S REAL ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE.

THE IMPACT OF FISCAL FUNDS WILL BE NEUTRAL IN THE COMING THREE MONTHS, HE SAID.

ANALYSTS SAID GROWTH WILL ALSO DEPEND ON HOW HIGHER INTEREST RATES WILL AFFECT CORPORATE DEMAND NEEDED FOR CAPITAL INVESTMENT.

THE CENTRAL BANK RAISED THE OFFICIAL DISCOUNT BY 0.75 PERCENTAGE POINT TO 6 PERCENT FLAT ON AUGUST 30 TO COMBAT INFLATIONARY PRESSURES SPRINGING FROM EXPECTATIONS OF EXPLODING CRUDE OIL PRICES FOLLOWING THE AUGUST 2 IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT.

MONEY SUPPLY EXPANSION WILL ALSO HINGE ON WHERE INDIVIDUALS DECIDE TO PUT THEIR MONEY AMID TUMBLING TOKYO STOCK PRICES PROMPTED BY UNCERTAINTY OVER THE FUTURE OF FINANCIAL MARKETS, THEY SAID.

BANGKOK (OCT. 19) KYODO - THAILAND WILL NO LONGER REQUIRE CITIZENS OF EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES TO HAVE VISAS TO VISIT THE COUNTRY, FOREIGN MINISTRY SPOKESMAN SAKTIP KRAIRUEK SAID FRIDAY.

EAST EUROPEANS, WHO WERE FORMERLY SUBJECT TO STRICT REGULATIONS COVERING THEIR ENTRY TO THAILAND AS CITIZENS OF COMMUNIST COUNTRIES, MAY NOW GET 90-DAY VISAS ON REQUEST AT THE THAI EMBASSY IN THEIR COUNTRIES. THAI EMBASSIES HAVE BEEN AUTHORIZED TO USE THEIR OWN JUDGMENT IN ASSESSING SUCH VISA APPLICATIONS INSTEAD OF REFERRING THEM BACK TO THE MINISTRY FOR SECURITY CHECKS, THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

CITIZENS OF ALBANIA, BULGARIA AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA WHICH DO NOT HAVE A THAI EMBASSY, ARE TO BE ALLOWED 15-DAY TOURIST VISAS ON ARRIVAL AT AIRPORTS IN THAILAND, THE SPOKESMAN ADDED.

THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE NEW REGULATIONS WERE INTRODUCED IN JUNE THIS YEAR, FOLLOWING THE POLITICAL CHANGES IN EAST EUROPE.

THE THAI GOVERNMENT, MEANWHILE, HAD ADOPTED A NEW POLICY TOWARD ALL EAST EUROPEAN BLOC COUNTRIES TO MATCH THE CHANGES, THE SPOKESMAN ANNOUNCED.

HE SAID THE GOVERNMENT HAD LAST WEEK AGREED TO ACCEPT A NEW SIX-POINT POLICY TOWARD EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.

THE EMPHASIS OF THE NEW POLICY WAS AWAY FROM SECURITY-ORIENTED CONSIDERATIONS TO PROMOTION OF CLOSER RELATIONS AND ECONOMIC, TRADE, CULTURAL AND MILITARY COOPERATION AT ALL LEVELS, THE SPOKESMAN SAID. THAILAND WAS PARTICULARLY EN TO OPEN MORE TRADE EXCHANS WITH EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES SINCE THE CHANGES THERE LT YEAR, HE SAID.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - JAPAN HAS REVOKED ITS INVITATION TO IRAQ TO SEND A HIGH-LEVEL OFFICIAL TO EMPEROR AKIHITO'S ENTHRONEMENT CEREMONY ON NOVEMBER 12, A FOREIGN MINISTRY SPOKESMAN SAID FRIDAY.

"IN LIGHT OF IRAQ'S INVASION AND ANNEXATION OF KUWAIT, AS WELL AS OTHER ACTIONS, THE INVITATION TO IRAQ HAS BEEN WITHDRAWN," SAID SPOKESMAN TAIZO WATANABE IN A MEETING WITH FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

WATANABE SAID JAPAN'S DECISION WAS FORMALLY CONVEYED TO IRAQI AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN RASHID AL-RIFAI ON THURSDAY BY MAKOTO WATANABE, DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE MINISTRY'S MIDDLE EASTERN AND AFRICAN AFFAIRS BUREAU.

HE SAID THE IRAQI ENVOY EXPRESSED REGRET AND PROMISED TO CONVEY THE DECISION TO HIS GOVERNMENT.

PRIOR TO ITS INVASION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2, IRAQ HAD INDICATED IT WOULD DISPATCH VICE PRESIDENT TAHA MUHIEDDIN MAROUF TO ATTEND THE IMPERIAL CEREMONY NEXT MONTH.

THE SPOKESMAN HAD EARLIER INDICATED THAT THE INVITATION WAS BEING RECONSIDERED IN LIGHT OF IRAQ'S INVASION OF KUWAIT AND ITS HOLDING OF 139 JAPANESE NATIONALS AT KEY INSTALLATIONS AS "HUMAN SHIELDS" TO WARD OFF ANY MILITARY MOVES AGAINST IT BY MULTINATIONAL FORCES.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - THE U.S. HOUSEHOLD SAVINGS RATE WILL TOP JAPAN'S BY THE YEAR 2010, A COMPLETE TURNAROUND FROM THE LONG-PREVAILING TREND, ACCORDING TO PROJECTIONS RELEASED FRIDAY BY ASAHI MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

THE NATION'S HOUSEHOLD SAVINGS RATE WILL FALL TO 6.5 PERCENT IN THE NEXT 20 YEARS, BELOW THE 7.5 PERCENT PROJECTED FOR THE U.S., ASAHI SAID.

THE HOUSEHOLD SAVINGS RATE IS THE RATIO OF TOTAL SAVINGS, INCLUDING LOAN PAYMENTS, TO DISPOSAL INCOME.

ALTHOUGH JAPAN'S SAVINGS RATE REACHED 14.8 PERCENT IN FISCAL 1988, ITS HIGH LEVEL OF SAVINGS WILL BE PARED DOWN QUICKLY AFTER THE YEAR 2000 BY THE RAPIDLY AGING POPULATION AND ESPECIALLY BY THE BABY BOOM GENERATION BORN BETWEEN 1947-1949.

THE NATION'S LONGSTANDING HIGH LEVEL OF SAVINGS WILL BE LOWERED BY THE LARGE NUMBERS OF THOSE OVER THE AGE OF 60, MANY OF WHOM LIVE OFF THEIR SAVINGS.

THE SAVINGS RATE IS EXPECTED TO FALL TO 12.1 PERCENT IN 10 YEARS AND TO 6.5 NET BY THE YEAR 2010, ASAHAID.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU REJECTED AN OPPOSITION DEMAND FRIDAY TO REPLACE HIS JUSTICE MINISTER BEFORE A VISIT BY SOUTH AFRICAN ANTIAPARTHEID FIGHTER NELSON MANDELA SCHEDULED FOR OCTOBER 27-NOVEMBER 1.

KAIFU TOLD THE DIET THAT JUSTICE MINISTER SEIROKU KAJIYAMA SHOULD INSTEAD TAKE THE LEAD IN RAISING THE PUBLIC'S AWARENESS ON MINORITY ISSUES.

THE PRIME MINISTER WAS RESPONDING TO JAPAN SOCIALIST PARTY SECRETARY GENERAL TSURUO YAMAGUCHI AT A SESSION OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES BUDGET COMMITTEE.

KAJIYAMA HAS BEEN EMBROILED IN A GROWING CONTROVERSY SINCE HE MADE REMARKS CONNECTING AMERICAN BLACKS WITH TOKYO PROSTITUTES OF FOREIGN ORIGIN A MONTH AGO.

KAJIYAMA HIMSELF APOLOGIZED BEFORE THE COMMITTEE BUT SHOWED DOGGED RESOLVE TO STAY IN OFFICE.

"MY COMMENT WAS NOT AT ALL INTENDED TO EXPRESS RACIAL PREJUDICE BUT IT RESULTED IN HURTING THE FEELINGS OF AFRICAN-AMERICANS AND OTHER PEOPLE CONCERNED," KAJIYAMA SAID.

"MY REMARK WAS INCORRECT AND EXTREMELY INAPPROPRIATE...I DEEPLY APOLOGIZE," KAJIYAMA SAID IN HIS FIRST EXPRESSION OF REMORSE BEFORE THE NATION'S HIGHEST LEGISLATIVE BODY.

HE WAS REFERRING TO AN OBSERVATION HE MADE TO REPORTERS A MONTH AGO THAT PROSTITUTES AND BLACKS ARE SIMILAR BECAUSE THEY BOTH RUIN THE ATMOSPHERE IN RESPECTABLE NEIGHBORHOODS.

KAJIYAMA PLEDGED TO TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE STATEMENT BY WORKING TO IMPROVE PUBLIC UNDERSTANDING OF RACE ISSUES, THEREBY SUGGESTING THAT HE WOULD NOT RESIGN AS JUSTICE MINISTER.

"IT IS UNFORTUNATE THAT AT SUCH A TIME (MANDELA'S VISIT) THE JUSTICE MINISTER, WHO PLAYS A CRUCIAL ROLE IN PROTECTING HUMAN RIGHTS, SHOULD MAKE SUCH A COMMENT," YAMAGUCHI SAID.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS INVITED MANDELA TO PAY AN OFFICIAL VISIT TO JAPAN AS A DEMONSTRATION THAT RACIAL PREJUDICE IS IMPERMISSABLE AND MUST BE ERADICATED.

EARLIER IN THE DAY, LEADERS OF MAJOR OPPOSITION PARTIES SAID THEY WILL PURSUE KAJIYAMA'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR HIS REMARKS COMPARING BLACK AMERICANS TO FOREIGN PROSTITUTES IN JAPAN.

SHUN OIDE, CHAIRMAN OF THE JSP DIET AFFAIRS COMMITTEE, TOLD REPORTERS THAT HIS PARTY WILL FOLLOW THIS POLICY REGARDLESS OF DEVELOPMENTS IN THE U.S.

THE U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FOREIGN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE ON THURSDAY PASSED

A RESOLUTION SAYING KAJIYAMA SHOULD BE REPRIMANDED FOR HIS DEROGATORY REMARKS, DROPPING AN EARLIER VERSION OF THE RESOLUTION WHICH WOULD HAVE ASKED PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH TO REQUEST KAJIYAMA'S RESIGNATION.

"AS ONE OF THE WORLD'S LEADING DEMOCRACIES THE GOVERNMENT OF JAPAN SHOULD DEMAND OF ITS OFFICIALS THE HIGHEST LEVEL OF RESPECT FOR THE DIVERSE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD," THE RESOLUTION SAID.

CABINET SPOKESMAN MISOJI SAKAMOTO SAID JAPAN REGRETS THE PASSAGE OF THE RESOLUTION AND SAID, "THE GOVERNMENT MUST TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO REFLECT DEEPLY."

THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY (LDP) HAS PUT OFF SENDING A MISSION TO THE UNITED STATES TO APOLOGIZE FOR KAJIYAMA'S REMARKS, LDP SOURCES SAID.

THE MISSION LED BY YOSHIRO MORI, FORMER EDUCATION MINISTER WHO SERVES AS ACTING CHAIRMAN OF THE PARTY'S COMMITTEE ON MINORITY ISSUES, WAS ORIGINALLY SCHEDULED TO LEAVE TOKYO ON SUNDAY FOR WASHINGTON.

LDP SECRETARY GENERAL ICHIRO OZAWA HASAJIYAMA'S REMARK WAS "INSENSITIVE" BUT FOR AMERICANS TO CRITICIZE THE ENTIRE JAPANESE PEOPLE ON THAT COUNT BORDER ON "RACISM."

"IT IS WRONG TO ASSUME THAT ALL THE JAPANESE ARE SHARING THE VIEW REPRESENTED IN THE STATEMENT MADE BY MR. KAJIYAMA," WATANABE SAID.

THE JUSTICE MINISTRY SAID IT HAS ISSUED A NOTICE URGING THE GENERAL PUBLIC TO DEEPEN UNDERSTANDING ABOUT AMERICAN MINORITIES.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) KYODO - DESPITE THE YEN'S APPRECIABLE FALL, JAPAN'S FOODSTUFF IMPORTS IN THE FIRST HALF OF 1990 REMAINED AT A RELATIVELY HIGH 15.6 BILLION DOLLARS, DOWN A SLIGHT 1.1 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR BEFORE, THE SEMIOFFICIAL JAPAN EXTERNAL TRADE ORGANIZATION (JETRO) SAID FRIDAY.

THE UNITED STATES, IN PARTICULAR, HAS STEADILY EXPANDED ITS SHARE IN THE JAPANESE MARKET FOR FOODSTUFFS -- FROM 28.9 PERCENT IN 1986 TO 32.5 PERCENT IN THE FIRST HALF OF 1990.

IMPORTS FROM THE U.S. IN THE SIX-MONTH PERIOD TOTALED 5.13 BILLION DOLLARS, DOWN 0.4 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR BEFORE. THE DECLINE WAS DUE MAINLY TO FOREIGN EXCHANGE FACTORS AND OVERSUPPLY OF FISHERIES PRODUCTS IN JAPAN.

JETRO ATTRIBUTED THE STEADY EXPANSION IN THE U.S. SHARE OF THE JAPANESE FOODSTUFF MARKET MAINLY TO A SWITCH IN EMPHASIS IN EXPORTS TO JAPAN TO HIGHER VALUE-ADDED PRODUCTS.

THE OFFICIALS SAID U.S. EXPORTS TO JAPAN OF GRAINS, FRUITS, VEGETABLES, AND FISH AND SHELLFISH ALL SUFFERED A SETBACK, WHILE EXPORTS OF BEEF, FRUIT JUICE, WHISKY AND ICE CREAM BUILT UP, THANKS TO TARIFF CUTBACKS AND OTHER FACTORS.

WHILE THE U.S. USED TO SHIP WHOLE CARCASSES TO JAPAN, IT IS NOW EXPORTING PARTIALLY-CUT BEEF TO THIS COUNTRY. THE U.S. IS ALSO EXPORTING FROZEN VEGETABLES FOR SNACK STORE USE AND HIGHLY PROCESSED MEAT TO JAPAN.

RELATIVELY LOW VALUE-ADDED PRODUCTS, SUCH AS GRAINS, ACCOUNTED FOR 54 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL U.S. FOOD EXPORTS TO JAPAN IN 1988, DOWN FROM 67 PERCENT IN 1982.

ON THE OTHER HAND, COMPARATIVELY HIGH VALUE-ADDED PRODUCTS, SUCH AS FROZEN VEGETABLES AND PROCESSED MEAT AND DAIRY PRODUCTS, REPRESENTED 46 PERCENT IN 1988, UP FROM 33 PERCENT IN 1982, JETRO SAID.

MILLION DOLLARS, TOPPING THE 50 BILLION-DOLLAR MARK FOR THE FIRST TIME. JETRO SAID THE CREDIT SHOULD GO TO A STEEP 20.1 PERCENT INCREASE IN IMPORTS OF LUMBER PRODUCTS, CENTERED ON HOUSING MATERIALS, AMID A HOUSING CONSTRUCTION BOOM.

YOKOHAMA (OCT. 19) KYODO - JEURO CONTAINER TRANSPORT HAS CREATED A JOINT OIL DRILLING AND LUMBERING COMPANY IN THE WESTERN SIBERIAN CITY OF NIJNEVARTOVSK, THE YOKOHAMA-BASED INTERNATIONAL FREIGHT FORWARDER SAID FRIDAY.

THE JOINT FIRM, NAMED JEVART, IS THE TYUMEN OILFIELD'S SECOND JOINT DRILLING FIRM WITH A FOREIGN ENTERPRISE, FOLLOWING A SIMILAR VENTURE WITH A CANADIAN COMPANY, JEURO OFFICIALS SAID.

JEVART IS CAPITALIZED AT 6.5 MILLION RUBLES, OF WHICH 59.5 PERCENT IS PROVIDED BY THE NIJNEVARTOVSK OIL GAS PRODUCTION TRUST, 30.5 PERCENT BY JEURO, AND 10 PERCENT BY THE SOVIET RAILWAY MINISTRY ASSOCIATION.

THE JOINT FIRM WILL ENGAGE MAINLY IN THE LUMBERING BUSINESS IN THE INITIAL PHASE.

JEURO OFFICIALS SAID THAT TWO TO THREE OF THE 23 UNDEVELOPED OIL SITES IN TYUMEN PROVINCE WILL BE CHOSEN FOR DRILLING. THE TIME TO START OIL DRILLING HAS YET TO BE DETERMINED.

THE OFFICIALS SAID THE EXPECTED INITIAL OUTPUT WOULD BE 400,000 TO 1 MILLION TONS OF CRUDE PER YEAR.

JEURO IS A PIONEER IN THE TRANSPORTATION OF GOODS TO EUROPE AND IRAN VIA THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY FROM THE FAR EAST, MAINLY JAPAN.

#90292m0002 10/19/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

FALLS CHURCH, VA (OCT. 19) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"There is a temerity in the marketplace," says JEFFREY MONDSCHEIN, manager of foreign exchange at CONTINENTAL BANK in Chicago. "There is little reason to hold on to the dollar." (NYT, 10/19)

"The cheaper your currency gets, it's like giving your country away to foreigners," says ROBERT BRUSCA of NIKKO SECURITIES. "Unfortunately, the first impact of a low currency is that nobody wants to buy anything in your country." (CNN "Moneyline", 10/18)

"The administration is willing to see a weaker dollar because they believe it will make U.S. exports more competitive," says EARL JOHNSON, a vice president at HARRIS TRUST & SAVINGS BANK in Chicago. "But it also has a negative side: It is inflationary, it will push interest rates up and it is going to destabilize financial market." He predicts a further fall in the dollar. (WSJ, 10/19)

"The dollar is weakening," says WILLIAM STERLING of MERRILL LYNCH CAPITAL MARKETS. "Foreigners are increasingly coming to believe that the U.S.

government

is incapable of delivering a competent fiscal policy." ("Investor's Daily", 10/19)

The Fed "still can't lower rates," says WILLIAM MACREYNOLDS of the U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. He says "there's a certain fear of runaway inflation, and these inflation numbers are high enough to instill that fear." (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/18)

The moderate CPI figures should be "a welcome sign" for the Fed, says LYNN REASER of FIRST INTERSTATE BANCORP. While they may not warrant an easing, she says these figures show that "wages are not keeping up with prices" meaning that "consumer buying power in the near term is going to be squeezed." ("Investor's Daily", 10/19)

A study prepared by GARY and ALDONA ROBBINS for the NATIONAL CENTER OF POLICY ANALYSIS and the U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE cautions investors not to expect any prospective budget agreement to lead to interest rate relief. According to the study, "there is little convincing evidence that budget deficits affect market rates of interest and even less evidence that low interest rates prevent recessions or high interest rates cause them." ("Investor's Daily", 10/19)

THE ECONOMY:

A 2.4% increase in the August merchandise trade deficit reported yesterday "was due to oil, and, in fact, we were looking for even more deterioration," says ROBERT BRUSCA of NIKKO SECURITIES. "There's more pressure on oil prices ... there'll be bigger deficits in the months ahead." Brusca says that while we're in for weak GNP numbers, the export "engines will begin firing" next year, which will help boost the economy. (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/18)

"There is better news in the export [figure] than you can see," says JOHN MARCHESE of PEGASUS ECONOMETRICS GROUP. He says yesterday's trade figures suffered because the Mideast military buildup hampered shipment of some jetliner orders. "Down [the road] a little bit, with the recession, we will be seeing less imports and more exports with the lower dollar." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 10/18)

"I hate to put too much emphasis on one figure, but the core inflation number was a positive one," says NORMAN ROBERTSON, chief economist at the MELLON NATIONAL BANK in Pittsburgh. (NYT, 10/19)

"Over the past year, exports have risen about eight percent," says STEPHEN ROACH of MORGAN STANLEY. "That's a pretty solid source of support for an economy that's only growing about one percent." (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/18)

"We're not out of the woods yet in factoring in the oil shock" on the economy, says STEPHEN ROACH, senior economist at MORGAN STANLEY. (NYT, 10/19)

"The big issue is whether that huge jump [in energy prices] is going to work its way through the other prices in the economy," says AUBREY LANGSTON & CO. chief economist DAVID JONES. He says that scenario is unlikely, given the relative weakness of the economy. ("Nightly Business Report", 10/18)

"In the near-term, it is hard to remain optimistic on the inflation picture," says MICHAEL NIEMIRA of MITSUBISHI BANK. He points out that not all the increased costs of oil have reached the market, and he believes companies will pass along those costs to consumers until decreased demand forces prices back down. ("Investor's Daily", 10/19)

Much of the economy has been weak "for a long time," according to LEA TYLER of WHARTON ECONOMETRICS. She says even without any further conflict in the Middle East, we're due for a few months of mild recession. ("Christian Science Monitor", 10/19)

"Many commercial banks and life insurance companies, including many large ones are seriously undercapitalized, raising the risk of insolvencies as large loan losses continue," says JAMES O'LEARY, economic consultant to UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY of New York. (NYT, 10/19)

IN WASHINGTON:

"There can be no dispute that if the Senate bill became law, it would make the tax code more progressive than it is now," says SENATE MAJORITY LEADER GEORGE MITCHELL (D. - Maine). (FNN "Marketwrap", 10/18)

"Not one bit of pork, waste, fraud and unnecessary spending will be cut out of the budget," predicts HERITAGE FOUNDATION budget analyst SCOTT HODGE. He says for every dollar of increased revenue, there will be $1.90 in new spending. MARC WHEAT of CITIZENS FOR A SOUND ECONOMY says, "They're not decreasing spending. They're just increasing the fees and calling them 'spending cuts.'" ("Investor's Daily", 10/19)

SALT LAKE CITY (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Larson-Davis Inc. (NASDAQ: LDII) announced today that one of its operating subsidiaries, LD Info Inc., has completed the sale of a 36 percent equity interest to Commerce Clearing House Inc. ("CCH"), a major publisher of legal and accounting reference works and other publications. Larson-Davis will continue to hold the remaining 64 percent equity interest in LD Info. The stock was issued in exchange for an undisclosed payment of cash to LD Info, a substantial portion of which was used to repay prior advances to LD Info by Larson-Davis.

LD Info had previously licensed its proprietary data storage, indexing, and retrieval software to CCH for use in connection with existing CCH bound publications. LD Info and CCH are currently negotiating a license agreement that would permit use of the proprietary technology by CCH for additional specified applications. The purchase of the equity interest by CCH provides LD Info with additional working capital and permits CCH to participate as a minority owner in the broader potential market applications of LD Info's computer technology.

The equity infusion corresponds with the initiation of a marketing effort to commercialize the application of LD Info's technology. Dan J. Johnson, an officer and director of Larson-Davis, has been appointed as chief executive officer of LD Info. James McNeill, vice-president of CCH, has been appointed to the board of directors of LD Info.

The common stock of Larson-Davis is listed on NASDAQ under the symbol "LDII" and on the Boston Stock Exchange where it is traded under the symbol "LDI".

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Nutritional Services Inc. (OTC: HNSI) today announced preliminary results for the third quarter ended Sept. 30.

Revenues for the quarter are expected to be approximately $21 million compared to $17 million for the third quarter of 1989. Earnings are expected to be level with the $0.18 earned in last year's third quarter on 18 percent more shares outstanding for the current period.

While the quarterly growth in revenues is strong, it was impacted by lower patient census than anticipated at a few of HNS' larger centers in September and generally slower than expected growth at recently opened centers. These factors were not caused by increased pricing pressures or reimbursement-related issues. HNS is in the process of addressing center performance by the recent addition of Nick Grabko, as chief operating officer, whose focus is on field operations.

HNS expects to report an improvement in its days-sales-outstanding (DSOs) in accounts receivable in the third quarter of 1990 to 150 days, compared to 168 days in the first quarter of 1990 and 159 days in the second quarter of 1990. HNS believes this is the direct result of its focus on reimbursement, which began in the first half of 1990, and the increase in personnel in the reimbursement department.

HNS expects to release its final earnings within 10 days. HNS, a 66 percent-owned subsidiary of Healthdyne (NASDAQ: HDYN), is a national provider of home infusion therapies and related services. Founded in 1980, HNS is one of the oldest and largest providers of home infusion care, with operations in 26 states that are conducted through 29 regional centers, 18 satellite facilities and 25 additional sites of service. HNS is recognized as a leader in quality care and clinical sophistication.

LIVERMORE, CA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Triad Systems Corp. (NASDAQ: TRSC) today reported operating income of $19.9 million for its fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990, an increase of 204 percent over fiscal 1989's $6.5 million.

Triad President and Chief Executive Officer James R. Porter said the company closed fiscal 1990 with a strong cash position of more than $10 million. Triad's 1990 operating income includes a $2 million credit due to a reduction in bonus accruals associated with stock options, compared to a $2 million charge for the same purpose last year. Noting this variance in income, Porter said Triad is considering alternatives to minimize such shifts in the future.

Triad's fiscal 1990 revenues of $144.7 million were down 2.2 percent from a record $148 million of 1989. An 8.6 percent increase in service revenues to $73.4 million partially offset a systems revenues decline of $7 million.

"Our operating results came in about where we expected them to be," Porter said. "Our service operations continued their steady growth, partially offsetting declines in retail hardgoods and automotive retail and warehouse system revenues. Domestic automotive system revenues were virtually even with fiscal 1989."

Porter said Triad's Information Services revenues increased 29 percent to a record $12.9 million from $10 million in fiscal 1989, contributing a "steadily growing stream of recurring revenues. Our Electronic Catalog now serves more than 16,000 automotive counter positions nationally, 24 percent more than at year-end 1989."

Customer Services revenues rose 5.1 percent to $60.5 million from $57.6 million a year ago. Porter added that Triad's TSC Leasing subsidiary continued to provide a source of potential liquidity by building its lease portfolio to $26.8 million after financing more than 57 percent of Triad's system sales in fiscal 1990.

Triad ended the year with net income of $3.6 million, or 31 cents per share, compared to $5.7 million, or 63 cents per share, in fiscal 1989. Fiscal 1990 was Triad's first full year of operations following its August 1989 recapitalization.

The company had operating income of $7.6 million for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 compared to $3.9 million last year. Revenues of $41.1 million were down slightly from 1989's $42.4 million. The just- completed quarter's total includes a $1.7 million credit due to a reduction in bonus accruals due to stock options, compared to a $1.3 million charge for the same activity in the fourth quarter of 1989.

Triad's fourth quarter 1990 net income was $2.5 million, or 20 cents per share compared to $1.3 million, or 12 cents per share, in the final quarter of fiscal 1989.

Porter noted that the purchaser of an 8.1-acre parcel next to the Marriott Residence Inn at the entrance to Triad Park has begun construction of a gasoline station, auto lubrication and service shop, car wash and mini-market. Completion is scheduled for early 1991.

Triad designs, develops, manufactures and supports computer systems serving the automotive parts aftermarket, retail hardgoods dealers and dental practices. It also provides lease financing to a substantial portion of its customers through its TSC Leasing subsidiary.

#90292p7040 10/19/1990 ~PR Newswire

READING, PA. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Meridian Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: MRDN) today reported a net loss of $38,483,000 for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, or $.95 per common share, compared to net income of $22,552,000, or $.56 per common share, for the same quarter of last year.

The loss was previously estimated in September, when Meridian announced a comprehensive plan to address the effects of the weakening economy on its loan portfolio and to improve its capital position, strengthen its balance sheet and focus on its core banking and financial services businesses. The plan includes a special $75 million pre-tax addition to the reserve for possible loan losses, the intended sale of Meridian's title insurance operations, the planned sale of its $300 million credit card portfolio and the securitization and planned sale of approximately $300 million of indirect auto loans.

"The loss for the third quarter is within the range we projected last month," said Samuel A. McCullough, Meridian chairman and chief executive officer.

"Our capital position at September 30 is strong, our loan loss reserve is adequate and our non-performing loan coverage compares favorably within the industry. We expect to return to normal levels of profitability in the fourth quarter, to be profitable for all of 1990, and to continue the payment of dividends at current levels. If the economy continues to deteriorate, however and if non-performing assets continue to increase, additional provisions for loan loss reserves beyond normal levels may be required."

In connection with the sale of Meridian's title insurance operations, $17.5 million after tax, or $.43 per share, was charged against earnings for the third quarter and is reflected as loss from discontinued operations in Meridian's financial statements. This sum includes $9,076,000 of third quarter title insurance operating losses and $8,424,000 of both estimated operating losses through the anticipated sale date and projected costs related to the sale of the title businesses. Historical results from Meridian's title insurance operations have been restated to conform to reporting for a discontinued operation. Future title results will also be reported as such.

In the third quarter, Meridian reported a loss of $20,983,000, or $.52 per share, from continuing operations, which includes all activities other than title insurance. This compares to net income of $27,631,000, or $.68 per share, for the third quarter of 1989.

The major factor impacting current quarter results was the provision for possible loan losses, which was $84,665,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $6,974,000 for the same period of the prior year. Included in the provision was the special $75 million pre-tax addition to reserves. During the third quarter, Meridian undertook a re-evaluation of its loan portfolios in response to the continued weakening of the economy and the real estate sector in particular, and in response to the changing banking climate. The special addition was the result of a continued weakening of a number of significant credits in the commercial and real estate loan portfolios which in part resulted in an increase of $27,528,000 in non-performing assets and an increase in potential problem loans since June 30, 1990. Net loans charged off for the third quarter of 1990 and 1989 were $21,001,000 and $5,259,000, respectively.

Non-performing assets were $135,183,000 at Sept. 30, 1990, or 1.59 percent of loans and assets acquired in foreclosure, compared to $67.5 million at Sept. 30, 1989, or .94 percent of loans and assets acquired in foreclosure, and $107,655,000 at June 30, 1990, or 1.29 percent of loans and assets acquired in foreclosure. The reserve for possible loan losses was strengthened from $98,712,000 at June 30, 1990, to $162,376,000 at Sept. 30, 1990. This represents 1.92 percent of loans outstanding, up from 1.18 percent at June 30, and the coverage ratio of loan loss reserve to total non-performing loans at Sept. 30, 1990, was 141 percent, compared to 99 percent at June 30, 1990.

For the third quarter, net interest income increased 17 percent to $105,086,000 compared to $89,961,000 for the same period of 1989. The increase is primarily attributable to growth in commercial and mortgage loans and to the acquisition of mortgage loans from the former Hill Financial Savings Association, which Meridian acquired from the Resolution Trust Corporation in October 1989.

Net interest yield from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1990 was 4.21 percent, unchanged from the second quarter of 1990 and down from 4.30 percent in the third quarter of 1989. The decline from year-to-year was primarily due to a reduction in the benefits from interest-free funding sources.

Meridian Bancorp's earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were $3,903,000 compared to $68,385,000 for the same period of 1989. On a fully diluted per share basis, earnings were $.10 and $1.70, respectively.

Earnings from continuing operations for the first nine months of 1990 were $28,736,000, compared to $74,370,000 in 1989. On a per common share basis, Meridian's net income for the year-to-date period was $.71 compared to $1.84 in 1989. The decrease in earnings for the nine-month period was primarily due to the special addition to the reserve for possible loan losses taken in the third quarter of 1990.

Total assets at Sept. 30, 1990, were $11,780,569,000, an increase of 15 percent from assets of $10,236,570,000 at Sept. 30, 1989. Total loans increased 18 percent to $8,474,133,000 and total deposits were up 24 percent to $9,337,353,000. The increase in deposits is primarily attributable to the assumption of approximately $2,000,000,000 of deposits of the former Hill Financial Savings Association. Total primary capital increased 6 percent to $918,957,000 or 7.69 percent of total assets at the end of the third quarter of 1990. Meridian's capital position remains strong, exceeding the more stringent 1992 risk- based capital regulatory guidelines.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Gustavo G. Godoy, four-time Emmy Award winner and veteran broadcast journalist has been named to the newly created post of vice president of news for Telemundo Group, Inc. Godoy will oversee the Spanish-language television network's news operations, including local newscasts produced by Telemundo's seven owned-and-operated stations in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco/San Jose, Miami, Houston, San Antonio and Puerto Rico.

Godoy's extensive career spans close to 30 years, with numerous assignments in general market and Spanish-language television news to his credit. He has held various senior positions at the Univision network, where he served as news director of national newscasts, and created domestic and international bureaus, among other accomplishments. He was a co-founder and president of Hispanic-American Broadcasting Corporation (HBC), an international Spanish-language news service whose production and distribution facility in Hialeah, Fla. was acquired as Telemundo's network operations center in 1988. HBC produced nightly news and public affairs programming for Telemundo under Godoy's direction.

Prior to joining Telemundo, Godoy was executive news director of WXTV/Channel 41, a Univision owned-and-operated station serving the New York metropolitan area.

"Noticiero Telemundo-CNN, produced for Telemundo by CNN, as well as local newscasts, will benefit greatly from Gustavo's vast knowledge of all facets of television news," commented Donald G. Raider, Telemundo executive vice president and chief operating officer.

Telemundo Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: TLMD), based in New York City, is a Spanish-language television network operating in the U.S. through its owned-and-operated stations and affiliates, reaching 80 percent of Hispanic households in 37 markets. WALTHAM, MA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Oak Industries (NYSE: OAK) today announced operating results for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

The company reported net income of $7.9 million, or ten cents per share, for the September 1990 quarter compared to a net loss of $0.7 million, or one cent per share, for the same 1989 period.

Net income for the September 1990 quarter included gains of $7.7 million from the sale of the communications and English electric component controls businesses as well as $0.4 million of operating losses from these discontinued operations. Sales from continuing operations of $33.1 million were up slightly from last year.

The third quarter income from continuing operations improved to $0.6 million from a net loss from continuing operations of $0.9 million last year. This $1.5 million improvement reflects the effects of product line pruning, employee reductions, and lower debt.

William S. Antle III, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The third quarter was a good one for Oak. Our balance sheet and operations were strengthened by the successful sales of the communications and electric component controls businesses."

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company reported net income of $10.2 million, or 12 cents per share, which includes the previously discussed gains, income from discontinued operations of $0.3 million, as well as nonrecurring income of $1.0 million primarily from the settlement of patent litigation.

This compares very favorably to the first nine months of 1989 when Oak had a net loss of $8.3 million, or ten cents per share, which included $5.3 million of net nonrecurring expenses and the results of discontinued operations.

Exclusive of nonrecurring items and discontinued operations, operating income was $1.2 million for the first nine months of 1990 representing an improvement of $4.2 million compared to the same period in 1989. Sales for the first nine months of 1990 were $108.9 million, up $1.1 million over the 1989 period.

Oak Industries is a 58-year-old manufacturer of components and controls for the electronics and electrical industries with seven operating divisions. Oak Industries' common stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol "OAK".

NASHUA, N.H. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - NFS Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: NFSF) today reported a net profit for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 of $56,000 or two cents per share. The profit compares with earnings of $496,000, or 18 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company had a loss of $920,000, or 33 cents per share, compared with earnings of $1,450,000, or 51 cents per share, for the same period last year.

James H. Adams, president and chief executive officer of NFS, said the results reflect provisions for possible losses on loans and costs related to foreclosed real estate.

At Sept. 30, 1990, total nonperforming assets as NFS were $21.5 million, or 4.2 percent of total assets, compared with $19.4 million or 3.7 percent of total assets at mid-year.

NFS's allowance for loan losses at Sept. 30, 1990, was $3,660,000 or 28.4

percent of nonperforming loans, which totaled $12.9 million. The company's allowance for loan losses at June 30, 1990, was $3,344,000, or 28.8 percent of nonperforming loans, which totaled $11.6 million.

Stockholder's equity at NFS Financial Corp. at Sept. 30, 1990, was $52.4 million, or 10.3 percent of total assets. NFS said its capital ratios continue to exceed all regulatory requirements.

MONZA, ITALY (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola, Inc. announced today that it will become the new sponsor of the 7-Eleven Cycling Team in January, 1991. In an announcement at a press conference in Monza, Motorola said it will launch the Motorola Cycling Team at the start of the 1991 racing season and plans to compete in all 13 World Cup competitions and other international events.

The Motorola Cycling Team will feature many key members from the previous 7-Eleven team, including Steve Bauer, Andy Hampsten, Norm Alvis, Frankie Andreu, Andy Bishop, Nathan Dahlberg, Ron Kiefel, Dag Otto Lauritzen, Scott McKinley, John Tomac, Sean Yates, Brian Walton, and more. Two of the team's founders, Jim Ochowicz and Eric Heiden, will remain as general manager and captain, respectively, of the Motorola Cycling Team.

The 1991 cycling season for the Motorola Cycling Team begins with spring training in January in Santa Rosa, Calif., with the team's first competition scheduled for February. The 13 World Cup races start in Italy in March and extend through October. During the season, the team will aim for top positions in both team and individual World Cup point standings.

"We are delighted to become involved in a sport that has such strong international appeal," said Christopher B. Galvin, Motorola's senior executive vice president and assistant chief operating officer.

"Cycling encompasses many of the ideals of our company. Success in the sport depends on teamwork, endurance, quality and integrity - all components needed to be a best-in-class organization, whether a cycling team or a global corporation. We look forward to a successful partnership."

Team Manager Ochowicz added, "Motorola's support will allow us to remain competitive and gives us an excellent base for future growth through association with a leading global company."

Motorola is one of the world's leading providers of electronic equipment, systems, components and services for worldwide markets. Products include two-way radios, pagers, cellular telephones and systems, semiconductors, defense and aerospace electronics, automotive and industrial electronics, computers, data communications and information processing and handling equipment.

Motorola was a winner of the first annual Malcolm Baldridge National Quality Award in the U.S., in recognition of its superior company-wide management and quality processes.

HUNTINGTON, WV (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Ashland Coal Inc. (NYSE: ACI) reported today that it had net income of $6.5 million, or $.40 a share on a primary basis, for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990.

This compares to net income of $4.8 million, or $.28 a share, for the same quarter last year. Revenues for the third quarter were $98.6 million, as compared to $73.5 million in the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Ashland Coal had net income of $21.2 million or $1.30 a share. For the same period last year, the company had net income of $15.9 million or $.95 a share. Revenues were $300.9 million in the first nine months of 1990 compared to $230.4 million a year ago.

"For the quarter, Hobet Mining Inc.'s operating results showed a dramatic improvement over 1989's third quarter, which was adversely affected by the UMWA work stoppage in West Virginia," said William C. Payne, president and chief executive officer. "In addition, Mingo Logan Coal Co., which we acquired in January of this year, again made a significant contribution," Payne continued. "These positives, however, were largely offset by the higher interest expense resulting from the financing for the Mingo Logan acquisition and lower operating income at Coal-Mac Inc. Coal-Mac's income was adversely affected by reduced shipments to an important contract customer and higher costs for both mined and purchased coal.

"Looking ahead to the fourth quarter, we expect that we will experience lower selling prices reflecting the current soft spot market, and upward pressure on costs because of the situation in the Middle East and changes in supply mix required to meet customer specifications," Payne added. "Although fourth quarter margins are likely to be squeezed, increased volumes should counter some of this impact.

"Even though we don't expect to match the strong performance in last year's fourth quarter, we believe 1990 results will show a meaningful improvement over 1989", Payne concluded.

Ashland Coal Inc. is engaged in the mining, processing and sale of low-sulfur steam coal principally to electric utilities in the United States and into the export markets.

Hobet Mining Inc., Mingo Logan Coal Co. and Coal-Mac Inc. are independent operating subsidiaries of Ashland Coal Inc.

DAYTONA BEACH, FL (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated-Tomoka Land Co. (NASDAQ: CTLC) announced that it has increased its holdings in The Charles Wayne Group Ltd.

Consolidated acquired 100 percent ownership of the homebuilding, shopping center and real estate development firm from four area real estate developers, J. Wayne Beighle, Charles S. Lichtigman, David F. Neubauer and Leon G. van Wert.

CWG Ltd. was formed in 1987 by C-TLC, one of Volusia County's largest landowners, and the four developers, who contributed several residential communities and income properties to the venture. "The Charles Wayne Group Ltd. was envisioned as having a life span of three to seven years initially," said Bob D. Allen, president of C-TLC. "Since formation, it has accomplished many of our goals in realizing our properties' potential, in helping to bring the LPGA to Daytona Beach, and in several other respects."

Beighle, Lichtigman, Neubauer and van Wert felt that "the present sale fits the needs of all parties to pursue their individual goals," according to Lichtigman. Lichtigman and Neubauer will continue in business in real estate investments, shopping center development and in operating Charles Wayne Properties Inc., a large commercial real estate brokerage firm with offices in Daytona Beach and Orlando. The firm will continue to represent Charles Wayne Group Ltd. as its agent for the sale of numerous industrial, commercial, office and residential properties.

Wayne Beighle, the former general contractor for CWG Ltd., will continue his interest in solar power technology, having been responsible for Powerhouse I and II in Palm Coast and Lake Placid, Fla. -- houses designed with no connection to any outside power source, other than solar power.

The Charles Wayne Group Ltd. will stay intact under C-TLC ownership, continuing residential building and development in several central Florida projects.

Although it is the intention of The Charles Wayne Group Ltd. to remain active in all projects presently in progress, evaluation of individual assets and projects necessitated by the ownership change and the current generally unfavorable real estate environment may result in changes in both operating strategies and recorded asset values. Any such modifications would not materially limit the partnership's ability to conduct ongoing activities.

JASPER, IND. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Kimball International (NASDAQ: KBALB) reported today that net income in the fiscal first quarter ended Sept. 30 was $9,325,000, or 44 cents per share of Class B common stock, a decrease of 8 percent from $10,147,000, or 48 cents per Class B share, in the same period last year.

Sales in the quarter were $144,752,000, down 6 percent from the year earlier $154,294,000.

Douglas A. Habig, president and chief executive officer, attributed the decline in part to softness in most of the company's markets caused by the weakening of the U.S. economy. However, net income in the quarter was aided by increased income from cash investments.

Office Furniture sales declined slightly while larger decreases were experienced by the Electronics and Keyboard divisions. Sales increases were posted by the Cabinet & Furniture and International divisions. Within the Cabinet & Furniture Division, hospitality furniture sales were up and TV cabinet sales were down, resulting in a moderate increase in the divison.

The International Division's income rose sharply over last year's first quarter as a result of improved sales along with increased currency gains caused by the weaker U.S. dollar. Income was lower in all other operating divisions.

RONKONKOMA, N.Y. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Digital Metcom, Inc. (NASDAQ: DMET) today announced increased sales and profitable operations for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Sales for the nine months were $11,045,662, an increase of 35 percent from the prior year's level of $8,205,803, with net income for the nine months of $595,486, or $.03 per share, compared to net income of $522,581 or $.03 per share for the same period last year.

Sales for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $3,564,432, a substantial increase over the corresponding quarter in 1989 of $2,850,124. Net income was $236,472 in the current period, compared to net income of $102,789 for the third quarter in 1989.

Robert Dorskind, president and CEO, stated, "The strength of our sales and marketing efforts in addition to the solid operating efficiencies achieved by our company this year is reflected in our improved third quarter results exemplified by a 300 percent increase in income before taxes over the same time period last year. Our goal is to build on the momentum we have established during the last several quarters."

The company also announced a substantial increase in its contracted backlog which totaled $3,598,000 at Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $2,754,000 for the same period last year. The company anticipates fulfillment of this contracted backlog to be completed within the next 12 months.

GLENVIEW, ILL. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Zenith Electronics Corporation (NYSE: ZE) today reported a third-quarter 1990 loss from continuing operations of $11.6 million, or 44 cents per share, compared with a 1989 third-quarter loss from continuing operations of $9.1 million, or 34 cents per share. Results for third-quarter 1990 include a pre-tax gain of $2.4 million relating to the termination of a defined-benefit pension plan.

Third-quarter sales from continuing operations were $342 million in 1990, compared with $377 million in 1989.

Third-Quarter Results CONSUMER ELECTRONICS. Sales in the third quarter were $294 million, down 9 percent from $324 million a year ago. The slowdown in the economy resulted in reduced sales of picture tubes to other television manufacturers and of video cassette recorder products. Color television pricing also was adversely affected by industry conditions.

The combination of lower average prices and the adverse inflationary impact on costs was only partially offset by savings from increased efficiencies and reduced fixed overhead expenses.

Third-quarter sales of cable products increased significantly over 1989's third quarter.

COMPONENTS. Sales of $48 million in the third quarter were down 8 percent from $53 million in 1989, principally due to reduced shipments of monochome displays to the computer industry.

HIGH-DEFINITION SYSTEMS. Expenditures for Zenith's two major high definition systems development programs were about $3 million in the third quarter of 1990, compared to less than $1 million last year. Both programs -- new, larger "flat tension mask" high-resolution color displays and the high-definition TV broadcast transmission system -- continue to progress satisfactorily.

COSTA MESA, CALIF. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - FileNet Corp. (NASDAQ: FILE), today reported revenues for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 of $22.3 million, a 20 percent increase over the $18.6 million for the third quarter of 1989 and a net loss of $506,000, or a loss of 5 cents per share compared with a net loss of $1.8 million or a loss of 17 cents per share for the same quarter last year.

Revenues for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $73.3 million, an increase of 30 percent from $56.5 million for the same period in 1989. Net income and net income per share were $2.9 million and 28 cents compared to $205,000 and 2 cents for the same period last year.

"These final results are essentially the same as the estimated results we reported on Oct. 8, 1990," stated Ted Smith, president and CEO. "As I reported then, in addition to the usual types of delays in customer purchasing cycles, we also began to experience order delays due to the increasingly negative economic environment. A number of financial, commercial and governmental organizations changed their acquisition plans due to increasing signs of a recession and increased tensions in the Middle East. We anticipate that this economic environment will continue for some time. Therefore, we are reviewing our revenue expectations and expense plans for the balance of the year and 1991."

FileNet's financial position remains strong with cash and marketable securities of $16.5 million. The company is well-positioned financially with $43.8 million in working capital, a current ratio of 3.1 to 1, and minimal long-term debt. At Sept. 30, 1990, shareholders' equity was $66.7 million.

FileNet Corp. is the worldwide leader in manufacturing and marketing image processing systems used in paper-intensive business applications. A pioneer in its field, FileNet today has more than 360 systems installed in 29 countries. DES MOINES, IOWA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Oliver H. Hagen, president and chief executive officer, announced today the board of directors of First Interstate of Iowa Inc. (NASDAQ: FIIA), a multi-bank holding company, declared a fourth quarter dividend of 5 cents per share to shareholders of record at the close of business on Oct. 31, 1990. The dividend will be paid on Nov. 30, 1990. The board previously declared a 5 cent dividend in each of the first three quarters of 1990. The 1990 dividends declared and paid of 20 cents per share represent a 33 percent increase over the 15 cents per share declared and paid in 1989.

The company recently reported third quarter 1990 net income of $1,063,000, or 9 cents per share fully diluted, compared to $3,137,000, or 21 cents per share fully diluted, for the 1989 corresponding quarter. The decrease in net income was attributable to expenses associated with $2.1 million of net loans charged off in the current quarter and to a higher effective income tax rate. Net income for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $6,279,000, or 43 cents per share fully diluted, and was $9,544,000, or 63 cents per share fully diluted, for the like period in 1989.

Hagen noted, "We are pleased to announce the declaration of another 5 cent quarterly dividend. Despite the decrease in third quarter 1990 net income, the continuation of dividend payments is appropriate in view of the company's capital position, cash flow, future earnings potential and overall asset quality."

The market price of the common stock of First Interstate of Iowa closed at $4.13 on Oct. 18, 1990.

First Interstate of Iowa owns the controlling interest in 13 Iowa banks, a computer services company and an insurance agency. WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae) (NYSE: SLM) today said that a purported class action shareholder lawsuit has been filed against it and two of its executives in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. The corporation views the suit as meritless and intends to defend vigorously against it.

The allegations are similar to those made several days ago by two former

Sallie Mae employees in a lawsuit filed in Kansas. The former employees previously had sought a large cash settlement from the company, which was rejected. Sallie Mae stated earlier this week that the former employees' claims were "totally without merit."

Sallie Mae, a federally chartered, stockholder-owned (NYSE) corporation, is the major financial intermediary serving the education finance market. By buying insured student loans and providing other financial services to financial and educational institutions, Sallie Mae replenishes local supplies of student credit. The corporation owns nearly 30 percent of all guaranteed student loans outstanding today.

MILFORD, OHIO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Structural Dynamics Research Corporation (NASDAQ: SDRC) today announced the establishment of the SOLID Alliance(TM) program. SOLID Alliance allows value-added resellers, complementary software suppliers and computer system manufacturers to participate in cooperative sales, marketing and technical collaboration programs with SDRC.

"The SOLID Alliance program is designed to help us more broadly penetrate the mechanical design automation marketplace beyond our current direct sales and OEM channels," said Ronald J. Friedsam, SDRC chairman and chief executive officer. "Through innovative marketing alliances and new distribution channels, SDRC will provide a more comprehensive range of solutions to our customers and increase our leadership position as the preeminent supplier of MCAE software."

Membership in the SOLID Alliance program will include value-added resellers, software vendors and hardware vendors. Through this marketing program, SDRC will offer each member a selection of cooperative activities, ranging from sales and advertising programs to promotional events and technical collaboration, in order to jointly develop a unique marketing plan for each program member.

The addition of a new reseller channel for the distribution of SDRC products is an important element in the program. SDRC approved resellers will distribute I-DEAS SOLID Concept(TM), a software product that includes capabilities in solid modeling for part design and drawing layout, for $11,500. For those customers who require 3D assembly design, I-DEAS SOLID Assembly(TM) is available for $20,500. Both of these products include an interface to AutoCAD(R) software, an SDRC interface called I-DEAS SOLID Link, that was also announced today. In addition, I-DEAS SOLID Link(TM) can be purchased separately for $2,500.

Both I-DEAS SOLID Concept and SOLID Assembly are package offerings based upon standard I-DEAS(TM) software, and are available on hardware platforms from Apollo, Digital, Hewlett-Packard, Silicon Graphics and Sun Microsystems. The I-DEAS SOLID Link interface to AutoCAD, which provides transparent data exchange between I-DEAS SOLID Concept/SOLID Assembly and AutoCAD software, can be installed with AutoCAD release 11 on Intel 80386-based systems. I-DEAS SOLID Link will also be available on the Sun SPARCstation in conjunction with the Sun version of AutoCAD release 11.

SDRC is a leading supplier of mechanical computer-aided engineering software and engineering services used by automotive, aerospace, and industrial manufacturers for the design, analysis and testing of mechanical products. The company's products and services significantly reduce product development time and cost and result in superior quality products by enabling customers to optimize product designs prior to production. SDRC employs more than 900 people in 36 offices in 12 countries throughout North America, Europe and the Far East.

THOMASVILLE, GA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Flowers Industries Inc. (NYSE: FLO) reported a modest decline in both sales and earnings during the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

At the regular quarterly board of directors meeting held today, members voted to increase the quarterly dividend and to authorize the repurchase of additional common shares for the company.

Sales for the first quarter ending Sept. 22 were $188,908,000, a decrease of 2.2 percent from $193,103,000 reported last year. Pre-tax income before the extraordinary charge resulting from the Federal Trade Commission's order for the company to divest two of its operating facilities was $7,622,000, a decline of ten percent from the $8,471,000 reported for the same period last year.

Net income before the extraordinary charge was $4,406,000 vs. $5,193,000 last year. Net income after the extraordinary charge was $4,406,000 vs. $238,000 reported last year. Fully diluted net income per share before the extraordinary charge was $.13, a decline of 7.1 percent from the $.14 reported a year ago, and was $.13 compared to $.01 after the extraordinary charge last year.

In other business, the board of directors voted to increase the quarterly dividend to $.1625 from $.16. The dividend is payable on Nov. 16 to shareholders of record on Nov. 2. The new annual rate is $.65, compared to the $.64 annual rate in effect last quarter. It represents a ten percent increase over the $.58 annual rate in effect a year ago. The new dividend is the 45th consecutive quarterly increase.

Flowers' board of directors announced that the company has repurchased 751,600 shares of its common stock pursuant to the stock repurchase program it announced on Oct. 20, 1989.

The board expanded the program by authorizing the company to repurchase up to 15 percent of the total shares of its outstanding common stock. Stock will be repurchased at times when securities are available at prices the company considers attractive.

The board also authorized the purchase for retirement of Flowers' 8.25 percent convertible subordinated debentures due March 1, 2005. The purchases will be made at times when the debentures are available at prices the company considers attractive. The debentures, as well as the shares, will be purchased in the open market or through negotiated private transactions at prevailing market prices.

MILFORD, OHIO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Structural Dynamics Research Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: SDRC) and Autodesk, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: ACAD), today announced an agreement in principle whereby both companies will jointly develop and provide two interfaces between I-DEAS(TM) software from SDRC and AutoCAD(R) software from Autodesk. SDRC and Autodesk will now jointly market an integrated set of industry leading products, giving users the ability to exchange design data without worrying about compatibility and integration issues -- two of the most difficult challenges currently faced by manufacturing companies.

The first interface, I-DEAS SOLID Link(TM), a new SDRC software product, will allow I-DEAS customers to transfer solid modeling information to AutoCAD at the end of the design cycle for final drafting. The second interface, AME Link(TM), a new Autodesk software product, will give AutoCAD users the ability to pass AutoCAD/AME solid modeling information to I-DEAS. The software interfaces between I-DEAS and AutoCAD will be distributed through those AutoCAD dealers who are approved members of the SDRC SOLID Alliance(TM) program which was also announced today by SDRC.

"In mechanical design automation, there has been extremely rapid growth in the use of 3D solid modeling as customers recognize the power of 'solids-based' design," said Ronald J. Friedsam, SDRC chairman and chief executive officer. "Through our newly-established reseller channel, we now offer an expansion path for those AutoCAD customers who want to add solids-based design to their engineering organizations, while still preserving their investment in AutoCAD software, training, and associated drawing databases. Autodesk is a highly regarded company, and we are delighted to be working with a company of their stature as we jointly serve this reseller channel."

"I-DEAS has long been recognized as the highest-performance MCAE software in the industry," said Malcolm Davies, Autodesk senior vice president of marketing and sales. "The I-DEAS SOLID Link interface between I-DEAS and AutoCAD will provide our users with an extraordinary new level of functionality with little change to their current design processes. And, as we add more functionality to our product offering, we will provide our customers with a second interface to transfer data from our AutoCAD/AME system to the I-DEAS software."

The I-DEAS SOLID Link interface allows transparent data exchange between I-DEAS and AutoCAD, and is priced at $2,500. I-DEAS SOLID Link can be installed with AutoCAD release 11 on Intel 80386-based machines. I-DEAS SOLID Link will also be available on the Sun SPARCstation in conjunction with the Sun version of AutoCAD release 11. The interface is automatically included when resellers market the I-DEAS SOLID Concept(TM) or I-DEAS SOLID Assembly(TM) products for solid modeling and drawing layout.

The AME Link interface will be available from AutoCAD authorized dealers in 1991, and will allow the transfer of AutoCAD/AME solid models to an I-DEAS environment. Those models can then be merged into the larger I-DEAS assemblies for more complex design and analysis.

Autodesk develops, markets and supports a family of computer-aided design, engineering and animation software products for desktop computers and workstations. Autodesk shares are traded in the United States on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol ACAD.

SDRC is a leading supplier of mechanical computer-aided engineering software and engineering services used by automotive, aerospace, and industrial manufacturers for the design, analysis and testing of mechanical products. The company's products and services significantly reduce product development time and cost and result in superior quality products by enabling customers to optimize product designs prior to production. SDRC employs more than 900 people in 36 offices in 12 countries throughout North America, Europe and the Far East.

AMSTERDAM, NETHERLANDS (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Teleroute - the leading transaction databank for the transport world - was launched in Italy on Oct. 18, 1990 at the Transpotec '90 fair in Verona.

Wolters Kluwer has marketed Teleroute in a large number of countries in Europe. In 1986 Teleroute started in France, after which Belgium, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Germany, and Switzerland followed. In Italy Teleroute will be represented by Transpobank in Milano.

Every day Teleroute now offers approximately 8,000 freight offers from all European countries through its more than 20,000 users. This year Teleroute will be consulted approximately 2.5 million hours.

The Teleroute transaction system anticipates the need of the transport market - for economic as well as environmental reasons - for optimal use of load capacity.

In Italy Teleroute co-operates with Transpobank, the national Italian freight exchange system that, at this moment, already has 1,600 users. Every day an average of approximately 1,100 freights, to and from Italy, are already being offered in Teleroute.

With the expansion into Italy, Teleroute expects the freight offers and the demand for transport to increase considerably as the Italian transporters will from today, have access via Teleroute to the entire European market. Teleroute takes a new step ahead in the direction of Europe 1992.

CHICAGO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Midway Airlines (NYSE: MDW) today announced that it has reached a decision to reduce significantly its level of service at the Philadelphia International Airport.

This conclusion was reached as a result of the sharp increases in aviation fuel prices since the beginning of the Persian Gulf crisis in August 1990.

As a result, the company has entered into an agreement to sell to USAir its leasehold assets at Philadelphia International Airport and its Canadian route authorities to Toronto and Montreal for $64.5 million in cash and USAir's assumption of certain liabilities valued at approximately $3 million.

The transaction is subject to the negotiation and execution of definitive agreements and to approvals by the United States Departments of Justice and Transportation. The parties anticipate closing the transaction as early as December 1990, assuming all conditions to closing have been satisfied.

The sale of the Philadelphia assets is the linchpin of the company's overall business plan to refocus operations at its Midway Airport hub, stabilize the company's financial condition and return it to profitability. "We believe we have a good plan which addresses our needs in these difficult times," said Hinson. "We must close this USAir transaction to obtain the cash resources we require."

Effective Jan. 8, 1991, all non-stop service will be discontinued between Philadelphia and Albany, Buffalo and Rochester, N.Y.; Boston; Hartford, Conn.; Columbus, Ohio; Las Vegas; New Orleans; Providence, R.I., and Montreal in Canada.

Midway's remaining Philadelphia hub services to Chicago, Toronto and points in Florida, a total of 20 daily flights, will continue through April 30.

Midway opened its hub at Philadelphia International Airport on Nov. 15, 1989. At present it oeprates 61 daily flights to 17 destinations from that location accounting for one-sixth of Midway Airlines' operations.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income was $1,760,000 or $0.34 per share vs. net income of $1,347,000 or $0.26 per share in the same period last year. Net interest income before provision for loan losses rose 12.5 percent to $4,952,000 compared with $4,401,000 a year ago.

For the first nine months of 1990, net income rose 23.3 percent to $5,306,000 vs. $4,304,000 in 1989. Net income per common share was $1.03. Net interest income before provision for loan losses rose 10.3 percent to $14,293,000 compared with $12,960,000 last year. At Sept. 30, 1990, United Federal had total assets of $505,960,000 and stockholders' equity of $95,360,000 or $18.39 per share.

In discussing the results for the period, Charles C. Pearson Jr., president and chief executive officer, stated, "We are extremely pleased with our third quarter results. Our already favorable operating ratios continue to improve and are attributable to our changing loan mix and a lower cost of funds." Pearson continued, "Noninterest expenses are under close control and we are beginning to capitalize on the investments the company has made in computer and operating systems. Asset quality continues to be a top priority, and our ratios in this area are among the best in the industry."

Additionally, United Federal announced today that it has received approval from the regulatory agencies to proceed with the conversion/merger with Founders Federal Savings and Loan Association of Williamsport, Pa. The transaction is scheduled for completion on Nov. 9, 1990.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Recently, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced its plans to ban the use of mercury in interior latex paints and require warning labels for exterior latex paints containing mercury.

Due to the numerous inquiries concerning the use of mercury compounds in paints, The Sherwin-Williams Company (NYSE: SHW) is pleased to report that it does not add mercury compounds to its manufactured paints and that it voluntarily eliminated the use of mercury compounds in its paints in 1973. When Sherwin-Williams has acquired other paint companies, it has removed mercurial compounds from the acquired company's manufactured paint.

Mercury has been used in paints as a mildewcide and/or fungicide and as an in-can preservative. However, The Sherwin-Williams Company was able to obtain these same product benefits by replacing mercury with other ingredients while maintaining the other high quality aspects of the Sherwin-Williams products. Since this replacement was completed in 1973, Sherwin-Williams paints have proven effective in these areas through many years of practical use.

According to John Gerulis, director of Regulatory Information Services for Sherwin-Williams, the company began using other biocides as a preservative in its latex paint products in the 1960s.

"While EPA estimates some 30 percent of the water-based latex paint products currently on the market reportedly contain mercury, none of those products are Sherwin-Williams manufactured paints," Gerulis said.

LA JOLLA, CALIF. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Marrow-Tech Inc. (NASDAQ: MAROA, MAROZ) announced today that the U.S. Patent Office has issued the company's patent on its core technology, U.S. Patent No. 4,963,489. This product patent covers three-dimensional living stromal tissue, or stroma, cultured outside the body on a biocompatible framework. Stroma is composed of special support cells; in the body these cells secrete a variety of growth factors and structural proteins that support organ formation and growth. The company uses its three- dimensional cultured stroma to grow skin, bone marrow and liver tissue and has been investigating its use in the growth of other organ tissues.

Applicants for this patent, which is owned by Marrow-Tech, are Gail K. Naughton, Ph.D., and Brian A. Naughton, Ph.D. Dr. Gail Naughton is senior vice president and chief scientific officer of Marrow-Tech; Dr. Brian Naughton is a research hematologist and associate professor of hematology at the Hunter College School of Health Sciences in New York City. The company already holds U.S. Patent No. 4,721,096 covering a process that includes in vitro growth of bone marrow for transplantation, and intends to file applications covering other products and uses of the core technology. Foreign patent applications have also been filed.

Marrow-Tech has already applied this technology to the production of Skin2(TM) ("skin squared"), a line of toxicity screening kits containing three-dimensional cultures of actively growing human skin tissue. In another use of the technology, the company is growing a three-dimensional in vitro dermal replacement, DermaGraft(TM). Marrow-Tech has received FDA approval of an Investigational Device Exemption to begin clinical trials of DermaGraft(TM) in burn patients.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Enzon, Inc. (NASDAQ: ENZN) today announced it has begun marketing of the company's first drug, Adagen(TM) (PEG-ADA), which treats a form of Severe Combined Immunodeficiency Disease (SCID), a fatal disease if left untreated. Enzon has been distributing the drug free, on a compassionate basis, since it received Food and Drug Administration (FDA) marketing approval for Adagen in March 1990 under the Orphan Drug Act.

Adagen works by replacing an enzyme called adenosine deaminase (ADA) whose absence inhibits development of the immune system. Seventeen children in the United States and Europe are currently being treated with Adagen.

Adagen has received widespread attention as an integral part of the first gene therapy research on SCID patients recently initiated at the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

"Until gene therapy for ADA deficiency is perfected, the weekly injections of Enzon's drug provide the only way to keep these patients alive," according to Abbey S. Meyers, executive director of the National Organization for Rare Disorders (NORD). Meyers is a member of the NIH Human Gene Therapy Subcommittee that recently approved the gene therapy experiment.

The technological breakthrough that made Adagen a successful treatment, and an essential component of the gene therapy experiments, is a process developed by Enzon called Pegnology(SM). By coating enzymes and other protein-based drugs with polyethylene glycol (PEG), Enzon is able to mask a drug from the body's immune system, protecting it from being rejected as a foreign substance. As a result, administration of Adagen allows the critical enzyme to remain in the body long enough to improve the patient's immune function.

Adagen's U.S. price is $2,200 per vial; the non-U.S. price is $3,000 per vial. The price is based on the cost of the raw materials used to manufacture the drug, monitoring patients, and meeting quality control regulatory standards that require manufacturing more of the drug than is actually administered.

Noting that some so-called orphan drugs that cost up to $30,000 a year have been attacked in the press recently, NORD's Meyers defended Enzon's pricing of Adagen.

"Unlike the blockbuster drugs masquerading as 'orphans' to keep out competition and making hundreds of millions of dollars, Adagen is a true orphan drug," Meyers said.

No profit or recovery of research, development, and administrative costs are included in the price. Enzon will work with all patients to obtain reimbursement for the drug.

Enzon is a leading biopharmaceutical company developing improved therapies for life-threatening diseases through the application of Pegnology to enhance the delivery of protein-based drugs.

The warrants are being offered concurrently under supplemental prospectuses to the company's shelf registration with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The CAC 40 Stock Index is a market capital-weighted index which measures the composite price performance of 40 French stocks, from a broad spectrum of industries, trading on the Paris Bourse (the Paris Stock Exchange).

The CAC 40 Stock Index is compiled and published by Societe des Bourses Francaises. The CAC 40 Stock Index put and call warrants are expected to be listed on the American Stock Exchange.

The underwriters for the proposed offering will be PaineWebber Incorporated (books), Deutsche Bank Capital Corporation, Lazard Freres & Co., and Nomura Securities International, Inc. The underwriters have been granted the option to purchase up to an additional 375,000 put warrants and 300,000 call warrants to cover over-allotments.

The warrants will entitle the holder to receive from PaineWebber Group Inc., upon exercise, an amount in U.S. dollars computed by reference to decreases in the CAC 40 Stock Index in the case of the call warrants. The warrants are American style warrants which can be exercised at any point up to the end of the three-year expiration.

The put warrants will have a fixed exchange rate set at the time of pricing and the call warrants will have a floating exchange rate. A substantial portion of the net proceeds will be used by the company or one or more of its subsidiaries in connection with hedging the company's obligations under the warrants.

PaineWebber Group Inc. is a holding company which, together with its operating subsidiaries, forms one of the largest full-service securities firms in the industry. Founded in 1879, the company has offices throughout the United States and in many major foreign countries.

WOOSTER, OHIO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Rubbermaid Incorporated (NYSE: RBD) has received the President's "E" Award in recognition of outstanding contributions to the increase of U.S. exports, according to Robert A. Mosbacher, secretary of commerce for the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The award was presented today by Toby T. Zettler, director with the Cleveland district office of the U.S. Department of Commerce. Ron Best, senior vice president, business & international development, accepted the award for Rubbermaid Incorporated.

"We're honored with this recognition," said Best. "Our international staff and other employees throughout the company have made substantial progress in increasing our export business and can certainly take pride in this award. Their efforts have not only significantly benefited Rubbermaid but have helped strengthen the position of the U.S. in world trade."

Zettler commented, "To qualify for this award, manufacturers must show evidence of a substantial increase in volume of exports over a four-year period. Companies also are judged on their ability to demonstrate breakthroughs in especially competitive markets, new product introductions, opening new markets and other factors."

The President's "E" Award Committee, chaired by the Commerce Department, has representatives from the Departments of Agriculture, the Interior, Labor, the Small Business Administration and Export-Import Bank.

Rubbermaid's international business in Canada and around the world has greatly expanded in recent years with a number of acquisitions, joint ventures and licensing agreements. In January of 1990, Rubbermaid formed a joint venture with the Curver Group of the Dutch chemical company, DSM. This venture positions Curver-Rubbermaid as the leading manufacturer and marketer of plastic and rubber housewares in the European, Middle East and North African markets.

This past summer, the company acquired EWU AG, a privately held Swiss company with manufacturing and distribution facilities in Switzerland and the U.S. This acquisition served to increase the distribution of commercial sanitary maintenance products in the growing European market.

The President's "E" Award was created by executive order of the president in 1961 to afford suitable recognition to persons, firms or organizations that contribute significantly in the effort to increase U.S. exports.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CALIF. (OCT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Genus Inc. (NASDAQ: GGNS) today introduced its new integrated system, the 6000, at ceremonies held at corporate headquarter in Mountain View, Calif. The system will be displayed at Semicon Japan, a semiconductor equipment tradeshow to be held in Tokyo next week. The 6000 system integrates blanket tungsten chemical vapor deposition (CVD) and etch processes for volume production of tungsten plugs. It sets a new standard for etch- back plugs in advanced semiconductors in high throughput environments. Genus guarantees the 6000 system to provide void-free tungsten plugs with a recess specification of less then 0.2 microns across the entire wafer.

Much interest has been shown in the 6000 by semiconductor manufacturers around the world. Seven systems have been shipped to major manufacturers in the United States and Japan in pre-announcement sales and six more are in backlog.

The 6000 system is totally automatic with wafers handled in vacuum from load to unload. The system features two independent load-locks, a six-wafer batch deposition chamber, up to two single-wafer etch chambers and a central handler. It provides throughputs of 28-32 wafers per hour.

"The 6000 system is the next step in tungsten CVD multiprocessing," said Kenneth L. Schroeder, Genus president and chief operating officer. "Two processes, as well as two pieces of equipment have been totally integrated in this product. It is now being acknowledged by our customers as the best solution to increasing volume production yields in submicron applications. This is evidenced by the orders we have won to date."

"Genus has been in the business of providing tungsten CVD equipment and processes to semiconductor manufacturers around the world for nearly a decade. No one in the industry can match our experience," stated William W. R. Elder. "That experience has served us well in the two- year development of the 6000. We have worked closely with our customers to ensure that the system meets their requirements for present and next generation semiconductor manufacturing."

Tungsten plugs provide vertical interconnection of the electrical circuitry in a device. At the present time sputtered aluminum is being used for this purpose in many manufacturing lines, but its poor step coverage characteristics will prohibit its use in devices with line widths below 0.8 micron. Tungsten is rapidly taking the place of aluminum as the material of choice for interconnects and plugs.

Competitive products currently on the market leave several issues unresolved. 1) hole fills are incomplete, leaving voids that interrupt the flow of electricity, 2) plugs are etched too deep for advanced device requirements, and 3) throughput is not compatible with volume production. The Genus 6000 addresses and solves each of these problems.

In volume production of tungsten plugs, the Genus 6000 deposits tungsten on vertically oriented wafers in its six-wafer batch chamber. The tungsten deposition has excellent step coverage characteristics to ensure that the holes, which will become plugs, are completely filled without gaps or voids. A patented argon purge and a positive perimeter seal for each wafer eliminates edge and backside deposition. Backside etch is not required. The system is compatible with 100, 125, 150 and 200mm wafers.

Genus is a leading supplier of tungsten CVD and high energy ion implantation systems for advanced semiconductor manufacturers around the world.

PRINCETON, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Rhone-Poulenc today officially opened a new paracetamol production unit in Bangpoo, Thailand.

Paracetamol is the second largest analgesic in volume after aspirin. This unit has a capacity of 900 tons per year and is located on the same site as the aspirin unit taken over from Monsanto in 1989. It belongs to Rhone-Poulenc Thai Industries, a 74/26 joint venture between Rhone-Poulenc and Osothsapha Co. Ltd.

Rhone-Poulenc is a leading producer of aspirin and paracetamol worldwide. The new unit completes Rhone-Poulenc industrial network, with facilities producing paracetamol in France, the United States and Thailand; and aspirin in France, the United States, the United Kingdom and Thailand.

"This investment is part of Rhone-Poulenc's dual strategic policy of strengthening in sectors where the Group already had leading world positions and of development in Asia," said Jean-Marc Bruel, group executive vice president. In 1990, Rhone-Poulenc's sales in Asia have reached 5.3 billion francs.

The group employs 300 people in Thailand and has a turnover of 300 million francs, where it sells chemicals, plant protection products, pharmaceuticals and fibers.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - United Press International (UPI) and Reuters announced today they had settled all litigation between them over news pictures services.

Under the settlement, Reuters agreed to drop its lawsuit claiming unspecified damages from UPI for allegedly allowing its photo service to decline in quality. At the same time, UPI agreed to withdraw its claims that Reuters had negotiated in bad faith with UPI in the 1984 acquisition of UPI's international photo business. UPI also agreed to withdraw its demand for arbitration before the International Chamber of Commerce on the grounds Reuters allegedly attempted to steal UPI subscribers.

No compensation or monetary damages will be paid by either organization. Under the settlement, UPI has the option of ending the exchange agreement by providing 30 days' notice to Reuters of UPI intent to do so.

Also, Reuters will supply UPI with foreign news pictures until June 1995 for sale to UPI's U.S. subscribers. Through September 1992, UPI will receive the service for free, as provided for in the 1984 agreement. Subsequently, UPI would have the option of subscribing to the Reuter service.

Reuters will cover the United States with its own resources and will not use

UPI pictures. Effectively, UPI will sell its news pictures service worldwide outside the United States, without Reuter content.

Reuters also will have the right to market and sell its service worldwide, including the United States, but will not engage in activities designed to undermine UPI's existing newspicture customer relationships in North America.

UPI is owned by Infotechnology, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: ITCH), the New York-based information and communications company that also owns 47 percent of Financial News Network Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FNNI).

Reuters Holdings PLC (NASDAQ-NMS: RTRSY) supplies news, information and market data service to both business subscribers and the news media.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - PPG Industries (NYSE: PPG) today reported increased third-quarter results, with net earnings of $107.1 million, or $1 per share, including a charge equivalent to four cents per share related to the restructuring of PPG's inks business.

Sales were $1.47 billion. This compares with net earnings in the 1989 quarter of $106.7 million, or 97 cents per share, which included a gain of 13 cents per share from business divestitures and realignments. Sales were $1.36 billion.

Nine-month net earnings were $373.4 million, or $3.47 a share, on sales of $4.52 billion, compared with $363.8 million, or $3.25 per share, on $4.31 billion in sales a year ago.

PPG's board of directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 42 cents per share, payable Dec. 12 to shareholders of record Nov. 9.

Average shares outstanding for the quarter and nine months were 106.5 million and 107.5 million, respectively, compared with 110.1 million and 111.9 million in 1989, reflecting a recently completed 10 million shares repurchase program.

Board Chairman and CEO Vincent A. Sarni said PPG "remains optimistic that the year's results will exceed those of 1989, despite recent international political developments and a sluggish second half. Improved operating efficiencies experienced by each of our major businesses are expected to contribute significantly to the company's 1990 earnings improvement.

"Higher sales from acquisitions, foreign currency translation gains, modest improvements in North American auto production and increased European volumes were factors contributing to the sales and earnings gains for our glass and coatings businesses," he said.

Higher volumes produced significantly increased North American and European sales of original and replacement auto glass. Lower worldwide flat glass sales resulted from decreased volumes and prices attributed to diminished construction activity and industry overcapacity. Sales volumes from the recent acquisition of the Dutch fiber glass producer Silenka B.V. and modest gains for reinforcements were partially offset by reduced textile volumes.

Trade paint sales increased substantially as a result of the late-1989 acquisitions of Olympic and Lucite brands as well as sales gains for Pittsburgh Paints. European sales for new vehicle coatings and auto refinishes grew as PPG continued to expand those businesses globally.

Chemicals sales were essentially unchanged. Chlor-alkali volume gained slightly while unit pricing was about equal to 1989 levels. Prices were softer for chlorine derivatives. However, performance chemicals benefited generally from higher sales volumes and price improvement.

BALTIMORE (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. (NYSE: BGE) will be distributing 40,000 pounds of dry ice at noon today to customers still without electric service following yesterday afternoon's storm.

The free distribution will take place at two locations: in the parking lot of the Reisterstown Shopping Center, located at 11909 Reisterstown Road, at the intersection of Franklin Boulevard; and the Rouhl Armory, York Road and the Beltway in Towson.

The dry ice will be bagged in 10-14 pound blocks and should be placed in the freezer section of refrigerators only. It will keep food preserved for approximately 24 hours. Do not place dry ice in the cool section of the refrigerator because it may cause freezing.

The dry ice distribution is limited to residential customers only. Customers are limited to one bag per refrigeration unit. For more information on the dry ice distribution, customers may call (301) 685-0123.

- Always handle dry ice with gloves. Due to the very low temperature of this material, direct contact with the bare skin may cause painful burns.

- During the emergency when dry ice is in use to avoid loss of "coldness" do not open the freezer door unnecessarily.

- Do not use any type of closed container or pan to hold the dry ice in the freezer, as this will reduce the cooling effect.

- Do not break or cut dry ice unless proper precaution is taken to prevent flying chips. Under no circumstances should it be crushed as this would allow it to evaporate so fast as to destroy its usefulness.

- After electric service is restored, any left over dry ice should be disposed of in a safe manner. Place in a garbage or trash can and well out of the reach of children or animals.

FREEPORT, IL (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Newell Co. (NYSE: NWL) today reported that net income and earnings per share reached record highs for the third quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Third quarter earnings per share increased ten percent over last year as had been projected earlier by the company.

For the third quarter, net income increased 11.7 percent to $27.4 million from $24.5 million last year and fully diluted earnings per share were 45 cents, up 9.8 percent over the 41 cents achieved in the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income increased 32.0 percent to $73.6 million from $55.7 million last year and fully diluted earnings per share were $1.21, up 31.5 percent from $0.92 in the comparable 1989 period.

Net sales for the quarter were $281.1 million, down 5.3 percent from $296.8 million in 1989. For the nine months, net sales were $801.0 million, down 5.1 percent from $844.4 million in the comparable 1989 period.

Sales were lower in 1990 because of the divestitures of the Wm. E. Wright and Carr-Lowrey business in late 1989. Excluding the divested businesses, total sales were up approximately one percent for the first nine months; consumer domestic sales were up 4.3 percent.

Record levels of net income and earnings per share resulted from operating margin improvements in several of Newell's businesses and a substantial reduction in interest expense. Also, the nine-month results include a non-recurring gain from the sale of securities which was recorded in the first quarter.

This first quarter gain was partially offset by the write-down of certain intangible and other noncurrent assets. Taken together, these gains and charges increased fully diluted earnings per share by nine cents for the nine months ended September 1990. Excluding these gains and charges, fully diluted earnings per share were $1.12 for the first nine months, up 21.7 percent.

Third quarter earnings were consistent with the company's earlier announcement that earnings per share would be up about ten percent over the year ago quarter despite the negative impact from the settled strike at Phoenix Glass and softening of incoming orders in late September.

Newell manufactures and markets high-volume hardware/housewares and industrial products. Hardware/housewares products are sold principally through discount, variety, chain and hardware stores, hardware and housewares distributors, and home improvement centers. Industrial products are sold directly and through distributors to volume purchasers.

OLD GREENWICH, CT (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - American Brands, Inc. (NYSE: AMB), the global consumer products holding company, today announced that net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 rose 39 percent to a record $231 million, or $1.16 per common share, compared with $166 million, or $ .86 per share, last year. All per share amounts reflect the two-for-one stock split effective Oct. 9.

Revenues reached a record $3.9 billion, up 26 percent from $3.1 billion in the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990, net income rose 27 percent to a record $585 million, or $2.97 per share, compared with $459 million, or $2.38 per share, in 1989. Revenues for the nine months reached a record $10 billion, up 11 percent from $9 billion last year.

The sale in July of Theodorus Niemeyer, a Netherlands-based tobacco company, resulted in a gain of $56 million in international tobacco operating income and a net income gain of $31 million, or 16 cents per share.

Fluctuations in exchange rates for foreign currencies, principally the British pound, favorably affected revenues and E.P.S. by $442 million and 10 cents, respectively, in the quarter and $386 million, and 8 cents, respectively, for the nine months. The average number of shares outstanding was up 3 percent in both periods.

Interest expense for the quarter increased as a result of acquisitions but declined for the nine months on lower average borrowings resulting from strong cash flow.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer William J. Alley said: "Our company continues to perform very well, with record results for both the third quarter and the first nine months of 1990, and we have continued to build strategically.

American Brands is a global consumer products holding company with core businesses in tobacco, distilled spirits, hardware and home improvement products, office products and life insurance. Each has brand name leaders in its industry.

In tobacco, major cigarette brands include American Tobacco's Carlton, Lucky Strike, Pall Mall, Tareyton and Malibu and, in the U.K., Gallaher Limited's Benson & Hedges, Silk Cut and Berkeley. In distilled spirits, leading brands include Jim Beam bourbon, DeKuyper liqueurs, Windsor Canadian Supreme Whisky, Gilbey's gin and vodka, Kamchatka and Vladivar vodkas along with The Dalmore, The Claymore and Whyte & Mackay Special scotches. The MasterBrand Industries hardware and home improvement business includes Master Lock, Moen Incorporated, Aristokraft and Twentieth Century. The ACCO World office products group includes Swingline, Wilson Jones, Day-Timers and substantial international operations, including Rexel and Twinlock. Life insurance is sold by The Franklin group of companies.

Specialty products include Titleist, Pinnacle and Foot-Joy golf products and, in the U.K., Gallaher's Prestige housewares line, Dollond & Aitchison optics, and Forbuoys retailing.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail) (NYSE: CRR) today completed transactions giving it 100 percent ownership of the Monongahela Railway Co.

Conrail, which previously owned one-third of the shares of the Monongahela, purchased the one-third interest of CSX Transportation (CSXT), a business unit of CSX Corporation, and the one-third interest of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad Co.

"Acquisition of the Monongahela will give Conrail customers in the Northeast and Midwest improved rail access to mines containing large amounts of mid-sulfur coal," said James A. Hagen, Conrail's chairman, president and chief executive officer. "This is high BTU coal that will assist these customers, primarily utilities, in conforming with environmental requirements."

Plans for the purchases were announced in November 1989 with the P&LE and March 1990 with CSXT. Terms of the transactions were filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, which approved the transactions in an order which became effective Sept. 17.

The Monongahela Railway Co. includes rail lines between Millsboro, Pa., and Waynesburg, Pa., and between Brownsville, Pa., and Fairmont, W.Va.

Conrail operates a rail freight network in 14 Northeast and Midwest states, the District of Columbia and the Province of Quebec.

EDISON, NJ (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - As was previously projected disclosed on Sept. 21, 1990, Midlantic Corporation (NASDAQ: MIDL) today announced that, as a result of the company's decision to bolster its reserves for possible loan losses in response to weakening market conditions, it reported a loss for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the loss totaled $159 million, or $4.20 per share on a fully diluted basis. In the same period last year, consolidated net income was $66.1 million and fully diluted earnings per share were $1.68.

For the year-to-date 1990, Midlantic reported a loss amounting to $182.4 million and a fully diluted loss per share of $4.86. In the first nine months of last year, Midlantic's net income was $187.2 million, or $4.78 on a fully diluted per-share basis.

In the third quarter 1990, Midlantic strengthened its reserves substantially through a loan loss provision amounting to $285 million. This action was taken as a result of continuing declines in real estate values and in view of national economic uncertainties.

Commenting on the quarterly and year-to-date financial results, Midlantic Corporation Chairman Robert Van Buren stated, "This is a time of extraordinary conditions in the U.S. financial services industry, and banks - including Midlantic - are currently facing some of the most difficult challenges to confront the industry in decades.

Midlantic's capital ratios exceed federal regulatory requirements for banking organizations. At Sept. 30, 1990, common shareholders' equity was $1.24 billion and primary capital totaled $2.2 billion, or 8.9 percent of total assets. Book value per common share was $32.45 at the end of the third quarter.

The reserve for possible loan losses at Sept. 30, 1990, was $706 million, or 76 percent of non-performing loans. In the previous quarter, the reserve amounted to $550 million, or 76 percent of non-performing loans. Non-performing loans at the end of the third quarter were $932 million, or 5.4 percent of total loans, compared to $725 million, or 4.1 percent of total loans, at June 30, 1990.

Total assets of the corporation at Sept. 30, 1990, were $23.9 billion; total deposits were $20 billion; and total loans, net of unearned income, amounted to $17.1 billion. This compares to $23.2 billion, $18 billion, $18.2 billion, respectively, at Sept. 30, 1989.

Midlantic Corporation is an interstate bank holding company headquartered in Edison. The corporation operates 512 offices primarily in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

DAYTON, OHIO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Record third quarter and nine months operating results were announced by The Duriron Company, Inc. (NASDAQ: DURI) at its board of directors meeting held today in Dayton, Ohio. These results along with continued strong incoming business and an all-time high backlog level have positioned Duriron for its third consecutive record year according to company management.

Third quarter sales of $72.2 million yielded net earnings of $5.2 million, or $0.42 per share. In 1989's third quarter, Duriron posted sales of $67.2 million with net earnings of $4.4 million, or $0.35 per share.

For the nine months, sales were $219.0 million with net earnings of $15.0 million and earnings per share of $1.20. In the first nine months of 1989, Duriron's sales were $211.0 million while net earnings were $14.8 million, or $1.18 per share.

Incoming business remained strong during the third quarter as the company booked orders totalling $73.9 million. At Sept. 30, 1990, backlog stood at an all-time record high of $73.3 million. This represents an increase of approximately $700,000 during the period.

Management was particularly pleased with these results as the third quarter is historically the company's weakest. This is largely due to extended vacation-related plant shutdowns at its European operations and to a combination of a routine annual foundry maintenance shutdown and heavy vacation schedules throughout all North American operations. According to John S. Haddick, Duriron's chairman and chief executive officer, the company's quarterly financial performance was "on target" with projections. He attributed an improvement in gross margins for the quarter to the effect of plant efficiency improvements, aggressive pricing policies and a more profitable order mix resulting from fewer competitively priced large construction projects as a percentage of total shipments.

In other news, the company announced it has reached a labor agreement with Dayton Pump and Foundry Division employees represented by United Steelworkers of America Local 3320. The new three-year contract is effective through Oct. 16, 1993.

During the third quarter, Raymond D. "Pete" Gillaugh, senior vice president and chief administrative officer, retired after 27 years of distinguished service.

Also, at its meeting today, the board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 12-1/2 cents per share payable Dec. 7, 1990 to shareholders of record on Nov. 2, 1990. With this payment, the company will have completed 55 years of consecutive quarterly dividends.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Al Wiman, health reporter at KMOV-TV/St. Louis, has joined Wang Associates Health Communications as director of broadcast services, announced Julie Wang, the company's president. Wang Associates Health Communications is the largest independent public relations agency specializing in health and high technology.

Wiman brings to Wang more than 20 years of experience in the field of broadcast journalism. Wiman will continue to work part-time as the medical and science editor at CBS-affiliated KMOV-TV, where he has been since 1974. During that time, he received three Emmys from the St. Louis chapter of the National Academy of TV Arts and Sciences.

"Al's experience will enable Wang Associates Health Communications to achieve our goal of producing the best videos in the business," said Wang.

Wiman recently produced B-roll for Wang Associates Health Communications that was aired on all three major networks, CNN, and many local stations, reaching an audience of over 100 million. "Our client is thrilled and we were told by several network reporters that this was the best video material they had ever received from a public relations agency," noted Wang.

Before joining KMOV, Wiman worked as news director at WCTV-TV in Florida. Earlier, he worked as an investigative reporter for KABC-TV and KCBS-TV, two television stations in Los Angeles, where he won three Golden Mikes from the Southern California Radio-TV News Association.

Wiman has received a number of awards from health and science organizations, such as the National Kidney Foundation and the American Cancer Society. In the summer of 1990 he received an award from the Sigma Tau Foundation for his reporting on Alzheimer's disease.

MIDDLEBURY, CT (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - General DataComm Industries, Inc. (NYSE: GDC) today reported that revenues for its fourth fiscal quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $51.6 million, up 5 percent from revenues of $49.3 million for the same period a year ago and up 4 percent from the preceding fiscal 1990 third quarter.

Operating income for the fourth quarter, before restructuring charges, was $1.7 million, against operating income of $18,000 for the September quarter last year and $1.2 million from the preceding fiscal 1990 third quarter. Restructuring costs in both periods, $3.2 million for the current fourth quarter and $5.3 million in the 1989 fourth quarter, were attributable to reserves set aside to carry vacant industrial facilities.

The net loss for the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter was $1.2 million or $(.08) per share, against a net loss of $6.2 million or $(.42) per share for the comparable period a year ago.

Excluding restructuring charges, net income for the fourth quarter would have been $2.0 million or $.13 per share against a net loss of $894,000 or $(.06) per share for the year ago period, and income of $435,000 or $.03 per share for the preceding fiscal 1990 third quarter.

Revenues for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990 were $201.5 million, compared to revenues of $201.2 million for fiscal year 1989. Operating income for the full year, before restructuring costs, was $6.4 million against an operating loss of $1.4 million for fiscal 1989. Net income with restructuring charges was $159,000 or $.01 per share. This compares with a net loss last year of $9 million or $(.61) per share. Excluding restructuring charges, net income for fiscal 1990 totaled $3.4 million or $.22 per share, compared to a net loss of $3.7 million or $(.25) per share a year ago.

"GDC's results for the fourth quarter and full year are indicative of positive changes that have occurred at all levels of the company's operations," said Charles P. Johnson, chairman and chief executive officer. "Notwithstanding uncertain U.S. economic conditions, revenues for fiscal 1990 held steady, enabling GDC to report four consecutive quarters of operating income, before restructuring provisions. This is a significant improvement after two years of losses.

"We have seen an improving trend in the last half of fiscal 1990, which we expect will carry forward into this year. However, events such as the present state of the U.S. economy, the current impasse on government spending, and the tensions in the Middle East do leave us concerned. Nevertheless, we have aggressively positioned GDC to be a leader in its markets by understanding, participating and interfacing with the profound telecommunications and networking changes that are now occurring worldwide, and will continue to occur over the decade."

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Team Bank, as Trustee of the San Juan Basin Royalty Trust (NYSE: SJT), today declared there would be no cash distribution to the holders of its units of beneficial interest of record on Oct. 31, 1990.

Royalty income was approximately $594,000 for the month of October. However, production expenses in May, June, July, August and September exceeded revenues by approximately $2,590,700 due to increased capital costs, decreased natural gas production and the low sales price of natural gas. The Trust's portion of this excess was approximately $1,943,000 before applying October's income. In accordance with the Royalty Conveyance, the excess of expenses over income must be recovered from subsequent months' royalty income. Additionally, in order for the Trust to pay administrative expenses for September and October, the Trustee borrowed funds totaling $40,832. The deferred charge created by this borrowing must also be repaid before further distributions can be made to Unit Holders. Therefore, the total to be recovered from future income is approximately $1,389,800.

Capital costs totaled approximately $477,000 for the month. Production for the properties from which the royalty was carved totaled approximately 1,491,400 Mcf. The average gas price was $1.33 per Mcf.

BATTLE CREEK, MI (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Boosted by a strong performance in its international operations, Kellogg Company (NYSE: K) today reported increased third-quarter sales and earnings.

"During the quarter, we continued to achieve substantial volume gains in our international division," said William E. LaMothe, chairman of the board and chief executive officer. "Our strong international performance, aided by favorable currency exchange rates, contributed significantly to our overall sales and earnings results."

LaMothe continued: "In the United States, our ready-to-eat cereal business continues to be soft. Intense competition and slower growth of the category have made it more difficult to regain market share. However, we remain fully committed to meeting that challenge and we are very optimistic about worldwide growth prospects."

Kellogg's net sales for the third quarter of 1990 were $1.35 billion, up 13.1 percent over the third quarter of 1989. Net earnings were $162.3 million, up 31.8 percent, resulting in earnings per share rising from $1.02 to $1.34.

For the first nine months of 1990, sales were $3.82 billion, up 7.1 percent over 1989. Net earnings were $394.3 million, up 8.3 percent without the effect of a 1989 accounting change. With the change, which inflated nine-months profits in 1989, the 1990 earnings were down 4.4 percent. Earnings per share were $3.26, compared to $2.99 in 1989 without the accounting change and $3.38 with the change.

The company's cost containment programs aided third-quarter and nine-months results in 1990. Last year's third-quarter earnings were impacted negatively by a one-time pretax charge of $14.8 million ($.08 a share) in connection with the disposition of certain operations and related assets.

WAYNE, PA. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - SEI Corp. (NASDAQ: SEIC) today reported results of operations for the third quarter ending Sept. 30.

Revenue for the third quarter was $41.7 million, vs. $38.2 million reported for the same period last year, while pre-tax income for third quarter 1990 was $4.7 million, compared to $5 million for the corresponding quarter last year. Net income for the third period of 1990 was $3 million, compared to $3.1 million reported in 1989.

Earnings per share for the third quarter this year were 27 cents, the same as that reported for the third quarter in 1989. Shares used to compute earnings per share for the current period was 11,333,000 compared to 11,535,000 in the same quarter last year.

Revenue for the first nine months of 1990 was $126.3 million, vs. $107.2 million registered in the first three quarters last year. Income before income taxes for the first three periods of 1990 was $14.5 million, compared to $14.9 million for the corresponding three quarters last year. Net income for the first three quarters this year was $9 million, vs. $9.3 million in 1989.

Earnings per share for the first three quarters of 1990 were 81 cents, compared to 80 cents in the same period in 1989. Shares used to compute earnings per share for these periods were 11,063,000 in 1990 and 11,631,000 in 1989.

Information Services has performed above previous expectations, the company said. Operating profit in third quarter 1990 was $3.6 million, while operating profit for the first nine months of 1990 amounted to $10.3 million; profit margins were 21 percent for the first nine months of 1990 compared with 15 percent for the same period in 1989.

During the third quarter, the division concluded agreements with Key Trust, First Fidelity and Chase Lincoln, three top 100 banks. These new signings, when added to other business in 1990, produce a high degree of assurance that margins will continue to improve in the future.

The Financial Services segment achieved an operating profit of $3.7 million for the three months ending Sept. 30, 1990, which is less than that generated in the preceding quarter. The major cause of this decline was the unpredictability of the transfer of funds from clients to SEI mutual funds. In addition, fee revenues, as a percentage of assets under management ($13 billion at Sept. 30, 1990), continue to decline as the product mix shifts from high-fee to low-fee products. The outlook for this business remains optimistic as the division positions itself as a major provider of services for bank proprietary mutual funds.

In the Evaluation Services Division revenue for third quarter 1990 was $12.8 million, with an operating profit of $2.2 million. Both revenues and earnings have been flat for some time during the period in which restructuring has gone forward. During this difficult transition, results would have been reduced, were it not for the strong support of SEI's client base and the efforts of the division's employees.

Benefit Services and New Ventures combined produced an operating loss in the third quarter of $1.9 million. In spite of this loss, the company said it believes that these ventures are necessary to construct new businesses and aimed at markets with significant potential.

NEW HAVEN, CT (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - First Constitution Financial Corporation (NASDAQ: FCON), the holding company that owns First Constitution Bank, reported a net loss of $12.9 million or $1.18 per share, for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, compared with a loss of $10.9 million or $1.00 a share for the same period a year ago.

This year's third-quarter loss, when added to first- and second-quarter losses of $39.4 million and $19.0 million, results in a net loss for the nine months of $71.3 million or $6.51 a share. This compares with a loss of $1.3 million or 11 cents a share for the first nine months of 1989, according to John J. Crawford, president and chief executive officer.

The 1990 third-quarter results reflect an addition to reserves for losses of $12.0 million, bringing total reserves for loan losses and real estate investments to $93.6 million. Non-performing assets were $273.4 million at Sept. 30, an increase of $36.5 million in the quarter -- consisting principally of $22.6 million in commercial real estate loans and $11.3 million in residential real estate loans. The ratio of reserves to non-performing assets was 34 percent at Sept. 30.

"Our business continues to be affected by the widespread deterioration of the Connecticut economy and, in particular, the persistent decline in our state's real estate markets," Crawford said. "That is why a priority of ours is working out problem loans."

Shareholders' equity at Sept. 30 was $144.1 million. Total assets were $2.2 billion. The consolidated equity-to-asset ratio was 6.6 percent, and book value per share was $13.16.

Primary and total capital ratios for First Constitution Bank, computed according to FDIC requirements, were both 8.7 percent at Sept. 30. "Similar to actions taken at other banking institutions recently, First Constitution Bank directors have entered into a memorandum of understanding with federal and state regulators -- following the completion of an examination of the bank. The memorandum calls principally for development of a plan to maintain a primary capital ratio of at least 8 percent, while continuing to maintain adequate loan loss reserves and working to reduce adversely classified assets " Crawford said.

Net interest income before the provision for loan losses was $8.9 million for this year's third quarter, compared with $12.6 million a year ago. For the nine months, net interest income was $31 million, compared with $40.1 million last year.

Third quarter non-interest income was $1.2 million this year, compared with $4 million last year, when there was an early settlement of a large loan and income from investments. This year's nine-month non-interest income was $1 million, compared with $12.2 million for the same period last year. This difference is attributable primarily to gains on investment securities in 1989 and losses recognized in 1990.

Non-interest expense for the 1990 third quarter was $11.2 million, compared with $9.7 million for the same period last year. For the nine months of 1990, it was $34.5 million, compared with $26.7 million for last year's first nine months.

Because of the adverse effect of non-accruing loans, the average interest rate spread for the third quarter was 1.47 percent. The net interest margin was 1.74 percent.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Unilever announced today that it is to expand its interests in Venezuela with the acquisition of the Facegra and Jainsa edible oils and detergents businesses. It has agreed to purchase the entire share capital of the family owned businesses, for an undisclosed sum.

Facegra and Jainsa, based in Valencia, employ some 900 people and manufacture a range of table oils and soaps. Their combined sales will total about US$50 million (approximately 25 million pounds sterling) in 1990.

The purchase of the businesses is in line with Unilever's strategy for further expansion in Latin America and will provide a significant entry into the Venezuelan edible oils and fats market.

Unilever's existing interest are centered on the Lever-Pond's company. Caracas, which manufactures and sells a range of detergents, including toilet soaps and fabric conditioner; personal products including toothpaste, skin cream and fragrances; and soups and teas. Sales in 1989 totaled some US$30 million (approximately 15 million pounds).

WESTBOROUGH, MA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - New England Electric System (NYSE: NES) (NEES) today reported earnings for the nine months and 12 months ended September 1990 of $3.60 and $4.33 per average share, respectively. This compares to $1.65 and $2.00, respectively, earned in the corresponding periods last year on fewer average shares. NEES earnings for the nine months and 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990 were increased by $1.81 and $1.83 per share due to adjustments recorded in the third quarter of 1990 related to the investment in the Seabrook I nuclear unit by NEES' wholesale generating subsidiary, New England Power Company (NEP).

As previously reported, these adjustments reflect the terms of a 1988 NEP rate settlement approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Under the settlement, in 1988 NEP took a $179 million after-tax write-down of its Seabrook I investment, assuming that the unit would be cancelled. In fact, Seabrook I has successfully entered commercial service. Accordingly, NEP has reversed a portion of the write-down taken in 1988, which increased net income by $115 million after tax, or $1.81 per share.

Many decisions made during the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's licensing of Seabrook I are being appealed and investigated. The Seabrook plant and nuclear power remain controversial, and challenges to both continue. NEP does not believe that pending appeals will result in the permanent withdrawal from service or cancellation of Seabrook I. However, if this should occur, NEP could be required to cease collecting and/or refund part of the revenue permitted by its 1988 rate settlement, and a write-down could be required at that time. Those revenues are already included in NEP's current rates.

Earnings for the first nine months of 1990 were also increased by 10 cents per share due to a seasonal rate design implemented by NEP. This seasonal rate design involves higher rates during peak months and lower rates during off-peak months. It was designed to have no significant impact on earnings during a full year.

BOTHELL, WA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - ICOS Corporation today announced the appointment of Janice M. LeCocq as executive vice president, chief financial and administrative officer, and a member of the board of directors. LeCocq becomes the fourth ICOS officer, joining a management team comprised of individuals who previously founded three of the largest and most successful biotechnology companies.

Formerly, LeCocq was the general partner in charge of health care corporate finance activities at Montgomery Securities in San Francisco. Since 1986 she generated approximately $400 million in public and private financings for corporate clients. Prior to 1986 she was employed at Montgomery Securities as a securities analyst and an associate in corporate finance specializing in biomedical technology and biotechnology companies. LeCocq holds a Ph.D. from Stanford University.

"The depth of Jan LeCocq's expertise in corporate finance and management makes her a uniquely qualified addition to our team. She adds a powerful new dimension not typically found within management groups of biotechnology companies," said Robert C. Nowinski, ICOS's chief executive officer and president. Dr. Nowinski was formally founder, president, CEO and chairman of Genetic Systems Corporation. Other prominent founders of the ICOS team include: Dr. George B. Rathmann (chairman of the board of directors), formerly founder, president, CEO and chairman of Amgen Corporation; and Dr. Christopher S. Henney (executive vice president and scientific director), formerly co- founder, executive vice president and scientific director of Immunex.

ICOS Corporation, a newly founded biopharmaceutical firm specializing in the development of new treatments for chronic inflammatory diseases, recently raised $33 million in initial financing -- the largest start-up financing of any biotech company to date. This sizable financial base has allowed ICOS to begin operations this month with a new 30,000-square-foot laboratory facility, and 65 employees, including 22 with Ph.D. or M.D. degrees.

NEWTOWN, PA. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - SPS Technologies (NYSE: ST) today announced that it expects to report a net loss for the third quarter in the range of $2.5 million to $3.5 million, or $.50 to $.70 per share.

The principal reasons for the expected third quarter results are a provision for estimated loss on a note received in connection with the sale of a business in a prior year; a large loss by the company's Brazilian affiliate in which SPS owns a 46 percent share; and weak domestic automotive, machine tool and industrial machinery markets yielding poor operating results for the company's fastener and materials operations serving those markets.

PRESTON, MD. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Preston Corporation (NASDAQ: PTRK) announced today operating results for the quarter and nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990. Revenues were $171.5 million for the quarter compared to $155.0 million in the third quarter of 1989. The company recorded a net loss for the quarter of $19,455,000 or $3.38 per share versus income of $161,000 or $0.03 a share for the same quarter last year.

On Oct. 9, 1990, the company announced that it was closing Pioneer Transportation Systems of Hurlock, Md., and Reeves Transportation Company of Calhoun, Ga. As a result of these closings, the company established a $17.8 million after-tax loss reserve or $3.08 per share which was charged to earnings during the third quarter, and estimated that the third quarter loss would be $3.37.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the company recorded a net loss of $18,433,000 or $3.20 per share compared to net income of $3,371,000 or $0.58 per share earned during the first nine months of 1989. Revenues for the nine months were $500.0 million versus $464.0 million for the same period last year.

Looking to the future, William B. Potter, president and chief executive officer, noted, "Preston Corporation will now devote its resources to its other subsidiaries which are doing very well in the short-haul, less-than-truckload segment of the trucking industry." As a group, revenues for the remaining companies increased 14 percent and operating income rose 42 percent over the third quarter of 1989.

Potter said, "Our recent actions mean that future results will not be affected by the losses associated with Pioneer and Reeves. This, in turn, enables us to pay down debt, reduce interest payments, and strengthen the corporation's cash flow while providing sufficient capital to meet the needs of Saia, Preston Trucking Company, and Smalley. We are anticipating a profitable fourth quarter that, in an uncertain economy, should be a positive indicator of the earnings improvement that is possible in the coming year."

Preston Corporation is a holding company which, through its subsidiaries, transports freight by truck for a wide range of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. The subsidiaries include Preston Trucking Company, Inc. of Preston Md.; Saia Motor Freight Line, Inc. of Houma, La.; and Smalley Transportation Company of Tampa, Fla.

CHICAGO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Itel Corporation's (NYSE: ITL) revenue was $567 million, up 5 percent from the $543 million in last year's third quarter. Income after cash taxes was $15.8 million, or $0.30 per share, versus $16.7 million, or $0.30 per share in the third quarter of 1989.

Federal income tax is not accruable or payable by Itel because of the utilization of substantial tax-loss carryforwards. The cash taxes paid by Itel are primarily state and foreign.

Revenue for the first nine months of 1990 rose 9 percent to $1.7 billion from $1.6 billion a year earlier. Income after cash taxes was $41.1 million, or $0.76 per share, compared to $41.9 million, or $0.73 per share, in the first nine months of 1990.

The container business had higher income in the third quarter versus last year because of improved lease rental rates and lower depreciation charges offsetting the expenses related to the development of the instant space and environmental container programs. Revenue was $70 million in the 1990 third quarter, up from $66 million a year earlier. Operating income rose slightly to $34 million from $33 million in the third quarter of 1989.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The B. Manischewitz Company announced today that it has entered into a definitive acquisition agreement with a company organized by the merchant banking firm Kohlberg & Co. Certain members of the Manischewitz senior management, including CEO Robert M. Starr, will own equity in the new company. Under the agreement, MANO Holdings Corporation will acquire all of the outstanding Manischewitz shares for $42.5 million, or $800 per share. The acquisition will be accomplished by means of a cash tender offer followed by a merger.

The terms of the acquisition have been approved by the company's board of directors. Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., the company's financial advisor, has rendered an opinion that the consideration offered pursuant to the offer and the merger is fair to the company's shareholders from a financial point of view. Members of the board of directors holding an aggregate of 29.3 percent of the company's outstanding shares have agreed to tender and/or vote their shares in favor of the transaction.

MANO Holdings has received the commitment of Citicorp North America, Inc. to provide debt financing, and the commitment of a Kohlberg & Co. affiliate to provide up to $17 million of equity in connection with the acquisition. The commitments, as well as the tender offer, are subject to customary conditions, including a condition that Citicorp North America, Inc. provide the funds referred to in the commitment later. In addition, the tender offer will be conditioned on two-thirds of the company's shares accepting the tender offer.

PEORIA, ILL. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - In its third quarter report released today, Caterpillar Financial Services Corp. announced record revenues, profit, and new business volume for the third quarter and first nine months of 1990.

Revenues for the quarter reached $70.6 million, a $14.9 million, or 27 percent increase over the same period last year. The increase in revenues reflected higher volume which resulted from an increase in new business financed and a higher level of dealer retail receivable purchases.

Profit after tax rose to $6.8 million, an 8 percent increase over the third quarter of 1989. The increase in profit reflected higher business volume, higher portfolio earnings, and a lower cost of debt compared with one year ago. Partially offsetting these positive factors was higher income tax expense during the quarter, which reflected increased state tax liability.

New business financed reached $938.3 million, a 27 percent increase compared with the first nine months of 1989.

"The company achieved a milestone by reaching $2 billion in assets during the third quarter," said James S. Beard, vice president of Caterpillar Inc. and president of Caterpillar Financial Services. "We financed a greater share of the available business and purchased a number of dealer retail receivables. Our performance reflects dealer and customer recognition of the high level of service offered by the company."

Caterpillar Financial Services Corp. provides a wide range of financing alternatives for Caterpillar earthmoving and construction equipment, lift trucks, engines, turbines, and related products sold through Caterpillar dealers in the United States, Canada, and Australia. Caterpillar Financial is headquartered in Peoria, Ill., and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Caterpillar Inc. (NYSE: CAT).

IRVINE, CA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Hadson Power Systems, a subsidiary of Hadson Corp. (NYSE: HAD), and Westmoreland Energy Inc., a subsidiary of Westmoreland Coal Co. (NASDAQ:WMOR), announced today that their jointly owned partnership commenced funding in September of a $100 million non-recourse construction loan for the third in a series of four cogeneration projects in Virginia, after receiving required environmental permits. These funds, as previously announced, are being provided by a syndicate of banks, led by Credit Suisse, Barclays Bank PLC and Banque de la Societe Financiere Europeanne ("BSFE") under a $400 million construction and term debt project financing. Construction of the remaining project will commence upon the receipt of required environmental permits.

The projects will each be 70 MW gross coal cogeneration units supplying reliable electrical power to Virginia Electric and Power Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Dominion Resources Corp., and steam to existing industrial hosts. Hadson Power Systems will engineer, construct and operate the plants. Westmoreland will provide a portion of the coal supply required by the projects.

Hadson Corp. is an independent producer and supplier of energy products as well as an electric power services firm. Hadson has operations in natural gas and gas liquids; international oil and gas exploration, and is a leader in the development, construction, operation and ownership of electric power generation facilities.

Westmoreland Energy, a developer and owner of cogeneration and unregulated power plants, is a wholly owned subsidiary of Westmoreland Coal Co., a major low sulfur coal producer and marketer headquartered in Philadelphia, and serving customers worldwide with coal for electric power generation, steel making and other industrial applications. In 1989 the company sold 19.6 million tons of coal and had total revenues of $600 million.

PEORIA, ILL. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) has awarded Caterpillar's (NYSE: CAT) Challenger 65 tractor the 1990 Good Design Award in the industrial products category.

This is the first time in the 34-year history of the ministry program that the honor has been given to an agricultural or construction equipment product.

MITI holds primary responsibility for international trade policy in Japan, coordinating trade issues for the government.

Achievement of the honor allows the product to be marketed with the "G-Mark," which signifies the highest level of design superiority in the Japanese marketplace.

"We're honored that a key Japanese institution such as MITI has underscored our standing as a high-quality designer and provider of products," said Ked Murray, a managing director at Shin Caterpillar Mitsubishi Ltd. (SCM). SCM is Caterpillar's affiliated joint venture in Japan.

The Caterpillar 910E Wheel Loader and iT14B Integrated Toolcarrier received honorable mentions -- and also will be entitled to carry the "G-Mark."

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - QSR Inc. (NASDAQ: QSRI), a Florida-based fast-service restaurant company, today reported that total sales for the three-month period ended Aug. 31, 1990, were $8,787,000 compared to $7,734,503 reported in the 16-week period ended Sept. 17, 1989.

The increase in sales was the result of new restaurant openings at substantially higher volume. A majority of these were conversions of the previous Taco Viva restaurants. The net loss for the period was $261,000, or 2 cents per share, compared to a loss of $540,000, or 10 cents per share, reported in the 16-week period ended Sept. 17, 1989.

Since joining the company as president and chief executive officer on Sept. 5, 1990, C. Ronald Petty has set in place a new organization which reflects the growth potential of the Miami Subs restaurant concept. Last month, QSR, Inc. announced that it would be merged with a subsidiary of Miami Subs Corporation, which controls the national franchising rights to the Miami Subs concept. The Miami Subs restaurant concept is now positioned to launch a national franchise program. Petty and his management team are very bullish on the growth potential of Miami Subs as it has a unique niche in the restaurant industry.

Petty attributed the first-quarter loss to start-up costs associated in setting up the new organization. During the first quarter, seven new restaurants were opened and it is expected that this rate of expansion will be accelerated throughout the balance of the fiscal year.

Petty also announced the signing of franchise agreements outside of Florida, which will begin the national expansion. The first of these restaurants are expected to open by the first quarter of calendar year 1991.

It was also announced that the company would now be reporting under a 12-month fiscal year as opposed to the 52/53-week schedule it had been reporting under in prior fiscal years.

Additional Information:

-- The company recently changed its fiscal year such that it now reports on a 12-month fiscal year ending May 31, 1991. The company previously reported on a fiscal year consisting of 13 four-week periods. The first quarter of last fiscal year had four four-week periods for a total of 16 weeks.

-- Total system restaurant sales during the first quarter were $8,787,000 as compared to $7,734,503 for the first quarter last fiscal year. Total company restaurant sales during the first quarter amounted to $441,000, as compared to $4,592,000 in the first quarter of fiscal year 1990. The difference in sales was the result of selling 30 Taco Viva restaurants and the sale of company restaurants to franchisees.

The increase in revenue from franchised restaurants and gain on sales of restaurant businesses reflect the changing nature of the company's business focus from a total company operation to one of being a franchiser.

CHARLOTTE, NC (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - First Union Corporation has (NYSE: FTU) elected Dr. Ruth G. Shaw to its board of directors. Dr. Shaw is president of Charlotte's Central Piedmont Community College, the largest community college in North Carolina.

Shaw has served on the board of directors for First Union National Bank of North Carolina since January.

Shaw became president of CPCC in 1986, after serving as president of El Centro College in Dallas, Texas. She also served the Dallas County Community College District as associate vice chancellor of educational affairs, assistant to the chancellor and as vice president of instruction at Cedar Valley College. She was previously a faculty member at East Carolina University and Martin Community College in North Carolina.

Shaw earned her bachelor's and master's degrees from East Carolina University. She studied adult education in North Carolina State University's graduate program and earned a doctorate in higher education administration/community college leadership from the University of Texas at Austin, where she was a University Fellow. She is a Distinguished Graduate of the Texas program and was named one of the nation's top 50 community college leaders in 1988.

She is married to Colin Stuart Shaw, Dean of Planning at Rowan-Cabarrus Community College. She is the mother of Henry Fleming, a senior at the University of Texas-Austin, and John Shaw, age 8. The Shaws reside in Charlotte, North Carolina.

First Union Corporation had assets of $39.1 billion as of Sept. 30, 1990, and operated 764 banking offices in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, one banking office in Tennessee and 277 nonbanking offices in 36 states.

ANN ARBOR, MI. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Comshare, Inc. (NASDAQ: CSRE), an international software company, reported record first-quarter revenue of $28.6 million, an increase of $6.5 million from the same period last year.

Net income per share for the quarter which ended Sept. 30, 1990, was 21 cents. Net income per share for the same period last year, adjusted to reflect a 2-for-1 stock split effective May 31, 1990, was 20 cents. Six cents of last year's 20 cents, however, reflect the expense recovery from the settlement of a property tax dispute.

"Software license and maintenance revenue for our decision support and executive information system products grew 49 percent in North America," said T. Wallace Wrathall, senior vice president and chief financial officer. "Internationally, Europe performed strongly, our international sales agents held steady and currency exchange rates were favorable, resulting in a 41-percent increase in our decision support and executive information system revenue."

Expenses were essentially unchanged from the fourth quarter when the sales, product development and customer support staffs were increased. The number of employees has risen by 139 from the first quarter of last year to a total of 1,003. "Even though we have not seen any recessionary effects on our business we will be cautious about future spending," said Wrathall. "We will continue to follow our practice of balancing short-term and long-term profitability goals."

During the quarter, Comshare acquired the sales agency agreement and hired the employees of 54 North, Ltd., a Wilmington, Del., company. The financial terms of the agreement were not disclosed. Since 1988, 54 North has been the North American sales agent for Comshare in the retailing vertical market. Among its products, Comshare develops retail industry specific software applications which are marketed under the trademark ARTHUR. ARTHUR applications, along with Comshare's cross industry System W Decision Support and Commander Executive Information System products, are marketed internationally to major retailers. "By integrating the 54 North staff into Comshare, we can apply their broad retail expertise to the development of products that retailers need in today's fast-paced, competitive world," said Wrathall.

Comshare develops and markets business management software and is a publicly traded company (NASDAQ: CSRE).

HUDSON, MA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Artel Communications Corporation (NASDAQ: AXXX) announced today its operating results for the third quarter ending Sept. 29, 1990. Sales for that quarter were $647,000 compared to $2,834,000 in the same period of the previous year. Net loss for the quarter was $969,000 or 26 cents per share compared to a $324,000 profit or 8 cents per share during the same period last year. The lower revenues during the quarter were due to continued market confusion over emerging standards, delays in major programs and longer sales cycles for new customers, particularly with some Operating Telephone companies. The company continues to invest in the development of its new product family.

Robert L. Bowman, Artel's President and CEO stated, "The company has spent the last two and one-half years designing and developing a revolutionary new product family addressing the local, metropolitan and wide area network markets. The first of the new products is scheduled for announcement before the end of the year. This new product family will be compliant with all existing standards and is so flexible as to be able to accommodate pending standards with the simple addition of a new board. Many existing and potential customers have indicated enthusiastic support for the new Artel products which are characterized by having ultra-high performance, flexibility and very low cost."

Bowman also said, "In the past, Artel has successfully demonstrated its ability to establish key strategic partnerships. The company has been on an aggressive program to launch its new product family with a variety of new strategic partners. Such potential partners include manufacturers, systems integrators, and distributors. At present, the company is in serious discussions with several potential partners."

Bowman added, "The company has a strong balance sheet with very little debt and a substantial cash position."

Total sales for the nine months ended Sept. 29, 1990 were $4,717,000. During the first nine months of 1989, marketing and license revenues amounted to $2,800,000 with product sales of $6,060,000, or total revenues of $8,860,000. Net loss for the current nine month period was $1,121,000 or 30 cents per share compared to income of $1,154,000 or 29 cents per share for the same period of the previous year.

Artel Communications Corporation is a manufacturer of high-speed fiber optic communications systems. The 100 Mbps FiberWay(R) flagship networking product provides multi-service networking capabilities and has more than 1,500 systems installed worldwide. Artel's video/graphics products provide high quality signal transmission for video braodcasting conferencing, and imaging applications. The third quarter 1990 results are summarized below:

KANSAS CITY, MO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - A. Drue Jennings, president and chief executive officer of Kansas City Power & Light Company (KCPL) (NYSE: KLT), today sent the following letter to the members of the board of directors of Kansas Gas and Electric Company (KG&E) (NYSE: KGE):

"On September 11, 1990, Wilson Cadman wrote to advise me that you were negotiating with a third party to sell KG&E. He said you had authorized management to provide KCPL with non-public information about KG&E which 'would be that provided by KG&E to other third parties who have expressed an interest in exploring certain combinations with KG&E or a purchase of KG&E assets.'

"The purpose of giving KCPL this information was supposed to be to encourage us to raise our $27 bid. Since September 11, we have been afforded only one meeting with KG&E personnel. That meeting on October 9 lasted for barely an hour. Your management refused to answer a great number of our questions and limited severely the information provided to us. In short, the meeting was a charade.

"Since that meeting we have been trying to get the information we need to recommend a higher bid to our board. We have been completely stonewalled by your management.

"This week, we were advised by your investment banker that we would shortly be asked to put our "best bid" on the table. We told your banker, once again, that we can hardly be expected to recommend a higher bid to our board when our requests for due diligence are being stonewalled.

"While your banker agreed our requests were reasonable, he had been unable to assure us that a meeting would be arranged until today. We still have no assurance we will be given all the information we need. The format that has been suggested for the meeting appears to promise nothing more than a repetition of the charade of the October 9 meeting.

"There can be no question that we have been treated as a disfavored bidder and every effort has been made by your management to discourage us from being able to raise our bid.

"When this kind of egregious misconduct has happened in other situations, courts have not hesitated to hold directors liable for breaches of their fiduciary duties. In the Revlon case, the Delaware Supreme Court held that directors breached their duties because:

"'After the directors authorized management to negotiate with other parties, Forstmann was given every negotiating advantage that Pantry Pride had been denied: cooperation from management, access to financial data, and the exclusive opportunity to present merger proposals directly to the board of directors...Market forces must be allowed to operate freely to bring the target's shareholders the best price available for their equity.'"

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Mattel Inc. (NYSE: MAT) today announced that Robert Sansone has chosen to relinquish his position as president of Mattel USA in order to become a senior advisor to John W. Amerman, Mattel's chairman and chief executive officer. Sansone, who joined Mattel in 1987 after 24 years with General Foods, will be succeeded by two executives who will report to Amerman.

Jill Elikann Barad has been promoted to president-Mattel USA, responsible for Barbie and other fashion dolls, large dolls and activity toys, Barbie Lifestyle and licensed product, plush toys, and for marketing services and entertainment. Under Barad's direction, U.S. Barbie doll sales have increased at an annual compounded growth rate in excess of 30 percent for the past three years. In addition, she directed the launch of Mattel's highly successful Li'l Miss and P.J. Sparkles dolls, as well as Magic Nursery, which retailers are citing as the best-selling new toy line of the 1990 season.

David M. Mauer will join Mattel as president-Mattel USA, responsible for Mattel's Disney Infant and Preschool toys, the Hot Wheels line of vehicles and playsets, male action toys, and games, as well as systems and planning. Formerly president of the U.S. Toy Group of Tonka Corp., Mauer was involved in the success of products such as the Ghostbusters, Batman and M.A.S.K. action figure lines, as well as core Play-Doh, Easy Bake, Spirograph and Tonka truck products.

Mattel Inc., which reported revenues of $1.2 billion in 1989, is a worldwide leader in the design, manufacture and marketing of children's toys. With headquarters in Hawthorne, Calif., Mattel has offices and facilities in more than 20 foreign countries and sells its products in more than 100 nations throughout the world.

RAHWAY, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Merck & Co., Inc. (NYSE: MRK), the world's largest pharmaceutical firm, received top honors for its commitment to the environment during statewide award ceremonies recognizing 20 companies for corporate philanthropy.

The 1990 Corporate Philanthropy Awards, a program administered by the Community Foundation of New Jersey, recognized companies for their philanthropic roles in protecting the environment, in education, in the arts, and in health and social welfare.

Merck, which recently adopted a policy that places environmental protection among its highest business priorities, received top honors in the environment category. The company's concern for preserving the natural environment is evident in the construction of its new corporate headquarters in Whitehouse Station in Readington Township in N.J.

Preserving the natural beauty of the 459-acre site was among Merck's top priorities in constructing its 900,000-square-foot office facility. "We decided to construct our headquarters in Whitehouse Station in Readington Township using a scalpel rather than a bulldozer," said Patrick J. Colletti, director of the Readington Project, who accepted the award on behalf of the company.

Trees and shrubs that were in the path of construction were transplanted, and roads were rerouted to save trees and plant and animal life. All construction workers on the site are required to view a video on Merck's mandatory environmental procedures.

In addition, Merck has donated $50,000 to the Hunterdon Heritage Conservancy toward the purchase of a landmark Hunterdon County farm. Plans for the farm include the creation of an environmental education center and a farmer's market to serve as an outlet for local agricultural products.

Merck will donate the $4,000 top prize to the Trust for Public Land (TPL), a national nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving urban and rural land for public use. TPL recently opened a New Jersey Field Office in the Morristown area to expand the national park and wildlife refuge system within the state.

Merck & Co., Inc., is a worldwide, research-intensive health products company that discovers, develops, produces and markets human and animal health products and specialty chemicals. The company has more than 34,500 employees 17 research centers, manufacturing facilities in 18 countries, and a 1990 research and development budget of $855 million.

ANDOVER, MASS. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Andover Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: ANDB) announced that it voted to eliminate the quarterly cash dividend.

Robert H. Henderson, chairman of the board and CEO, stated that "Although Andover Bancorp and its subsidiary Andover Bank continue to have capital ratios that are well in excess of all current and proposed regulatory requirements, it was decided to eliminate the dividend so as to preserve our capital base during these economically troubled times."

The Bancorp also expects to report a loss for the third quarter as well as for year-to-date 1990. Henderson further stated, "Without question, the New England banking industry is experiencing difficult times and this is requiring us to take special actions. After careful consideration in balancing the impact on our shareholders, and the need to preserve capital, the elimination of the dividend was deemed to be appropriate at this time. We believe we are taking the right steps to move forward and to meet the economic challenges facing us."

WHEELING, WV (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. (NYSE: QWHX) reported third quarter 1990 net income of $24,496,000 on shipments of steel products totaling 572,461 tons, the company said today.

Third quarter 1989 net income totaled $46,538,000 on shipments of steel products totaling 592,550 tons. The 1990 third quarter results reflect higher labor costs related to the new collective bargaining agreement ratified by the United Steelworkers of America (USW) on Sept. 11, including $22,254,000 attributable to a $3,000 signing bonus per employee and $12,280,000 applicable to new wage rates retroactive to July 1, 1990, and certain employee benefit improvements (see Note 3 to the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statement of Income). In addition, the 1990 third quarter results were favorably affected by $10,874,000 due to a reduction in the corporation's estimated annual effective income tax rate. Excluding the effect of the signing bonus and the other non-recurring labor costs, 1990 third quarter operating income would have been $26,444,000 vs. $36,265,000 as reported for the comparable period of the prior year.

Third quarter 1990 net sales decreased 3.7 percent to $286,585,000 compared to net sales of $297,651,000 in the third quarter of the prior year. The decrease reflects a 3.4 percent decrease in tons shipped and a 2.5 percent decrease in prices for steel products, partially offset by a higher-priced product mix.

Operating costs increased 9.9 percent over the third quarter of the prior year due to the signing bonus and increased labor costs partially offset by the lower volume of shipments. Raw steel production decreased 2.6 percent compared to the 1989 third quarter.

Third quarter 1990 and 1989 results include other income, primarily interest income on short term investments, totaling $15,419,000 and $14,767,000, repectively.

Nine months 1990 net income totaled $98,587,000 on shipments of steel products of 1,656,587 tons. This compares to nine months 1989 net income of $149,845,000 on shipments of steel products of 1,765,874 tons. The $51,258,000 decrease in net income reflects the signing bonus, higher labor costs, lower shipping volume and reduced selling prices.

Nine months 1990 net sales decreased 6.3 percent to $830,506,000 from $886,293,000 in the prior period due to the decrease in tons shipped and reduced selling prices partially offset by a higher-priced product mix.

In reviewing these financial results, it should be noted that under bankruptcy law protection the corporation is not required to pay interest on most of its debt (see Note 1 to the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statement of Income) and it is not bearing the entire cost of its terminated pension plans. Also the corporation's results have benefited from large extraordinary tax credits and interest income on investment of a substantial cash balance, most of which is expected to be distributed after a reorganization plan becomes effective.

The order book remained strong as of the end of the third quarter indicating similar production and shipping levels for the final quarter of the year.

BOSTON, (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Bank of New England Corporation (NYSE: NEB) today reported a third quarter loss of $123.2 million, or $1.78 per share, due largely to a decision to take a $100 million provision for possible credit losses -- which includes a one-time $70 million supplemental provision -- in the face of continued uncertainty in the New England economy.

Despite the loss, BNEC Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Lawrence K. Fish said, "there were a number of positive events in the quarter which reflect the continued progress we are making in our strategic recovery."

Fish said: -- Nonperforming loans decreased $93 million for the quarter, the second straight quarter they have decreased.

-- Costs continued to come down from the $90 million-a-month operating level in January to $71 million a month at the end of September. By Sept. 30, the company's work force had been reduced to 12,500 from over 17,500 in January.

It is expected that already- scheduled business sales and reorganizations, coupled with attrition, will allow the company to achieve its goal of reducing staff levels by 6,000 employees by the first quarter of 1991.

-- The company continued to lend approximately $1 billion daily to the Fed funds system during the quarter.

-- In the fourth quarter, BNEC expects to complete the sale of BNE-Old Colony, the company's Rhode Island subsidiary, and expects to complete the merger of BNE-West and BNE, N.A. into one Massachusetts entity. The company's downsizing is now largely complete.

-- In the first two weeks since it unveiled SNAPP -- its "Simple New APProach to banking" -- aimed at stretching its consumer position in Connecticut and Massachusetts, 14,000 SNAPP accounts have been opened, representing a significant increase in core deposit account activity.

-- The company completed steps aimed at strengthening its credit policies and administration.

OAKHURST, CA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Sierra On-Line (NASDAQ: SIER) announced today that a review of preliminary financial data for the quarter ending Sept. 30 supports Sierra's estimate that earnings per share for the quarter will likely approximate earnings posted for the same quarter in 1989 in spite of a delay in releasing three adventure game products which had been scheduled to ship in September.

Sierra's vice president of finance and chief financial officer, Bruce Grant, cautioned that the preliminary data must still be reviewed by Sierra's auditors.

In a press release issued earlier this month, the company announced its intent to repurchase up to 300,000 shares of its common stock subject to market conditions. Based on the preliminary financial review just completed, the company may continue to repurchase its stock under the terms previously announced.

PINEHURST, NC (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - NASCAR driver Darrell Waltrip and Western Auto Supply Company have signed a three-year agreement for the sponsorship of Waltrip's racing team and car. The associate sponsor will be the AC Delco Division of General Motors.

The racing team will feature Waltrip at the wheel of the Western Auto/AC Delco Lumina No. 17. Joining Waltrip will be his entire racing team and Jeff Hammond crew chief for the past nine years.

"With the help of Western Auto and AC Delco, we'll be on the inside track heading for the Winston Cup championship next year," Waltrip told a crowd of several hundred attending the Western Auto national marketing and operations meeting here. Also present at the announcement were officials of AC Delco and NASCAR. The announcement preceded the start of this year's AC Delco 500 race in nearby Rockingham on Sunday, Oct. 21.

In announcing the partnership, Western Auto President John Barlow told the audience, "It's a great pleasure to have you (Waltrip) and this exceptionally talented race team as part of the Western Auto organization. Together, we will make this the most successful racing and marketing program in history."

Following the announcement, the new Western Auto/AC Delco Lumina was unveiled to the audience and news media. The car features a trademarked design incorporating several unique design elements.

Waltrip, who has won 79 races and three Winston Cup championships in his career said, "I never thought we could top the Tide ride for uniqueness in a car design, but this car does it. This will be the most spectacular car on the track!

"I have said before that I would like to win 100 races in my career, and with Western Auto and AC Delco behind us, I know we can make it happen," Waltrip said.

Western Auto, the "official auto parts and service store of NASCAR," is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sears, Roebuck and Co. (NYSE: S). The retailer provides automotive products and services for auto enthusiasts and do-it-yourselfers nationwide through more than 1,400 Western Auto stores.

STURBRIDGE, MA. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - SpecTran Corporation (NASDAQ: SPTR) today reported a continuation of profitable results for its third quarter and nine month period ended Sept. 30, 1990. It also announced that the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit has dismissed all appeals of the District Court's judgment approving the settlement of the class action suit that had been filed against various defendants, including the company in October 1986. The settlement is now final.

Revenues for the third quarter of 1990 increased 47.4 percent to $2,950,238 compared with revenues of $2,002,006 for the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the 1990 third quarter of $304,969, or $.07 per share, compared with a net loss of $58,942 ($.01 per share) for the same period in 1989.

Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 increased 30.8 percent to $7,199,826 compared with revenues of $5,503,300 for the first nine months of 1989. Net income for the 1990 nine month period of $459,599, or $.10 per share, compared with a net loss of $439,246 ($.10 per share) for the same period last year.

Commenting on the results, SpecTran's president and chief executive officer, Raymond E. Jaeger said, "The company has now sustained profitable results for four consecutive quarters. The net income of $304,969 earned during the 1990 third quarter was the highest of the four quarters, and enabled the company to return to positive cash flow from operations for the first nine months of 1990 despite the payment during that period of approximately $456,000 for settlement costs and legal expenses incurred in connection with company's class action litigation. The recently announced conclusion to the class action litigation and the million dollar order, approximately half of which will be shipped in this year's fourth quarter, strongly position the company to achieve its stated goals of positive cash flow from operations for the entire year, increasing revenues over the prior year and a return to annual profitability."

SpecTran Corporation develops, manufactures and markets glass optical fibers.

BRISTOL, VA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Charter Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ: CHFD) today announced a net loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended September 30, 1990 of $955,000 or $.26 per share on 3,656,297 average shares outstanding as compared with a net loss of $1.2 million or $.33 per share on 3,656,297 average shares outstanding for the quarter ended June 30, 1990. The net loss for the first quarter ending September 30, 1989 was $2.0 million or $.53 per share on 3,656,297 average shares outstanding.

The loss for the September 30, 1990 quarter was attributed to (1) an approximately $230,000 loss incurred in the marking to market of certain investment assets on the books of the Savings Bank, as required by generally accepted accounting principles, and (2) other operational losses. "We are most gratified to report, however, that our continuing efforts to reduce expenses under our cost containment program have caused our operating losses to be less in the most recent quarter than in prior quarters, and we anticipate additional improvements in future quarters," said E.L. Byington, Jr., Chairman and CEO.

Assets at September 30, 1990 totaled approximately $903 million, a $15 million decline from June 30, 1990, pursuant to provisions of the Savings Bank's Business Plan. Stockholders' equity was at September 30, 1990 $28.6 million, down from $31.3 million at June 30, 1990. The decline in stockholders' equity was due to the loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 and to the additional approximately $900,000 loss from the embezzlement scheme originally reported in a July 10, 1990 release, which was subsequently updated on October 2, 1990. Financial statements for prior years during which the embezzlement scheme took place are re-stated in keeping with the requirements of generally accepted accounting principles. Only approximately $24,000 of the $900,000 was attributed to the quarter ending September 30, 1990. "Our investigation of the scheme is complete, and no significant additional losses therefrom are expected," said Byington. "The Board of Directors and management continue to believe that fidelity bond insurance maintained by Charter Federal should rightly compensate it for the loss, and we are pursuing all avenues to full recovery."

Charter Federal is continuing to follow the Business Plan filed with the Office of Thrift Supervision in March 1990, although the Plan has not yet been acted on by the regulators. The Savings Bank does not presently meet the three new capital standards established by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act which became law in August 1989. The Business Plan provides for full compliance with all capital standards by December 31, 1992.

Charter Federal which began operation in 1920, is a federally-chartered stock Savings Bank headquartered in Bristol, Virginia with 34 branch offices throughout Southwest and Southside Virginia and East Tennessee.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - An estimated 1,920 Louisiana families with low-to-moderate incomes, most buying homes for the first time, will have access to affordable, reduced-rate mortgages through a cooperative housing finance initiative between the state of Louisiana and the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM).

The program involves Fannie Mae's purchase of $96 million in single-family home mortgage revenue bonds issued by the Louisiana Housing Finance Agency (LHFA). The purchase will provide home buyers with 8.45 percent mortgage rates on fixed-rate FHA/VA home loans.

Fannie Mae's negotiated purchase of the bonds enables LHFA to lower its borrowing costs, and pass the savings on to low- and moderate-income home buyers in the form of lower-rate mortgage funds.

The initiative includes $10 million reserved for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to help finance the sale of RTC-owned homes to low-and moderate-income families.

Allison Kendrick, LHFA president, said: "The state of Louisiana is very pleased to continue its relationship with Fannie Mae. The 1990 single family mortgage revenue bond program will provide a great opportunity to many first-time home buyers, as well as help strengthen the real estate market through the financing program created for the RTC."

Judy Dedmon, senior vice president in charge of Fannie Mae's Dallas-based ten-state southwestern region, said: "We are pleased to announce a program that will facilitate the sale of RTC-owned homes across the state. This is our second initiative in Louisiana in the last year, and will provide almost $200 million in lower interest rate mortgages to help finance homes for nearly 4,000 modest-income families."

Home buyers' eligibility for participation in the home finance program will depend upon home prices and family incomes; limits on both will vary by location. Interested home buyers should contact the LHFA to determine specific eligibility requirements and participating mortgage lenders throughout the state.

Fannie Mae, the USA's Housing Partner, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company, and is the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

PALISADES PARK, NJ (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Metrobank Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ: MFGR), the parent company of Metrobank For Savings, FSB (the "bank"), today announced a net loss of $5,662,000, or $3.06 per share, for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990. The net loss for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, was $7,370,000, or $3.98 per share.

The loss for the third quarter of 1990 was primarily due to a provision for losses of $4.6 million, before taxes, in the bank's loan portfolio, real estate acquired in settlement of loans and real estate join ventures. Of the $4.6 million, Metrobank provided $3.9 million for general and specific loan losses. The provision for losses reflects the results of a recently completed regular field examination by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

At Sept. 30, 1990, non-performing assets, including those classified as real estate acquired in settlement of loans and before loss allowances, increased to $85.7 million. The bank had established $27.2 million in allowances for losses on loans and foreclosed real estate at Sept. 30, 1990.

At Sept. 30, 1990, applicable regulations of the OTS require the bank to have tangible capital, core capital and risk-based capital of 1.5 percent, 3.0 percent and 6.4 percent of assets, respectively. At Sept. 30, 1990, Metrobank's tangible capital, core capital and risk- based capital were 1.52 percent, 1.52 percent and 3.09 percent of assets, respectively.

As a result of the bank not meeting its core and risk-based capital requirements, it may be subject to supervisory and enforcement action that may have an adverse impact on the bank and the company's stockholders.

In accordance with OTS regulations, the bank filed a regulatory capital restoration plan with the OTS in July 1990, setting forth the bank's anticipated plans for achieving full regulatory capital compliance. As a result of the increases in the loan loss reserves noted above and the losses from operations, however, the bank withdrew the capital plan and anticipates submitting an amended capital plan, which will be subject to approval or rejection at the discretion of the OTS.

Total assets at Sept. 30, 1990, were $503.3 million. The book value of Metrobank Financial Group, Inc. common stock was $3.96 per share, based upon 1.85 million shares outstanding at Sept. 30, 1990.

Metrobank For Savings, FSB is an FDIC-insured institution headquartered in Palisades Park and maintains branch offices in Fort Lee, Cliffside Park and Bayonne, N.J.

BEAVERTON, OR (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Mentor Graphics Corp. (NASDAQ: MENT) announced today that Hewlett-Packard Co. (HP) has signed a multi-year, multi-million dollar contract to purchase electronic design automation (EDA) software and services. According to Mentor Graphics, the agreement sets an EDA record for a single contract.

The contract includes the purchase of a broad range of products such as the Falcon Framework for Concurrent Design, schematic capture, simulation, integrated circuit layout, printed circuit board layout, and thermal analysis. Services to be provided by Mentor Graphics may include design process consulting, OpenDoor Program services, training, support and database translators. A number of Mentor Graphics products are currently being delivered under the agreement.

HP will use the Mentor Graphics products in its engineering organizations for new product development in many areas including workstations, personal computers, printers, plotters, disk drives, integrated circuit technology and medical products. HP will use the Falcon Framework to integrate the Mentor Graphics software with a wide variety of internally developed and third-party tools within HP.

"One of the primary reasons we chose Mentor Graphics is their strong support for standards efforts such as the Open Software Foundation (OSF) and the CAD Framework Initiative (CFI)," stated Dean O. Morton, HP executive vice president and chief operating officer.

"Mentor Graphics' new Falcon Framework provides an open architecture which supports its full set of EDA applications and allows integration of other EDA tools in use within HP. We expect the Falcon Framework capabilities to add momentum to HP's continuing efforts to streamline our internal design and manufacturing processes," concluded Morton.

Mentor Graphics and HP have stated their support for the OSF goal of defining an industry-standard computing environment. Mentor Graphics' Software Release 8.0 features an OSF/Motif-based user interface and distributed computing functionality. Both are among the standards supported by HP's workstation products. The shared philosophy of open systems computing and open design environments was a contributing factor in the sale, according to both companies.

"We have developed a very strong relationship with HP," stated Thomas Bruggere chairman and chief executive officer of Mentor Graphics. "This order not only reflects the quality of our EDA tools, but also a strong commitment by both companies to industry standards development such as OSF and CFI. We have always had confidence that HP will continue providing industry-leading products with excellent reliability. We look forward to the contribution our open framework and EDA tools will make to the development of new products from HP."

Hewlett-Packard Co. is an international manufacturer of measurement and computation products and systems recognized for excellence in quality and support. The company's products and services are used in industry, business, engineering, science, medicine and education in approximately 100 contries. HP has 92,000 employees and had revenue of $11.9 billion in its 1989 fiscal year.

Mentor Graphics Corp., Beaverton, Ore. was established in 1981 to design, manufacture, market and service EDA systems. The company is the leader in worldwide EDA sales, with revenues of $433,781,000 over the last 12 months. The company currently employs more than 2,600 people. In addition to its corporate offices in Beaverton, Mentor Graphics has sales and support offices in 66 locations worldwide. SALISBURY, MD (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Second National Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: SNFS), which added $16.6 million to specific and general loan reserves in mid-September, reported a resulting quarterly loss of $11.2 million or $1.57 per share, compared with net income of $2.5 million, or 34 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Second National reported a loss of $6.8 million, or $1.07 per share, on an unaudited basis, compared with earnings of $7.1 million, or 97 cents per share, a year earlier. Without the one-time addition to reserves, the company earned $6.4 million, or 73 cents per share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, and $2 million, or 22 cents per share, for the third quarter.

The company meets all current regulatory requirements for tangible, core and risk-based capital. After accounting for the additions to reserves, the book value of Second National's common stock is $5.74 per share.

"We were aware that the one-time increase to loan loss reserves announced on Sept. 21, 1990, would have a dramatic impact on this year's earnings, but it was a step which had to be taken in light of the deteriorating real estate economy in this region," stated Henry A. Berliner Jr., president and chief executive officer.

"The company's capital position remains strong, currently meeting the core and risk-based requirements, and exceeding the regulatory requirement of tangible capital by over $25 million. The meeting of all three capital requirements demonstrates the long-term viability of Second National. We will continue to fund our profitable residential mortgage portfolio, which has traditionally been, and will continue to be, the core of our business."

A significant portion of Second National's residential lending has been represented by the resort markets on the Maryland and Delaware coastlines, and it was recently reported that Second National's share of the Ocean City, Md., market had increased to 30 percent, making Second National the dominant lender in that market.

"In 1985, the state-chartered insurance system failed, creating a crisis within Maryland state-insured thrifts. Our company not only survived the crisis, but benefited from the sharp reduction in the number of banking competitors. We anticipate a similar reduction in competition in our market area during the first part of this decade, and as occurred five years ago, we expect to remain one of the strong survivors," said Berliner.

Second National is a $1.8 billion financial institution with 40 branch offices in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - An estimated 832 Florida families with low-to-moderate incomes, most buying homes for the first time, will have access to affordable, reduced-rate mortgages through a cooperative housing finance initiative between the state of Florida and the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM).

The program involves Fannie Mae's purchase of $41.6 million in single-family home mortgage revenue bonds issued by the Florida Housing Finance Agency (FHFA). The purchase will provide home buyers with 8.50 percent mortgage rates on fixed-rate FHA/VA home loans.

Fannie Mae's negotiated purchase of the bonds enables FHFA to lower its borrowing costs, and pass the savings on to low- and moderate-income home buyers in the form of lower-rate mortgage funds.

The initiative includes $7 million reserved for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to help finance the sale of RTC-owned homes to low- and moderate-income families.

Glenn Austin, senior vice president in charge of Fannie Mae's Atlanta-based 12-state southeastern region, said: "We are pleased to announce a program that will facilitate the sale of RTC-owned homes throughout Florida. Working together, the state of Florida and Fannie Mae will help hundreds of moderate-income families attain homeownership."

Mark Hendrickson, executive director of FHFA, said: "The Florida HFA is again pleased to work in cooperation with Fannie Mae. By arranging for the private placement of bonds, significant bond underwriting costs are avoided. This allows the loans to be more affordable to low-income borrowers."

Home buyers' eligibility for participation in the home finance program will depend upon home prices and family incomes; limits on both will vary by location. Interested home buyers should contact the FHFA to determine specific eligibility requirements and participating mortgage lenders throughout the state.

Fannie Mae, the USA's Housing Partner, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company, and is the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

PHILADELPHIA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - ExecuFirst Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: FXBC) parent company of First Executive Bank, today reported a third quarter operating loss of $1,399,187 or $1.14 per share, compared to a loss of $87,118 or $.07 per share in the third quarter of 1989.

For the first nine months of 1990, ExecuFirst reported a net loss of $1,373,563 or $1.12 per share. The company attributed the loss in 1990 to a substantial increase of $1,426,669 in its provision for possible loan losses. The company said that without the special provision it would have shown a profit both for the quarter and for the year's first nine months.

Zvi H. Muscal, ExecuFirst chairman and First Executive Bank president and chief executive officer, said, "Our third quarter provision of $1,454,761 for possible loan losses (which includes the $1,426,669 referred to above) was established after a thorough and comprehensive internal review of our loan portfolio.

"It reflects our desire to provide a strong reserve for loans to individuals whose assets and businesses are concentrated in real estate and real estate development as well as provide for the negative impact of general economic conditions and the banking regulatory environment." This provision brings the total reserve to $1.9 million, or more than two and one-half times the non-performing loans.

ExecuFirst reported that the third quarter's significantly higher loan loss provision more than offset strong growth in interest and non-interest income. Net interest income before the provision and non-interest income totaled $592,051 up 25 percent from levels a year ago. During that same period, loans rose 51 percent to $45.4 million and deposits increased 29 percent to $47 million, the company noted.

"A significant increase in our banking relationship with medical and legal professionals contributed to our strong growth in loans and deposits," Muscal said. "This important customer segment now accounts for more than ten percent of our business and it continues to grow."

The company reported that assets at Sept. 30, 1990, totaled $56.3 million, up 17 percent from the third quarter of 1989. At Sept. 30, 1990, ExecuFirst Bancorp had a book value of $6.91 per share, compared to a book value of $8.16 per share a year ago.

First Executive Bank opened for business in November of 1988. Located at 1513 Walnut St. in Center City Philadelphia, it is a state-chartered bank and a member of the Federal Reserve System. Its deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC).

RICHMOND, VA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Chesapeake Corporation (NYSE: CSK) today announced net income of $3.0 million for the third quarter of 1990, a 76 percent decline from the $12.4 million earned in the same period last year. Earnings per share were $.15, compared to $.60 for the third quarter of 1989. Sales for the quarter ended September 30, 1990 were $215.9 million, up 5 percent from $205.7 million a year ago.

For the first nine months, Chesapeake's net income was $14.9 million, or $.73 a share, down 60 percent from $37.3 million, or $1.81 a share, in 1989. Year to date 1990 sales of $642.3 million were 6 percent higher than the $607.1 million last year.

Commenting on the results, J. Carter Fox, president and chief executive officer, said, "The third quarter operating profit from our businesses other than kraft products declined less than $1.5 million from results in the third quarter of 1989. Kraft products' third quarter operating profit was significantly lower than a year ago, primarily due to reduced prices (12 percent) and production (7 percent). The production decline was largely because of planned maintenance downtime at the West Point mill which was deferred from the second quarter. By the end of the quarter, the West Point mill had returned to normal operating levels. Compared to a year ago, third quarter earnings declined about $.16 a share because of lower kraft production. Demand for kraft products, especially our kraft paper and white paperboard products, has been generally good all year in spite of price pressures. Price declines in market pulp and corrugating medium have been especially severe."

Mr. Fox also said, "Our new tissue machine that started up in late June has performed ahead of our expectations. In the third quarter our tissue business achieved record sales and improved operating earnings. Packaging shipments were also strong, increasing almost 11 percent over the third quarter of 1989, but margins were slightly tighter."

Mr. Fox concluded, "We expect net income for the fourth quarter of 1990 to improve considerably over the third quarter of 1990, although net income for the second half of 1990 will probably be lower than the first half of 1990. Our kraft, packaging, tissue, and consumer products businesses historically have their peak shipments during the fourth quarter. Demand and operating rates remain healthy in these businesses. In spite of this short term optimism I am concerned about the general economic slowdown, and we are closely reviewing our operating costs and capital expenditures for 1991. I expect our 1991 capital expenditures will be reduced by at least 15 percent from this year's estimated $130 million. Because of our focus on niche products and products utilizing recycled fiber, I believe Chesapeake is better prepared to withstand cyclical downturns than we were in the past."

Chesapeake Corporation is an integrated paper and forest products company that produces and sells kraft, tissue, packaging, and wood products.

ATLANTA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Academy Insurance Group Inc. (NASDAQ: ACIG) announced today that on Oct. 16, certain large shareholders and members of management, owning in the aggregate approximately 50 percent of the outstanding common shares of the company ("Investor Group"), delivered an offer to acquire the company ("Offer") to a Special Committee of the Board of Directors, formed for that purpose.

The Offer proposes a "cash out" merger in which all of the shares of the remaining shareholders, plus a small portion of the shares of the Investor Group, will be "cashed out" at a price of $1.30 per share. The Offer is conditioned upon the approval of the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of the company, other than the Investor Group, who vote on the merger proposal. The Offer further provides that during the period prior to consummation of the merger, the Special Committee is free to solicit and entertain better offers.

If the Special Committee accepts the offer and later receives an all cash offer to buy all of the outstanding common shares of the company on terms more favorable to all shareholders than those contained in the Offer, the Investor Group will sell its shares to he person making the better offer, provided the transaction is approved by holders of a majority of the shares of the company, other than the Investor Group, voting on that proposal.

The Offer is currently under consideration by the Special Committee, together with its investment advisors and counsel. If not accepted beforehand, the Offer will expire at 2 p.m., New York time, on Oct. 25.

If the Offer is recommended to the shareholders by the Special Committee, the company will schedule a shareholders' meeting for the purpose of voting on the Offer and will distribute proxy materials to the shareholders prior to the meeting.

The company also announced that a Memorandum of Understanding has been entered into among representatives of the parties in two pending and one discontinued actions commenced by certain shareholders against the company and its directors objecting to the proposed transaction. Prior to the making of the Offer, representatives of the Investor Group met with representatives of the plaintiffs to discuss information relating to the value of the company and relating to the nature and structure of the Offer.

Academy Insurance Group Inc. is an insurance and financial services company that provides life, health and property/casualty products to specialty or "niche" markets.

BALTIMORE (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Crown Central Petroleum Corp. (AMEX: CNP) announced today that the company earned $2.4 million ($.24 per share) in net income for the third quarter of 1990 on revenues of $501 million.

This compares to net income of $8.8 million ($.88 per share) on revenues of $319 million for the third quarter of 1989, and to net income of $15.2 million ($1.54 per share) on revenues of $492 million in the second quarter of 1990.

For the first nine months of 1990, net income was $18.7 million ($1.90 per share) on revenues of $1,452 million compared to net income of $17.9 million ($1.78 per share) on revenues of $907 million for the same period in 1989. The increase in revenues was principally due to operations of the La Gloria Oil and Gas Co. acquired effective Oct. 1, 1989, and to higher refined product sales prices.

Henry A. Rosenberg Jr., chairman, said: "The decreases in net income of approximately 84 percent in the third quarter compared to the second quarter of 1990 and approximately 73 percent compared to the third quarter of 1989 were due largely to the fact that the rapidly escalating costs to the company for crude oil and other refinery feedstocks have been only partially reflected in the prices received by the company for finished products."

Rosenberg noted that operating costs in the third quarter included $2.5 million related to environmental matters and to retail outlet closings. Operations were curtailed and production was lowered during the quarter at Crown's Houston refinery while repairs were made to the crude unit, which was damaged in a fire on July 3, and to the FCC unit, the main gasoline producer. Crown's Tyler, Texas refinery operated near capacity throughout the quarter.

SALISBURY, MD (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Second National Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: SNFS), which added $16.6 million to specific and general loan reserves in mid-September, reported a resulting quarterly loss of $11.2 million or $1.57 per share, compared with net income of $2.5 million, or 34 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1989.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Second National reported a loss of $6.8 million, or $1.07 per share, on an unaudited basis, compared with earnings of $7.1 million, or 97 cents per share, a year earlier. Without the one-time addition to reserves, the company earned $6.4 million, or 73 cents per share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, and $2 million, or 22 cents per share, for the third quarter.

The company meets all current regulatory requirements for tangible, core and risk-based capital. After accounting for the additions to reserves, the book value of Second National's common stock is $5.74 per share.

"We were aware that the one-time increase to loan loss reserves announced on Sept. 21, 1990, would have a dramatic impact on this year's earnings, but it was a step which had to be taken in light of the deteriorating real estate economy in this region," stated Henry A. Berliner Jr., president and chief executive officer.

"The company's capital position remains strong, currently meeting the core and risk-based requirements, and exceeding the regulatory requirement of tangible capital by over $25 million. The meeting of all three capital requirements demonstrates the long-term viability of Second National. We will continue to fund our profitable residential mortgage portfolio, which has traditionally been, and will continue to be, the core of our business."

A significant portion of Second National's residential lending has been represented by the resort markets on the Maryland and Delaware coastlines, and it was recently reported that Second National's share of the Ocean City, Md., market had increased to 30 percent, making Second National the dominant lender in that market.

"In 1985, the state-chartered insurance system failed, creating a crisis within Maryland state-insured thrifts. Our company not only survived the crisis, but benefited from the sharp reduction in the number of banking competitors. We anticipate a similar reduction in competition in our market area during the first part of this decade, and as occurred five years ago, we expect to remain one of the strong survivors," said Berliner.

Second National is a $1.8 billion financial institution with 40 branch offices in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

HADDON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - First Peoples Financial Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: FPNJ), parent company of First Peoples Bank of New Jersey, today reported net income of $1.3 million or $.51 per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, and net income of $6.5 million or $2.43 per share for the first nine months of 1990.

These results compared to net income of $3.3 million or $1.16 per share for the third quarter of 1989 and $8.5 million or $2.85 per share for the first nine months of 1989. The 1989 results were further increased by extraordinary credits in the third quarter of 1989 of $700,000, and $2.3 million for the first nine months, related to the benefit of prior years' tax loss carryforwards. The extraordinary credits in the quarter and nine-month periods of 1989 increased the results of those periods to $1.41 and $3.64 per share respectively. Average shares outstanding decreased from 2.9 million at Sept. 30, 1989, to 2.6 million at Sept. 30, 1990, as a result of treasury stock repurchases.

Jerome S. Goodman, chairman and chief executive officer of the bank holding company, stated that the decrease in net income was due to an increase in the loan loss provision in the third quarter and in the previous two quarters. He cited the continuing slowdown in the Southern New Jersey economy and the problems in commercial real estate throughout the region resulting in an increase in non-performing assets as the cause of the increase in the loan loss provision. The increase in the provision for loan losses in the third quarter was $1.5 million and for the first nine months of 1990 was $2.2 million as compared to no increase in the provision in the year-earlier periods. Goodman noted that increasing the loan loss reserve through higher provisions is the prudent thing to do given the level of non-performing assets the uncertainties surrounding the economy and the commercial real estate market in the region. He stated that management will continue its normal intensive review of the loan portfolio and will provide additional reserves if needed.

Total assets were $1 billion as of Sept. 30, an increase of $56.1 million, or 5.9 percent, over total assets of one year earlier. This improvement is attributable to continued loan growth. Gross loans, excluding term federal funds sold, were $719.8 million as of Sept. 30, an increase of $110.9 million or 18.2 percent, over $608.9 million at Sept. 30, 1989. The increase in gross loans outstanding was primarily attributable to growth related to Small Business Administration loans fully guaranteed by the U.S. government.

At the end of the third quarter, non-performing assets (non-accruing loans plus real estate owned) totaled $23.9 million as compared to $15.8 million at the end of the prior year's third quarter. The allowance for possible loan losses was $6.8 million, or 1.41 percent of gross loans excluding term federal funds sold and Small Business Administration loans fully guaranteed by the U.S. government. This compares to $6 million, or 1.26 percent of gross non-guaranteed loans, excluding term federal funds sold, as of Sept. 30, 1989.

Total deposits were $883.5 million at Sept. 30, an increase of $68.9 million or 8.5 percent, over deposits at Sept. 30, 1989. The corporation's capital base continued to grow with shareholders' equity reaching $67.7 million, an increase of $1.6 million, or 2.3 percent, over shareholders' equity at Sept. 30, 1989. Primary capital as a percent of total assets at Sept. 30, 1990, was 7.30 percent, and risk- based capital ratios were 11.26 percent for Tier 1 and 12.39 percent for Tier 2, substantially in excess of regulatory guidelines which will become mandatory in 1991.

BINGHAMTON, NY (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - James R. Allen, president of CAE-Link, today announced the Tactical Simulation Operation will maintain its engineering, design, test and integration functions at the current location in Silver Spring, Md., and will consolidate manufacturing and some support functions at CAE-Link headquarters in Binghamton.

"After careful study, we determined our customers would be best served by keeping our first-rate engineering team at the same, suburban Washington facility it has occupied for more than 25 years," Allen said. "At the same time, consolidating other operations will enable the company to be more competitive in both the domestic and international marketplace."

"We appreciate the confidence the United States Navy has placed in us and we believe keeping the facility where it is makes the most sense for us, our employees, our customers and the community."

CAE-Link is the largest military simulation and training company in the United States. The company provides simulators and other training devices and services to all branches of the U.S. military, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and allied governments.

The Silver Spring facility is the major supplier of anti-submarine warfare training devices and a major supplier of shipboard and land-based training systems.

Since 1988, CAE-Link has been a subsidiary of CAE Industries Ltd. which is headquartered in Toronto, Canada. CAE-Link has facilities in Texas and California in addition to Silver Spring and Binghamton.

"Like all defense contractors we have been examining our operations with an eye toward improving productivity and profitability," Allen said. "We are pre-eminent in the simulation field and want to remain in the number one position. Our objective is to keep CAE-Link at the forefront of simulation technology while providing challenging opportunities for our employees and the highest quality products and cost-effective services for our customers."

DURHAM, N.C. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Security Financial Holding Company (NASDAQ: SECF), the parent of Security Federal Savings Bank, Durham, North Carolina, announced today that its Board of Directors has declared its first dividend. The cash dividend, of $0.125 per share payble to stockholders of record as of October 29, 1990 will be paid on November 9, 1990. The Company also announced that its Board of Directors has approved a stock repurchase program to acquire up to 60,450 shares of the Company's common stock over the next six months, which represents approximately 5 percent of the outstanding common stock. The program will be dependent upon market conditions, and there is no guarantee as to the exact number of shares to be repurchased by the Company.

Larry D. Brock, President of the Company, stated that the Board of Directors determined that the payment of a dividend was appropriate in light on the Company's capital position and recent operating results. He noted that any further dividends will depend upon the Company's financial condition, earnings equity structure, capital needs, regulatory requirements and economic conditions.

Addressing the repurchase program, Mr. Brock explained that the Board of Directors considers the Company's stock to be an attractive investment, at its current price. In addition, the repurchase program is designed to limit the future dilution incurred in connection with the company's stock option plan.

Security Financial Holding Company is the holding company for Security Federal Savings Bank, which conducts business through its main office in Durham, North Carolina and eight other offices in Durham, Orange, and Granville counties. Security Financial Holding Company recently completed its initial public offering, selling $12.1 million worth of stock to depositors of Security Federal Savings Bank which is the largest savings bank in Durham.

SALEM, OR (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Commercial Bancorp (NASDAQ: CBOR) today reported net income for the third quarter of 1990 of $551,000 or, 49 cents per common share, up 21 percent from the $455,000, or, 42 cents per common share for the second quarter of 1990 and 24 percent higher than the third quarter 1989 net income of $443,000, or 39 cents per common share.

"This represents the second-best quarter in the company's history," President R.B. Tibbatts announced today, "and was equivalent to an annualized 1.08 percent return on average assets."

Net interest income on a non-taxable equivalent basis was $2,741,000 for the third quarter of 1990, compared with $2,527,000 during the second quarter of 1990 and $2,473,000 in the third quarter of 1989. The increase is due primarily to improved pricing of both loans and deposits, as reflected in the tax equivalent net interest margins of 6.09 percent in the third quarter of 1989, 6.05 percent in the second quarter of 1990, and 6.47 percent in the third quarter of 1990.

"While year-to-date net income of $1,436,000 was slightly below the prior year " Tibbatts said, "we remain on budget for another outstanding year."

Commercial Bancorp is the holding company for The Commercial Bank, the largest locally owned bank in the mid-Willamette Valley. The bank employs 200 people in 10 offices in Salem, Keizer, Silverton, Monmouth, Molalla and Newberg, Ore.

ATLANTA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - RPC Energy Services Inc. (NYSE: RES) announced its unaudited results for the nine months and three months ended Sept. 30.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, revenue increased 8 percent from $79,146,000 last year to $85,688,000. Net income after income taxes increased 18 percent for the same period from $6,941,000 or 48 cents per share a year ago to $8,215,000 or 57 cents per share.

Revenue for the three months ended Sept. 30 increased 10 percent from $22,422,000 last year to $24,698,000. Net income after income taxes increased 18 percent for the three months ended Sept. 30 from $2,458,000 or 17 cents per share last year to $2,899,000 or 20 cents per share.

RPC operates in two major segments. RPC provides rental of specialized oil field equipment, and well control and transportation services to the oil and gas industry. In addition, RPC owns Chaparral Boats, a leading national manufacturer of powerboats. For the three months ended Sept. 30, revenue for the boat manufacturing segment increased 21 percent from $7,290,000 last year to $8,844,000 this year. The oil and gas services segment revenue increased 5 percent for the three months ended Sept. 30 from $15,132,000 last year to $15,854,000 this year.

Cash flow for the three months ended Sept. 30 improved $646,000 or 19 percent to $4,030,000 from $3,384,000 for the same period a year ago.

As of Sept. 30, the active rig count increased 8 percent to 1,047 rigs from 967 at Sept. 30, 1989. The uncertainty in the oil supply from the Middle East has not produced a significant increase in oil and gas services segment revenue as domestic drillers have been slow to respond to this problem. The boat manufacturing segment anticipates flat or declining sales as the industry-wide recession continues.

CANTON, MA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Computer Identics Corporation (NASDAQ: CIDN) reported its unaudited results today for the third quarter of 1990 and the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues from sales of products and services increased to $13,319,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 as compared with $11,854,000 for the same period in 1989, a 12 percent increase. Total revenue for the first nine months of 1989 was $13,415,000 and included the non-recurring sale of a manufacturing license and related assets for $1,561,000. Third quarter sales were $4,216,000 as compared with $4,582,000 for the third quarter 1989, a decrease of eight percent.

The company reported pre-tax losses of $97,000 for the third quarter of 1990 as compared with pre-tax income of $261,000 for the same period in 1989. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 the pre-tax income was $77,000 as compared with $803,000 for 1989.

Without the gain on the sale of the manufacturing license, there would have been a loss of $19,000 for the first nine months of 1989. The provision for income taxes for the 1990 periods arose as a result of income generated at our European subsidiaries. The 1989 provision for income taxes was primarily the result of state income taxes incurred in the United States.

Frank Wezniak, president and chief executive officer, said "The third quarter results were disappointing, as domestic orders and revenues were weaker than expected, especially in July and August, with some recovery in September. Export activity continues to show excellent results and now represents half of our consolidated revenue.

"For the quarter, pre-tax income is lower than last year's because of the lower revenues and increased investment in product develoment, marketing and sales. Our product development effort has produced several key new products, one of which, a new series of Starnode data collection terminals, was introduced in October at Scan-Tech, our most important trade show each year.

These new terminals are fully compatible with our previous products, enabling them to be sold as additions to our significant installed base. Utilizing advanced low-cost surface mount technology, they feature advanced data capture processing, and communication capability through the use of several micro processors operating in parallel. Initial customer response has been excellent and this family of products should have a significant business impact.

MIAMI (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines today said it flew 1.04 billion revenue passenger miles and had a 50.75 percent load factor in September. Capacity was 2.05 billion available seat miles; passenger boardings were 1.41 million.

Eastern said that although September traffic reflected the normal seasonal decrease, its yield per revenue passenger mile showed a 20 percent improvement over September, 1989 levels due to an increased number of business travelers flying Eastern.

In September 1989 Eastern also flew 1.04 billion revenue passenger miles, with capacity of 1.61 billion available seat miles and a 64.8 percent load factor. Passenger boardings were 1.4 million. Eastern currently operates about 800 daily flights to more than 70 cities.

DULUTH, MN (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Minnesota Power (NYSE: MPL) today reported third quarter 1990 earnings of 74 cents per share of common stock, compared with $1.31 for the third quarter of 1989.

"Our electric sales continue to reflect the good health of the region's mining and wood products industries, resulting in steady earnings from ongoing operations; company subsidiaries also continue to operate profitably," said Arend Sandbulte, chairman and president of the Duluth, Minn.-based power supplier.

Direct comparison of the company's 1990 financial results with results a year earlier is complicated by two separate gains and two write-offs that occurred during the years' third quarters, Sandbulte said.

The company completed the sale of a 20 percent share of Clay Boswell Unit 4 to Wisconsin Public Power, Inc. (WPPI) in September. The previously announced $84 million transaction added 40 cents a share in this year's third quarter. A year ago, the sale of a telecommunications subsidiary added $1.10 a share to Minnesota Power's third quarter earnings.

Gains reflected in earnings for the comparable quarters were partially offset by write-offs - 21 cents per share in 1989 and eight cents per share in 1990 - related to income not realized because a planned capacity sale to Northern States Power Company was cancelled.

Revenues in the third quarter were $114 million, compared with $115 million a year ago. Net income for the quarter was $22.6 million, versus $39.2 million in 1989's third quarter.

For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1990, earnings per share were $2.43, compared with $3.07 for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1989. Revenues were $475 million, compared with $465 million a year earlier. Net income was $75.4 million, compared with $93.5 million for the comparable 12-month period a year earlier.

Minnesota Power is publicly held and traded on the New York Stock Exchange. The company provides electric service in northern Minnesota and has diversified business interests that include paper making, coal mining and water and wastewater treatment operations.

BOSTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boston Five Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: BFCS) anounced today that all branch offices of the former 1st American Bank for Savings will open on Monday, Oct. 22, 1990, as offices of The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank FSB.

Peter J. Blampied, president and CEO of The Boston Five, said, "We have assumed responsibility for all of 1st American's deposit accounts. We welcome our new depositors and we intend to provide them with the best possible service."

"The combination of a loyal customer base and an established branch network makes this acquisition ideal in the context of our strategic plan," Blampied commented. "In fact, several 1st American braches particularly enhance The Boston Five's network of neighborhood offices," he added.

The Boston Five acquired this deposit franchise in a transaction involving the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). Deposits of 1st American Bank were fully insured by the FDIC and the Deposit Insurance Fund of Massachusetts. All balances are being transferred to The Boston Five by the FDIC.

With total assets of approximately $2.5 billion, The Boston Five is the largest savings bank headquartered in Massachusetts. It currently services about $1.9 billion in mortgage loans for investors. The Boston Five Bancorp, Inc. is the holding company of The Boston Five Cents Savings Bank FSB. It operates 15 loan offices in New England and 32 full-service offices in eastern Massachusetts, following this acquisition. Under the name Pope Mortgage Company it also operates two residential mortgage offices in the Carolinas.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Knape & Vogt Manufacturing Co. (NASDAQ-NMS: KNAP) announced today that shareholders re-elected three directors for a three-year term and one director to hold a one-year term. The re-elected three-year directors include Robert J. Bowman, vice chairman and secretary of the company; Mary Rita Cuddohy, private investor; and Richard S. Knape, manager, product engineering and development of the company. Allan E. Perry, vice president, manufacturing, of the company, was re-elected for a one-year term.

Raymond E. Knape, chairman and president, told shareholders that Knape & Vogt achieved a 33-percent increase in earnings during the first quarter, ended Sept. 30, to $1,507,044 on sales of $28.7 million.

He said he anticipates the 1991 fiscal year results will be even stronger than fiscal 1990. This is due to an expected decline in manufacturing costs and in selling and administrative expenses as a percentage of sales; along with the reduction of interest resulting from the substantial decrease of debt achieved in the last nine months. This debt reduction was accomplished by selling under-utilized assets and consolidating manufacturing facilities.

During the 1990 fiscal year, net income rose to $9.7 million, or $2.49 per share, as compared to net income of $5.3 million, or $1.31 a share, in 1989. The 1990 net income figure is deceiving because it includes an after-tax gain of $4 million, or $1.03 per share, from the sale of the company's La Mirada facility. Strictly on an operational basis, the company's earnings for fiscal 1990 were $5.7 million, or $1.46 per share.

Knape & Vogt manufactures wall-attached shelving, a wide variety of home furnishing items and also derives about one-third of its sales from drawer slides for kitchen and utility cabinet manufacturers.

SAN FRANCISCO (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is proposing to fine Texaco U.S.A. Inc $10,000 for a one-time discharge of oil-based drilling fluids from its Platform Habitat offshore oil production facility into the Santa Barbara Channel off the Southern California coast.

"Texaco discharged oil-based fluids in violation of Clean Water Act requirements, and it must be held financially accountable for violating the law and endangering the environment," said Harry Seraydarian, EPA's Water Management Division director.

Texaco notified EPA of the May 7, 1990, incident, in which over 6,000 gallons of oil-based drilling fluids were accidentally discharged into the ocean. These fluids are normally reused until they are no longer useful. The fluids are then transported in barrels off the oil platform and disposed of at a land-based facility.

Texaco has 30 days to appeal this order and request a hearing.

CLEVELAND (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Dutch Boy is issuing statements to all its retailers that the company does not use mercury in its manufactured paint.

The reason for the statements is due to the publicity generated by a recently released study from the Center for Disease Control which said latex paint may cause mercury poisoning.

"We have voluntarily eliminated the use of mercury compounds in our manufactured paint since 1985," said Scott King, vice president of sales and marketing.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency banned the use of mercury in all interior latex paints and requires warning labels on exterior latex paints containing mercury. The ban took effect on Aug. 20, 1990.

"With all the attention the media has devoted to this subject, we want to reassure our customers that we do not use mercury in any of our manufactured paint and have not for quite some time. Dutch Boy has a long standing commitment to consumer safety and the environment," King said.

According to John Gerulis, director of Regulatory Information Services for Dutch Boy, the company began using other biocides as a preservative in its latex paint products in the 1960s. "While EPA estimates some 30 percent of the water-based latex paint products currently on the market reportedly contain mercury, none of those products are Dutch Boy brand paints," Gerulis said.

Mercury has been used in paints as a mildewcide and/or fungicide and as an in-can preservative. Dutch Boy has maintained the same product quality and benefits by replacing mercury with other environmentally safe ingredients.

PALATINE, IL (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Suburban Bancorp (NASDAQ-NMS: SUBB) today reported third quarter 1990 net income of $953 thousand or $0.26 per share, compared to third quarter 1989 net income of $2.1 million or $0.55 per share.

Assets increased 11.7 percent from $870.8 million to $972.7 million, and deposits grew 12 percent from $783.9 million to $879.1 million from the third quarter 1989 to the third quarter 1990.

Third quarter results were attributable in part to a one-time write down on the carrying value of real estate held for future expansion and a higher effective federal income tax rate.

President Gerald F. Fitzgerald, Jr. stated that Suburban also continued to increase its reserves for loan losses during the quarter. The 13-bank holding company has increased its reserves 53 percent during the past year from $4.6 million on Sept. 30, 1989 to $7.1 million on Sept. 30, 1990.

Fitzgerald said Suburban was well positioned for any downturn in the economy by reason of its strong reserves. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income stood at $2.1 million or $0.56, compared to $6.2 million or $1.58 per share the year earlier.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - At 5 p.m. EDT today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared Metropolitan National Bank, McAllen, Texas, insolvent. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was appointed as receiver.

The bank became a matter of concern to the OCC in 1984. Unsatisfactory supervision of the bank by the board of directors and officers resulted in an excessive amount of losses. The weak supervision was magnified by poor economic conditions attributable to the peso devaluation and winter freezes.

The OCC obtained commitments from the board of directors and new ownership to inject capital and to undertake measures to correct the bank's problems. However, these efforts were unsuccessful and losses finally exhausted the bank's capital funds, resulting in its insolvency.

Metropolitan National Bank received a national bank charter on Nov. 16, 1972. On Sept. 30, 1990, it had total assets of approximately $17 million.

WAKEFIELD, MASS. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - DAKA International Inc. (NASDAQ: DKAI) (the "company") reported a net loss of $840,000 or 2 cents per share on revenues of $172 million for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared to a net loss of $4.4 million or 12 cents per share on revenues of $162 million for the fiscal year ended July 1, 1989.

This overall improvement in operating results was the result of increased profits in the contract foodservice and restaurant segments, together with a $300,000 cumulative net effect of a change in accounting method for certain inventory items. The hotel segment continues to incur substantial losses. The company is actively pursuing the sale of its hotel properties; and accordingly, has charged operations for fiscal 1990 an additional $2.6 million to write down the carrying value of such properties and to accrue estimated losses to be incurred through the projected date of disposition. In fiscal 1989 the company had charges aggregating $5.9 million from its business combination and certain non-recurring items.

The company, through its DAKA subsidiary operates and manages approximately 500 contract foodservice facilities and owns, operates and manages six hotels. The company, through its Fuddruckers subsidiary owns, operates, franchises and manages Fuddruckers restaurants throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, and Western Europe. There are currently 126 Fuddruckers restaurants in operation.

The company is publicly traded in the over the counter market and quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol "DKAI."

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Spinnaker Software Corporation (NASDAQ: SPKR) has begun shipping Spinnaker PLUS 2.0 for Microsoft(R) Windows(R) 3.0. Released on Sept. 28, PLUS is the first object-oriented hyperprogramming environment for developing and running custom information management applications across PC compatible and Macintosh computers.

PLUS 2.0 provides corporate software developers, value-added resellers, independent software vendors, and systems integrators with a common tool for creating custom software solutions for the specialized needs of business users. PLUS will also enable power users within corporations to create department-wide or personal information management applications.

"PLUS will dramatically reduce corporate software development and maintenance costs because it combines object-oriented programming with cross-platform compatibility. It also provides the most direct method of moving HyperCard stacks to the PC," said C. David Seuss, Spinnaker's CEO and president. "PLUS uses the same graphic interface across PCs and Macs, so corporate training costs are also minimized."

The release of the Windows 3.0 version of PLUS was preceeded by the Macintosh version in April 1990. The OS/2 Presentation Manager version of PLUS is currently under development. Software applications created with any version of Spinnaker PLUS will look and run the same under all three operating systems without modification.

Spinnaker Software Corporation has been developing and marketing software applications for over eight years. The companmy became publicly traded in July 1989 after a reverse merger with Springboard Software.

RICHMOND, VA (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Tredegar Industries Inc. (NYSE: TG) reported today its sales and operating results for the third quarter ending September 30, 1990.

Tredegar became an independent company following a spin-off from Ethyl Corporation at the end of the second quarter of 1989. While 1990 results reflect actual performance, nine-months figures for 1989 were reported on a pro forma basis in order to illustrate how Tredegar might have performed as an independent company.

The pro forma figures assume that Tredegar would have incurred expenses of approximately $3 million per quarter on an after-tax basis prior to the spin-off. These expenses relate primarily to interest on Tredegar's debt and incremental administrative expenses.

Third-quarter sales for 1990 were $131,762,000, down from $163,072,000 in 1989. For the first nine months of 1990, sales decreased to $428,193,000 from $486,352,000 in 1989.

The net loss for the third quarter was $5,061,000, or 44 cents per share, compared to net income of $4,421,000, or 37 cents per share, a year earlier. For the first nine months of 1990, the net loss was $6,755,000, or 59 cents per share, down from pro forma net income of $10,264,000, or 85 cents per share, in 1989.

Tredegar has formalized its plan to divest and reorganize certain operations in its aluminum and plastics segments. In addition, the company has completed various phases of environmental review and cleanup and has evaluated the costs related to certain legal proceedings. Accordingly, the company recorded a $9,450,000 provision ($6,237,000 after-tax) during the quarter for costs associated with these matters. Any additional provisions for these items cannot be reasonably estimated at this time.

Third-quarter sales from ongoing operations (i.e., excluding revenues from plants to be closed or businesses held for sale) were $124,398,000, compared to $131,384,000 in 1989. For the first nine months of 1990, sales from ongoing operations were $373,194,000, compared to $388,244,000 in the prior year.

Third-quarter net income from ongoing operations (i.e., excluding unusual items and operating results and accruals relating to plants to be closed and businesses held for sale) was $1,623,000, or 15 cents per share. This compares to net income from ongoing operations of $4,287,000 or 36 cents per share, in 1989. On a year-to-date basis, net income from ongoing operations was $6,951,000, or 61 cents per share, compared to pro forma net income from ongoing operations of $9,018,000, or 75 cents per share, in 1989.

Tredegar Industries is a Fortune 500 manufacturer of plastics and aluminum products and has interests in coal, oil and gas.

HOUSTON (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Gordon Thomson, Exxon Co., U.S.A. (NYSE: XON) marketing vice president, announced today the terms of the final settlement of the lawsuit filed by the North Carolina Department of Justice alleging "deceptive trade practice" by Exxon. According to Thomson, "The State has agreed to voluntarily dismiss the lawsuit against Exxon without prejudice. In return, Exxon agreed to provide restitution to any wholesale purchasers of Exxon products that were affected by the invoicing problems of Aug. 3, and that have not already been compensated. Exxon was already in the process of correcting the invoicing problem and reimbursing affected wholesale customers; the settlement is not unreasonable."

Thomson went on to say, "The State alleged that Exxon imposed retroactive price increases on products purchased by wholesale purchasers without providing adequate notice to those customers. We contend that, while invoicing mistakes did occur on Aug. 3 at proprietary terminals in North Carolina as a result of a computer systems error, Exxon was already in the process of correcting the problem when we were notified of the lawsuit."

In addition to the restitution to customers, Exxon agreed with the State that it would provide advance indication to wholesale customers when non-standard price notifications may take place. The company also agreed to pay the North Carolina Department of Justice reasonable investigative costs and attorneys fees in the amount of $8,000.

Thomson added that, "According to our records, all affected customers have been reimbursed. However, if any others can show that they were not properly invoiced, then they also will be reimbursed."

HARTFORD, CONN. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Ralph Nader-founded Public Citizen organization has admitted that it erred when it cited ITT Hartford Insurance Group as one of five insurance companies that could be financially vulnerable in the event of a severe economic downturn.

The retraction came in a letter to Donald R. Frahm, The Hartford's chairman, president and chief executive officer.

Noting that Public Citizen's original report misstated The Hartford's surplus position, Joan Claybrook, president of Public Citizen, said: "As a result, The Hartford should not have been included ... We regret this error and will take steps to correct it."

When Public Citizen issued its study Oct. 15, it said that The Hartford's surplus -- the available backup funds used in case of catastrophic or unexpectedly severe losses -- had significantly deteriorated below 1972 levels. In fact, The Hartford's surplus grew between 1972 and 1988, and the company should not have failed any financial test based on the soundness of its surplus.

The correct surplus calculations were made by The Hartford and confirmed by Arthur Andersen & Co., an independent accounting firm.

"I'm pleased that Public Citizen admitted its blatant error, but this entire episode could have been easily avoided if the organization had contacted us, as well as appropriate state regulators, prior to compiling its report," said Frahm.

"Reputable and experienced rating organizations have always evaluated The Hartford as one of the finest and most responsible organizations in the industry. Public Citizen's 'tests,' on the other hand, have no proven ability to predict much of anything," he added.

"We regret that customers who depend on us for their financial security and peace-of-mind were needlessly alarmed by these irresponsible allegations," Frahm said.

ITT Hartford Insurance Group, a subsidiary of ITT Corp. (NYSE: ITT), is one of the nation's oldest and largest international insurance and financial services

WICHITA, KAN. (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The following letter was sent this afternoon, by Wilson K. Cadman, chairman of the board and president of Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE), in response to an earlier letter from A. Drue Jennings, president of Kansas City Power & Light Company (NYSE: KLT):

The intemperate tone of your letter to KG&E directors this afternoon astounded us. We can only conclude that you or your advisors totally misunderstood the events of recent days.

As you acknowledged, plans already are underway to arrange another meeting with you. Your statement that you were "stonewalled" earlier comes as a total surprise. In that meeting, we provided eight of our staff of whom your team asked 40 questions. According to our records, all were answered. Your representatives were then asked if they had additional queries and they said they did not. We took that to mean they were satisfied. In fact, we sent a full contingent to the meeting prepared to answer any reasonable question about KG&E's operations, financial statements, and business plan. Yet, after only one hour, your team declared it had no further questions.

You also indicated that KG&E is engaged in an "auction." It should not take a non-attorney like me to explain to a lawyer like you that such is not the case. We continue to respond to your hostile takeover bid and to our board's mandate that we fully explore all the available alternatives on behalf of our shareholders. That we have done and will continue to do.

If you need specific information, we intend to provide it. In the meantime, having contemporaneously received KCP&L's news release quoting your letter at length, we wonder if your letter of today may have been inspired by a need to be heard as another of your tender deadlines approaches. That, of course, we fully understand.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Unocal Corporation today said that Fred L. Hartley, chairman emeritus of the board and retired chairman, president and chief executive officer of the company, died this afternoon at his home in Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., after a long illness.

During his 50-year career with Unocal, Hartley, 73, became one of the petroleum industry's most dynamic and respected leaders. He retired as an employee of the company in 1988, but remained chairman of the board until 1989 when he was named chairman emeritus. Hartley continued to serve as a director until his death.

"Mr. Hartley was a creative engineer, an executive of vision and a man of great integrity who led Unocal for a quarter century and transformed it from a small, regional oil company to its present position as a worldwide earth resources company," said Richard J. Stegemeier, Unocal chairman, president and chief executive officer. "The dedication, ingenuity and strength of character that Mr. Hartley brought to Unocal Corporation made him an effective and forceful chief executive to lead the company through the better part of three tumultuous and challenging decades. He was a close friend who will be sorely missed by all of us who knew and worked with him."

Hartley, a native of British Columbia, Canada, joined Unocal in 1939 shortly after his graduation from the University of British Columbia with a degree in chemical engineering. He soon was promoted to research engineer at the company's Los Angeles Refinery, where he helped design, patent, and operate various petroleum processing plants.

In 1953, Hartley launched a highly successful program to sell and license Unocal's technology to other companies in the industry.

Hartley was promoted to vice president for research in 1956, and to senior vice president in 1960. He became president and chief executive officer in 1964 and chairman of the board 10 years later.

Throughout his career, Hartley pushed technological innovation. One of his early successes came from the worldwide licensing of the company's patented hydrocracking technology, known as Unicracking, which converts heavy, sulfur-laden crude oil components into clean high-grade transportation fuels.

Hartley also put the company in a position of world preeminence in the development of two alternative energy resources -- oil shale and geothermal power.

For more than 25 years, Unocal has been at the forefront of geothermal energy development. Today, the company is the world's largest producer of geothermal power, harnessing enough steam or hot water from the beneath the earth's surface to generate 24 million kilowatt-hours of electricity a day.

As for shale, Hartley led the effort to build Unocal's shale oil project at Parachute, Colorado, in the early 1980s--the first commercial-scale oil shale facility in the nation. Since 1986, the company has been shipping high-quality synthetic crude oil from its shale plant in western Colorado.

Hartley was well-known for his tenacity and dedication to building America's domestic energy security. Through recurring energy crises in the 1970s and a destructive wave of corporate raids, Hartley repeatedly warned about the dangers of short-term thinking on America's energy security and economic stability.

Hartley was an honorary director and former chairman of the American Petroleum Institute. He was also a director and former president of the California Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Alliance to Save Energy. He was a senior trustee of the California Institute of Technology and trustee of the Committee for Economic Development, and a member of the National Academy of Engineering, the Conference Board, and the British-North American Committee. In addition, Hartley held the rank of ambassador during his service as commissioner general of the United States Exhibition at the 1986 World Exposition (EXPO 86), held in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Hartley was active in cultural affairs, serving as vice president and trustee of both the Southwest Museum and the California Museum of Science and Industry a director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Association, a Life Trustee of the board of governors of The Music Center of Los Angeles, and a member of the board of overseers of the Huntington Library. During his career, Hartley was the recipient of many awards and honors.

Hartley is survived by his wife, Peggy; his daughter, Marnie, and son-in-law, Dan Gruen; and his son, Fred L. Hartley, Jr.

ELMHURST, IL. (OCT. 19) - Elm Financial Services, Inc. (NASDAQ: ELMF), the holding company of Elmhurst Federal Savings Bank and its subsidiaries, today reported earnings for the third quarter of the 1990 fiscal year.

For the three months ended Sept. 30, 1990, the second full quarter of operations following the conversion of Elmhurst Federal Savings Bank to a stock company and its acquisition by Elm Financial Services, Inc., net interest income after provision for losses on loans increased to $2,795,509, compared to $2,240,818 for the same period in 1989, an increase of 24.5 percent. This increase in net interest income was directly attributable to the bank's investment of conversion proceeds in interest-bearing assets. Total net income was $708,151 compared to $1,661,767 for the same period in 1989; the third quarter results for last year included non recurring net gains of $1,720,263 on the sale of securities in connection with the restructuring of the bank's investment portfolio to facilitate interest rate risk management. Earnings per share for the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 equaled $.31 (thirty-one cents) and, as this is the first year of operations as a stock company, prior year earnings per share calculations are not available.

Charles H. Walsh, chairman, Elm Financial Services, Inc. and Elmhurst Federal Savings Bank, stated, ''The net operating results for the third quarter of 1990, excluding comparison to the non recurring gains recorded by the bank in the third quarter of 1989, were within our expectations.''

He added, "The bank's high quality assets, its net interest margin of 2.4 percent, and a tangible capital ratio of 13.0 percent provide a strong basis to expect continued good results."

Net interest income after provisions for loan losses for the first nine months of 1990 was $7,618,367 as compared to $6,201,624 for the same period in 1989, an increase of $1,416,743. As stated, this increase was due to the benefit of the continued investment of conversion proceeds in interest earning assets during 1990. Net income was $2,003,623 compared to $2,858,476 for the same nine months in 1989; last year's results included non recurring-gains on the sale of securities of $1,972,523 versus a net loss of $97,271 on the sale of trading securities in 1990. No loan loss provisions have been deemed necessary in 1990, while a reserve of $259,000 was established in 1989.

On Oct. 1, 1990, Elm Financial Services, Inc., announced its first cash dividend in the amount of $.125 (twelve and one half cents) per share payable Oct. 25, 1990, to shareholders of record Oct. 15, 1990.

Elmhurst Federal Savings Bank, the principal operating entity of Elm Financial Services, Inc. has its executive offices in Elmhurst, Ill.; and operates through eight facilities, six of which are in DuPage County and two of which are in Chicago. SAN DIEGO, (OCT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Magma Power Co. (NASDAQ: MGMA), today announced record third quarter 1990 earnings. For the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990, net income was $11,704,000 or $.50 per share on revenues of $26,660,000, compared to net income of $7,892,000 or $.36 per share on revenues of $19,822,000 in the third quarter of 1989. The 48.3 percent increase in net income and the 34.5 percent increase in revenues for the quarter represents the twelfth consecutive quarter for which Magma reported year-to-year increases in both earnings and revenues.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, Magma Power recorded net income of $21,913,000, compared to $15,302,000 for the same period in 1989 -- an increase of 43.2 percent. On a per share basis, earnings for the first nine months increased to $.93 from $.70, up 32.8 percent compared to last year. Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were up 34.5 percent to $63,581,000 from $47,257,000 in the first nine months of 1989.

Profits during the third quarter benefitted from additional revenues from the new Leathers plant and lower general and administrative expenses compared to the third quarter of 1989. Depreciation expense was up 42.6 percent over the third quarter of 1989, reflecting the depreciation from the Leathers plant. Magma's 20-year depreciation rate strengthens the company's cash flow and builds quality and strength into its balance sheet and income statement.

Magma Power holds geothermal leaseholds in California and Nevada, and manages the operation of geothermal power plants in which it owns a significant interest. Magma also receives royalties, management service fees, interest and rental income from the plants and properties.

OAKLAND, Calif. (OCT. 18) UPI - The Oakland Athletics tried Thursday to lay to rest a smoldering controversy sparked by comments concerning the play of rightfielder Jose Canseco in the club's 5-4 10-inning loss to the Cincinnati Reds in Game 2 of the World Series.

Following the game, Canseco was criticized by manager Tony La Russa for misplaying a ball in right field. Then pitcher Dave Stewart took a few verbal volleys at Canseco's unpredictability at the plate.

Canseco, who signed a $23.5 million contract this season, homered, grounded out twice, struck out twice and hit into a double play in the ninth. In the field, he had trouble cleanly fielding one hit, made a poor throw home and had a ball careen of his glove for a triple that allowed the Reds to tie the game in the eighth.

It was the latter that drew fire from La Russa.

''I think that's a play you've got to make if you're going to win the game,'' La Russa said Wednesday night. ''I don't think he (Canseco) got a very good jump. The question is why. I thought Canseco was in real good physical shape going into the game.''

Stewart, who never criticizes a teammate, said Canseco's unpredictability makes it tough for the team to rally around him.

''To me, with Jose it's gotten to wait and see,'' Stewart said. ''Like he hit the home run. For me, it becomes a so what? Now what are you going to do next?

With Carney (Lansford) you say yeah, he's on today. With Dave Henderson, yeah, he's on.

''With Rickey (Henderson), yeah, he's on. But with Jose, it's wait and see.''

To keep the controversy from exploding into a full blown distraction, La Russa held a team meeting before Thursday's practice. The A's emerge seemingly with the outbursts behind them.

''It's not a major incident,'' said Canseco. ''We don't want it to get blown out of proportion. We don't need that kind of distraction right now.''

The A's slugger, who is 1-for-7 in the Series, said he still felt he could help his ball club rebound from its 2-0 deficit.

''I'm still pretty confident (at the plate),'' Canseco said. ''I'm not 100 percent, but I still think I can help this team.''

La Russa said he felt the team was ready to go on and leave the incident behind.

''I think it was important to talk this out (in today's meeting),'' La Russa said. ''He had soem things he had to say and I felt I had some things to say.''

Canseco also got support from Rickey Henderson and Cincinnati's Eric Davis, two players who know something about being criticized.

''Jose is playing with a lot of nagging injuries (sore back and injured finger),'' Rickey Henderson said. ''When you have nagging injuries, they prevent you from preforming the way you can.''

Davis said Canseco's star status makes him an easy target.

''Superstars like Jose Canseco will always be the subject for criticism,'' Davis said. ''The criticism comes from media expectations. The superstar is always expected to do great things when this game can be very humbling.''

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 19) UPI - A resolution worked out by the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council asks Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to seek the release of Western diplomats and foreigners trapped in Kuwait and to provide food aid for those who cannot leave, diplomats said.

A draft of the resolution being circulated Thursday among U.N. diplomats accused Iraq of carrying out ''unlawful and wanton'' destruction in Kuwait and of confiscating medical supplies in the emirate's hospitals.

The resolution was being discussed by governments in the United States, the Soviet Union, China, France and Britain. Diplomats said those governments have not reached agreement on all the provisions in the document and more discussions were needed.

The resolution seeks the immediate departure of the foreigners, including diplomats, wishing to leave and ensure shipments of food, water and basic needs to third-country nationals. It also asks the Iraqi government to rescind its order closing embassies in Kuwait.

The resolution asks Perez de Cuellar to help achieve those objectives, particularly the provision of food and other services to diplomatic and consular missions in Kuwait and the evacuation of third- country nationals.

But diplomats said that some non-aligned nations preferred the 15- nation council deal immediately with the killing of 21 Palestinians by Israeli forces because of Israel's opposition to a U.N. inquiry into the deaths.

The new resolution was seen as an effort by Washington to keep diplomatic pressure on Iraq and maintain the unity of the Arab coalition against the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Arab states were drawn together to condemn the Oct. 8 riots at the Temple Mount in Jerusalem and they preferred to keep the momentum on a resolution of the Israeli-Arab conflict despite their deep division on the Iraqi invasion, the diplomats said.

Diplomats said the five permanent members agreed on main points in the new resolution, which would demand that food be sent to the few remaining Western diplomats and foreigners in Kuwait.

They said only the American, British and French embassies remained open in Kuwait City in defiance of an order by Iraq, after annexing Kuwait, that all foreign embassies be closed and their personnel be transferred to Baghdad.

They said the United States and Britain do not agree on whether to press in the same resolution for an inquiry into atrocities by Iraqi troops in Kuwait and to require Iraq to pay for damage caused its military occupation, which was mainly a British demand.

One Western diplomat said the resolution was being ''kicked around'' among the five countries and more discussions will be needed. A draft of the new document was sent Wednesday night to capitals of the five countries for discussions by their governments.

Secretary of State James Baker told a news conference in Washington Tuesday that priority should be given to a ''humanitarian resolution'' dealing with supplying the embassies with fresh food, drinking water and other necessities.

Iraq this week denied a request by de Cuellar to send a charter plane with medicine for hospitals in Kuwait. Kuwaiti officials said patients in Kuwaiti hospitals were dying because Iraqi troops confiscated all medical supplies.

Representatives from non-aligned countries were to meet with Perez de Cuellar Thursday afternoon to press for the U.N. mission to Israel and discuss further action by the council on the issue, the diplomats said.

Perez de Cuellar told reporters Thursday he is still awaiting assurances from the Israeli government that it would cooperate with his mission. He said he would send the U.N. team as soon as the assurances were received.

The Security Council last Saturday condemned the killing of 21 Palestinians by Jerusalem police and asked Perez de Cuellar to report on ''findings and conclusions'' on the incidents before Oct. 31.

The government of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir strongly protested the council resolution and criticized the United States for voting to censure Israel. It rejected any official U.N. probe on the incidents.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 19) UPI - Israeli soldiers shot and wounded at least 26 Palestinians who attacked a new Israeli army observation post in a Gaza Strip refugee camp in an incident that turned the U.S. crude market upward.

Hundreds of residents in the Rafah refugee camp's Shabura neighborhood threw stones and bottles Thursday at soldiers who had just set up the observation post on the roof of a three-story building, Palestinian sources said.

The residents were enraged that the army had put a post in the center of the neighborhood for the first time since the start of the 34-month- old uprising against Israeli occupation, the sources said.

The posts, a common site in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, usually are manned by several soldiers and fly an Israeli flag.

The soldiers used ''a variety of means'' to disperse the stone- throwing crowd ''including plastic bullets fired in a very controlled manner,'' the army spokesman said.

Palestinian sources said 35 people with gunshot wounds were brought to the hospital, including five in serious condition, but the army said 26 Arabs were injured in the incident.

The area was reported quiet by nightfall.

The news of the shooting helped U.S. crude prices rebound in afternoon trading after they fell more than $2 a barrel as the market's downward bias gained strength from Iraq's offer to sell oil at lower prices.

The U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery ended the day up 8 cents over Wednesday's close to $36.80 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange after trading as low as $34.40 a barrel.

Analysts had been looking for WTI to drop soon to around $34 a barrel, the Oct. 2 low price of recent weeks, once selling drove prices through the Merc's key $37.15 support level late Wednesday.

But the story of the shooting turned the market upward in late afternoon trading, said Tom Bentz, director of trading at New York's United Energy Inc.

JERUSALEM (OCT. 19) UPI - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir reaffirmed Israeli sovereignty over Jerusalem, saying it was a ''grave mistake'' for the U.N. Security Council to humiliate Israel in an effort to maintain unity in the U.S.-led coalition against Iraq.

Despite the veiled criticism of the United States in his comments Thursday, Shamir also attempted to play down tensions between Israel and its No. 1 ally that have increased since Israeli police killed at least 20 Palestinians on the Temple Mount nearly two weeks ago.

Last week, the U.N. Security Council, including the U.S. representative, condemned the Israeli action and ordered a delegation to Israel to investigate the violence.

Israel's Cabinet rejected cooperating with the U.N. delegation, and Israeli leaders have characterized the resolution as one-sided with its condemnation of Israel but no denouncement of stones thrown by Palestinians onto Jewish worshipers at the nearby Western Wall.

Without referring directly to the United States, Shamir denounced the condemnation of Israel, urging Israel's supporters to turn away from attacks against his country and concentrate on confronting Iraq.

''The main factor in the camp fighting evil in the Middle East made a grave mistake when it tried to buy the unity of its camp in return for humiliating and endangering the state of Israel,'' Shamir told a convention of Israel's Union of Farmers Thursday.

The prime minister repeated his opposition to the U.N. delegation, which right-wing Israelis view as an encroachment on Israel's control over Jerusalem.

In letters to President Bush and Secretary of State James Baker this week, Shamir and Foreign Minister David Levy also said Israel would continue construction in all parts of Jerusalem, Israel Radio reported.

At the same time, Israeli officials have said Israel would cooperate with the monitoring of how U.S. funds and bank guarantees for housing construction were used. Washington opposes use of its funds for projects outside Israel's pre-1967 borders, which includes East Jerusalem.

''We do not want a conflict with the United States. We do not want any political confrontations at all,'' Shamir told the convention. ''But Israel can in no way sign with its own hands on a verdict of resigning its sovereignty over Jerusalem.

''We call on our friends to turn the unfortunate leaf, to erase it and to concentrate again on the main mission of destroying the terrible danger and (concentrating on) peace and stability in this important part of the world.''

Israel annexed Arab East Jerusalem and the Old City after its troops captured the territory from Jordan during the 1967 Israeli- Arab war and declared Jerusalem the nation's capital. But most nations, including the United States, consider East Jerusalem occupied territory.

Levy said Thursday he believed tension between Israel and the United States had been reduced after Baker on Wednesday reaffirmed the need for a unified Jerusalem. Levy also indicated Israel might consider cooperating with a U.N. delegation on the Temple Mount violence if it was not connected to the Security Council resolution.

Israel agreed Thursday to cooperate with the U.N. secretary-general in preparing a report on the deaths on Jerusalem's Temple Mount. The proposal indicated a softening of Israel's opposition to a U.N. investigation on the Oct. 8 incident but stopped short of fully receiving a U.N. mission to Israel.

Shamir has appointed a three-member committee, led by a former chief of Israel's Mossad intelligence agency, to investigate the violence. On Thursday, the Israeli investigation team interviewed Border Police involved in the rioting.

BUDAPEST, HUNGARY (OCT. 19) UPI - A former intelligence officer who blew the whistle on alleged government spying on opposition groups pleaded innocent to a charge of violating state secrecy laws.

Retired Maj. Jozsef Vegvari caused a major scandal in January when he allowed a television crew to record evidence that the former communist government was still eavesdropping on dissidents and infiltrating legal opposition groups months after such practices were outlawed.

In tearful testimony Thursday on the opening day of his trial, Vegvari said he was personally involved in the surveillance but became ''disgusted'' with the work he was doing.

''What the 'company' (secret police) did was wrong and sinful'', he told a military court in Budapest after pleading innocent to charges of violating secrecy laws and neglecting his duty.

The charges were initially lodged against Vegvari in March, but a court dismissed the case after admonishing the officer, ruling that Vegvari had served his country by revealing unconstitutional activity.

But the case was not put to rest. After parliamentary elections in April, newly elected chief prosecutor Kalman Gyorgyi decided to re-open the case, saying, ''it would constitute a dangerous precedent if a breach of the secrecy act were to go unpunished''.

If convicted, Vegvari would face of prison term of one to five years.

The 47-year-old father of two children retired from his job in April, saying he feared retaliation from his former colleagues.

For more than 20 years he was an officer of Department 3-3 of the Communist Party-controlled Secret Service, a division responsible for spying on dissident Hungarians.

Vegvari said he made the decision to expose his department's surveillance activity on Dec. 24, when he witnessed a rally by tens of thousands of Hungarians who gathered in central Budapest for a religious service commemorating victims of the anti-communist uprising in Romania.

The rally touched him so deeply he felt he could ''no longer bear my burdens '' he testified.

Through an intermediary, he contacted the then-underground television crew ''Black Box,'' which sought to collect evidence about the repressive activities of the communist regime. During the Christmas holiday, Vegvari allowed a Black Box crew to enter the secret chambers of the service and film evidence of government surveillance of opposition groups.

The crew recorded evidence of clandestine tapping of telephones and infiltration of political parties and other groups by Secret Service agents, some of which was aired on national television in January.

DUMFRIES, SCOTLAND (OCT. 19) UPI - A small piece of printed circuit board was the first clue that Pan Am Flight 103 had been blown up by a bomb hidden in a radio-cassette player, an investigator told a disaster inquiry.

The fragment was found by aviation accident investigators as they reconstructed a shattered baggage container from the Boeing 747, which was destroyed Dec. 21, 1988, killing 270 people.

Michael Charles, the principal aviation investigator, told a Scottish inquiry Thursday that he said colleague Peter Claiden found a buckled piece of the container's metal skin as it was being rebuilt in Farnborough, England.

''As he gently pried it open, he found inside a piece of printed circuit board '' Charles said.

Forensic scientists examined the piece and ''related it to a particular type of radio-cassette player which had been fitted with an improvised explosive device,'' Charles said.

''Once we heard this we realized it could not be a huge bomb. It was of concern to us that such a relatively small device could cause such total destruction. We knew we had a lot more work to do.''

The device blasted a 20-square-inch hole in the outer skin of the forward cargo hold of the aircraft.

The ''catastropic disintegration'' of the plane took just 46.5 seconds - from when the aircraft's black box recorded an explosion to when fallen wreckage caused shockwaves that registered on seismic equipment, Charles said.

The leader of the 15-member team of investigators said that on Christmas Day, four days after the crash, searchers found pieces of a suitcase and the base of a baggage container with pitting. Explosive and metallurgy experts were convinced this indicated a high-energy explosion.

Charles announced there was evidence of an explosion on Dec. 28, 1988.

He also said a Glasgow-bound shuttle was lucky to avoid a mid-air collision with wreckage from the Pan Am jumbo over Lockerbie.

The British Airways jet from Heathrow was descending when it passed near the scene of the crash. Radar pictures showed it passed just beneath the edge of the area of debris from Flight 103.

''That is fortuitous, Charles said. ''Had the shuttle been further to the west it might have been a different story. There could have been ''ent story. There could ha

The Scottish inquiry is considering the circumstances of the bombing, while police and intelligence agencies are seeking those who built and planted the device.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - In the latest of a series of daring operations, California surgeons saved the life of one of two fetuses with a deformed lung by performing surgery in the womb, it was reported.

Although doctors previously performed successful operations on fetuses for other ailments, the new cases are the first in which surgery was done for a condition called congenital cystic adenomatoid malformation or CCAM, the researchers said Thursday.

''Open fetal surgery has been successful in treatment of otherwise fatal anatomical abnormalities, and we now add appropriately selected cases of CCAM to those congenital lesions that are amenable to fetal surgical therapy,'' the University of California San Francisco surgeons wrote in the British medical journal The Lancet.

CCAM is a rare disorder in which damaging cysts grow in part of the lungs of developing fetuses. In mild cases, babies can undergo surgery after they are born to have the malformed lung section removed. In severe cases, however, the malformation can kill the developing fetus and endanger the life of the mother.

In the successful case, a 25-year-old pregnant woman was discovered to be carrying a female fetus stricken with CCAM and agreed to undergo the surgery in the 23rd week of the baby's development last spring.

The 72-minute procedure involved making an incision in the mother's uterus and pulling the left arm and chest of the fetus was out through the opening. Surgeons then cut open the chest of the fetus, surgically removed the malformed lung lobe, put the fetus back in the womb and closed the incision.

The baby was delivered through Caesarean section seven weeks later and was doing well five months later, the doctors reported.

A similar procedure was earlier attempted on a fetus 27 weeks into development being carried by a 24-year-old women, the doctors reported. But the child died about a week later after the mother's condition deteriorated and the child had to be delivered by Caesarean.

Dr. Michael Harrison, a professor of surgery who led the team, attributed the failure in that case to the fetus being sicker by the time the case was diagnosed.

The same team previously has successfully performed similar surgery to save the lives of fetuses stricken with a blocked urinary tract and a condition known as congenital diaphragmatic hernias.

But Harrison cautioned in a telephone interview that such procedures are far routine and are only performed when there are no alternatives.

''We're still very early in our experience. We're still feeling our way along.I don't think people should think this is routine,'' he said.

MIAMI (OCT. 19) UPI - The Miami Dolphins did it with defense in Thursday night's 17-10 victory over the New England Patriots, overcoming an offense that tried to give the game away.

''The way we played offensively was about as bad as you can play and still survive,'' Miami Coach Don Shula said.

The offense managed only one touchdown on Sammie Smith's 2-yard crash over the middle and Pete Stoyanovich's 47-yard field goal. The Miami special teams scored on Mark Higgs' blocked punt and 19-yard return.

While the Dolphin attack was managing only 50 yards on the ground and 279 in the air, the defense was holding the Pats (1-5) to even lower numbers. New England rushed for only 49 yards and quarterback Marc Wilson passed for 148.

''Our defense I thought really did a great job and and kept battling them,'' Shula said.

Miami (5-1) lost the ball in the first half on fumbles by tight end Ferrell Edmunds, and running backs Sammie Smith, Troy Stradford and Marc Logan. In addition, Dan Marino threw an interception.

But New England (1-5) netted only 34 yards in the first half. Wilson completed only three passes in 10 attempts for 20 yards in the first two quarters.

''Without a doubt, when the offense is struggling like that, especially turning the ball over, it's going to put pressure on the defense,'' cornerback Tim McKyer said. ''Our job is to keep people from scoroing regardless of what kind of circumstances you have to overcome and we managed to get it done tonight.''

The Patriots found their offense after intermission and closed to within a touchdown with 6:18 left when Wilson and George Adams hooked up for a touchdown on fourth-and-goal from the 4. It was the second fourth- down conversion of the 53-yard drive.

Earlier, the Patriots advanced on fourth-and-two at the Miami 21 when McKyer was called for pass interference on receiver Greg McMurtry.

Later, the Patriots tried again on fourth-and-one with 3:25 left in the game. But this time Wilson's quarterback sneak was stopped by linebacker David Griggs and end T.J. Turner.

''A quarterback sneak is hard to stop because they know it and only have to get a foot or two, and you're guessing sometimes,'' Miami linebacker John Offerdahl said. ''But the linemen did a great job. They're the ones that have to make that play and they just bottled them up.''

The Patriots only score in the first half came on Jason Staurovsky's 41-yard field goal. Stoyanovich kicked a 47-yarder for Miami in addition to Higgs' blocked punt and 19-yard return and Smith's score.

Staurovsky's field goal came at the end of a 45-yard drive that started when cornerback Ronnie Lippett's second fumble recovery in four plays.

In addition to Lippett's two recoveries, another former University of Miami defensive back, Fred Marion, recovered two and intercepted a pass.

''When we had chances, we couldn't take advantage of it,'' New England Coach Rod Rust said. ''When we ran the ball they beat us, and when we passed they covered us and when we were open we dropped it.''

Stoyanovich's field goal in the second quarter tied the score at 3-3. It came after the Dolphins drove 35 yards from their own 35 to the New England 30. Two minutes later, Higgs broke free up the middle and blocked Brian Hansen's punt, picked up the ball at the 19 and raced untouched into the end zone.

Smith's touchdown came with 2:03 left in the third quarter. It was set up when Marino zipped a pass past safety Brian Hutson into the hands of Mark Clayton up the middle for 36 yards to the 2.

''They made some good plays, but we stopped ourselves,'' Patriot receiver Irving Fryar said.

Last week Fryar was charged with weapons violations during a brawl outside a Rhode Island bar. The Patriots problems started before then, when five players were accused of sexual harassment of a woman reporter in their locker room.

''The off-the-field problems have bothered us, but we still had a chance,'' Fryar said.

(OCT. 19) UPI - A final vote is expected early Friday morning in the Senate, where lawmakers are debating the Senate's version of the deficit-reduction bill. Senators Thursday rejected an amendment calling for higher taxes for the rich... and a lower gasoline tax increase of six cents a gallon. A temporary funding bill to keep the government running expires at midnight Friday.

France says it does NOT want to wait for the outcome of its investigation into the reported executions of soldiers who backed a now defeated general in Lebanon. The Paris government on Thursday formally asked the United Nations to prevent more Syrian-approved killings of troops loyal to Lebanese General Michel Aoun. Dozens of Aoun's soldiers were reportedly executed despite Aoun's agreeing to all the demands of Lebanon's Syrian-backed president.

Savings and loan scandal figure Charles Keating is out on bail after spending a month jailed on securities and fraud charges. A federal judge on Thursday reduced Keating's bail from five-Million dollars to 300- thousand, saying a lower court set the higher bail in an arbitrary fashion. The former owner of the failed Lincoln Savings is scheduled to go on trial next month.

Israeli troops fired on Palestinians once again Thursday, wounding at least 26 Arabs who attacked a new Israeli army observation post in the Gaza Strip. (OCT. 19) UPI - The Philadelphia Flyers and Detroit Red Wings both missed the playoffs last season, but this season both clubs are off to fast starts, thanks in large part to home cooking.

Both teams remained undefeated at home Thursday night when Philadelphia took a 5-4 decision from the Quebec Nordiques and Detroit racked up a 5-2 victory over the Montreal Canadiens.

The Flyers were 17-19-4 at the Spectrum in 1989-90, when they missed the playoffs for the first time in 18 years.

''One of our goals was to re-establish our home ice advantage,'' said Scott Mellanby, who recorded a pair of assists against the Nordiques. ''We didn't have it last year and we had a losing record. We wanted to let teams know that when they come in here, they're going to have their work cut out for them.''

Norm Lacombe broke a 4-4 tie with his third goal of the season. He fired a wrist shot past Quebec goaltender John Tanner at 9:50 of the final period after the Nordiques gave the puck away in their own zone.

''The puck came loose and I went out toward the blue line,'' Lacombe said. ''I turned around, saw there was a screen and shot it past the goaltender's leg.''

Joe Sakic scored two goals and assisted on a third for Quebec, which lost for the first time in five games (2-1-2).

''We didn't play well in the first period but after that we got things going '' Sakic said. ''Last year, we wouldn't have kept on fighting until the end. This year, there's a different attitude on the team.''

At Detroit, The Red Wings won their fourth straight at home to move into a first-place tie with the Chicago Blackhawks in the Norris Division. Detroit's No. 1 line of Gallant, Steve Yzerman and Dave Barr figured in three of the goals. Yzerman had two goals and an assist and Barr had three assists.

''You can't play just .500 hockey at home because it's too hard to win at the other arenas,'' Barr said.

Last year the Red Wings finished 13th in the league in home winning percentage.

''If you can win at home you'll be a success in the league,'' said Detroit coach Bryan Murray. ''We have confidence at home now. I've had it the other way and it's tough when you can't win at home.''

Elsewhere in the NHL, it was Chicago 3, Toronto 0; and St. Louis 4, Calgary 3.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Blackhawks 3, Maple Leafs 0

At Chicago, Ed Belfour recorded his first NHL shutout and Keith Brown assisted on a pair of goals to guide Chicago over still winless Toronto.Belfour, 5-2 this season, faced just 20 shots, but 10 of them came in the first period when he was forced to make several good saves. The Blackhawks outshot their opponents 49-20 for the game, including 21- 4 in the final period.Chicago got its goals from Jocelyn Lemieux, Troy Murray and Jeremy Roenick, with Brown assisting on the first and last.

Blues 4, Flames 3

At Calgary, Brett Hull scored a pair of goals to lead the St. Louis Blues to their first victory in nine games against the Flames dating back to Jan. 2, 1988. Hull scored his 6th and 7th goals of the season to beat his former team for the first time since he was traded to St. Louis in the 1987-88 season.Trailing 4-0 with just over five minutes gone in the final period, the Flames mounted a comeback on goals by Sergei Makarov, Theoren Fleury and Paul Ranheim.scored 16 seconds apart midway through the period, cutting the margin to 4-3.Paul MacLean and Sergio Momesso also scored for St. Louis.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) UPI - Japan seized a record 30.2 pounds of cocaine in 1989, a 64-fold increase over the preceding year, the Justice Ministry reported Friday.

The report said the largest single haul of 2.6 pounds smuggled from Colombia was made at the western port city of Kobe in August.

The annual report on crimes warned that there were indications that cocaine abuse will continue to grow in Japan.

The ministry said the 1989 figure compared with 3.6 pounds in 1987 and 4.6 pounds in 1988.

The report also said the seizure of heroin amounted to 60.9 pounds in 1989, up from 30.1 pounds in 1988, while that of marijuana more than doubled to 1,000 pounds from 436 pounds.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

The Senate passed a bipartisan deficit-reduction bill early this morning. Now differences will have to be worked out between the Senate bill and a version the House passed earlier. Conferees plan to meet later today. The White House says President Bush will sign a new stop- gap funding bill that will keep the government running through October 24th.

Former savings-and-loan executive Charles Keating is out of jail. Keating walked out of a jail in Los Angeles last night, a few hours after a federal judge reduced his bail from five-Million to 300-thousand dollars. Keating is charged in the collapse of Lincoln Savings, which was seized by federal regulators last year.

Violence hit the Illinois campaign for governor last night. An aide to Democratic candidate Neil Hartigan says a shot was fired at Hartigan's office in Springfield. NO one was hurt and damage was minor. State police say someone called the Executive Mansion to say Republican candidate Jim Edgar should also expect trouble.

An Energy Department advisory panel is critical of the rush to re- start the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant in Colorado. GOLDEN, COLO. (OCT. 19) UPI - A moderate earthquake measuring 4.7 on the Richter scale struck the Canadian province of Quebec early Friday and was felt in parts of the northeastern United States, officials said.

The quake hit at 3:02 a.m. EDT and the epicenter was located near the village of Mont-Laurier, about 70 miles north of Ottawa, and there were no reports of damage or injuries, the National Earthquake Information Center said.

''This is a moderate earthquake,'' said Pat Jorgenson, a spokeswoman for the Earthquake Center, which is run by the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

''It probably awakened a lot of people; 4.7, especially in that kind of country, is a pretty significant tremor,'' Jorgenson said, adding the type of rock in the eastern part of the continent tends to amplify shockwaves from quakes.

The quake was felt in Toronto, Quebec City and Montreal in Canada and Buffalo and Albany, N.Y., and Burlington, Vt., she said.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - A 16-year-old boy was shot in the mouth while playing his flute in his Bronx bedroom, police said Friday.

Amari Foster, 16, was sitting in his bedroom at in Soundview when the bullet entered his room through his 18th floor window about 11 p.m. Thursday and struck him in the mouth, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

Amari was listed in good condition at Jacobi Hospital, he said.

''He was sitting in bed in his bedroom playing his flute when he was struck by a bullet that came crashing through the window,'' Burns said.

The bullet shattered the glass, the sergeant said.

It was not known whether the shot was random or intended, he said.

BEIJING (OCT. 19) UPI - The government Friday acknowledged the first two deaths of mainland Chinese attributed to AIDS, one of them a drug user, and a senior health official warned the disease ''has become a reality in China.''

The Ministry of Public Health, in statements carried by the state-run China Daily and the official Xinhua news agency, reported the two AIDS carriers, both men, died this year of infections related to the HIV virus.

Although foreigners and overseas Chinese have been stricken by AIDS in China, it was the first time deaths of Chinese citizens on the mainland were directly attributed to acquired immune deficiency syndrome since Beijing began reporting the disease in the mid-1980s.

Dai Zhicheng, deputy director of the Public Health Ministry's Department of Preventive Medicine, said one death was an intravenous drug user who ''contracted the virus from a communal needle'' in southern Yunnan Province and died last February.

The second, a Beijing resident, contracted the virus ''via sexual contact'' and died in August, Dai said. He added there were three previous AIDS cases reported in China, all of them foreigners.

''AIDS has become a reality in China and it may develop into a serious problem

'' Dai said.

''Since there are no effective medical cures or preventive inoculations for AIDS at present, increased awareness and education are the only ways available to halt the spread of AIDS,'' he said.

But as in the past, officials also tried to minimize the overall risk despite a tiny number of detected carriers in a population of more than 1.1 billion people. Dai claimed Chinese health authorities had several ''advantages'' in combatting AIDS.

''The efficiency of China's public health system is such as to be able to easily control the spread of the disease,'' he said.

Since 1985, China has reported only 446 AIDS carriers, 68 of them foreigners. Of the 378 mainland Chinese carriers, 368 were found in Yunnan, the area of China worst affected by drug use because it borders the opium-producing ''Golden Triangle'' region.

Four Chinese hemophiliacs were known to have contracted the AIDS virus from blood products imported from the United States. Two later died, but their deaths were blamed on other health problems.

Dai also noted the disease appeared later in China than in other countries and that most of the detected carriers are concentrated in Yunnan and are ''therefore easily monitored.''

Western health officials, however, have in the past criticized a slow official awakening to the AIDS threat in China. The government dismissed AIDS as a foreign problem through much of the 1980s and only began to respond seriously in the past three years.

The delay was partly due to official reluctance to admit social problems China claimed to have eradicated after the 1949 communist revolution such as drug abuse and homosexuality, both high-risk and both practiced secretly in a repressive society.

China reported this week that drug cases have jumped dramatically this year over last year, and put the number of addicts nationwide at 70,000, the first time such a high figure has been acknowledged.

Drug abuse in the country, particularly in the south, has risen as smugglers from the Golden Triangle - the borders of Laos, Burma and Thailand to the south of Yunnan Province - have increasingly shipped opium and heroin through southern China to Hong Kong.

The China Daily said the government is planning to form a joint medical team with the World Health Organization next month to begin a special AIDS-control effort in Yunnan.

At the same time, Dai said China recorded 270,000 cases of venereal disease in the first eight months of this year including 40,000 people who registered at hospitals for treatment of syphilis and gonorrhea.

He said the latter figure was at most only a fourth of the actual number of those infected.

JOHANESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (OCT. 19) UPI - The ruling National Party irrevocably ratified a decision to open its ranks to all races Friday after 76 years of exclusively white membership.

The fourth and last annual provincial congress of the party, in Pretoria, confirmed motions passed by the other congresses that the Nationalists accept all races - another step in President Frederik de Klerk's program of racial reforms.

''We can now say that all four congresses have finally prepared the National Party for the new South Africa,'' de Klerk said. ''The National Party and South Africa are now on the moral high ground.''

De Klerk first proposed the party open its ranks at the Aug. 31 Natal congress noting, ''Power-sharing of necessity implies joint decision- making on matters of common interest in joint constitutional structures.''

At the opening of the two-day Transvaal congress Thursday night, de Klerk warned the official opposition ultra-rightist Conservative Party against continuing its unspecified passive resistance campaign to his reforms.

He called such action ''absolutely unacceptable.''

Foreign Minister Roelof ''Pik'' Botha put the motion on opening membership to the congress Friday during debate on other issues. As at the other congresses, the motion was unanimously approved by the 1,500 delegates.

Party insiders speculate membership will officially be opened by early next year. The African National Congress and other anti-apartheid groups have said blacks will not join in large numbers but analysts have noted this would not diminish the significance of open membership.

The Nationalists came to power in 1948 on a platform of protecting white interests and ensuring exclusively white rule.

But de Klerk vowed to bring power sharing to the country when he launched his racial reforms in February.

He has legalized the black opposition, released scores of political prisoners, scrapped a key discriminatory law and promised to abolish the rest and held two rounds of talks with the ANC that have cleared the way to fullpower-sharing negotiations.

LONDON (OCT. 19) UPI - The ruling Conservative Party suffered an upset defeat in an election to replace a member of Parliament who was killed by the Irish Republican Army, and polls Friday reflected the party's weakness in the run-up to the next general election.

David Bellotti, a Liberal Democrat, was the upset victor late Thursday in the election in Eastbourne, a Conservative stronghold for 84 years, over Conservative Richard Hickmett.

Turnout in the election, about 50 miles (80 km) south of London, was estimated at 60 percent.

Bellotti gathered 23,415 votes to Hickmett's 18,865. Other candidates, including Labor and Green party candidates, gathered 2,861 votes.

The parliamentary seat was opened when Conservative MP Ian Gow, a close friend of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, was killed by an IRA bomb in July.

The Conservatives had campaigned hard on a theme of law and order, emphasizing the fight against terrorism. Observers commenting in Friday's newspapers said the surprise victory for Bellotti indicated a backlash against the campaign tactics.

Also hurting the Conservatives was a downturn in the economy, with 10.9 percent inflation, the highest since 1982, and an increased number of business failures. Unemployment was 5.8 percent in September.

The failure of the ruling party to hold Eastbourne was reflected in polls showing the Conservatives had slipped 10 points behind the Labor Party in the run-up to a general election, which must be called by mid- 1992.

According to a British Broadcasting Corp. poll, Labor is supported by 47 percent of the public, while the Conservatives rate 37 percent. The Liberal Democrats, despite their win in Eastbourne, held only 10 percent of those polled, while the Green Party garnered 3 percent.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Stock prices on the newly buoyant Tokyo Stock Exchange recorded their fifth straight gain Friday in the heaviest trading of the year.

The blue chip Nikkei average of 225 selective issues, which climbed 507.72 points Thursday, capped the week of strong performances with a 114.41-point gain to 24,481.49.

The closely watched index catapulted 2,091.33 points, or 9.3 percent, for the week.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major shares forged ahead 32.76 points to 1,816.29, outdoing its 30.19 point performance Thursday.

Volume was the heaviest this year as an estimated 1.1 billion shares changed hands, up from Thursday's 740 million shares.

Advances outpaced declines 801 to 221, while 97 issues remained unchanged.

On the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, the U.S. dollar rebounded slightly against the Japanese yen on position adjustment buying ahead of the weekend.

The Bank of Japan reported the dollar closed at 125.25 yen, up 0.85 yen from 124.40 yen on Thursday.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices surged on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as investors' confidence in the market continued to fuel higher volumes.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index, which slipped 8.02 points Thursday, climbed 41.43 points to 2,991.95. For the week the key index gained 76.69 points.

Among the narrower indexes, financials added 0.28 points, industrials rose 48.59, utilities gained 56.43 and properties surged 78.42 points.

An estimated 1.08 billion shares changed hands, well above the 797 million shares traded Thursday.

In Singapore, stock prices continued to move higher in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange, encouraged by the fifth straight gain in Tokyo.

The Straits Times Industrial Index, which gained 9.76 points Thursday, climbed 28.32 points to 1,139.85. For the week, the closely watched index gained 45.48 points.

The broader-based All Singapore Index, which added 1.80 points Thursday, rose 7.15 points to 313.84 and gained 8.76 points for the week.

Volume amounted to around an estimated 48.2 million shares, well above the 28.1 million shares changing hands Thursday.

In Bangkok, prices close slightly higher on the Thailand Stock Exchange.

In Seoul, stock prices on the Korean Exchange rose sharply for the third straight session.

In Australia, prices closed higher in brisk trading on the Sydney Exchange.

(OCT. 19) UPI - The budget goes back to a congressional conference panel today. The Senate passed its deficit-reduction plan early today, three days after the House approved its own bill. The Senate plan contains a gasoline tax increase but NO income tax increase. The House plan does just the opposite. A conference committee meets later today to try to work out the differences. President Bush favors the Senate plan. .

The government will have the money to operate until Wednesday. The White House says President Bush will sign a new stop-gap spending bill that will kick in when the current temporary funding bill expires at midnight.

A moderate earthquake measuring four-point-seven on the Richter scale occurred in the Canadian province of Quebec early this morning. It also was felt in northeastern states. The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colorado, says the center of the quake was about 70 miles north of Ottawa. There are NO reports of damage or injuries.

BERLIN (OCT. 19) UPI - Volkswagen AG plans to invest $2.8 billion for an automotobile production plant in eastern Germany, the largest injection of private capital in what used to be communist East Germany, company officials said Friday.

Most of the $2.8 billion will be used to complete a plant at Mosel near the southeastern town of Chemnitz that should be in production by 1994, VW Chairman Carl Hahn said.

An agreement was signed late Thursday by Hahn and officials of the former East German auto cooperative IFA Pkw AG. The deal was also signed by the trust fund administration that supervises the privatization of about 8,000 former state-owned East German firms.

The investment will also be used to restructure IFA subsidiaries and renew production lines.

Hahn said the subsidiary at Mosel will begin production by 1994, eventually producting 250,000 Golf automobiles annually.

He said Volkswagen, the second largest European auto manufacturer after the Italian giant Fiat, plans to create 8,000 new production jobs and another 6,500 service positions.

Volkswagen was one of the first West German companies to invest in East Germany after the ouster of the Stalinist leadership last fall, while other firms hesitated to risk their money before German unification Oct. 3.

The government recently created financial incentives for companies to enter joint ventures, buy firms or seek partners in the new part of the Federal Republic to speed up economic recovery.

Volkswagen, for example, is eligible for 33 percent in government subsidies for $2.8 billion investment.

KAMPALA, Uganda (OCT. 19) UPI - Rebels fighting a 20-day war in the east African state of Rwanda have consolidated their grip on the north of the country, Ugandan newspapers reported Friday.

The rebels of the Rwandese Patriotic Front, led by a former Ugandan army commander, crashed across the Ugandan border Sept. 30 vowing to depose Rwandese President Juvenal Habyarimana. Since then, Belgium, France, Zaire, the European Community, Uganda, Tanzania and Kenya have joined efforts to stop the war.

The northeastern town of Nyagatare, 50 miles north of the capital Kigali, fell to the rebels after two weeks of fierce fighting, Ugandan state-owned newspaper New Vision reported. It said hundreds had died in the fight for the isolated rural town, including civilians.

However, Rwandese ambassador to Kenya, Cyprien Habimana, told a news conference in Nairobi that his government believed there were no civilians left in the town and reports of government troops killing civilians were without foundation.

''I strongly deny that,'' he said. ''It didn't happen.''

The rebels also consolidated their hold on the town of Gabiro, 15 miles to the south, a rebel officer told journalists at the Ugandan border.

According to Rwandese government figures, the rebels now outnumber government forces by four to one. Habimana said there were 20,000 rebels in his country, mostly long-term refugees who had deserted from the Ugandan army.

Meanwhile, intensive diplomatic efforts to resolve the crisis continued, with President Habyarimana in Paris to press home a call for a European monitoring force to be sent to his country, and Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens still in east Africa after shuttling to Uganda and Rwanda's southern neighbor Burundi seeking a peace formula.

Rwanda has said it will talk to the rebels and liberalize its one- party political system if a ceasefire is agreed.

The root of Rwanda's problem, according to both Habyarimana and Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni, lies in the fact that up to half a million Rwandese are currently refugees outside their country - in Zaire, Uganda, Tanzania, Burundi, Kenya and even in Senegal in west Africa.

Rwanda, the most densely populated country in Africa, is likely to undergo a major famine this fall and has appealed for its neighbors to keep those refugees they have while repatriation deals are worked out under the auspices of the U.N. High Commission for Refugees.

Most of the refugees, from the minority Tutsi tribe, fled in the early 1960s from tribal massacres which now threaten to repeat themselves on a grand scale in Rwanda.

Apart from reports of government massacres in the past two weeks, there have also been widespread incidents of violence among the civilian population since the rebel invasion.

Both Rwanda and Burundi have a history of tension between the majority Hutu tribe, now ruling in Rwanda, and the economically powerful Tutsi who still control Burundi.

JOLIET, ILL. (OCT. 19) UPI - A 25-year-old Mississippi man was charged with murder Friday after a gang-related shooting on Joliet's East Side that left two men dead and three other people injured, two critically.

Watch Commander Phil Ragusa said Michael Blackwell of Hattiesburg, Miss., was charged with two counts of murder after his arrest Thursday night.

The identities of the victims were not released but the injured included two men and a woman.

''There was a party going on at a residence,'' Ragusa said. ''Two rival gang members lived there, one upstairs, one downstairs. They had been on talking terms in the past but apparently something occured.''

Ragusa said gang members from the downstairs residence went upstairs to confront their rival when the shooting occurred.

PARIS (OCT. 19) UPI - Opposition politicians called Friday for the U.N. Security Council to force Syrian troops out of Lebanon as the storm over reports of summary executions of soldiers of defeated Lebanese Christian Gen. Michel Aoun reached fever pitch in France.

Bernard Stasi, vice president of the Social Democratic Center party, said a decision Thursday by the Quai d'Orsay to call for U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to intervene to prevent further slayings by Syrian forces was ''a good initiative. But one must go further than that. That is not sufficient.''

''One must summon the U.N. Security Council to demand the immediate withdrawal of Syrian forces from the Christian enclave, but also to demand the retreat as rapidly as possible of all foreign troops, Syrian and Israeli, from all Lebanese territory,'' said Stasi in an interview on RTL radio.

Stasi accused the United States of giving Syria a free hand in Lebanon in return for Syrian support against Iraq and said he expected the United States to oppose U.N. efforts to curb Damascus.

There are reports up to 100 soldiers under Aoun's command, until he surrendered Saturday and took refuge in the French Embassy, were rounded up by Syrian troops and shot, many after being bound hand and foot.

President Francois Mitterrand gave an hour-long audience Friday to opposition Republican Party leader Francois Leotard, a self-styled standard bearer of the cause of the Maronite Christians in Lebanon who have traditionally been defended by France in the former French colony.

Leotard later accused Mitterrand of supporting Syrian-backed Lebanese President Elias Hrawi and challenged the ''legitimacy'' of the Hrawi government.

Leotard called for free elections in Lebanon as soon as possible and said France should use ''the considerable leverage'' at its disposal because of commercial ties to rein in Syrian President Hafez Assad, who he called a ''dictator.''

Le Figaro newspaper headlined its front-page report of the executions, ''The Crime of the Victors.''

''With the revelations on the massacres of Beirut, one has suddenly reached the limits of Realpolitik,'' said the conservative newspaper in an editorial.

''After having obtained the green light from the international community to put an end to the Christian stronghold, Syria has believed itself authorized to slaughter, after their surrender, the soldiers of General Aoun.

''The massacre of his faithful by Syrian soldiers has in any case demonstrated one thing,'' Le Figaro contended. ''Aoun was right.''

(OCT. 19) UPI - In a further sign that U.N. economic sanctions are beginning to work, Iraq announced Friday it will start rationing gas next Tuesday, Baghdad Radio said.

Iraqi Oil Minister Issam Abdulrahim Chalabi did not say how long the rationing would last but said it would include affect private cars, trucks and taxis but not the military, the state-owned radio said.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein never resorted to gas rationing even during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq War and the measure appeared to be another indication that economic sanctions imposed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait were working.

Chalabi did not say why rationing was introduced and analysts speculated that lack of spare parts for the country's refineries may have necessitated the move.

In a separate development, Germany said Friday Baghdad will free eight German hostages but at the same time some 100 relatives of German hostages still left in Iraq demonstrated in Bonn to complain their government was not doing enough to help free the captives.

A German Foreign Ministry spokesman did not say when the eight Germans would be released but said they were on a list of ''urgent cases'' of elderly and sick people the German government presented to Iraq some time ago.

''It has been announced that a release will take place,'' the German government spokesman said. The spokesman said Iraq informed the German Embassy in Baghdad of the decision.

The oldest to be released is 77-year-old Hans-Gerd Sandsteet, the German spokesman said. An Iraqi diplomat in Bonn said the Germans were in good health and were being treated well.

Iraq is still holding about 300 German hostages, including 76 thought to have been taken to strategic locations in Iraq to serve as human shields against allied attack.

Cairo Radio said Iraq late Thursday allowed some 130 Soviet technicians to leave for home and another Soviet plane was expected in Baghdad on Sunday to transport another batch of nationals home.

Iraq warned earlier this week it would be forced to detain some Soviet military advisers if Moscow passed on Iraqi military secrets to Washington. There are 5,000 Soviet nationals left in Iraq but neither country has officially classified them as hostages.

In London, former Conservative British Prime Minister Edward Heath left for Baghdad Friday via the Jordanian capital of Amman on a private visit to seek the release of sick and elderly British hostages, Amman Radio said.

Iraq asked Heath, a persistent critic of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's domestic and foreign policiesy, to postpone his visit for a week to give Iraqi authorities time to prepare for his visit. Some British lawmakers described the trip as a propaganda coup for Saddam but Heath insisted it is his ''humanitarian duty.''

Also Friday, Iraq told all foreigners still in Kuwait to register by Nov. 5 and warned that ''anyone who does not get a valid residence visa will be fined or jailed,'' Baghdad Radio said.

It said Jordanians, Egyptians and Yemenis were excluded from the order.

Iraq has warned Kuwaitis that anyone caught harboring a foreigner faces possible execution.

SALEM, MASS. (OCT. 19) UPI - A former Salem woman who allowed her three sons to be sexually molested during sex parties at her home could face up to life in prison when sentenced next month.

Terri Clements, 32, now of Seabrook, N.H., was convicted Thursday on charges of rape and abuse of a child and indecent assault. The 12-member Essex County Superior Court jury deliberated for less than three hours before returning the guilty verdict.

The children testified during the trial that their mother engaged in sexaul acts with them at parties in their Salem home between 1984 and 1986.

The three boys, now aged 9, 11 and 13, said they were lined up against a wall so that guests could pick which one they wanted for sex, prosecutors said. When two guests wanted the same child, they flipped a coin to decide who would go first, Assistant District Attorney Janice Howe said.

A tearful Clements testified Wednesday that she hit and sometimes neglected her three sons and their younger sister, but insisted she never touched them in a sexual way.

The children have been living with a relative and Clements has not spoken to them in more than two years.

Clements is slated to be sentenced Nov. 9 by Judge Patrick Brady. She could receive life in prison, Howe said.

The children's father, William Clements, and seven other defendants are currently awaiting trial in the case.

DALLAS (OCT. 19) UPI - A federal judge Thursday ordered reporters out of his courtroom during jury selection for the trial of former Vernon Savings and Loan owner Don Dixon on charges of misusing thrift funds.

U.S. District Judge A. Joe Fish said he was concerned prospective jurors would not be comfortable speaking in front of the media on such ''touchy subjects'' as charges of suing thrift funds to pay for prostitutes.

Don Dixon is accused in 38 counts of diverting thrift deposits for political and personal purposes including the extensive use of call girls. The failed Texas thrift cost taxpayers $1.3 billion, regulators say.

''This was clearly a case of weighing the public's right to know against making certain the defendant receives a fair trial,'' said Fish. ''The defendant's rights must be paramount.''

Attorneys for The Dallas Morning News and other organizations protested the action. Fish later said he would reconsider his decision and might reopen the proceedings Friday morning.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans late Thursday refused the Morning News' request to order Fish to open jury selection, but strongly disagreed with Fish's reasons for closing the proceedings.

The court of appeals panel disagreed with Fish's interpretation of the 1984 case backing his decision to close the courtroom.

The panel of three judges said it read the 1984 case, Press Enterprise vs. Superior Court of California, as requiring the court to instruct jurors to request private questioning in sensitive matters, rather than closing the trial on the expectation they would not be candid.

''We are confident the able judge Fish in this matter will consider our comments carefully.'' the panel said.

The indictment, returned in June, alleges Dixon falsified thrift records to conceal his use of the funds for hunting trips, political contributions, prostitutes, yachts, antique cars and a $2 million house in Solana Beach, Calif.

Dixon, who describes himself as an unemployed financial consultant, purchased a well-run hometown thrift and built it into a $1.7 billion institution with international assets and branches. He tied the pay of his top executives to the amount of money they could loan on commercial deals. Hundreds of millions were loaned on shaky enterprises from stud farms to gambling casinos, with taxpayers picking up the losses.

In earlier jury selection proceedings open to reporters, defense attorney Billy Ravkind said his client's ''wild ways'' did not cause Vernon to collapse.

''Be prepared,'' he told the panel. ''The government will present plenty of rock and roll - and no doubt, (Dixon) rocked and he rolled - plenty of sex and prostitutes. It's coming. It's coming. But the sex question has to be separated from the merits of the case.''

At one point, Ravkind surveyed potential jurors for their opinions on whether it was proper to purchase prostitutes if the prostitutes improved legitimate business for the company.

''Who here thinks (Dixon) intended to harm his corporation?'' Ravkind asked.

''The government is interjecting the sex issue, something that everybody has an opinion about,'' Ravkind said.

Prosecutors say they are not trying to create a scapegoat of Dixon or falsely interject the ''sex question.'' They say Dixon broke specific campaign and banking laws.

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Jarvis said the trial would focus on political contributions, although the first witness against Dixon is a brothel operator known as the ''Rolodex madam.'' Earlier in the week, Fish ordered Karen Wilkening, who ran a $150-an-hour prostitution service from her San Diego area home, flown to Dallas.

''I don't think what I would have to say would make a difference one way or another,'' she told the San Diego Tribune.

But investigators say she can confirm Dixon often purchased ''female escorts'' for business and political contacts. The money came from taxpayer-backed thrift funds, they say.,

Judge Fish said he would rule on a requested change of venue after the seating of the jury.

According to industry regulators, Dixon used thrift funds to fly around the world, collect fine art, wine and women. Through the S&L, Dixon owned a fleet of six jets and a palatial California home.

If convicted on all 38 counts, Dixon could face a maximum sentence of 190 years in prison and be fined as much as $9.5 million.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - Having produced dramatically dissimilar answers to the question of how to chop $500 billion from the federal deficit over the next five years, the House and Senate are turning to the touchy task of ironing out the differences between their budget bills.

Early Friday, the Senate capped more than 30 hours of debate over two days by passing a bipartisan deficit reduction plan that would raise gasoline taxes 9.5 cents a gallon, hike cigarette and alcohol taxes and increase costs to Medicare beneficiaries.

The Senate package was approved on a 54-46 vote that came at about 1:25 a.m. only after Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas repeatedly joined forces to squelch several direct challenges to the bipartisan plan.

On Tuesday, the House engaged in heated partisan warfare before passing a Democratic-backed bill raising income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent, imposing a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million a year and eliminating any gasoline tax hike.

House and Senate negotiators were set to begin bargaining Friday on creating one compromise plan from the two different bills, with the agreement then facing votes in each chamber before going to President Bush for his signature.

Speaking to a group of Italian-Americans Friday, Bush said the Senate bill ''offers, I think, some real hope for getting this budget deficit matter under control.''

Though declining to give details on what he would like to see emerge from the conference, he lauded senators for warding off efforts to raise income tax rates, saying, ''I think I'm on the right track on that and I'm going to try to hold the line.''

Bush said there are ''big differences between the Senate and House legislation ... but I will say, I, for the first time, feel optimistic that we can get this job done for the American people and it needs to be done.''

Mitchell, who said he personally supported many of the amendments that he vigorously fought to defeat, told his colleagues that the Senate budget bill was crafted specifically to avoid a veto and that even ''attractive'' amendments would subvert any try at deficit reduction.

''Once again we face the same question we face so often in this body,'' Mitchell said in a floor speech. ''Do we want to make a statement or do we want to make a law? I choose to make a law.''

''It's going to be very tenuous as we work on now, but I think the American people are expecting to see the final result and I think we can give that to them,'' Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said after the vote.

In opposing the House approach, Bush criticized the raised income tax rates on the highest income taxpayers from the current 28 percent to 33 percent - which would generate $50 billion over five years - and the hiked income taxes on middle class Americans caused by freezing for a year the inflation adjustment of tax brackets and personal exemptions.

The Senate bill did not raise income tax rates, but it does have the gasoline tax hike - absent from the House version - to be placed on top of the current 9 cents per gallon federal gas tax to raise $42.6 billion in five years.

The Senate bill would cut $48.9 billion from Medicare over five years, with most savings coming from lower payments to health care providers but with beneficiaires paying higher premiums and deductibles.

There are some similarities between the House and Senate versions. Both would raise taxes on cigarettes by four cents a pack in 1991 and by another four cents a pack in 1993 and raise taxes on beer by 16 cents a six-pack. Taxes on wine would rise about 22 cents a bottle and hard liquor taxes also would go up.

The Senate measure, which includes a new 10 percent tax on luxury items, such as expensive cars, boats, airplanes, jewelry and furs, would cut the deficit by $28.4 billion in fiscal year 1991, which began Oct. 1, and by $252.5 billion over five years. The bill is the cornerstone of the Senate's broader effort to cut the deficit by $40 billion in 1991 and by $500 billion over five years. The rest of the savings come from the lower spending on defense and domestic programs.

The duration of the debate left some participants weary. As the proceedings stretched past midnight, some senators slumped over with exhaustion at their desks on the Senate floor, while others rubbed their eyes and stifled yawns.

During debate on an amendment for budget process reform, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told his colleagues, ''We stand on the single spot in the nation where 'budget process' is an oxymoron,'' adding Congress had become ''the laughingstock of the nation.''

Among the failed Senate amendments were ones to hike the tax rate for the rich to 33 percent, to eliminate or reduce the gas tax increase and to add a 10 percent surtax on Americans with taxable incomes over $1 million.

Meanwhile, the White House announced President Bush, in a reversal, would sign a new stopgap funding bill through Oct. 24 to keep the government running when the current temporary funding bill expires at midnight Friday if the deficit reduction plan was in a House-Senate conference. The House passed the stopgap funding bill Thursday and the Senate was to take up the matter later Friday.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - China bought more than $43 million worth of U.S. wheat Friday, its second major subsidized purchase in two days, while Beijing warned of dangers to relations between the two nations.

The Agriculture Department announced the sale of 449,370 metric tons of winter wheat to China through the U.S. export subsidy program. It came one day after China bought 299,750 tons of wheat, also at discount prices.

U.S. wheat growers have expressed concern about loss of the Chinese market if Congress succeeds in revoking most-favored-nation trade status for Beijing.

China is one of the top customers in the world for U.S. wheat, buying 5.5 million tons in the 1989-1990 marketing year - half of its import total - and 3.2 million tons so far this year, which opened June 1. There are 36.7 bushels of wheat in a metric ton.

In a statement, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said a House vote to revoke MFN status ''will exert destructive impact on the economic and trade relations between the two countries and will surely result in a serious slideback of the bilateral relations.'' The MFN bill now goes to the Senate.

The Chinese purchases this week, worth more than $72 million based on Chicago prices, marked a welcome week of activity for lagging export sales. The Soviet Union bought 350,000 tons of corn, its first corn purchase since last May 15, and several smaller grain sales also were reported.

In its latest purchase, China bought 284,760 tons of hard red winter wheat and 164,610 tons of soft red winter wheat. Eight exporters were given bonuses worth $43.87 a ton, or $1.19 a bushel, for lowering their prices to make the sale.

In addition, the government reported the subsidized sale of 24,000 tons of barley to Israel.

China is one of the major wheat producers of the world but it is forecast to remain an importer in coming years due to rising demand for wheat. Wheat imports during this marketing year are projected at 12.5 million tons.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (OCT. 19) UPI - Communist-ruled Serbia Friday reluctantly abandoned a bid to prevent a Croatian nationalist from becoming Yugoslavia's new vice president, defusing fears of parliamentary paralysis and military intervention in the country's worst post-war political crisis.

Stipe Mesic, a former Croatian prime minister, was confirmed without a vote and sworn in as a member of the federal presidency during a joint session of the national legislature.

He assumed the role of vice president and will become president of Yugoslavia in May when Borisav Jovic of Serbia relinquishes the post that rotates yearly among the representatives of the six republics and two provinces on the collective head of state.

Mesic, 56, was ousted from the Communist Party and jailed for a year in a 1971-73 crackdown on Croatian nationalism by dictator Josip Broz Tito. He belongs to the Croatian Democratic Union, which rode to power on a wave of nationalist votes in assembly elections in April, Croatia's first multi-party elections since 1945.

His appointment, announced by the Croatian government in late August, was confirmed after Serbian delegate Milos Aleksic told the session that Yugoslavia's largest republic was abandoning its use of procedural rules to delay the matter.

''Serbia does not agree with his appointment. But Serbia will never blackmail this assembly, even in cases where we are not in agreement with a proposal,'' he said.

Serbia opposition to Mesic stems from worsening tensions with Croatia over the future shape of Yugoslavia. Croatia, joined by Slovenia, favors a confederation of independent states because it fears Serbian domination of the federation. Serbia advocates retaining the federal model.

The Croatian-Serbian tensions are the most serious of multiple problems contributing to the worst Yugoslav political crisis since the end of World War II.

Serbia apparently decided not to block Mesic's appointment after it became clear it would be approved, dealing the republic its second political embarassment in one week.

On Tuesday, Serbia was unable to defeat a Croatian motion for the appointment to be considered before Jovic addressed Parliament on constitutional reforms. Jovic was to have spoken Tuesday but under procedural rules Mesic's appointment could not be confirmed until Friday.

Many Yugoslavs had worried that Serbia would press its objections and when faced with approval of Mesic, order its delegates to walk out of Parliament, leaving Yugoslavia without a functioning federal legislature and pushing the multi-ethnic nation of 23 million to the brink of civil war.

It was feared a walkout would invite the intervention of the conservative military, which is anxious to prevent the nation's disintegration.

Jovic expressed relief at the resolution of the controversy that disrupted the joint session, the main task of which was to hear his speech on recommendations for constitutional reforms.

''This is the last chance to come to reason and avoid a catastrophe that includes civil war,'' he told Parliament.

Jovic declined to deliver his speech, which advocated preserving the federation, as it was read by Serbia's communist-controlled television Tuesday despite the vote delaying it until Friday.

After the session, Mesic sought to downplay fears about the military, telling reporters, ''The army leadership is not for intervention, for sure.

''It would be the end of the army and of the state,'' he said.

MILWAUKEE (OCT. 19) UPI - Lawrencia Bembenek said she and her fiance were only about ten minutes from escaping before authorities arrested them Wednesday in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

In her first interview since her arrest, Bembenek, who escaped from prison July 15 while serving a life sentence for murder, told the television show ''Inside Edition'' that she and Dominic Gugliatto were packing and getting ready to flee because they thought authorities were after them.

''Minutes. Just 10 more minutes and we could have gotten away,'' she said in the interview which will be televised on the show Friday night.

Bembenek was convicted of the 1981 murder of Christine Schultz, the ex-wife of Bembenek's then-husband Elfred Schultz, who has since divorced Bembenek. Because of her alluring looks and concerns that she had been railroaded, Bembenek, a former policewoman, became an outlaw folk hero in Milwaukee.

Gugliatto has been charged with helping her escape from the Taycheedah Correctional Institution for women near Fond du Lac.

She said she and Gugliatto love each other and ''one of my biggest regrets is that we were never able to get legally married.''

While they were free the couple took the names of Anthony Gazzana and Jennifer Lee Gazzana. Authorities believe they got the names from tombstones of two dead children in Holy Cross Cemetery in Milwaukee.

The real Anthony Gazzana was born Feb. 23, 1954, and died at the age of 2. Officials also believe Bembenek may have gotten her name from a Jennifer Lee Voelkel who died at the age of 1 month in 1961.

Both children were buried at the cemetery, which is near Gugliatto's Milwaukee home.

Salvatore Gazzana, the father of the dead baby Anthony, said he felt sympathetic toward Bembenek but did not like use of his son's name.

''I think she's innocent, actually,'' he said. ''But the way they go about it, I didn't like it - using my son's name and his birth certificate plus his Social Security number. How they got that so easy is beyond me,'' he said.

''It hurts, bringing back memories like that. They shouldn't do things like that. I mean, isn't there anything private in this world, anymore? To bring up something like that, that's bad.''

Cornelia Voelkel, Jennifer's grandmother, was also upset.

''It's a sad thing to think that someone can use your name. Somebody who would do something like that would do just about anything,'' she said.

The pair were apprehended on a tip from someone who saw the show ''America's Most Wanted'' last week which featured Bembenek.

Lt. Edwin Sheppard of the Fond du Lac County Sheriff's Department said Thursday the man switched to the show when he got bored with a hockey game last Friday night.

''The guy's watching a hockey game, a boring hockey game, so he switched the TV to 'America's Most Wanted.' The only thing that he really saw was the last five minutes of the segment on Bembenek and he sees the picture of Bembenek and he thinks to himself, 'Boy, that looks like the waitress up in Thunder Bay ''' said Sheppard.

He said shortly after that Gugliatto's picture was shown and he recognized him as the man who had been introduced as the waitress's husband and he contacted authorities.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Members of the Senate and the House face a choice between deficit reduction plans. A Senate plan passed early this morning and is backed by President Bush. It would jack up the tax on gasoline by nine and one- half cents a gallon. The House does NOT hike the gas tax... but would expand income tax to 33 percent for the highest bracket. Both plans increase taxes on alcohol and cigarettes... and cut Medicare. A congressional conference committee plans to meet today to try to work out a compromise.

Germany reports Iraq says it freed eight German hostages. The Germans say the eight were on a list of ''urgent cases'' the German government gave Iraq some time ago of the elderly and the sick. An Iraqi diplomat told families of hostages the Germans being held in Iraq are... what he termed... ''guardians of peace.'' As the releases were announced, 100 relatives of hostages demonstrated in Bonn, claiming the government is NOT doing enough to free the hostages.

South Africa's ruling National Party voted today to open its membership to all races. The Nationalists came to power in 1948 on a platform of exclusively white rule. But President Frederik de Klerk proposed the change in August. He declared today that ''the National Party and South Africa are now on the high moral ground.'' Anti- apartheid groups say blacks will NOT join in large numbers... but analysts say this is still a significant step.

Savings and loan figure Charles Keating made bail and is out of jail today. A federal judge in Los Angeles last night cut Keating's bail from five-Million dollars to 300-thousand... saying the original bail violated Keating's rights because it was so out of line with bails for his co-defendants. Keating's attorneys portrayed him as a strongly religious family man who has been persecuted by the media and wants to vindicate himself.

SOMERS, CONN. (OCT. 19) UPI - A guard at Connecticut's maximum-security prison in Somers has been arrested for being a fugitive from justice in Massachusetts, Connecticut State Police said Friday.

Rosemary Perez, 26, of Springfield, Mass., was arrested Thursday night at her job as a correction officer at the prison and held in lieu of $25,000 bond pending an appearance Friday in Rockville Superior Court, police said.

She was arrested on a warrant issued in Massachusetts on a charge of violation of probation in that state, police said. Connecticut authorities did not know what charge Perez had been convicted of in Massachusetts.

Connecticut correction officials said they were examining the procedures used to check on the background of Perez before hiring her as a prison guard.

The agency would not comment further because it was a personnel matter and spokesman William Wheeler could not say what Perez's job status was.

ALVIN, TEXAS (OCT. 19) UPI - Forty-four bodies originally donated to a medical school have been unearthed from two fields where they were allegedly dumped by a man paid to cremate the cadavers.

Crews continued digging at the sites Friday. The grim work began Wednesday following the indictment of Richard Joseph Herrin Jr., 44, of Houston.

Texas Chiropractic College paid Herrin to cremate 80 cadavers over the past three years but prosecutors claim he instead illegally dumped them in mass graves.

Workers have had to dig through up to 15 feet of garbage to reach many of the bodies or body parts. The cadavers primarily were elderly men and women, officials said.

''It's conceivable that there could be 80 bodies here but I don't think there are 80,'' said Jean Spradling Hughes, Harris County assistant district attorney. ''We feel like there are more. We are going to keep on digging.''

Investigators believe some of the bodies may have been burned in two industrial paper incinerators at one 7-acre site in Brazoria County, southeast of Houston.

Officials have said there is no evidence of wrongdoing by Texas Chiropractic College, which will store the cadavers until they can be properly cremated. The college, like other Texas medical facilities, receives cadavers from the Texas Anatomical Board.

People living near the fields were shocked by the discoveries.

''I think it's awful,'' said Candice Brown. ''I can't believe anything like this happened around here ... It's real scary.''

Under Texas law, bodies used by medical training facilities must be cremated or buried in a dedicated cemetery. Herrin's agreement with the chiropractic college specified that he cremate the bodies, officials said. He was paid $200 per body.

In 1987, Herrin gained widespread publicity when he searched for a cemetery to bury 80 containers of fetuses as part of a disposal contract with abortion clincs. He eventually was allowed to bury 200 fetuses in a Conroe cemetery.

He also apparently abandoned 37 mayonnaise and ice cream containers full of aborted fetal remains in a storage warehouse. Those remains later were buried by a Houston funeral home.

Also in 1987, Herrin received a one-year probation from the state Funeral Service Commission for disposing of three human bodies without a proper license.

TOKYO (OCT. 19) UPI - The growth rate of Japan's gross national product may drop to 3.3 percent in fiscal 1991 if crude oil prices remain at about $35 a barrel, Mitsui Trust and Banking Co. predicted Friday.

The leading commercial bank said the projection is down by 1 percentage point from its original estimate forecast in July, when crude oil prices stood at about $17.40 a barrel.

World crude oil prices doubled in the weeks following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of neighboring Kuwait and the subsequent moves against Iraq by most other nations, including an embargo on all Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil.

The bank has projected Japan's GNP growth for the current year at 4.1 percent.

Analysts at the bank said Japan's domestic wholesale prices are expected to climb 5.2 percent in fiscal 1991, while growth of plant and equipment investment by corporations is expected to fall to 5.9 percent from the July projection of 10.1 percent.

The bank said growth of personal consumption is likely to fall to 3.4 percent in fiscal 1991 from 4.4 percent for the current year.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (OCT. 19) UPI - The European Community must move quickly to a common currency to prevent the sort of wild speculation that preceded Britain's entry into the European exchange-rate mechanism, the EC's top financial official said Friday.

The length of the EC's interim phase toward a three-stage monetary union is a matter of great debate among the 12 member governments. A single currency would come in Stage 3.

A lengthy Stage 2 would be ''a little dangerous,'' because it would cause ''speculation and anticipation'' in financial markets eager to know when EC exchange rates would be permanently locked into a common currency, said Henning Christophersen, the EC commissioner for financial and economic affairs.

He spoke at a news conference after releasing a 351-page report, ''One Market, One Money,'' which concludes that a single currency would help poor and rich countries alike, and save up to 19 billion European Currency Units, or $25 billion, annually in currency transaction costs.

Rapid completion of a common currency would prevent, he said, ''a repetition of what we have seen in the United Kingdom,'' where financial markets swung wildly for months on rumors of imminent British entry into the Exchange Rate Mechanism.

Britain finally entered the ERM on Oct. 8, 11 years after most EC countries joined.

The EC's three-stage plan for Economic and Monetary Union includes creation of a central bank - the ''Eurofed'' - during Stage 2.

The initial stage of EMU, which encompassed Britain's entry into the exchange system, began July 1.

German Chancellor Helmut Kohl gave a boost to monetary union this week by proposing Jan. 1, 1994, as the starting date of Stage 2. The president of the EC Commission, Jacques Delors, sought to begin Stage 2 a year earlier but welcomed Kohl's date as a ''reasonable compromise.''

Christophersen said it may take 12 to 18 months to complete creation of the central bank once Stage 2 begins.

''Stage 2 should be only a short preparation stage'' before a common currency takes effect, he said.

Britain, which staunchly opposes a single currency as a threat to sovereignty, seeks a lengthy Stage 2.

Some poorer EC countries, such as Greece and Spain, have also expressed reservations about whether their economies are ready for rapid movement to a common currency.

The huge EC Commission report concluded, however, that EMU will ''close the gap between rich and poor member states,'' by helping poorer nations to ''attract more long-term investments from a well-organized capital market.''

Differences in inflation and other economic factors among EC nations have been cited as reasons to delay EMU, but Christophersen said ''the present state of convergence is not so bad.''

Seven countries - Denmark, France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Germany and Ireland - could proceed now to EMU, the report says. Italy, Spain and Britain ''have some adjustments to make still, but these are surely feasible within a few years.'' Only Greece and Portugal have larger adjustments to make, but ''with political will'' they could also join in full EMU with the rest of the Community, the report says.

''If we have to wait until complete convergence comes we will wait a long time '' Christophersen said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush said Friday Iraq President Saddam Hussein's aggression against Kuwait must ''not be rewarded by some compromise.''

The president's comment came shortly before Yergeni Primakov, a member of the Soviet Presidential Council, denied a published report that he was carrying a message from Saddam.

Primakov, who visited Baghdad last week and met with Secretary of State James Baker on Thursday, reportedly heard an offer from Saddam of partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, under certain conditions.

But Primakov, during his visit with Bush on Friday, told reporters he had ''no message from Saddam Hussein. I am not a messenger.''

After his meeting with Baker on Thursday, Primakov told reporters, ''We should look for some possibilities to avoid - to avoid the military collisions, but not to reward Iraq for its actions.''

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft, who met with Primakov Thursday, told reporters there was nothing new that would push the peace process forward.

Before meeting with Primakov, Bush told leaders of the National Italian American Foundation, ''I am determined Saddam Hussein's aggression will not be rewarded by some compromise, not be rewarded by failing to get him totally out of Kuwait and restore the legitimate rule.''

In that respect Bush was repeating the hardline message to Saddam that has highlighted Baker's recent testimony on Capitol Hill.

''Saddam Hussein is still trying to make people think that it is the Arab world against America and he couldn't be more wrong,'' Bush told the Italian-American group.

''We've got strong support both diplomatically and on the ground from Arab countries,'' Bush added. ''I think we've sent a very strong signal. The bottom line is he can't prevail and we're going to send a strong moral message and that is that one big country can't bully it's neighbor and take it over.

''And that's the principle we're fighting for,'' he said. ''We also have strong national security interests, which relate to the energy out there.''

Appearing for the second day on Capitol Hill to explain Bush's policy toward Saddam and the crisis in the Persian Gulf, Baker once again ruled out a partial or conditional Iraqi withdrawal from occupied Kuwait.

Such concessions to the Iraqi president, Baker said, would reward unprovoked aggression in a pattern that led to World War II 50 years ago. ''Action that moves toward a partial solution would be self- defeating appeasement,'' he warned Thursday.

A dozen House members asked Baker questions like Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., inquiry: ''Can you assure us that the United States will not attack Iraq militarily?''

Baker answered with one word: ''No.''

Baker later expanded his one-word answer to Studds by explaining the president would find it necessary to act quickly if U.S. citizens being held by Iraq, for example, were harmed.

Studds mulled that answer over for a few seconds and responded, ''If I were a soldier in Saudi Arabia, I'd put my helmet on.''

''They've already got their helmets on,'' Baker said, ''and they knew what they were getting into when they signed up.''

He then repeated the basic answer he has been giving for the past two days: ''We can't rule out the option of the use of force.''

DETROIT (OCT. 19) UPI - General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers made it official Friday, formally signing the new three-year labor contract reached between the giant automaker and union Sept. 17.

UAW President Owen Bieber, during signing ceremonies that involved dozens of company and union bargainers around GM's massive bargaining table at its Detroit headquarters, called the agreement ''historic in many ways.

The GM-UAW pact was reached three days after the two sides agreed to extend the Sept. 14 deadline. It includes an unprecedented $4 billion income security package covering about 280,000 U.S. hourly workers at GM, vastly improved pension benefits, and higher company fines on excessive overtime to be paid into a joint skills and training fund.

It also includes a 3 percent base wage increase in the first year, and lump sum payments of 3 percent each in the second and third years.

At the end of the previous contract, a typical car assember at GM made $14.01, excluding cost of living adjustments. By the end of the new contract in late 1993, that assembler will be making $17.19 an hour, excluding COLA adjustments.

Meanwhile, about 100,000 hourly U.S. workers at second-ranked Ford Motor Co. were expected this weekend to complete ratification of their new three-year labor pact reached with the UAW Oct. 7.

The Ford-UAW contract, patterned after the GM accord, includes a $1.6 billion income security package and identical wage and pension increases and overtime penalties.

But Bieber declined to answer any questions about contract negotiations with No. 3 carmaker Chrysler Corp. Those talks are expected to go into high gear Monday covering about 60,000 U.S, workers.

Chrysler executives have openly called the pacts reached with GM and Ford ''unaffordable,'' saying the company is under financial pressure and needs to deviate from the pattern pacts to remain competitive, especially in the araes of pension costs since it has the oldest average workforce.

No deadline has been officially set for the Chrysler/UAW talks, although it is believed the union would like to have a tentative agreement by Oct. 31.

(OCT. 19) UPI - House and Senate conferees will now wade into rival deficit-reduction plans to see if they can come up with something that everyone can live with and pay. The Senate passed its own bi-partisan version 54-46 early this morning. It raises costs to Medicare beneficiaries while hiking taxes on gasoline, cigarettes and alcohol. President Bush has already said he likes the Senate version and dislikes the House version so much he would veto it.

Iraq reportedly has promised to free eight of the more than 300 Germans it holds. The German Foreign Ministry revealed the promise. The eight are on a list of so-called ''urgent cases'' given to Iraq earlier this month. An Iraqi diplomat calls the Germans detained against their will are what he termed ''guardians of peace'' and says they are all in good health.

The American Friends Service Committee today announced its opposition to a proposed seven-BILLION-dollar arms sale to Saudi Arabia, saying it will only increase the likelihood of a war with Iraq. The Philadelphia- based Quaker organization expressed its opinion in a letter to Defense Secretary Cheney and congressmen who will deal with the sale. It says the United States should take the lead in efforts to halt all arms sales to the region.

Security is heavy in the Old City area of Jerusalem after Israeli police used a water cannon to disperse about 100 Moslem youths denied entry into the Islamic Mosque complex on the Temple Mount. About 35- hundred Moslem adults were allowed to attend the Friday prayers. Israeli Radio reports that about 40 Arabs were detained in the latest disorders. There are NO reports of injuries.

The ruling National Party in South Africa irrevocably ratified a decision to open its ranks to all races after 76 years of exclusively white membership. The decision became final at the fourth and final provincial congress of the party in Pretoria. The congress confirmed resolutions adopted at the first three meetings. The move to accept all races as members is another step in moves by President Frederik de Klerk to end apartheid.

The Soviet parliament today gave tentative approval to President Gorbachev's compromise plan for moving to a market economy. Before the 356-12 vote, Gorbachev bitterly attacked his chief rival, Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin. The republic chief attacked Gorbachev on Tuesday and called for more radical economic steps. Gorbachev accused Yeltsin of playing politics with the economic question and cheating the Soviet people.

LONDON (OCT. 19) UPI - Stock prices closed slightly higher Friday in moderate trading on the London International Stock Exchange, buoyed by Wall Street's rally despite a Conservative party electoral defeat that sent prices skidding in early trading.

Stocks also gained in Frankfurt and Zurich but eased slightly in Paris.

The London blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 14.6 points Thursday, gained 6.4 points to 2,089.0.

For the week, the key index, which measures the value of Britain's largest 100 companies in terms of market capitalization, posted a loss of 11.4 points.

The narrower top 30 industrial average added 3.4 points to 1,621.5 but eased 0.5 point for the week.

Volume amounted to around 465 million shares compared with 353 million shares changing hands on Thursday.

Stocks opened lower following the surprise defeat for the governing Conservative Party in an election to fill a vacant Parliamentary seat.

The election was held to replace a member of Parliament who was killed by the Irish Republican Army. Analysts said the Conservatives had campaigned hard on a theme of law and order, emphasizing the fight against terrorism.

But, observers said, the Conservatives were hurt by a downturn in Britain's economy, which is currently suffering from a 10.9 percent inflation rate, the highest since 1982, and an increased number of business failures.

Stocks turned higher around midday, market watchers explained as the price of oil continued to ease on world markets.

The strong rally on Wall Street, following the sharp rise in Tokyo, also boosted local enthusiam.

Analysts said the possibility of a U.S. budget compromise and anticipated interest rate cuts pushed prices higher in New York, and London mimicked the bullish lead with gains across the board in blue chips.

Lower oil prices as tensions were seen to ease in the Gulf also helped bullish sentiment, although analysts warned underlying economic fundamentals could produce bearish tendencies ahead for local investors.

Water company stocks lost ground following the Tory defeat in the Eastbourne by-elections that signaled the party may be vulnerable in a general election.

The private water companies fear a Labor government may re- nationalize the water industry, although they have pledged not to do so.

South West Water fell 14 cents to $4.18.

Among some of the international issues, Glaxo gained 18 cents to $14.60 and Reuters added 36 cents to $13.45.

P and O Transport, the international transport company, gained 26 cents to $9.82 after a judge's decision to absolve the company of the Zeebrugge ferry disaster in which 193 died.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices closed higher in subdued trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange as investors reacted to lower global oil prices.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 29.28 points Thursday, added another 12.02 points to 1,470.07. For the week, the key index which measures the value of 30 selective blue chips gained 10.37 points.

Analysts said stocks gained as lower oil prices indicated to investors a lower inflation rate for the local economy which in turn raised expectations of lower interest rates.

Stocks also gained in Zurich as local investors reacted to lower oil prices pushed the Swiss Market Index up 10.30 points to 955.60.

In Paris, stocks eased slightly on the Paris Bourse in light trading.

The French CAC 40 Index, which surged 31.67 points Thursday, slipped 3.51 points to 1,644.16.

Analysts said stocks eased slightly amid some profit taking following Thursday's advance and the government's decision to boost the capital gains tax to 25 percent from the current 19 percent level.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Spurred by further signs Iraq would like a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis, crude oil prices plunged as much as $3 a barrel in early trading Friday.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for November delivery traded as low as $33.85 a barrel, $2.95 below Thursday's close, before moving back up at midday to $34.75 a barrel, a decline of $2.05.

Stocks continued to rise in response to the week-long drop in oil prices with the Dow Industrials up 27.48 points at midday to 2480.20.

Remarks late Thursday in Amman, Jordan, by Iraqi First Deputy Taha Yassin Ramadan were interpreted by the oil market as further evidence that Iraq is seeking a peaceful solution.

''That's what put further pressure on the market,'' said Thomas Blakeslee of Pegasus Econometrics Group, of Hoboken, N.J.

''On that news, we came off $2 a barrel,'' said Greg Dreis of Merrill Lynch Energy Futures in New York.

Before his departure to Baghdad, Ramadan told Radio Jordan he was more optimistic for a political and peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

The high-ranking Iraqi official had met with Jordanian Prime Minister Mudar Badran at the airport as part of a tour of North African nations, during which messages from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein were delivered.

In addition, Iraq Thursday had no objection to the presence of a Kuwaiti delegation at an Arab League meeting in Tunis to discuss the killing of 21 Arabs by Israeli police in Jerusalem Oct. 8.

Iraq officially annexed Kuwait shortly after its Aug. 2 invasion and has been insisting the nation no longer exists.

Also earlier this week after visiting Jordan's King Hussein, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said, ''We are in a stage of reconsidering positions ... reevaluating positions.''

The oil markets have been under selling pressure since last weekend when Kremlin diplomatic trouble-shooter Yevgeny Primakov gave the first indication of a weakening of Iraq's resolve after a Baghdad meeting with Saddam.

Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat, who met with Saddam Sunday, also said he thought Iraq was in ''a conciliatory mood.''

Primakov was scheduled to meet Friday with President Bush in the White House. He had briefed Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti and French President Francois Mitterrand earlier this week.

The downward bias was strong enough that the market shrugged off a rumor that an Iraqi jet had been fired on. The Pentagon said it knew nothing about such an incident.

Oil trader Blakeslee saw the $33.85 WTI low in early trading as a significant resistance level. Once WTI moves below this level, sell orders will be triggered, Blakeslee said, driving prices lower.

The $33.85 price is on the ''trend line'' projected from previous daily low prices, he said, one of the technical barometers traders follow other things being equal.

On the Merc, home heating oil for November delivery had lost 5.75 cents at midday from Thursday's close to 90.70 cents a gallon, while November unleaded gasoline was down 3.06 cents to 89.90 cents a gallon.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent was quoted at $33.45 a barrel, down $2.15 from Thursday.

United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - dropped $3 from Thursday to $28.55 a barrel.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, prompt delivery WTI crude had fallen $1.85 to $34.90 a barrel.

BOGOTA, Colombia (OCT. 19) UPI - A drug suspect wanted in the United States has turned himself in to authorities to take advantage of a government offer of a reduced sentence and no extradition, news reports said Friday.

Gonzaga de Jesus Rincon Perez, wanted for conspiracy to distribute cocaine in the United States, surrendered to a judge in the city of Pereira, 125 miles west of Bogota, newspapers reported.

Rincon surrendered in order to take advantage of a decree issued by President Cesar Gaviria in September, becoming the first person subject to extradition to turn himself in, the reports said.

The decree offers drug traffickers and others who surrender reduced prison sentences and exemption from extradition. In return, those who participate must confess to their crimes and turn over property earned from illegal activities.

Rincon admitted to having sent cocaine to the United States, said the news reports that cited local authorities.

Under the decree, Rincon has to confess to a judge who will then decide on a sentence. He can receive a reduction of up to half of his sentence.

Top government officials said they believed mid-level and small-time traffickers would take advantage of the decree but not the top kingpins of the cocaine trade.

BEIJING (OCT. 19) UPI - Officials attending a regional conference on drug enforcement that ended Friday said the latest drug menace in Asia - a stimulant called ''ice'' smuggled from Taiwan and South Korea - is spreading rapidly to North America.

But China reacted angrily to suggestions that Taiwan be allowed to participate in the annual meeting of heads of national drug law enforcement despite concern over the island nation's growing role in illicit drug trafficking.

Drug officials attending, which concluded Friday, said the latest regional drug menace is in the form of crystal methamphetamine smuggled from Taiwan and South Korea. Known also as ''ice'' and ''shabu,'' the stimulant is spreading rapidly from Asia to Canada and the United States, South Korean delegate Yoo Chang-jong said.

Yoo said officials made a deliberately vague recommendation for increased regional cooperation that was meant to include Taiwan, which was not represented at the conference.

But Chinese drug officials bristled at the notion that Taiwan take part in the annual meeting in order to help coordinate efforts to crack down on regional drug production and smuggling.

''Taiwan's representation is impossible,'' fumed Beijing delegate and Deputy Minister of Public Health Gu Yingqi.

''Taiwan is an inalienable part of China. We will notify them of this development,'' Gu said in reference to the reported rise in methamphetamine smuggling.

The communist mainland regards Taiwan as a renegade province and has been technically ''at war'' with the island's Nationalist, or Guomintang, government since its 1949 defeat.

Taiwan's participation in future such conferences, presided over by the U.N. Division of Narcotic Drugs, could pose technical difficulties. Taiwan lost the so-called ''China seat'' in the United Nations to its communist rival in 1971.

Neither Gu nor fellow delegate Liu Wen, a senior public security official and head of Interpol in China, would specify what concrete measures Beijing would take to cooperate with Taiwan.

''I will ask (Taiwan) officials to pay attention to methamphetamine production '' Liu said.

China also denied that significant numbers of mainland nationals are involved in the ethnic Chinese gangs controlling the majority of the world's heroin traffic.

The gangs operate principally out of Hong Kong, Taiwan, Canada, the Netherlands and the United States, but are increasingly turning to China as a convenient smuggling route, according to U.N. Division of Narcotic Drugs director Francisco Ramos-Gallino.

''China is a new route traffickers have started in the last few years in an attempt to use countries that had no traffic in drugs,'' Ramos- Gallino said, adding that authorities have seized heroin shipments in the Soviet Union as well as in China.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) UPI - Rating agency Standard & Poors Corp. said Friday that it has downgraded the debt rating of CalFed Inc., which has been hit by poor earnings for the second consecutive quarter.

S&P's said it was lowering the rating on CalFed's subordinated debt from double B plus to single B, affecting about $125 million of debt.

The agency also announced it has lowered ratings on CalFed's thrift unit, 200-branch California Federal Bank, affecting about $165 million of the thrift's debt. The ratings were lowered on the thrift's certificates of deposit, senior debt and commercial paper.

California Federal is the nation's third largest thrift after Home Savings of America and Great Western Bank.

''The cumulative losses over the past two quarters have significantly pressured CalFed's tangible capital position,'' the agency said. This, coupled with the company's moderately high exposure to softening commercial real estate markets, heightens the risks to holding company ''tens the risks to h

CalFed reported Thursday a third-quarter loss of $92.3 million, compared with earnings of $22.2 million, or 83 cents a share, for the year-ago quarter. It blamed the sluggish residential real estate market in Southern California for the loss.

It was the second quarter in a row that CalFed had posted a big loss stemming from real estate problems. Its second quarter loss was $53 million.

The loss left CalFed slightly short of the risk-based capital ratio that will be required by regulators as of Jan. 1. To increase capital, CalFed also announced that it was slashing its quarterly dividend from 35 cents a share to 3 cents a share.

CalFed said Thursday that the loss stems from a $96 million addition to its allowance for losses on real estate and a $42.8 million loss from its prevously announced sale of its annuity and life isnurance unit, Beneficial Standard Life.

The addition to the reserves leaves CalFed's reserves at about 25 percent of its nonperforming assets.

CalFed's stock was unchanged at $4.375 a share in early afternoon trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 19) UPI - Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said Friday it would offer incentives for up to 1,600 managers who choose to retire or leave the company by Dec. 31.

The plan is being offered because of the company's changing management requirements, said Robert A. Dickemper, vice president of human resources.

Southwestern Bell employs about 17,000 managers out of a total workforce of 58,000 in Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas.

Incentives would vary by length of employment, with a maximum payout of one-year's salary to managers with more than 20 years of service. Pension benefits would be unaffected by the plan.

Dickemper said management requirements have been reduced by emerging technologies, greater operating efficiencies, and a transition to a management style that gives employees greater responsibility in meeting customer needs.

''Our goal with this plan is a fine-tuning, or tune-up of our management forces,'' he said, ''and this plan is one that's fair and equitable to both the company and its employees.''

The company said it would limit by state the number of managers eligible for the program.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is the largest subsidiary of Southwestern Bell Corp. Costs of the plan would be charged to the corporation's fourth-quarter operations.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 19) UPI - South Africa raised the price of gasoline 25 percent Friday on top of an 8 percent rise last month as result of rising crude oil prices resulting from the Persian Gulf crisis.

Effective midnight, gasoline will cost 62 U.S. cents a liter, or $2.38 a gallon, the government said.

The state-run National Energy Council said the soaring cost of crude oil on the back of the Gulf crisis necessitated the price increase.

The independent Automobile Association immediately said the increase would ''seriously'' affect the inflation rate, now running at 14.1 percent, and the liberal opposition Democratic Party called on the government to draw on its strategic reserves to ease the burden.

South Africa has reportedly stockpiled enough oil to last up to five years if supplies are cut off.

It has been stockpiling oil as a result of a loosely enforced but potentially devastating world oil embargo imposed to punish the country for its apartheid policies.

But Finance Minister Barend du Plessis said last month the government has no intention of drawing on its strategic reserves, noting South Africa is not the only country suffering rising oil costs.

The state airline, South African Airways, also announced Thursday that fares would rise 10 percent on Nov. 1, its second increase since the start of the Gulf crisis.

MOSCOW (OCT. 19) UPI - The Soviet Parliament approved a cautious move toward a market economy Friday, giving Mikhail Gorbachev a major political victory but setting up potential conflicts with the huge Russian republic and others seeking radical reforms.

Gorbachev's ''guidelines for stabilizing the national economy and introducing a market system,'' were approved after only brief debate by a 333-12 vote with 34 abstentions at the afternoon session of the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament.

Parliament's green light means the Soviet Union, despite continuing differences over the pace and extent of change, will at long last move to some sort of mixed economic system after seven decades of centrally planned socialism.

The reform plan approved Friday is a Gorbachev-drafted compromise between a conservative government proposal of Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov that maintains much central control and the radical 500-day plan initiated by Russian leader Boris Yeltsin.

Gorbachev's compromise dropped the 500-day blueprint's call for abandoning all subsidies, closing unprofitable factories, rapid privatization of property and enterprises and eventual elimination of most industrial branch ministries. It also maintains state control of many prices.

In presenting his plan to Parliament Friday, Gorbachev lashed out at Yeltsin, his chief critic and rival, for speaking against the compromise and threatening Russia may ignore it.

''He is ignoring the interests of 150 million people, and he is cheating people,'' Gorbachev said of Yeltsin, who has used his new power base as head of the Russian Federation to press Gorbachev for more radical economic reforms. ''This is a political game.''

Yeltsin accused Gorbachev Tuesday of going back on his word by supporting the more moderate economic plan over a bold 500-day program drafted by a joint commission set up by both leaders.

The Russian leader warned if the compromise plan was approved, the huge republic with half the country's population, three-quarters of its land and most of its natural resources might try to split its economy from the Soviet Union and implement its own plan.

Gorbachev's plan includes a vague provision to give republics control over their own resources, but many key raw materials like oil would remain under central control.

And with the central government still controlling most of the economy through its ministries, it would be almost impossible for Russia to independently implement the 500-day plan for privatization and elimination of central controls.

Ryzhkov, under fire for months for his hesitance in moving toward a market, said he ''will not get any laurels for carrying out the plan,'' an indication even the moderate transition to a market it envisions will bring inflation and unemployment by ending subsidies to failing firms.

Gorbachev promised, however, that ''while renouncing the protection of businesses, the state will protect people. Those who have to change jobs will have an opportunity to get assistance in finding another job.''

''During the transitional period, the state will do its utmost to curb the growth of retail prices of prime necessities,'' he said.

Gorbachev said the state will continue to set prices for the most important goods during a revision of prices, and that pensions, student grants and other benfits will be indexed as a cushion against inflation.

Gorbachev and Yeltsin worked together on an economic plan during the summer, but Gorbachev, under pressure from Ryzhkov, recently shifted toward more cautious reform.

The Soviet leader, responding publicly to Yeltsin's charges for the first time said the country cannot afford to delay implementing a concrete program to stem its economic crisis. He called on Yeltsin to stop issuing ''sharp words of a confrontational nature'' and back his plan for a phased transition.

''We are for consolidation, but not consolidation based on ultimatums,'' Gorbachev said in a blistering 50-minute address.

OTTAWA (OCT. 19) UPI - Abortion rights advocate Henry Morgentaler was acquitted Friday of violating a Nova Scotia ban on abortions and planned to reopen his clinic.

Provincial Court Judge Joseph Kennedy said the province had no right to pass the law banning abortions and other medical procedures because it was aimed mainly at Morgentaler.

''I'm elated,'' Morgentaler said after he was cleared on 14 charges of performing an abortion. ''It's a great day for justice in Canada. It's a great day for women in Canada. It's a greater day for the Charter of Rights.''

Essentially, Kennedy said the law was unconstitutional because it was primarily designed to close Morgentaler's abortion clinic.

Morgentaler also told reporters no Canadian province can enact legislation that diminishes the rights of women to obtain a medical abortion.

Provincial officials did not immediately say if they would appeal the court's decision, but Cynthia Haghn, the executive director of Nova Scotia's Campaign Life Coalition, said her group would try to block access to Morgentaler's Halifax clinic.

The clinic was closed after Morgentaler was charged but had been operating on a referral basis.

In the meantime, Morgentaler is concentrating his crusade for unfettered access to abortions on a proposed federal law that would make abortions illegal unless a doctor determines the woman's physical, mental or physiological health would be endangered. Abortions could not be performed outside hospitals and any doctor who performed one without meeting the criteria would be subject to heavy penalties.

The proposed law is similar to one struck down in 1988 by the Supreme Court of Canada because it was unconstitutional. The old law required that a committee of three doctors determine if a woman's life or health would be endangered if her pregnancy continued.

Morgentaler said the proposed law was a ''slap in the face'' for Canadian women and that the government had no right to make ''important personal, intimate decisions.''

He said doctors would be afraid to perform abortions if the law was enacted.

Morgentaler opened his first abortion clinic in Montreal in 1970 and has spent two decades fighting to open similar clinics in other provinces.

MIAMI (OCT. 19) UPI - Hurricane Nana turned its 75 mph winds north Friday toward the island of Bermuda, but forecasters said there was still a chance the storm would miss the vacation spot.

As of noon EDT, the hurricane center was located near latitude 29.1 north and longitude 66.7 west, and the system was traveling north at near 9 mph.

Nana, which was expected to turn toward the northeast by Saturday, was about 245 miles south-southwest of Bermuda.

A hurricane watch was in effect for the island, but forecasters said the advisory would probably be upgraded to a warning by Friday night.

Winds were clocked at 75 mph and not much strengthening was expected during the next 24 hours. Hurricane force winds extended outward up to 25 miles from the center, and tropical storm force winds extended outward up to 85 miles.

''It's still a definite threat to the island of Bermuda,'' said Max Mayfield, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

''The hurricane is still just a Category 1 hurricane on our 1 to 5 scale and it's a very small system, in fact, extremely small. The hurricane force winds reported by our reconnaissance aircraft are right in the center.''

Mayfield said a cold front moving toward the hurricane from the northwest could cause the storm to pass west or southeast of Bermuda.

''If it moves out over or to the west of Bermuda, it'll get some very strong winds,'' Mayfield said. ''If it slides just southeast of them, they may not get much at all.''

Nana is the 14th named storm of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30, and the eighth hurricane.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker proposed Friday a series of new ideas for putting to rest the remnants of the Cold War and to help the Soviet Union avoid the danger of social and economic collpase.

In a speech to the American Committee on U.S.-Soviet Relations, Baker laid out a blueprint for making cooperation permanent and normal between the United States and the Soviets.

The ideas were based on his belief that a normal relationship between Washington and Moscow is now in sight - ''possibly even a genuine partnership may be in reach.''

He split up the ideas into several categories:

-Defense. He proposed setting up a working group that would give both sides a chance to compare their views on deterrence and stability. Another group would discuss ways of converting military equipment into tools that would be useful for the economies of both countries. Both countries would work to prevent regional conflicts.

In addition, the two countries would work together to prevent the further proliferation of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

-Transnational issues. He proposed that the United States explore taking part in an International Center for Ecological Research to be located at Lake Baikal, Siberia, the world's largest body of fresh water. He said the United States and the Soviet Union are already discussing ways of cooperating on combating terrorism and narcotics trafficking.

-Political. Warning that the present ''confusing, jumbled mosaic'' in the Soviet Union presents dangers, he proposed that the United States do what it can to help make the transition to democratic change. He announced that the Soviet Union is now included among the countries that can use the Citizens Democracy Corps, a group that helps explain to newly emerging democracies the workings of the democratic processes and free-market economics.

He warned that there is a continuing danger that the breakdown of the Stalinist system of central control in the Soviet Union will occur faster than a new system can be built up to replace it.

The speech was one in a series he has given in the last year, outlining U.S. policy in the era of the breakdown of communist control in Eastern Europe. For his work, the American Committee on U.S.-Soviet Relations jointly awarded its annual George Kennan award to Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

ATHENS, Greece (OCT. 19) UPI - British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said Friday that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would be forced out of Kuwait militarily if he did not leave peacefully and there would be no compromise leaving him in possession of Kuwaiti soil.

Speaking to reporters after meetings with Greek Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis and other members of his cabinet, Hurd said: ''If Saddam Hussein does not withdraw in peace he will be forced out.''

Hurd, who was in Athens on a two-day visit after a Middle East tour, said: ''We must try to produce a peaceful outcome to this crisis. This is what we're doing by piling up the peaceful pressures.''

But he said there is ''no future in a compromise that would leave Saddam Hussein in possession of part of Kuwait or in a privileged position vis-a-vis Kuwait.''

The foreign secretary said there is no timetable for how long peaceful efforts to solve the Persian Gulf crisis would continue.

Officials said the crisis, European Community affairs and British- Greek bilateral questions were among the subjects Hurd discussed with government leaders in Athens.

He met Mitsotakis Friday after discussions with Foreign Minister Antonis

Samaras on Thursday. He also met with Defense Minister Ioannis Varvitsiotis and Alternate Economy Minister Efthimios Christodolou.

Hurd told a press conference that Greek and British views on the European Community monetary union were converging. ''There has been a coming together of Greek and British views, particularly on Stage Two of the economic and monetary union,'' he said.

He was referring to the three-stage plan championed by E.C. President Jacques Delors for economic and monetary union in the community, leading up to a common currency.

Hurd said Britain met its obligations under Stage One by joining the Exchange Rate Mechanism early this month.

''Stage Two should in our view be the heart of the future discussions. We have put forward ideas about Stage Two, the hard ECU plan. The Spaniards, the Dutch and the European Commision have put forward their ideas,'' he said.

''The Greek government, like us, is keen that there should be flexibility about Stage Two, about timing, about content,'' the foreign secretary said.

''So there has been a converging, a coming together, of Greek and British views about what we regard as the heart of the inter- governmental conference, the heart of the matters connected with economic and monetary union,'' he said.

These ''will be discussed in coming weeks and months'' in meetings of European Community leaders, Hurd said.

Greece was prepared to sign up to the principle of a single bank and a single currency for the Community embodied in Stage Three of the Delors plan. But Britain did not believe that a single bank and a single currency should be imposed on E.C.-member states, he said.

The British minister said U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar was about to launch a new effort to get Turkey to withdraw its troops from northern Cyprus.

Greece has drawn parallels between the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in 1974, when it sought to establish a client Turkish-Cypriot state in the northern part of the island.

''Hope lies with the efforts of the secretary general,'' the British minister said. Britain, along with Greece and Turkey, became a guarantor state of Cyprus's independence after the British granted independence to the island in 1960.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Members of the Senate and House will now work in a conference committee to hammer out the differences in rival deficit-reduction bills. The idea is to come up with something that will get a presidential signature. Senators think their version meets that requirement while President Bush has already voiced displeasure with the House measure. It raises income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans. But it also raises middle-income rates with a one-year freeze of inflation adjustments for tax brackets and personal exemptions.

Iraq apparently is feeling the bite from U-N economic sanctions. Baghdad Radio announced today that the Iraqi government will start rationing gas next Tuesday. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has NEVER before resorted to gas rationing, even during the bitter eight-year Iran-Iraq War. Analysts speculate that the lack of spare parts for the country's refineries may have necessitated the move.

The 500-day blueprint to change the Soviet Union's economy is out and a new plan is in, passed by an overwhelming 333-12 vote of the Supreme Soviet. The original plan, bold in its concept, would have dismantled 70 years of tough central control by abandoning all subsidies and by closing unprofitable factories. The new plan is more moderate in its scope. The state will still set prices for most important goods while those prices are revised.

Britain's P-and-O Ferries line has been formally absolved in a London court of any responsibility for the 1987 disaster off the coast of Belgium when 193 people died as the ferry Herald of Free Enterprise capsized. The company said the case against it should never have been brought because human error was to blame. The stern loading doors were in an open position when the ferry left port. That allowed thousands of tons of water to flow inside, rolling over the ferry.

Rescue workers in Czechoslovakia are searching for eight coal miners missing in a deadly explosion in a coal mine yesterday. Authorities say 22 other miners were killed in the blast in northern Moravia in central Czechoslovakia. The explosion occurred when a blade of a tunneling machine struck a rock and the resulting sparks ignited a pocket of methane gas. Initial rescue efforts were hampered by an intense fire at the site of the explosion.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - Major anti-crime legislation and campaign finance reform were all but written off Friday as Congress scheduled a rare weekend session to begin the annual adjournment drive. Other major bills could also fall.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Mass., and Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine would not pinpoint a target day for adjournment of the 101st Congress but appeared to be gunning for the end of next week at the latest.

The Senate and House planned to spend the weekend on the 13 appropriations bill to finance the government in fiscal 1991, none of which have been sent to the White House for President Bush's signature. The budget year began Oct. 1.

At the same time, Senate and House negotiators began meeting in an effort to find a compromise package to cut the deficit by $40 billion this year and $500 billion over five years.

The negotiators, expected to meet well into the weekend, must reconcile the Senate and House bills in a fashion acceptable to the administration. If they fail, the government faces the threat of a shutdown at midnight Wednesday.

Bush, speaking to a group of Italian-Americans at the White House, sounded the end for the anti-crime bill - still in conference - that greatly expands the federal death penalty and short-cuts the appeals process for death row innmates.

''We're not getting the support I want on the crime bill,'' Bush said. ''We've had a different approach to it. Ours is hardline. Ours is tough and I think it's proper.''

''I regret very much they have not come through and given us a crime bill that I can sign,'' the president added. ''And I don't think that we're going to get it before the end of the session.''

Mitchell, asked if the crime bill has a chance to pass in the waning days of the session, replied, ''I hope so,'' but was much less optimistic about its chance that he was about other major bills waiting final action.

It was Mitchell who sounded the end for campaign finance reform bill, victim of an intractable impasse between Democrats and Republicans. Democrats insisted on candidate spending ceilings and Republicans refused despite a long series of negotiations.

''That doesn't seem to be coming together,'' Mitchell said of the bill, adding that despite a ''lot of accomplishments,'' the failure to pass campaign finance reform ''would be my greatest disappointment.''

Bush, Foley and Mitchell were much more optimistic about passage of a clean air bill, although it remains in Senate-House negotiations. Both Foley and Mitchell said Congress must finish that legislation.

Bush said he was ''dissapointed that we have't finalized a clean air bill'' and complained the legislation ''got caught up with a lot of extremists'' in the House.

''We're not home yet, but I'm hoping that we will be,'' Bush said.

A new farm bill that cuts farm spending by $13.6 billion for five years and a housing bill that overhauls several housing programs and puts them into grants to states and localities appear headed for passage.

Another major bill, to help working families pay for day care, is listed as a priority and was given new impetus this week when the White House and Senate, but not the House, agreed on a compromise legislation.

Putting added pressure on congressional leaders to adjourn is the little time incumbents have to campaign before the Nov. 6 elections.

Records show that closet adjournment dates to general elections since World War II was 17 days in 1966, a mark that was equaled in both 1986 and 1988. The 101st Congress is sure to set a new standard.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - Americans piled up an additional 20 percent in debt on their principal credit cards through the end of 1989 despite high interest rates and a slowing U.S. economy, an industry compilation released Friday showed.

The nation's consumers had total receivables of $147.1 billion on their Visa, Mastercard, Discover and American Express Optima cards at the end of 1989, up 20 percent from $122.6 billion at year-end 1988.

The four credit card companies saw total charge activity rise 15 percent, to $269.9 billion compared with $258.7 billion in 1988.

The 1989 receivables total was more than double the $69.6 billion owed in 1985 said the Credit Card Management Card Industry Directory, published by Faulkner & Gray, a subsidiary of JPT Publishing Group, New York.

Americans using their charge cards as credit vehicles were undeterred by high interest rates, said director and editor Katherine Morrall.

''While the average (interest rate) among the 250 largest (bank and other financial company) issuers of credit cards is 17 percent, the average among the 25 largest is 19.5 percent, up from 19 percent a year earlier,'' she said.

Visa led with a 45.1 percent market share, vs. 44.6 in 1988. Mastercard eased to 28.1 percent from 29 percent. American Express fell back to a 21.9 percent share from 22.6 percent. Discover rose to 4.9 percent from 3.9 percent

The directory said aggressive growth by the credit card industry had produced higher consumer credit losses. Bad-debt losses for Mastercard and Visa totaled $4.2 billion in 1989, up from $1.6 billion five years before.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush asked Congress Friday to revise the Civil Rights Act of 1990 or face a certain veto of the measure he maintains would lead to quotas in the workplace.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said if Bush does veto the legislation, he would promptly send to Capitol Hill his own bill that would ''protect our citizens but not create quotas.''

Fitzwater expressed a renewed willingness to compromise on the emotion-packed issue, however. He said Bush might consider delaying his veto or even signing the bill - but only if Congress first passed resolutions promising to make revisions in the bill that satisfy administration concerns.

''The president wants a civil rights bill,'' the press secretary said. ''(But) it is clear that this is a quota bill that would set back the course of civil rights.''

House and Senate backers of the bill, along with major civil rights and women's groups, sharply disagree. They maintain that the legislation would provide equality in the workplace without quotas.

The bill would reverse or modify several Supreme Court decisions in recent years that supporters say weakened civil rights laws and made it tougher for women and blacks to prove discrimination.

Despite extensive changes to state that the bill does not seek quotas, the administration contends that the measure would lead to a crush of litigation and prompt employers to impose quotas to protect themselves.

The House approved the measure by a 273-154 vote Wednesday. The day before, the Senate it passed it, 62-34. The margins are short of the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

Fitzwater said the bill could reach Bush's desk later Friday. Once it does, the president will have 10 days to decide whether to sign or veto. ''Clearly, if it is not changed, it will be vetoed,'' the press secretary said.

Bush met Thursday with key Republicans backers of the bill, who afterward were quoted as saying that they think that a compromise is still possible.

But Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., a chief sponsor of the measure, said in a floor speech Friday that no talks were under way with the White House and urged Bush to sign the bill.

Earlier this week, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., another major sponsor, said further talks were possible, but said Congress was not willing to accept new language that ''would make discrimination more likely.''

Fitzwater said, ''We're willing to talk to anyone who is interested.''

At about noon Friday, dozens of demonstrators paraded out the White House chanting, ''We want civil rights now.''

PARIS (OCT. 19) UPI - France's stock exchange watchdog body Friday ordered an inquiry into an unusual public earnings prediction by the normally highly secretive Michelin tire corporation after the pessimistic forecast sent the company's shares tumbling on the bourse.

The Commission des Operations de bourse, the French equivalent of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, said the probe would focus ''on the conditions of the diffusion of financial information concerning the Michelin company as well as on the movements that have affected its shares.''

The world market leader in tyre production Thursday announced a provisional loss for 1990 of $500 million, compared with a 1989 profit of $430 million. The prediction was made to 100 financial experts and journalists invited especially to the group's headquarters at the city of Clermont-Ferrand Thursday on condition they not break an embargo set for 5:30 p.m. after the bourse closed.

Almost inevitably some of the scribes broke the embargo and Michelin shares crashed fell 8 percent on the Paris stock exchange.

Group President Francois Michelin protested vehemently Thursday that his trust had been betrayed when he had sought to be open for a change about the company's future.

But the stock exchange watchdog body takes the view such predictions should be published before the bourse opens for business or the previous evening to prevent possible insider trading.

Michelin justified its strategy on grounds it now is the world leader in the tyre business following its spring acquisition of former U.S. competitor Uniroyal-Goodrich.

Company officials attributed the predicted loss to the decline in the value of the dollar and sterling affecting earnings from U.S. and British subsidiaries as well as a depressed world automobile market and a price war caused by fierce competition.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (OCT. 19) UPI - Iran and Jordan joined 10 other nations Friday in approving a world resolution condemning Iraq for using ''torture and murder'' in enforcing its occupation of Kuwait.

The resolution is certain to be adopted by the majority of 800 delegates, with only minor modifications, in Saturday's final session of the six-day annual meeting of the World Interparliamentary Union, Frances Pierre Cournillon, the group's secretary general, told United Press International.

''There is a consensus by the majority that this will be approved tomorrow,'' he said. ''There may be some editing changes, but not the content.''

Delegates from Jordan, whose government has close ties to Iraq, and Iran, which in recent days re-established diplomatic ties to Iraq, joined 10 other nations in drafting the text of the resolution.

The other nations represented on the committee, which unanimously approved the text of the document after drafting it, include India, Cyprus, France, Morrocco, Senegal, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, Switzerland, Soviet Union and Uruguay.

The World Interparliamentary Union, representing legislative bodies in 113 countries, was founded in 1889 to further world peace. Its annual meetings adopt resolutions that are recommended for action by parliaments of the member nations.

The text of the resolution on Iraq's invasion of Kuwait denounced ''the systematic persecution, torture, and murder of the Kuwait people on the part of Iraqi troops, in an effort to intimidate and eliminate the legitimate populaiton.''

It called for a ''peaceful solution'' to the crisis and the ''re-establishment of the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of Kuwait.''

In debate Friday, Israeli delegate Joshua Matza prompted howls of protest from Arab representatives when he denounced Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, as well as Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein as being ''professional criminals.''

''Hussein has threatened Israel with destruction even before the invasion of Kuwait, and Arafat joined him by announcing he would enter Jerusaleum with his Arab brother,'' Matza said.

Delegates from Jordan, Iraq and Iran interjected, protesting that the rules of the Interparliamentary Union forbid direct references to heads of state during debate.

PLO representative Ahmad Sobah said Palestininans wanted a ''peaceful solution'' to the Iraq-Kuwait crisis but ''within an Arab context.''

He asked Israel to immediately leave ''occupied Palestinian territory'' and said ''Israel lacks any moral merit to give anybody lessons.''

Delegates from Sweden, Italy and Algeria proposed a resolution condemning Israel for ''responsibility'' in the killing of 21 Palestinians on Oct. 18 in clashes at religious sites, but the proposal was referred to committee rather than the plenary session because of lack of time, according to sources in the world organization.

The text of the resolution on the invasion of Kuwait urged the Iraqi delegates to the world body to show the text of the document to officials of their government.

The resolution expressed support for U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq and asked that all the governments of the world support it.

UNITED NATIONS (OCT. 19) UPI - The economic impact of the Persian Gulf crisis could impede Eastern Europe's transition to a market economy, thrust the world's poorest countries deeper into poverty and create a new group of debtor nations, a U.N. report said Friday.

By driving up oil prices and interest rates, the report said, the gulf problems are expected to heighten the external debt crisis that has crippled many developing countries for more than a decade.

These countries' external debt, accumulated primarily to pay for huge government deficits and development programs, has reached $1.2 trillion, according to one estimate cited in the report.

''The benefits that a few will reap from the increases in oil prices are greatly overshadowed by the interest rate cost to be born by all indebted countries,'' said former Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi, who was appointed by U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to assess the impact of the debt crisis on development.

Craxi said preliminary estimates indicate that the gulf crisis will cut the growth rate of industrialized countries by one-half percent in 1991. The impact on developing countries is expected to be ''much more severe.''

''The political and economic developments of recent months should heighten awareness of the frequency and seriousness of local conflicts and their expansion to the international arena,'' Craxi said.

The report said the tightening of the world money supply will have major ramifications in most regions, including: the stagnation of economic growth for many low-income countries, particularly in Africa; the creation of new debtor nations, especially in South Asia; a dropoff in the flow of funds to deeply indebted countries that export oil, such as Mexico and Nigeria; and balance-of-payment difficulties for the former East bloc.

The Persian Gulf crisis has erupted at a time when the strains on the international economic liquidity are increasing, in part because Eastern Europe's movement toward a market economy will require a major infusion of capital.

''A special effort must be made to provide financial backing to the countries of Eastern Europe during their transition to a market economy in order to avert serious social shocks,'' Craxi said.

Craxi's assessment was part of a report on the external debt crisis that includes recommendations ''to lessen that part of the international debt burden which breeds war, poverty and environmental degradation.''

Craxi, who will address the United Nations Tuesday, called for more debt rescheduling and debt-service forgiveness, reduced interest rates, more emphasis on debt-for-equity swaps, and a strengthening of the U.S. government's Brady Plan for debt relief.

The plan, worked out by U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Nicholas Brady, called for international banks to forgive at least 20 percent of external debts of some of the poorest countries.

(OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush met today with a top Kremlin analyst just back from a visit to Iraq. And Bush later said that Iraq's Saddam Hussein will NOT be rewarded by any compromise on the position that he unconditionally get out of Kuwait. The comments follow a meeting with Yevgeni Primakov, a member of the Soviet Presidential Council and one of that country's top Arab specialists. Primakov told reporters that he did NOT return from Iraq with any mesage or offer from Saddam.

President Bush says the Senate version of a 500-BILLION-dollar budget reduction plan offers real hope of getting the deficit under control. The measure passed on a 54D-T following 30 hours of debate spread over two days. It is different in tone and scope from a bill passed by the House, and a conference committee must now iron out those differences before a unified bill is sent to the White House.

A massive pile-up on a fog-shrouded German autobahn near Nueremberg has left 11 people dead and 73 others injured, 33 seriously. Police say about 200 vehicles were involved in the crash. Several of the cars caught fire. Officials say similar crashes have occurred in the past, particularly in the fall, when fog is often extremely dense.

The unification of Europe planned by 1992 must also include a unified currency if money speculators are to be discouraged. That's the opinion of Henning Christophersen, the European Community's commissioner for financial and economic affairs. A common currency is supposed to come in the last part of a three-stage unification effort in Europe, but Christophersen says he feels the process should be moved up higher in the chain of planned events.

An English professor from Duke University took the stand in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, today in the obscenity trial of the rap music group 2 Live Crew. Henry Gates Junior testified for the defense that the sexually explicit music of the group uses gross exaggeration to poke fun at black stereotypes. And he said the music does NOT encourage violence against women.

Crews are continuing to dig up two fields southeast of Houston where 44 bodies originally donated to a medical school have been unearthed. The grim work began on Wednesday, following the indictment of 44-year- old Richard Herrin Junior. Herrin was paid by Texas Chiropractic College to cremate 80 cadavers but prosecutors claim he instead dumped some of them in mass graves and may have burned others in two industrial paper incinerators.

DALLAS (OCT. 19) UPI - The trial of busted thrift owner Don Dixon took a bizarre twist Friday when a California newspaper reported that nude photographs have surfaced of a call girl killed after attending one of Dixon's beachhouse parties.

Dixon is not a suspect in the case, though investigators say he purchased the services of 20 call girls, including victim Donna Gentile, for a party at his Solana Beach, Calif., home, the San Diego Union reported. The nude body of Gentile - her mouth stuffed with rocks - was found the day after the two-day party concluded, sources told the newspaper.

According to the newspaper, the women were ordered to attend by Karen Wilkening, the convicted ''Rolodex madam'' now serving 44 months in prison on prostitution-related charges. Wilkening was released to the custody of the FBI to testify for the prosecution in the Dixon case.

''I don't think what I would have to say would make a difference one way or another,'' Wilkening told the Tribune.

The photographs, in the possession of police, were 35mm snapshots, and investigators are trying to determine who took them and when, the newspaper reported.

It is unclear the significance investigators are placing on the pictures. Investigators have hinted a police officer may have been involved in the photo taking.

Investigators are concentrating on allegations against unnamed police officers Assistant San Diego Police Chief Norm Stamper told the newspaper.

Dixon, a Texas builder who bought a small hometown thrift and expanded it into a $1.7 billion enterprise, is accused of falsifying records to conceal the source of money for political contributions, to pay prostitutes and to support his lavish lifestyle. The money, according to a 38-count indictment, came from Dixon's thrift, Vernon Savings & Loan, which collapsed in 1987, requiring a taxpayer bailout of $1.3 billion.

The newspaper said the California party was held for 20 financiers and included cocktails and an evening cruise. It began on June 21, 1985, and ended the following day.

Jury selection was expected to last through Friday with opening arguments late Monday. The trial is expected to last at least a month.

Dixon, who describes himself as an unemployed financial consultant, was able to expand his thrift assets quickly by urging his top executives to make high-dollar commercial loans, all backed by government guarantees. Business deals included a horse farm and gambling casinos.

WASHINGTON (OCT 19) UPI - The Chinese government assailed Friday a House vote to withdraw preferential status for trade with the United States on human rights grounds, warning the move would cause a ''serious slideback'' in overall relations.

The State Department joined the Chinese criticism, for different reasons, saying that it would harm U.S. business interests and slow the opening of China to outside influences.

The swift response, in a statement by the Chinese Foreign Ministry, came just one day after the House, on a 247-174 vote, passed legislation to remove most-favored-nation trade status for China this year to pressure Beijing to ease domestic repression.

The preferential trade status guarantees the lowest possible tariffs on imports into the United States. Its withdrawal would impose huge duties on Chinese goods and make billions of dollars worth of Chinese exports too expensive for the U.S. market.

President Bush recertified China for most-favored-nation status despite concern over its human rights record in the wake of its violent crackdown in June 1989 on pro-democracy protesters at Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

In its statement, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said the House action ''will exert destructive impact on the economic and trade relations between the two countries and will surely result in a serious slideback of the bilateral relations between the two countries.''

The statement also criticized other pending legislation in the House that would force several conditions on the president's next recertification of China for most-favored-nation status next year.

The Foreign Ministry, however, appeared to take note of the likelihood that Bush would veto any such legislation if it also passes the Senate.

''We hope that the U.S. government will make a wise decision on this matter by proceeding from the overall and long-term interests of Sino- U.S. relations,'' the statement said. ''The Chinese will be following closely the development of this matter.''

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said, ''The withdrawal of China's most-favored-nation status as mandated in House Resolution 647 would have severe consequences for United States business, those Chinese who are working for a modernizing China open to the West, and Hong Kong's capitalistic free market economy, which depends heavily on the continuation of U.S.-China trade and investment.''

She said, ''The most powerful means we have for promoting positive change in China are to maintain the broadest possible range of people- to-people contacts. Most-favored-nation status ... we believe helps us to do that. While the administration shares the human rights objectives of the House Resolution 4939, it believes this can be done best by keeping China's economy open to the outside world and maintaining the broadest possible range of people-to-people contacts.''

The Chinese statement was relatively mild. Previously, the Chinese government has punctuated its responses to such votes by Congress with angry condemnations of interference in China's internal affairs.

TORONTO (OCT. 19) UPI - The Canada-United States free trade agreement is a source of economic growth and talk of a continental free trade zone shows the value of the deal, Canada's finance minister said Friday.

Michael Wilson told several hundred people at a business luncheon that there were now 300,000 more jobs in Canada than existed before the bilateral deal was implemented in January, 1989.

''Yes, there are jobs we have lost to the U.S., just as there are jobs that Americans have lost to Canada,'' Wilson said. ''That's what happens when you have more open trade.''

But Wilson said the bilateral deal ''continues to represent a dramatic source of economic growth and long-term strength to Canada.''

The Canada-United States free trade agreement is aimed at eliminating tariffs on most goods over next decade and the two sides are currently involved in a second round of talks to accelerate tariff reductions.

Last May, the two countries signed a deal to advance the cutting of duties on more than 400 items covering $5.1 billion in trade.

Wilson said the opportunities created by the free trade deal made it all the more important that Canada be involved in talks on a possible continental free trade zone. Wilson did not outline those opportunities.

In September, Canada asked to participate in talks over the next few months with Mexico and the United States to determine Canada's role in negotiations that could lead to a trilateral deal.

''For me, the very fact that Mexico has embraced such talks is real evidence of the value of our current agreement,'' Wilson said.

Wilson said of Mexico: ''Here is a nation with less economic muscle than we muster, recognizing that its growth and prosperity depends on direct and assured access to the world's largest market.''

Total U.S.-Canada trade in goods amounted to $167.5 billion in 1989, up 4 percent from 1988, Canadian trade figures indicated.

Besides tariffs, the Canada-U.S. deal also eases restrictions on government procurement, services, investment and border measures.

MONTEVIDEO (OCT. 19) UPI - The Uruguayan economy, burdened by its highest inflation in 15 years, is suffering growing unemployment and a 13.7 percent drop in real wage earnings, an official report showed Friday.

The report from the General Direction of Statistics and Census said the unemployment rate in Uruguay for the June-August trimester rose to 9.16 percent, up from 8.5 percent the preceding trimester.

Real wage earnings dropped 13.7 percent between January and August, the report said, and fell 12.2 percent in the last 12 months.

Analysts said the worsening situation for Uruguayan workers was caused by the inability of the administration of President Luis Alberto Lacalle to so far contain rising prices.

Inflation between January and September rose 93.5 percent, the highest increase in the last 17 years. The cost of living rose 128.93 percent in the last 12 months, official figures showed.

The Uruguayan government raised gas prices 65 percent in less than two months following the outbreak of the Persian Gulf crisis in early August, sparking prices of other products to increase as well, analysts said.

Uruguay, a country the size of Washington state on the southern coastal border of Brazil, imports all of its annual consumption of 9 million barrels of petroleum, and this year had to pay prices ''unanticipated for in the state budget,'' said Economy Minister Enrique Braga.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - The Senate approved $85 million in U.S. military aid to El Salvador Friday, but only if the Central American nation meets five conditions, including investigation and prosecution of the killers who murdered six Jesuit priests almost a year ago.

The Senate voted 74-25 to cap the aid at $85 million and to impose conditions in an effort to put more pressure on the El Salvador government to negotiate a cease-fire and settlement with rebel forces, under the auspices of the United Nations.

The amendment was added to the $15.5 billion foreign aid appropriations bill but still faced a challenge from a competing plan sponsored by Republicans and backed by the administration.

''If anything is going to change in El Salvador, the United States must bring pressure on both sides,'' said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

But Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said, ''What we're doing here is tying the hands of our allies so that they cannot get rid of and cleanse and purge themselves of these terrorists through military operations.''

The legislation would deny any military aid if President Bush tells Congress that El Salvador refuses to negotiate a peace settlement, rejects an active mediation role by the United Nations, refuses to comply with a U.N. plan for a settlement including a cease-fire, fails to investigate and prosecute those responsible for the Jesuit murders; or engages in violence against civilians.

If the money is withheld for any of these reasons, the assistance could only be resumed with the approval of Congress.

Under the amendment, El Salvador would get half of the $85 million and any money in the pipeline unless Bush determines the rebel FMLN are not meeting a set of similiar conditions.

These include a a refusal to negotiate a peace settlement, refusal of an active mediation role by the United Nations, refusal to comply with a U.N. plan for a settlement during a cease-fire, receive a significant amount of lethal equipment from abroad, launch an offensive to topple the government, and engages in acts of violence against civilians.

In the event both sides are moving toward a resolution of their conflict under U.N. supervision the 50 percent of military aid held back would be used to monitor a cease-fire, demobilize combatants and assists in the transition to peacetime activities.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - The dollar gained some strength against most key currencies Friday in New York dealings on a mixture of pre-weekend protective buying of the U.S. currency and some sentiment it was going too cheap.

But currency traders said the dominant factor was the impending weekend, over which market participants saw the risk of Gulf hostilities and bought dollars to offset their short, or dollar-selling, positions.

Fighting in the Gulf would probably spark at least a short-term flight to the dollar, overriding U.S. economic drawbacks and expectations of lower interest rates when Congress and the administration strike a budget deal.

In late New York dealings, the dollar was quoted at 1.5010 German marks, up from 1.4970 marks Thursday, and 126.00 Japanese yen, up from 124.40.

''It's very difficult to separate out short-covering before a weekend and a sustainable correction'' of too-low dollar rates, said foreign exchange manager Valerie Walker of the Harris Bank in New York.

Walker saw something of a correction against the yen, but added, ''Net, people feel as though the reasons why we sold the dollar so aggressively in past sessions have not dissipated.''

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2675 Swiss francs, up from 1.2585; 5.0300 French francs, down from 5.0440; and 1,125 Italian lire, up from 1,121.50.

The pound retreated to $1.9600 compared with $1.9710.

In Europe the dollar closed mostly lower against the major currencies. It was under pressure because of the lack of a concrete budget agreement and fears of stagflation - inflation and low growth - in the U.S. economy, dealers said.

''It's been quite an erratic day for the dollar,'' said Ifty Islam, a dealer at the Barclays de Zoete Wedd investment bank. ''But there is some feeling it has been oversold, especially against the yen.''

But dealers expected the dollar to keep falling over the long-term against a strong German mark and against the Japanese yen, based on anticipated cuts in the U.S. interest rate following a budget agreement.

In Frankfurt the dollar fell to 1.5088 German marks vs. 1.5105 Thursday, and also declined in Zurich, to 1.2670 Swiss francs against 1.2745.

In London, the pound gained to finish at $1.9635 against $1.9540.

The dollar slipped in Brussels and Milan, closing at 30.99 Belgian francs vs. 31.10, and 1,128.25 Italian lire vs. 1,131.755. But it moved up in Paris to end at 5.0515 French francs compared with 5.0465.

Earlier, the U.S. dollar rebounded slightly against the Japanese yen in Tokyo Friday on position-adjustment buying ahead of the weekend.

The dollar closed at 125.25 yen, up 0.85 yen over Thursday's closing rate of 124.40 yen, the Bank of Japan said.

Foreign exchange dealers said the dollar opened on a firm note on Mideast war rumors, but later was sold after comments by Japanese Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto saying the yen's rise ''is not so excessive.''

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $373 an ounce against $368.50, and was also higher in London at $372.50 an ounce vs. $366.71.

Silver closed unchanged in Zurich at $4.25 an ounce, but was higher in London at $4.28 an ounce vs. $4.23.

PORTLAND, Ore. (OCT. 19) UPI - A neo-Nazi acknowledged Friday that attacks on Oregon minorities increased with the arrival of racist skinheads tied to a group that allegedly incited the murder of a black man.

Testifying in a wrongful death lawsuit filed against California white supremacist Tom Metzger, neo-Nazi Rickey Cooper said he wrote of the increased attacks in the October 1988 issue of his Socialist Vanguard Report.

The paper was published the month before three skinheads fatally beat and kicked an Ethiopian student in Portland, allegedly as a result of Metzger's racist teachings.

The Southern Poverty Law Center and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith have sued Metzger, alleging he incited and should be held responsible for the beating death of Mulugeta Seraw, who was killed outside his Portland apartment

Nov. 12, 1988.

Metzger, 52, of Fallbrook, Calif., is the founder of a group called White Aryan Resistance and a former grand dragon of the California Ku Klux Klan. The suit also names his son John, 22, and two of the skinheads who killed Seraw.

Cooper, of The Dalles, Ore., spoke on the final day of testimony in the trial. Circuit Judge Ancer Haggerty said he hoped to hear closing arguments later in the day.

Cooper acknowledged that some of his information about increased skinhead violence came from Dave Mazzella, a former leader of Metzger's group who is now the star witness for the plaintiffs.

Much of the case hinges on whether the jury believes Mazzella's claims that he was acting out Metzger's wishes when he came to Portland before Seraw's death and encouraged skinhead violence.

Lawyer Morris Dees, who represents Seraw's family, charged that Cooper received information from Mazzella about skinhead violence in Portland in October 1988, and then passed on that information to Metzger.

Cooper acknowledged that he once referred to Mazzella as one of the ''WAR skin leaders,'' but he said he did not believe Mazzella was acting on Metzger's behalf before the Seraw killing.

''I think he was representing himself,'' Cooper said of Mazzella.

Under questioning from Metzger, who is serving as his own attorney, Cooper said he has never known the former KKK leader to advocate illegal violence.

Dees also quizzed Cooper about a taped conversation the neo-Nazi once had with Metzger in which, according to a summary prepared by Metzger, Cooper said that since more skinheads moved to Portland, ''the fights and attacks on the race mixers and the race traitors and the racial scum have been picking up.''

Cooper said he may have said that, but disapproved of the attacks anyway.

After calling all his other defense witnesses, Metzger failed in an effort to force testimony from Dees, famed for his battles against racist organizations and once targeted for assassination by a Northwest white supremacy group.

Metzger said he wanted to question Dees about allegations that he has bribed witnesses in other cases. Circuit Judge Ancer Haggerty said that would be inappropriate.

''If we don't get him here we're going to get him somewhere else,'' Metzger shouted after Haggerty refused to force Dees to testify.

When Elden Rosenthal, Dees' co-counsel, asked if Metzger's remark was a threat Metzger said, ''I'm talking about in court, Mr. Rosenthal.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - All three major boxing organizations have ruled that the winner of the heavyweight title bout between champion James ''Buster'' Douglas and Evander Holyfield Thursday must next fight former titleholder Mike Tyson with no intervening defenses, the World Boxing Association confirmed.

WBA counsel Jimmy Binns confirmed that his organization decided at its executive meeting in Atlantic City, N.J. Friday to join the International Boxing Federation and the World Boxing Council in mandating Tyson gets the next shot at the title within 120 days of the Oct. 25 Douglas-Holyfield fight at Las Vegas, Nev.

Tyson is scheduled to fight Alex Stewart on Dec. 8 and the ruling of boxing's governing bodies is contingent on his not losing the ranking as the top challenger he would inherit after Holyfield either moves from the No. 1 spot. After fighting Douglas, Holyfield either will be champion or drop in ranking.

Douglas, who won the title from Tyson in February, would have had to fight a rematch against Tyson next anyway, under terms of the settlement of lawsuits between Douglas and promoter Don King.

So this decision chiefly affects Holyfield, whose management had been negotiating to fight George Foreman if Holyfield gets by Douglas. Under usual rules, a new champion would have the right to one bout before having to make a mandatory defense against the No. 1 challenger.

''What happened is that the executive committee voted to invoke an exception under rule 19,'' Binns said. ''The World Boxing Council had already moved the same thing and so all three organizations have now ruled, I guess because that's the best thing for boxing.

''That's the match people want to see.''

SEATTLE (OCT. 19) UPI - Brian Peter Daniels, considered one of the world's major drug kingpins responsible for shipping vast amounts of Asian marijuana to the United States over a 12-year period, was handed a 25- year prison sentence Friday and fined $6.2 million in federal court.

Daniels, 44, a wealthy New York native who lived for 15 years in Bangkok, was alleged to have built a smuggling empire that including extensive contacts with drug lords in the northeast provinces of Thailand and with Hong Kong's secretive banking system.

He was charged in San Diego, Seattle and Nevada with attempting to smuggle some 150 tons of high-grade Thai marijuana worth $550 million into the U.S. in 1988. Prosecutors have said that likely was only a fraction of the amount Daniels managed to get through.

''He admitted at the time he entered his plea that he was brokering and supplying 200,000 kilograms (2,200 tons) from 1984-88 alone,'' said assistant U.S. Attorney Mark Barlett after the sentencing. ''I am not aware of anyone ever being in excess of that.''

Daniels, who expressed remorse at the sentencing, was arrested on the Seattle charges in July 1988 when he traveled to Zurich, Switzerland, for medical treatment. He was eventually extradited to the United States, where he pleaded guilty last December to conducting a continuing criminal enterprise and two different narcotics conspiracy counts.

Daniels' drug empire began to unravel when 72 tons of marijuana were seized in June 1988 500 miles off the Washington coast aboard the Encounter Bay, a Panamanian-registered oil supply ship stopped by disabling shots from a Coast Guard cutter.

Aboard were 22 crewmembers of various nationalities, including two Philadelphia brothers, Robert and Samuel Colflesh, both former Green Berets in Vietnam, who admitted they had conducted marijuana shipments for 15 years without getting caught.

In their indictment, prosecutors contended the Thai marijuana was trucked across Vietnam to Da Nang and loaded onto a ship with the help of Vietnamese Army troops, perhaps anxious to receive cash for the money-starved government.

Federal authorities knew the Encounter Bay, as the ''mother ship'' of the operation, was planning to rendezvous with smaller boats off the Washington coast for offloading because two undercover agent had posed as buyers when they met Daniels at a Hong Kong hotel in May 1988.

Under tough new federal sentencing procedures for drug felons, Daniels will not be eligible for parole but can have 55 days cut from his sentence for every year of good behavior, Bartlett said.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - The United States plans to transfer more than 500 of its most sophisticated operational tank, the M-1A1, from storage in Europe to U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia, defense officials said Friday.

The M-1A1, an improved version of the standard M-1 Abrams tank, is air-conditioned and can protect occupants from chemical or biological warfare agents. Its cannon also fires armor-piercing, high explosive 120mm shells.

A newer version of the Abrams, the M-1A2, is still in production and is not expected to become operational until at least 1992.

The Army considers the M-1 tank to be superior to the Soviet-built T- 72, the most sophisticated of Iraq's inventory of 5,500 tanks. Iraq has about 500 T-72s; the rest are older models.

With the transfer of these U.S. tanks from Europe, American troops will have more than 1,300 tanks in Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield, said defense officials who asked not to be identified.

The Pentagon said in a statement that ''several hundred'' M-1A1 tanks would be sent to Saudi Arabia from Europe, and officials publicly declined to be more specific. But a defense official who asked not to be identified said this amounted to more than 500.

The Pentagon said these U.S. tanks from Western Europe would be in ''excess'' of the limits set under the Conventional Forces in Europe treaty expected to be signed with the Soviet Union by the end of this year, and thus would have to be removed or destroyed anyway.

''We are proposing to our NATO allies that these tanks continue to be counted under the CFE treaty, thus leaving NATO's tank-destruction requirement under the treaty unchanged,'' the Pentagon said.

Pentagon officials said there are about 3,500 Iraqi tanks in Kuwait and southern Iraq, along with 430,000 Iraqi troops, 2,500 armored personnel carriers and 1,700 artillery pieces.

The United States already has about 800 tanks in Saudi Arabia; about 700 with Army units and approximately 70 with the Marines.

Most of the Army's tanks are standard 60-ton M-1s, though the 67-ton M-1A1 was already there with the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment from Fort Bliss, Texas. The Marines have older M-60 tanks.

Neither the M-60s nor the M-1s are air-conditioned, making them extremely uncomfortable in the desert heat. They also offer no protection against the chemical or biological agents that Iraq may use if fighting breaks out.

''The M-1A1 Abrams added a 120mm smoothbore cannon and a Nuclear, Biological, Chemical (NBC) microclimatic cooling system to the already proven combination of thermal sight, laser rangefinder, and full stabilization to provide a combat vehicle capable of operating under all climate and light conditions, as well as in an active chemical environment,'' the Army said in its ''Weapon Systems 1990'' manual.

The 67-ton M-1A1 also is driven by a 1,500-horsepower turbine engine that enables it to reach a top speed of 41.5 mph.

In addition to the transfer of the M-1A1 tanks, the United States ''is in the final stages of approving the previously announced sale of 220 older M-60A3 tanks in War Reserve Stockpiles in Europe to Saudi Arabia, Oman and Bahrain, where they will also contribute to the security in the Persian Gulf area,'' the Pentagon said.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (OCT. 19) UPI - Shares of Applied Materials Inc. dropped sharply Friday, after the maker of semiconductor manufacturing equipment said fourth-quarter earnings and revenue would fall below analysts' expectations.

Applied Materials' stock closed down $3.875 at $19.125 a share in over-the-counter trading.

The company warned analysts early Friday morning that delays in two customer shipments would cause earnings and revenue to fall short of expectations for the quarter ending Oct. 28.

The company said it expected to report revenue of $133 million to $137 million and earnings per share of 13 cents to 17 cents for the quarter. Analysts had expected the company to earn about 55 cents a share on revenue of $150 million.

The company said orders had softened as customers delayed investment decisions because of concerns about the economy. Orders for the quarter should be about $150 million, slightly below analyst expectations of about $160 million, the company said.

''It would not take revenue to drop much more before you'd see losses,'' said technology analyst Carolyn Rogers of Hambrecht & Quist in San Francisco. ''I think people are worried about losses; that is what the stock is saying.''

Rogers lowered her earnings estimate for Applied's upcoming fiscal year to $2.10 a share from $2.60 a share. That would be up from $1.95 to $1.99 a share in the current fiscal year, but would be down from $2.43 a share in the fiscal year ended Oct. 29. 1989.

In the first three quarters of this year, Applied earned $31.1 million, or $1.82 a share, on revenue of $426.1 million.

Applied said it was forced to delay a shipment of equipment to a Japanese semiconductor manufacturer in the fourth quarter because the customer's facility was not ready in time. The company also had to delay a shipment to a European customer because it could not customize the systems in time to ship them before the end of the quarter.

ST. LOUIS (OCT. 19) UPI - The cause of a five-alarm fire Friday in a building at the Anheuser-Busch brewery's main headquarters, which caused the brewery to shut down, was under investigation, fire officials said.

The fire broke out shortly after 8 a.m., in a building that is divided into a refrigeration plant where beer is cooled and a yeast plant, an Anheuser-Busch spokesman said.

Firefighters had the flames under control around 10 a.m., said Battalion Chief Dave Weman of the St. Louis Fire Department.

About 350 employees were evacuated from the building. Of the employees, 35 or 40 were in the yeast plant to renovate that half, while the other workers were in the refrigeration plant. None of the employees was injured. As a precaution employees from the nearby brew house also were evacuated.

The brewery shut down because of the fire, the Anheuser-Busch spokesman said. The brewery was to start up again in the late afternoon or early evening, he said.

However, three firefighters were injured. Eugene Hensley, 50, suffered a strained shoulder, while David Mannes, 50, was flown by helicopter to St. Louis University Medical Center after he collapsed from apparent exhaustion.

Doctors said Mannes would be kept overnight at the hospital for observation.

The third firefighter, whose name was not released, injured his back, Weman said.

Investigators said they were trying to determine where and how the fire started.

''There was a lot of heavy smoke,'' Weman said. ''You couldn't see your hand in front of your face. The damage was extensive.''

Firefighters had difficulty fighting the fire because there was some concern the flames might have reached ammonia lines, as well as chlorine tanks that are in the building.

A two-gallon propane tank exploded, as well as steam pipes throughout the third and fourth floors. Glue and foam packaging material that caught fire caused the thick, black smoke, Weman said.

Weman said the firefighters ran into some danger because of asbestos floating around from the updraft of the smoke.

''With asbestos, you always have that danger,'' Weman said. ''Asbestos was flying around everywhere. They had it all sealed off with plastic. Of course, we had to go through that area and contain the fire.''

After the fire was extinguished, the 125 firefighters at the scene went through a decontamination process, washing off all firefighting clothes and equipment to remove any traces of asbestos.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - House and Senate negotiators, sharply divided over how to spread the tax burden of deficit reduction, began work Friday to meld a budget package produced by House Democrats with a bipartisan Senate bill preferred by President Bush.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed and sent to the White House a stopgap spending bill to keep the government running through next Wednesday, giving Congress more time to fashion tax increases and spending cuts aimed at lowering the deficit by $500 billion in five years.

Bush visited Capitol Hill at mid-afternoon to encourage congressional leaders and thank all Republican senators who supported the bipartisan deficit-cutting package that cleared the Senate on a 54-46 vote hours earlier.

The president was expected to sign the temporary funding bill, passed by the House Thursday, thus avoiding a repeat of the government shutdown that occurred during the Columbus Day weekend.

The government's current spending authority was due to expire at midnight Friday.

''I want to thank the leaders for doing a masterly job,'' Bush told the lawmakers. ''I'm here just to say thank you and we need to finish the job.''

The Senate approved its deficit-reduction plan at about 1:25 a.m. Friday, capping more than 30 hours of debate over two days. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas repeatedly joined forces to squelch several attempts to substantially alter the bipartisan bill.

The Senate package would increase the federal gasoline tax 9 1/2 cents a gallon by 1992, raise cigarette and alcohol taxes, impose new taxes on luxury items and boost costs to Medicare beneficiaries.

It contains no changes in federal income tax rates, but does limit tax deductions that can be claimed by those earning more than $100,000 a year.

On Tuesday, the House engaged in heated partisan warfare before passing a Democratic-backed bill that raises income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent and imposes a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million a year.

It also boosts the alternative minimum tax, applied to wealthy taxpayers with large numbers of deductions and exemptions, from 21 percent to 25 percent.

The House bill, while including alcohol, cigarette and luxury taxes similar to those the Senate adopted, eliminated any increase in gasoline taxes. Instead, the House voted to delay for one year inflation adjustments to income tax brackets and personal exemptions.

House and Senate negotiators opened talks later Friday seeking to reconcile the widely divergent bills and produce a compromise that must then clear votes in each chamber before going to Bush for his signature.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, urged fellow conferees to ''come up with a product that is bold enough to substantially reduce the budget deficit and also fair enough to be accepted by our colleagues and the American people.''

Speaking to a group of Italian-Americans Friday, Bush said the Senate bill ''offers, I think, some real hope for getting this budget deficit matter under control.''

Though declining to give details on what he would like to see emerge from the conference, he praised senators for warding off efforts to raise income tax rates, saying, ''I think I'm on the right track on that and I'm going to try to hold the line.''

Mitchell, who said he supported many of the amendments that he vigorously fought to defeat on the Senate floor, told his colleagues that the Senate budget bill was crafted specifically to avoid a veto and that even ''attractive'' amendments would subvert any try at deficit reduction.

In opposing the House approach, Bush criticized the raised income tax rates on the highest income taxpayers, which would generate $50 billion over five years and the increased income taxes on middle-class Americans caused by freezing for a year the inflation adjustment of tax brackets and personal exemptions.

The Senate's increase in gasoline taxes, a measure expected to raise $42.6 billion in five years, is seen by the Democrats as placing a disproportionate burden on lower- and middle-income individuals.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - Stocks surged for the second straight day Friday in heavy trading in a rally driven by a plunge in oil prices and late buying tied to the expirations of stock-index futures and options.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which soared 64.85 Thursday, rallied 68.07 to close at 2520.79. It topped Thursday's gain as the second-largest of the year and marked the first time since late August that the Dow has rallied 50 points or more on consecutive days.

The market's best day of the year came Aug. 27, when the Dow soared more than 78 points.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index jumped 3.27 to 170.40 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 6.74 to 312.48. The price of an average share surged 57 cents.

Advances outpaced declines 1,128-488 among the 1,993 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 221,480,000 shares, up slightly from 204,120,000 traded Thursday.

The monthly expirations of stock-index futures and options, sometimes known as ''double-witching hour,'' not only inflated volume, they generated significant buy orders before the close which in turn sparked program buying.

The computerized buying allowed the market to extend its earlier gains, which were sparked by plunging oil prices and strong Treasury bonds.

Oil prices plunged $3.01 to $33.79 a barrel in New York as the market responded to a statement from Iraqi first deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan, who arrived unexpectedly in Amman Thursday to brief Jordanian officials on his tour of North Africa. He told Radio Jordan he was more optimistic about a political solution to the Gulf crisis.

''You'd have to say the catalyst was oil,'' said Dale Tills, manager of institutional equity trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco. ''It was real positive for bonds (since lower oil prices mean lower inflation) and helped stocks out. We closed up even stronger with the buy programs because of options expirations.''

Treasury bonds rallied Friday, sending their yields lower. The long bond was up 25/32 to 100 1/32 to yield 8.74 percent. It was the first time the bond has settled above par since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Tills said the budget remained a question for the market, however. The House and Senate Friday turned to the task of ironing out the differences between their budget bills, which were designed to chop $500 billion from the federal deficit over the next five years. Talks were expected to continue through the weekend.

''It looked like a decent rally but if the budget doesn't get worked out this weekend it could be a drag on the market,'' Tills said.

On the trading floor, Citicorp was the most active issue in dividend- related trading, up 1/8 to 13 1/4.

Philip Morris followed, up 1 1/2 to 48 3/8. It rallied Thursday after a strong earnings report Wednesday.

Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. was third, sinking 5 to 32 7/8. Freddie Mac said Thursday it would charge against its reserves losses of $124 million from its mortgage portfolio during the third quarter. Analysts reportedly cut earnings estimates in the wake of the news.

Motorola was also active, plunging 4 1/2 to 51 3/8. Company officers were reportedly guiding analysts' earnings estimates toward the lower end of the range of expectations.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 1 1/2 to 33 1/2, IBM rallied 2 3/8 to 107 3/4, General Electric jumped 1 to 55 1/2, Coca-Cola surged 2 3/8 to 45 3/4 and Eastman Kodak picked up 1 3/4 to 39 3/4.

Elsewhere, Eli Lilly plunged 4 to 74. Prescriptions for its depression drug, Prozac, are said to have fallen substantially in September.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 256,051,990 shares, compared with 243,283,960 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices gained in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index rose 1.87 to 293.71. Advances led declines 365-199 among the 792 issues traded. The price of an average share added 6 cents. Composite volume totaled 15,367,070 shares vs. 14, 279,700 traded Thursday.

Hillhaven led the Amex issues, up 1/8 to 1 5/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 3.34 to 337.37.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - The Senate rejected an amendment to $15.5 billion foreign aid bill Friday that criticized new Israeli settlements in East Jerusalem and required a study on future U.S. loan guarantees for Israel.

The amendment, sponsored by Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., came up as Congress worked to clear up appropriation bills in an effort to adjourn next week.

But with complaints there was not enough time to debate such a delicate foreign policy topic, the Senate voted 90-8 to table - or kill - the amendment.

The Byrd-Dole amendment - amounting to a rare congressional rebuff of the long-time U.S. ally - expressed congressional regret that Israel encouraged more settlement of Soviet refugees in East Jerusalem, contrary to assurances given the Bush administration in connection with $400 million in housing loan guarantees.

It would have required the president to send a report to Congress in 60 days assessing Israeli policy on new settlements and the guarantees for housing loans previously approved.

Dole said the amendment does not change long-standing U.S. policy that views Israeli incentives for new settlements in any of the occupied territories as being detrimental to Mideast peace.

''We have a very special relationship with Israel,'' Dole said. ''We do disagree on some matters and we disagree on settlements.''

''This amendment is not to challenge our special relationship. It just asks for some information that is very relative,'' he said.

While Byrd stressed the strains put on Israel by the massive influx of Soviet refugees and the resulting strain put on U.S.-Israeli relations, he also expressed distress over the killing of 21 people during demonstrations at the Temple Mount in East Jerusalem earlier this month and the Israeli response to the subsequent U.N. resolution.

''It distresses me that Israel has reacted to the efforts of the United States to soften the harsh tone of the early drafts of the U.N. resolution on the Temple Mount incident by refusing to cooperaate with any U.N. mission to investigate the incident,'' Byrd said.

''I am saddened that Israel has rejected, instead of welcomed, the opportunity to present the facts as it sees them.''

The sudden introduction of the amendment surprised many in the Senate and brought a response from Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., that while there might be some merit to the proposal, the Senate did not have the time to debate them.

Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., said the amendment was ''inflamatory and could be counterproductive'' in the tense Middle East, where the United States in trying to hold together an Arab coalition against Iraqi aggression.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) UPI - The former chief regulator of the nation's thrifts predicted Friday that the cost of bailing out the savings and loan industry could go as high as $1 trillion, about double current estimates.

''This could well turn out to be a $1 trillion problem if we don't get some political will in Congress to stop these losses,'' said Edwin Gray, who headed the Federal Home Loan Bank Board from 1983 until he was replaced in 1987.

Gray's estimate of the bailout's ultimate cost was nearly twice prevailing forecasts, which include the costs of seizing ailing thrifts, paying off depositors, selling or closing the institutions and making interest payments on the program's debt over the next 30 years.

The government's estimate of the bailout costs last year was $167 billion, but its current estimate, which does not include interest costs, is about $330 billion.

Currently, the Resolution Trust Corp. - the agency handling the bailout - is nearly out of funds and there is an impasse between Congress and the Bush administration over the $40 billion requested by the White House to fund the bailout program for the next 12 months.

''Congress has still not faced up to its responsibilities and acted to provide the funds to stop the continuing losses,'' Gray said. ''And, each day, each week, each month that passes, given the continuing failure of Congress to meet its responsibilities to the taxpayers, the cost of the thrift debacle will grow inexorably.''

Gray said that a key step to solving the problem is to enact campaign reform laws. ''There is just too much money coming in to incumbents from the thrift industry,'' he said.

Gray, currently the president and chief executive officer of Miami- based Chase Federal Bank, was an early antagonist of former Lincoln Savings head Charles H. Keating Jr. The now-defunct FHLBB had warned before Gray left his post in 1987 that Lincoln's financial condition was deteriorating, but the thrift was not seized until two years later.

The bailout of Lincoln is expected to be the most expensive ever, with a price tag of more than $2 billion.

After a monthlong incarceration, Keating, indicted on securities fraud charges was released on $300,000 bail Thursday night.

''I don't have much of a reaction to his release,'' Gray said Friday.

Keating has blamed Lincoln's failure on the government, claiming that the sale of seized property in Arizona led to the bankruptcy of Lincoln's parent, American Continental Corp., and the subsequent seizure of Lincoln in April 1989.

Gray said Friday that Keating's contentions are ''malarky.''

''The government never made a bad loan and never made a bad investment,'' Gray said. ''I guess he (Keating) thinks he can explain the problems in this cynical manner.''

Lincoln's collapse has led to an investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee of five senators who received $1.3 million in campaign contributions from Keating. The quintet has been accused of intervening to stall the Lincoln seizure, thus adding significantly to the cost of the bailout.

Reports that surfaced this week said that three of the senators - Donald Riegle of Michigan, Alan Cranston of California and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona, all Democrats - had much more extensive fund- raising ties with Keating than had been previously disclosed and made a number of extra efforts were made on his behalf.

The other two under investigation are Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., and John Glenn, D-Ohio. The Ethics Committee's special counsel, Robert Bennett, has recommended that the panel drop their investigation of McCain and Glenn.

Gray, saying that Bennett's report should be made public, indicated that he did not believe that McCain and Glenn should be dropped from the probe.

Gray has testified that the senators, during an hour-long meeting in DeConcini's office in April 1987, pressured him to back off on the Lincoln investigation. ''No one raised any objection to the suggestion that if I would withdraw on this, they would get their friend at Lincoln to make a lot more home loans,'' he said Friday.

The five senators have denied that their involvement with Keating, an important political contributor, resulted in impropriety. The Ethics Committee is trying to decide whether to proceed with a formal investigation.

''Lest there be any misunderstanding, the thrift debacle is wholly and completely and unreservedly bi-partisan,'' Gray said. ''Mr. Keating and the many others who threw money at the politicians cared not a whit about the political affiliation of the congressional or senatorial recipient of their largesse.''

MIAMI (OCT. 19) UPI - Hurricane Nana turned its 75 mph winds north Friday toward the island of Bermuda, but forecasters said there was still a chance the storm would miss the vacation spot.

As of 6 p.m. EDT, the hurricane center was located near latitude 29.2 north and longitude 66.6 west, and the system was traveling north at near 5 mph.

Nana, which was expected to turn toward the northeast by Saturday, was about 245 miles south-southwest of Bermuda.

A hurricane watch was in effect for the island, and forecasters said it likely would remain in effect through Saturday.

Winds were clocked at 75 mph and not much strengthening was expected during the next 24 hours. Hurricane force winds extended outward up to 25 miles from the center, and tropical storm force winds extended outward up to 85 miles.

''It's still a definite threat to the island of Bermuda,'' said Max Mayfield, a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

''The hurricane is still just a Category 1 hurricane on our 1 to 5 scale and it's a very small system, in fact, extremely small. The hurricane force winds reported by our reconnaissance aircraft are right in the center.''

Mayfield said a cold front moving toward the hurricane from the northwest could cause the storm to pass west or southeast of Bermuda.

''If it moves out over or to the west of Bermuda, it'll get some very strong winds,'' Mayfield said. ''If it slides just southeast of them, they may not get much at all.''

Nana is the 14th named storm of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30, and the eighth hurricane.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (OCT. 19) UPI - A federal judge Friday upheld the government's indictment of Exxon and rejected a plea to throw out criminal charges stemming from last year's massive Exxon Valdez oil spill.

''I deny all motions to dismiss,'' U.S. District Court Judge H. Russel Holland said following a two-hour hearing in which Exxon Corp. and Exxon Shipping Co. sought to have the charges against them thrown out.

The ruling, to be followed by a written opinion later, was welcomed by Justice Department lawyers prosecuting the two Exxon companies for the nation's worst oil spill.

''The indictment is proper and fairly puts the defendants on notice of what they have to defend against,'' Holland said in a brief statement rejecting Exxon's arguments for dismissal.

A battery of Exxon lawyers at the hearing voiced disappointment over their defeat but said there would be no appeal.

Trial has been set for April 10, more than two years after the tanker Exxon Valdez rammed Bligh Reef in Prince William Sound and spewed 11 million gallons of oil into pristine waters, fouling rich fishing grounds and wildlife habitat.

Exxon faces fines of $700 million if convicted of violating the federal Clean Water Act, the Refuse Act, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act and the Dangerous Cargo Act. A federal grand jury indicted Exxon Corp. and Exxon Shipping Co. last February.

Exxon Corp. lawyer Patrick Lynch, in arguing for the dismissal, told the judge that the parent corporation was not liable for acts of Exxon Shipping Co., saying, ''The buck stops with the subsidiary corporation.''

Charges against the corporation represented ''a case of mistaken identity,'' Lynch said, because Exxon Corp. established a separate company to run its shipping business and so was not responsible under corporate law. He said the government made each allegation into two crimes by charging both Exxon companies.

But Assistant Attorney General George Van Cleve replied that when Exxon Corp. transformed its shipping division into a separate corporation to save tax money, nothing changed except the company letterhead.

As long as shipping remained a division of Exxon, the corporation remains liable, Van Cleve argued.

He said the government would, during the trial, expose the intimate relationship showing Exxon Corp. dominated the dependent shipping company, thus linking the two Exxon companies in responsibility for the spill.

Another Exxon lawyer, Edward Bruce, argued that, under the Clean Water Act, crude oil cannot technically be considered a pollutant; that a tanker is not a discharge source, and an accidental spill is not a crime. But Justice Department lawyer Eric Nagle replied that the circumstances of the spill fit the law and were caused by criminal negligence.

Exxon lawyers also lost their arguments that the accidental killing of thousands of seabirds by crude oil was not a violation of the Migratory Bird law.

Additionally, Exxon failed to distance itself from nearly a decade of alcohol problems experienced by fired Exxon Valdez Capt. Joseph Hazelwood, saying actions by Exxon medical, legal and personnel departments regarding Hazelwood were too far removed from the March 1989 spill to be its cause.

Lynch said just because Exxon provided services to shipping employees does not mean the corporation caused the spill and killed birds.

In response, federal prosecutor Van Cleve said, ''The causes of the wreck are not simple, but one of the causes is that the captain was a man of impaired judgment.''

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - Farmers are likely to post a record net cash income of $60 billion, the government said Friday in refining its estimates and warning of higher expenses in the coming months.

''Abundant crops, lackluster commodity prices, the oil shock and a weaker global economic outlook are putting downward pressure on farmers' receipts and boosting expenses for this quarter and into next year,'' the Agriculture Department said.

The estimate of $60 billion in net cash income was the department's most specific projection yet. One month ago, it forecast net cash farm income would fall in the range of $59 billion to 63 billion. The record is $58.4 billion in 1988.

Net farm income continues to be forecast for $47 billion to $52 billion. Last year's $49 billion was a record.

Estimates of farm income and expenses in 1991 will not be released for a few more weeks, although the Economic Research Service has cited factors likely to effect farmers in the new year.

In a report Thursday, it said farm energy costs would be 10 percent to 15 percent higher in 1991 if world oil prices are an average of $30 a barrel for the year. An average of $40 a barrel would mean an increase of about 25 percent.

Farmers are spending about $7.2 billion on diesel fuel, gasoline, LP gas and electricity this year, or about 6.2 percent of total cash production expenses.

The ERS said high income this year and the painful financial restructuring of the past few years has put farmers ''in a stronger position to withstand a drop in income'' than in the early 1980s which were marked by recession and oil shocks.

World grain production is at record levels, which will mean lower demand for U.S. grain in the coming year.

''Global grain stocks will rise for the first time in four years,'' the ERS said. ''Wheat will account for most of the gain while (feed grain) stocks are expected to drop again.''

U.S. wheat prices has slumped since mid-summer. Corn prices are projected to hold steady in coming months.

NEW YORK (OCT. 19) UPI - U.S. Treasury bonds rallied strongly Friday on a decline in oil prices brought about by hints Iraq may be taking a conciliatory stance in its Persian Gulf standoff with the United States.

Bond investors' fear of oil-driven inflation eroding bond returns diminished as oil prices came back down. War apprehension was eased by remarks from Iraqi First Deputy Taha Yassin Ramadan hinting at compromise.

Outright fighting in the Gulf could cut into oil supplies and drive the price of oil through the roof. That would exacerbate U.S. inflation, now running at an annual level of 6.6 percent on the consumer's level.

Even before Ramadan's comments, bond investors had some reassuring inflation news as the government said consumer prices rose in September just 0.3 percent when volatile food and energy costs were excluded.

At the same time, nearly every governmental or other economic indicator seen in recent days spells recession or zero growth, which makes bonds attractive because of their guaranteed return through thick and thin.

''People have responded very favorably in the debt market,'' said Continental Bank government bond trading manager Michael Moore.

Developments have blunted the impact of the main factors driving the selloff the bond market has seen since August, Moore said. ''People are focusing more on the weakness in the real economy,'' he said.

The benchmark 30-year bond, the 8 3/4 of 2020, ended at 99 29/32 to yield 8.76 percent, compared with 97 25/32 and 8.96 percent a week earlier. That made for a gain of 2 1/8 points, or $21.25 on a $1,000 Treasury bond.

Analyst Douglas Schindewolf of Smith Barney wrote in a newsletter that, ''The first signs of cracks in the Iraqi stance blew some of the speculative froth off of oil prices and had a similar effect on bond yields.''

Bond yields - their market-set interest rates - move down as prices move up.

Salomon Brothers analyst Richard Berner said lower oil and commodity prices, a ''whiff of lower 'core' inflation'' and movement in the U.S. budgetary process ''all bolstered the market this week.'' Budget progress revived hopes that the Federal Reserve would lower short-term interest rates.

''However, the market's celebration seems hasty,'' he warned, ''and a 9 percent bond yield may reemerge before rates eventually drift lower.'' It may be early days yet to look for a solution to the Gulf crisis, he said.

Berner added that bond investors have ignored ''the utter lack of interest in U.S. securities by foreign investors and the concomitant sharp slide in the dollar,'' which could hurt Treasury auction results and bond prices.

But Moore said foreign investors could be replaced by domestic institutions shifting assets from the corporate market, which is downscaling in reflection of the slowing U.S. economy, into more competitive Treasuries.

''Given the unsettled state of the economy investors ... have realized that by many standards of measurement treasuries look pretty cheap,'' he said.

Ten-year Treasury notes ended at 100 27/32 to yield 8.62 percent, compared with 99 18/32 and 8.81 the week before. Five-year notes ended at 100 31/32 to yield 8.25 percent, vs. 100 09/32 to yield 8.42 percent.

Three-year Treasury notes closed at 100 01/32 to yield 7.98 percent, compared with 99 23/32 and 8.11 percent seven days before. Two-year notes were at 100 16/32 to yield 7.84 percent, vs. 100 12/32 to yield 7.91 percent.

NEW HAVEN, CT (OCT. 19) UPI - The former president of a vacuum-cleaner sales company pleaded guilty Friday to a check-kiting scheme that defrauded a bank out of nearly $700,000, federal prosecutors said.

Bruce J. Benson, 31, of Wallingford, who entered his plea in U.S. District Court, faces up to 20 years in federal prison and a $1 million in fine when sentenced in December, officials said.

Benson operated Hydro Products Inc., a wholesale and retail vacuum cleaner business, from July 1986 to April 1990 and kept business and personal accounts in separate banks, said U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy Jr.

Benson then switched uncovered checks between his business account in Glastonbury Bank and Trust Co. and personal account in the Cromwell branch of Farmers & Mechanics Savings Bank of Middletown.

Prosecutors charged Benson moved his office from Portland to two locations in Manchester and finally North Haven as he siphoned money to pay offices bills, employee salaries and personal expenses.

This year, Benson purchased a new home for $235,000 in Wallingford with a downpayment of $50,000, Twardy said.

Benson deposited three large checks in Glastonbury Bank and Trust in March, defrauding the bank of $690,000, Twardy said.

TOLEDO, OH (OCT. 19) UPI - A group of demonstrators forced their way into an abortion clinic Friday and some shackled themselves outside the front door, requiring police to cut locks before making arrests and carrying the protesters into patrol wagons.

Police estimates on the number of protesters arrested at the Center for Choice varied widely, but one officer said as many as 25 people were taken into custody.

The protest was the latest in a series of demonstrations at the clinic in the past year.

The demonstrators said they wanted to prevent women from entering the clinic, where abortions are performed each Friday. Activists gather outside the clinic every Friday to offer counseling to women seeking abortions.

During the demonstration, patients were allowed to enter through a rear door and were escorted back to their cars, clinic director Pam O'Leary said .

Some of demonstrators used U-shape bicycle locks to chain themselves together at the door of the building, where they shouted to people inside.

''They'll kill your babies. They just want your money,'' several protesters shouted.

One elderly man chained himself to the underside of a compact car at the rear of the building.

About seven others entered the center and allegedly hit some employees, O'Leary said, but demonstrators disputed the claim, saying the protest was intended to be peaceful.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush signed a stop-gap spending bill Friday to keep the government running through Oct. 24 after deciding Congress had made ''satisfactory progress'' toward agreement on a new deficit-reduction accord.

The move came as House and Senate negotiators, sharply divided over how to spread the burden of deficit reduction, began work to meld a Democrat-crafted House budget package with a bipartisan Senate bill preferred by Bush.

Tax provisions in the two bills appeared to pose the toughest differences to overcome. The House plan relies heavily on higher taxes for wealthy Americans, while the Senate bill contains no income tax rate increases but doubles the current 9-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax to 18.5 cents a gallon.

Bush signed the emergency spending measure at 6 p.m. EDT, just six hours before the government was due to go broke for the second time in three weeks.

The temporary funding bill, which cleared the House Thursday and the Senate Friday, will extend the government's spending authority through next Wednesday.

Bush visited Capitol Hill at mid-afternoon Friday to encourage congressional leaders and thank all Republican senators who supported the bipartisan deficit-cutting package the Senate passed on a 54-46 vote hours earlier.

''I want to thank the leaders for doing a masterly job,'' Bush told the lawmakers. ''I'm here just to say thank you and we need to finish the job.''

The House and Senate negotiators laboring over tax hikes and spending cuts ''have already made satisfactory progress in their work,'' White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in announcing Bush had signed the emergency money bill.

The Senate approved its deficit-reduction plan early Friday after two days of debate. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas joined forces to stop attempts to alterthe bill.

The Senate package would increase the federal gasoline tax 9 1/2 cents a gallon by 1992, raise cigarette and alcohol taxes, impose new taxes on luxury items and boost costs to Medicare beneficiaries.

It contains no changes in federal income tax rates, but does limit tax deductions that can be claimed by those earning more than $100,000 a year.

On Tuesday, the House engaged in partisan warfare before passing a Democratic-backed bill that raises income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent and imposes a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million a year.

It also boosts the alternative minimum tax, applied to wealthy taxpayers with large numbers of deductions and exemptions, from 21 percent to 25 percent.

The House bill, while including alcohol, cigarette and luxury taxes similar to those the Senate adopted, eliminated any increase in gasoline taxes. Instead, the House voted to delay for one year inflation adjustments to income tax brackets and personal exemptions.

House and Senate negotiators opened talks Friday seeking to reconcile the widely divergent bills and produce a compromise that must then clear votes in each chamber before going to Bush for his signature.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, urged fellow conferees to ''come up with a product that is bold enough to substantially reduce the budget deficit and also fair enough to be accepted by our colleagues and the American people.''

Speaking to a group of Italian-Americans Friday, Bush said the Senate bill ''offers, I think, some real hope for getting this budget deficit matter under control.''

CLEVELAND (OCT. 19) UPI - Two major paint manufacturers Friday responded to environmental concerns about the use of mercury in paints by saying they have not been using mercury for some time.

Mercury can cause liver problems and, in response to studies showing mercury in interior paints can lead to health problems, the Environmental Protection Agency Aug. 20 banned the use of mercury on all interier latex paints.

The Sherwin-Williams Co., the country's largest manufacturer of paint, said it has not used mercury in paints since 1973. Dutch Boy, which is part of Sherwin-Williams, said there have been no mercury compounds in its paint since 1985.

The Glidden Co., also headquartered in Cleveland, said it started to eliminate mercury as a preservative and mildewcide in latex paint more than 10 years ago. The final reformulation occurred in a Glidden product called Glid-Tex in September 1989.

John Gerulis, director of Regulatory Information Services for Sherwin-Williams and Dutch Boy, said Sherwin-Williams began using other biocides as a preservative in its latex paint products in the 1960s.

''While EPA estimates some 30 percent of the water-based latex paint products currently on the market reportedly contain mercury, none of those products are Sherwin-Williams manufactured brand paints,'' Gerulis said.

Harry Finkbone, manager of product safety and toxicology for Glidden, said no Glidden paint with mercury should be on store shelves.

''The company has removed the small amount of Glid-Tex from store shelves,'' Finkbone said, ''and we are confident that no Glidden consumer latex paint containing mercury is available for sale.''

IRVINE, Calif. (OCT. 19) UPI - Denny's, a family-style restaurant chain, said Friday it will move its corporate headquarters from Southern California to South Carolina over the next two to three years.

The move, announced by Denny's parent, TW Services, could mean that as many as 400 of the 500 executives employed at the Denny's offices in Irvine will lose their jobs.

However, some executives could be transferred to the current TW Services headquarters in Spartanburg, S.C. The company said that about 100 executives will continue to work in Irvine.

TW Services, which also operates the Pollo Loco, Hardee's and Quincy's chains and the Canteen sporting events services company, said that the move is part of its plans to get its operations into a single location.

''These moves virtually complete our ongoing centralization program,'' said Jerome J. Richardson, president and chief executive officer. ''This consolidation will free our chief operating officers and their field people from as many administrative burdens as possible so they can concentrate on serving our customers.''

The relocation program is expected to begin early next year.

Denny's also said that Bernard Scott, 57, will become senior vice prsident and chief executive officer of Denny's. Scott, a 16-year Denny's veteran, has been vice president for East Coast operations for the chain.

Scott replaces Samuel Maw, who held the titles of president and CEO. Maw will become senior vice president for product development of TW Services.

The announcement of the move to South Carolina comes 14 months after Denny's moved its headquarters to Irvine from the Los Angeles suburb of La Mirada.

Denny's began as a doughnut shop in Lakewood, another Los Angeles suburb, in 1953 and became the leading player in the family restaurant field with widespread penetration in most of the nation's major markets. TW Services, which has annual revenues of about $3.5 billion, purchased the 1,291-restaurant chain in 1987.

Under the new ownership, Denny's began a renovation program and cut about a quarter of its work force. Its chief competitors are Big Boy, Perkins, JBs, Stuckeys, Carrow's, Coco's and Marie Callender's.

Restaurant consultant Janet Lowder of Los Angeles said Denny's has been performing adequately in what she called ''a very tough market'' with an increased focus on younger families with children.

''The renovations were sorely needed and their marketing promotions seem to be working,'' Lowder said. ''They appear to have realized that they can't just focus on senior citizens.''

Lowder said Denny's has the advantage over its competitors of having established itself in most areas of the country. ''A lot of the other chains are strong in only a specific region,'' she said.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (OCT. 19) UPI - Panamanian President Guillermo Endara dismissed a plot by police officers to destabilize his government, saying Friday that Panamanians would not support a coup attempt.

''We, the Panamanians, are not willing to support another coup and the return of the military to rule over us,'' Endara told reporters. ''I represent the people who voted for me in elections and have the support of the people.''

Panamanian authorities said Thursday they had uncovered a plot to destabilize the government masterminded by former police chief Eduardo Herrera Hassan.

Four policemen were arrested Wednesday, including Capt. Francisco Herrera, Herrera Hassan's brother.

The plan called for setting off bombs in Panama City and other towns, and taking of police barracks in Chiriqui province, near the Costa Rican border. It was to begin during a huge anti-government rally Tuesday, but it was never put into effect, Attoney General Rogelio Cruz said.

Cruz said some of the plotters may have been tricked into believing they would receive U.S. backing. U.S. Ambassador Deane Winton denied any knowledge of the plot.

Union leaders in charge of Tuesday's march - the largest anti- government protest since the invasion - have also denied any connection with the plot.

''I don't think it (the plot) has any important repercussions,'' said Endara, who was installed during the U.S. invasion last December that ended 21 years of military rule.

''It is an infantile movement,'' he added.

Many Panamanians view the police force with suspicion because it was built from former military ruler Manuel Noriega's army.

Newspapers printed banner headlines about the plot Friday and condemned it in editorials.

Aside from Capt. Herrera, authorities have arrested Capt. Carlos Ivan Moreno, second-in-command in Chiriqui, a sergeant and a corporal.

Capt. Leslie Loaiza, chief of the investigative police, said Friday more arrests have been made and that some officials might be implicated in the plot.

Herrera Hassan, a former colonel in Noriega's army, became chief of the National Police after the invasion, but quit in August. Like many officers, Herrera had come under fire for his ties to Noriega and his role in a violent crackdown on anti-Noriega protesters in 1987.

Cruz said Panama is considering filing extradition papers for Herrera Hassan, who lives in Miami.

The uncovering of the plot this week caused a wave of coup fear for the second time in the past six months. On May 1, guards surrounded the presidential palace following rumours of a coup and accidentally shot and killed Endara's valet.

AUBURN HILLS, MICH (OCT. 19) UPI - Vinnie Johnson and the Detroit Pistons agreed to contract terms Friday afternoon, team officials said.

Terms of the contract weren't announced.

Johnson dropped his demand for a three-year deal earlier this week, which opened the way for the agreement. Reportedly, the Piston's last offer was for $2.8 million over two years.

''It's a very good contract,'' Johnson said.

''When a rookie comes in and gets $2.5 million, I've got to look for the best deal. We thought about the offer for a while. I had better offers elsewhere and I was real close. I have a lot of loyalties to Detroit and I wanted to say in Detroit.''

Team official said they expected Johnson to sign the pact Friday night.

Johnson didn't play in Friday's exhibition against the San Antonio Spurs at the Palace Friday night, but warmed up with the team before the game.

''We thought about the offer for a while,'' said Johnson.

''It was important for me to get back and get off to a good start,'' he said, noting the two-time NBA champion Pistons ''have a great chance to three-peat.''

Detroit Coach Chuck Daly was happy to have Johnson back.

''I had a dream last night, so I knew this morning he would sign,'' Daly said. ''He's one of us! He's one of only a handful of guys who have been here since I've been here.''

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, CA (OCT. 19) UPI - The second of the radar- eluding B-2 Stealth bombers, under attack for being too costly and obsolete in the face of warming superpower relations, made its inaugural flight Friday.

The B-2 took off from an Air Force airstrip in Palmdale at 8:35 a.m. and stayed aloft for two hours and 36 minutes before landing at the Edwards in the Mojave Desert. It soared to 10,000 feet and flew at a speed of 325 knots per hour.

Northrop Corp., the builder of the B-2, said that the flight ended before completing all of the planned tests because crosswind speeds at Edwards reached 15 knots per hour, with gusts of 19 knots per hour - near the upper limits for crosswind landings during flight tests.

Northrop also said that the instruments showed a drop in fuel pressure in the heat exchangers in one of the bomber's engines.

Earlier this week, U.S. Senate and House negotiators agreed on a $288 billion defense authorization bill that would continue production of the B-2, which would have a price tag of $800 million per plane if all 75 sought by the Air Force are built.

But opponents of the bat-winged aircraft have complained that the program has already cost too much money, is far behind schedule and is based on defending against a Soviet threat that no longer exists.

The first B-2 flew on July 17, 1989 and has flown 16 times since then for a total of 67 hours in the air.

SANTA ANA, CA (OCT. 19) UPI - A diving equipment manufacturer announced Friday that it has voluntarily recalled all of its air regulators because they may allow too much air to flow into divers' lungs.

The company, U.S. Divers, said that a functional problem with the high pressure seats of the first stage of the regulators may allow an uncontrolled flow of air to its second stage.

''If this occurs during a dive, use of the product could be hazardous,'' the company said.

U.S. Divers said the recall affects all regulators that were purchased or serviced since Aug. 15. The potentially defective part will be replaced free of charge.

The company did not indicate whether any injuries have resulted because of the problem.

(OCT. 19) UPI - House and Senate negotiators sat down today to bridge the tremendous gap separating their views on tackling the budget deficit. The lawmakers are trying to marry a budget package produced by House Democrats with a bi-partisan Senate plan preferred by President Bush. The Senate approved its plan early today and later passed and sent to Bush a stop-gap spending bill to keep the government running.

President Bush says Congress must revise the Civil Rights Act of 1990 or face a certain veto of the measure. Bush insists that the measure would lead to quotas in the work place. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says that if the president does veto the legislation... he will promptly send to Capitol Hill his own bill designed to protect citizens without creating quotas.

A number of major bills could be forgotten as Congress scheduled a rare weekend session to begin its annual adjournment drive. Major anti- crime legislation and campaign finance reform are expected to fall by the wayside as lawmakers spend the weekend working on the 13 appropriation bills to fund the government in fiscal 1991. They also will work on the compromise budget plan.

U-S State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler says seven Americans were permitted to fly from Iraq to Jordan this week aboard regular commercial flights. Tutwiler says the seven freed hostages had earlier been taken off evacuation flights by Iraqi authorities. There was NO indication why they were allowed to leave... and NO other details immediately available.

The State Department says letters received this week from Israel did NOT alter assurances from Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy. Levy and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir sent letters, saying their government would continue construction in all parts of Jerusalem. Levy had assured Washington that Israel would NOT use U-S funds or loan guarantees to build homes in the occupied territories.

KALAPANA SHORES, HAWAII (OCT. 19) UPI - Molten rock from the Kilauea volcano destroyed another home and threatened others in an embattled housing area on the southeast coast of the island of Hawaii, authorities said Friday.

A major breakout Thursday night and Friday morning sent a fresh river of molten rock streaming into the area of the Kaimu Junction, in the western section of Kalapana Shores housing area, authorities said.

One home was destroyed at about 2 a.m. PDT Friday, authorities confirmed after daybreak.

Officials said lava continued to ooze forward along the front - and behind that, the flow was increasing for another surge forward.

''We have several homes that are in danger with the inflation close by the homes,'' said George Ikeda, a county worker helping the civil defense agency.

Earlier this week, the flows slackened their march along the coastline past several housing areas, but new flows became active in the already-devastated Royal Gardens and Kalapana Gardens.

The flow destroyed one of the five remaining homes of Kalapana Gardens Monday night and threatened two others, while another major flow threatened the 15 remaining homes in Royal Gardens.

An evacuation order for Kalapana Shores and areas west of the junction remained in effect, and only residents were allowed into the housing area.

Residents of three other communities - Kalapana Havens, Ross Road, and Kaimu-Makena homestead - have been told to be ready to evacuate at any moment should the flow threaten their dwellings.

Other residents were placed on alert because of the danger from laze or lava haze, which forms when molten rock hits sea water. The laze can contain dangerous substances, such as hydrochloric acid.

All coastal recreational activity for areas west of Kalapana Shores has been banned bacuse of the lava and the laze, which has been blown out to sea by strong trade winds.

Despite the warnings and evacuations, visitors have been allowed to view the activity from a point farther up the coastline.

The flow was fed by molten rock that continued to pour from the vent five miles upslope at a steady rate, roughly estimated at 650,000 cubic yards per day.

The eruption that began Jan. 3, 1983, is the longest in recorded history and has destroyed 179 homes and other structures, as well as inundating many lots and paving over miles of roadways.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 19) UPI - Kelley Blue Book, publishers of a nationally-known guide to used car and truck prices, filed suit Friday against a company using its name in a 900-line telephone number that gives out auto prices.

In the federal court complaint, Kelley claimed that Car-Smarts Inc., a company based in Laguna Niguel, Calif., violated Kelley's registered trademark in advertising Car-Smarts' telephone information service, 1- 900-BLU-BOOK.

The telephone line, like the Kelley publications, gives information regarding suggested prices for used cars and trucks, depending on model, year and condition.

The suit said the publisher, based in Irvine, Calif., has used the name ''Kelley Blue Book'' since 1954 and registered it as a trademark in 1980.

The complaint alleged that Car-Smarts' use and promotion of a telephone number similar to the book's name is likely to cause confusion among consumers and to deceive them as to the true source of the pricing information on the telephone service, which is not provided directly by Kelley.

In addition, Kelley claimed, the 900 telephone line has unfairly cut into Kelley's profits and harmed the company's reputation.

Kelley Blue Book requested an injunction barring Car-Smarts from further use of the name and unspecified damages.

(OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush today reiterated his hard-line stance against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein... both in public, and in private. Bush gave a speech, saying Saddam would NOT be rewarded with a compromise for his aggression against Kuwait. The president later passed on the same message during a meeting with a Soviet envoy who visited Baghdad last week.

The United Nations is out with a new report on the economic effects of the Persian Gulf crisis. The U-N says high oil prices and interest rates threaten to create a new group of debtor nations... making poor nations even worse off and impeding the communist bloc's transition to a market economy. The report calls for international debts to be forgiven or rescheduled.

The race is on to piece together a compromise budget plan in Congress. House and Senate negotiators are trying to work out the differences between a deficit reduction package created by House Democrats and a bipartisan Senate bill preferred by President Bush. Bush visited Capitol Hill this afternoon to encourage congressional leaders and to thank Republicans who supported the Senate-passed measure.

Dozens of protesters marched outside the White House today as President Bush and Congress prepared to square off on the Civil Rights Act of 1990. The demonstrators chanted ''We want civil rights now.'' Bush has threatened to veto the measure if Congress does NOT revise it. The president maintains the bill will lead to UNacceptable job quotas. There was NO indication lawmakers were willing to make any changes.

The Senate and House will be hard at work tomorrow and Sunday in a rare weekend session that begins the annual adjournment drive. Lawmakers plan to work on the 13 appropriation bills to fund the government- none of which have been sent to the White House for the president's approval. Work on the funding measures and a critical budget plan is expected to leave little time for other major legislation... such as campaign reform and an anti-crime package.

The U-S military buildup in the Persian Gulf goes on. Pentagon officials announced plans today to transfer more than 500 MA-1 tanks from storage in Europe to Saudi Arabia. ANCHORAGE, ALASKA (OCT. 19) UPI - Federal officials extended their eight-day-old search for missing biologists on the polar ice and arranged to use a new sophisticated Canadian radar plane in the hunt.

''That may be the break we're looking for,'' Gov. Steve Cowper said of plans to send up a Canadian plane with radar capable of detecting metal on the ice, probably the last hope of finding the missing twin- engine aircraft that vanished Oct. 11 with two biologists and a pilot aboard.

''My heart goes out to the families of these two brave biologists and their pilot, but I remain hopeful that we can still find them safe,'' Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan said in a statement.

Lujan asked U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service regional director Walter Stieglitz to continue a search that began Oct. 12 and has turned up nothing.

''I want to ensure that, as long as there is any hope for rescue, we devote all available resources to finding them,'' Lujan said.

The Coast Guard has coordinated the search, using three of its C-130s and four civilian planes to cover a 60,000-square-mile area, some of it several times, Coast Guard spokesman Ed Moreth said.

The search was to have ended Friday night, but the federal wildlife agency hired a Canadian firm to continue the search, using a sophisticated radar system sensitive to the difference between ice and metal, Coast Guard spokesman Ray Massey said.

If the plane is on the ice in the area earmarked for continued searching, then their plane should be able to locate the downed aircraft, the Canadians told the Coast Guard.

The twin-engine Aero Commander vanished 200 miles northwest of Point Barrow, the northernmost point of land in the United States, while on a polar bear tracking mission, part of a long-term project to study the population and survival of female bears and their cubs that inhabit the icy region north of Alaska.

Two of the wildlife service's five polar bear biologists, John Bevins, 35, and George Menkens, 33, were on the plane, piloted by Clifford Minch and equipped with survival gear and two weeks' worth of food.

Searchers have spotted whales, walruses and polar bears during flights as low as 500 feet over the ice, but have turned up no sign of the missing aircraft.

(OCT. 19) UPI - Congressional negotiators are at work on Capitol Hill, trying to come up with a compromise deficit-reduction package President Bush will sign. The Senate plans to trim the budget calls for a boost in Medicare costs, along with new sin and luxury taxes and a new tax on gasoline. The House plan also calls for sin and luxury taxes, but protects Medicare and replaces the gas tax with a higher tax rate for the wealthy. The Republican Bush prefers the Senate plan.

The price of crude oil dropped further today amid more signs that Iraq would like a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis. Today's three-dollar decline in the price for a barrel of crude oil on the New York Mercantile Exchange capped a 16-point-four-percent drop in crude prices during the last six trading sessions The U-S benchmark West Texas Intermediate ended the day at 33 dollars 79 cents a barrel.

A credit card industry survey released today shows Americans continued to pile on the plastic. The survey revealed consumers racked up an additional 20 percent in debt on their principal credit cards through the end of 1989. That was despite high interest rates and a slowing U-S economy. But aggressive growth by the credit card industry resulted in higher bad-debt losses for the companies.

The Senate today approved 85-Million dollars in military aid to El Salvador, but placed five specific conditions on the package. (OCT. 19) UPI - President Bush has signed another stop-gap spending bill. Bush inked the emergency funding measure tonight at 6 o'clock... just six hours before the government was due to go broke for a second time in three weeks. .

The presidential move came as House and Senate negotiators began work on blending versions of a deficit-reduction plan. The work involves melding a Democrat-crafted House package with a bipartisan Senate bill backed by Bush.

Iraq says it will begin rationing gasoline next week in another indication U-N-ordered economic sanctions against Baghdad may be taking a toll. Analysts say the move may be due to a lack of spare parts for Iraqi refineries.

RABAT, (OCT 20) - Morocco is at loggerheads with the United Nations about the future of Western Sahara, annexed by Morocco after Spanish colonial rule ended in 1975, indicates an official document released here Friday.

The document, a memorandum addressed to the United Nations, accuses it of seeking to undermine Morocco's "sovereign status" and introducing "new elements" into the dispute between the Moroccan government and the U.N.

The dispute dates back to July 30, three days after the U.N. Security Council passed a resolution backing efforts by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to have a referendum held in the territory.

Moroccan troops have built defensive walls out across the desert to thwart the Polisario Front resistance movement, which is seeking self-determination for the Western Sahara.

The front has long been backed by Algeria and has founded a Sahrawi Arab Democratic Republic (S.A.D.R.) which is recognized by many African countries but not by the United Nations.

The government's memo to Mr. Perez de Cuellar says Morocco finds it "difficult to understand" why Moroccan paramilitary units, "under the authority of the ministry of the interior and not the armed forces," should be "neutralized and disarmed" for a U.N.-monitored referendum on autonomy for the Western Sahara.

The Rabat government also reckoned, according to the memo, that a U.N. plan to allow a six-week-long campaign leading up to the referendum was "manifestly excessive", while the "means of expression envisaged are far beyond those necessary for democratic debate".

Moroccan opposition parties this summer accused the United Nations of wanting the country to "abandon" its full sovereignty on the referendum issue, as a U.N. technical team led by Issa Diallo went to Morocco, Mauritania and Algeria in July and to evaluate the costs to the U.N. of holding a referendum.

HONG KONG, (OCT 20) - An earthquake measuring 6.2 on the Richter scale hit China's western province of Gansu Saturday, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said in a report monitored here.

NCNA said the quake struck at 16:07 Beijing time (0807 GMT). Shortly afterwards, another quake measuring 5.1 on the Richter scale hit the same region, the agency said, adding that no casualties had been reported so far.

Strong aftershocks were felt in Tianzhu and Jingtai counties and in Baiyin, Lanzhou and Wuwei cities, the official news agency said. But it gave no further details.

A quake measuring 6.0 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage in a built-up area, while one measuring 7.0 is capable of causing widespread, heavy damage.

PARIS, (OCT. 20) - The United States has increasing evidence that U.N.-agreed sanctions against Iraq are beginning to hurt its economy, Defence Secretary Richard Cheney said here following talks with French counterpart Jean-Pierre Chevenement.

Cheney said he hoped the economic blockade would force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait but added that he could not rule out the use of military action against Baghdad.

Cheney said he thought the sanctions would help weaken Iraq's resolve to maintain its ''massive military machinery''.

Chevenement underlined the ''defensive nature'' of France's troops sent to the Gulf following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The ministers sidestepped questions on the military command structure in the Gulf in the event of an armed intervention.

Neither was there any clarification from the French minister on whether French troops would take part in an attack on Iraq.

However he confirmed reports that an unstipulated number of French troops would be withdrawn from positions near the Iraqi border to more central regions of Saudi Arabia following a request from the Saudi government. Reports here said this was not thought to have any political significance.

Cheney, who arrived here from talks in Moscow, is scheduled to meet President Francois Mitterrand on Monday.

PARIS, (OCT 20) - The United States and France Saturday agreed to step up coordination of their air and ground forces in Saudi Arabia, French Defence Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement said here.

"We have provided for improving liaison and coordination ... between our forces," applying to "air and land", Mr. Chevenement told a joint news conference with his U.S. counterpart Dick Cheney, who arrived here from Moscow on Friday.

Mr. Chevenement stressed that the coordination would take place in the context of "the orientation set by the Saudis", referring to the host government.

Mr. Chevenement did not specify areas for coordination, but he did not rule out joint training of U.S. and French pilots, while the presence of French officers on board U.S. AWACS early warning planes also appears likely.

France and the United States already have "excellent coordination" as far as naval forces are concerned, Mr. Chevenement said, in operations enforcing international sanctions voted by the United Nations after the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

France has some 24 fighters in Saudi Arabia in addition to 5,000 ground troops while the United States has amassed some 170,000 troops in the Gulf since the Iraqi invasion.

Asked about possible joint military command, Mr. Chevenement stressed that Saudi Arabia, as a sovereign country, was responsible for establishing the "general orientation" of the foreign forces.

Mr. Cheney said that Washington "has an arrangement with the Saudi government that safeguards our needs in terms of command arrangements for U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia, and that satisfies Saudi needs on sovereignty".

"Each nation has negotiated arrangements with the Saudi host ... we believe the arrangements we have are working at present," he added.

Both ministers also stressed that they saw the U.N. embargo as the key to forcing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

"We are very hopeful that we will be able to achieve our objectives peacefully " said Mr. Cheney.

He pointed to Iraq's decision Friday to ration oil and gas as part of the "growing evidence" that the sanctions were working.

Over time, the embargo is "bound to have a serious impact on the Iraqi economy but also on its ability to maintain this massive military machine," he said.

During their talks Saturday the two defence ministers "compared arrangements" in the Gulf and discussed "certain reinforcements under way", according to Mr. Chevenement, in addition to touching on disarmament negotiations affecting Europe.

Mr. Cheney is to meet French President Francois Mitterrand before leaving for home on Monday.

HONG KONG, (OCT 20) - China, recalling its losses at the hands of Japanese forces, called on Tokyo on Saturday to "act prudently" in considering sending troops abroad for the first time since World War II.

The official New China News Agency (NCNA), in a report monitored here, cited a leading foreign ministry official as saying the proposal had aroused "anxiety among neighbouring Asian countries" and dissatisfaction in Japan itself.

"The agressive war launched by Japanese militarists in the past inflicted disasters upon the Chinese people and other peoples in Asia and ... this is still fresh in the minds of people today," the official said.

The issue was "very sensitive", he said, adding that the strong reaction in the region over the plan was "well justified."

"The Chinese government has repeatedly expressed the hope that the Japanese government will take these factors into full consideration and act prudently.

"Otherwise, the feelings of the Asian people will be unavoidably hurt and it will eventually bring no good to Japan itself," the official said.

The Japanese government has introduced a bill in parliament proposing to send troops abroad on international peace keeping missions.

The bill was a result of pressure from Japan's Western allies, especially the United States which wants Tokyo to do more to help in the Gulf crisis.

Opponents of the plan say it would violate Japan's 1947 constitution, which was imposed by the United States after Japan's defeat in 1945.

The constitution calls on Japan to renounce war and "the threat or use of force in settling international conflicts."

Japan's military past and possible future role in Asia is a highly sensitive issue, where memories of its World War II conquests remain alive.

China is especially wary, remembering how Japanese troops carved out the puppet state of Manchukuo (Manchuria) in the early 1930s before overrunning much of the country.

MBARARA, UGANDA, (OCT 20) - The Rwandan rebels are willing to take up the government's offer of ceasefire and peace talks, rebel sources in Uganda said Saturday.

"We welcome the proposals if they are sincere. We would rather talk than fight " one of the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The sources said the Rwandan government had however not yet contacted the rebels' Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF) to agree a forum for peace talks to end the three-week-old conflict in northern Rwanda.

Rwandan President Juvenal Habyramina has told his Ugandan and Tanzanian counterparts that he wanted to open neogitations, they said, "but so far there has been no official contact with us."

Asked about the rebels' pre-conditions for negotiations, the sources said they they preferred to state those directly to the government in Kigali, other governments in the region or the Organisation of African Unity (OAU).

"All questions of pre-conditions will be discussed with those we have to talk with," one of them said.

"We've been waiting 30 years for talks to settle the problem of the two million Rwandan refugees who are shut out of their country."

A first wave of Rwandan refugees fled to Uganda to escape tribal massacres in 1959 when the majority Hutu tribe ousted the dominant minority Tutsi.

Rwandan-origin troops invaded northeast Rwanda from Uganda three weeks ago.

On Wednesday, Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni said Major-General Habyarimana had agreed at a meeting with him and Tanzanian President Ali Hassan Mwinyi to open talks and allow the refugees to return to tiny, overpopulated Rwanda.

In Brussels meanwhile, Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens said he had met Friday with representatives of the rebels at their request. There had been progress and he hoped a ceasefire could begin "in the course of the next week".

The rebels have hitherto demanded that the Rwandan president resign and foreign troops leave the country before there could be negotiations.

Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens for his part said Saturday that Belgian troops would leave Rwanda if there was an effective ceasefire.

BAGHDAD, (OCT 20) - Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath met here Saturday with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz in a bid to secure the release of sick and elderly Britons held in Iraq.

The Iraqi News Agency reported that Mr. Heath, who arrived here earlier in the day from Amman, and Mr. Aziz exchanged views on the current situation in the Gulf.

Stressing that his mission was to be purely humanitarian, Mr. Heath said before arrival that he did not plan to discuss the Gulf crisis in his meeting Sunday with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The former British premier arrived in Baghdad after a 24-hour stop-over in the Jordanian capital, where he held talks with King Hussein.

Mr. Heath, whose visit to Iraq has aroused fierce controversy in Britain, said he had been urged to intervene by relatives of the hostages. The visit was planned for a week ago but delayed at the request of the Iraqi authorities.

Of the estimated 5,000 people held in Iraq since the August 2 invasion of Kuwait, almost 1,500 are said to be British, including some 70 who are sick and elderly.

About 500 hostages are being detained at strategic sites in what Iraq says is a move to dissuade an attack by Western military forces that deployed in the Gulf region after the invasion.

Swedish Foreign Ministry official Peter Osvald arrived in Baghdad on Friday on a similar mission for the 90 Swedes held in Iraq.

Iraqi authorities have set a deadline of November 5 for foreigners living in Kuwait to sign up with immigration authorities or face punishment. Many foreigners are believed to be in hiding in the occupied emirate.

LONDON, (OCT 20) - The need for united pressure against Iraq was stressed in talks between British premier Margaret Thatcher and her Italian counterpart, Giulio Andreotti, here Saturday, sources close to the talks said.

The two leaders said after the meeting that they agreed on the need for a strong statement from the EEC on its policies towards Iraq.

Mr. Andreotti stressed the need to find a peaceful solution to the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The two prime ministers also discussed European monetary union and international trade negotiations within the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the sources said.

Italy currently holds the rotating presidency of the European Economic Community (EEC). Mrs. Thatcher and Mr. Andreotti met at Chequers, the official residence of British prime ministers north of London.

An Italian source said Mrs. Thatcher emphasised that "Europe must avoid confrontation with the United States at a time when they are defending our common interests in the Gulf".

This was a reference to trade talks within the framework of GATT, where the United States is insisting on much bigger cuts in agricultural subsidies than EEC countries are prepared to make.

Mr. Andreotti said at a press conference after the meeting that Britain and France were also at odds about EEC monetary union. Mrs. Thatcher is opposed to the replacement of national currencies by a common currency for EEC countries.

Later the Italian prime minister left for Rome.

The Italian president, Francesco Cossiga, is scheduled to make a state visit to London next month.

AMMAN, (OCT 20) - Six German men who had been held hostage in Iraq arrived here Saturday aboard an Iraqi Airways flight, correspondents said.

Two other German nationals were also to have left Saturday but their departure was delayed because of last-minute visa problems, according to Horst Kampfhr, one of the six arriving Saturday.

He said the pair would probably leave Baghdad on Sunday, adding that other Germans might also be authorized to fly to the Jordan as well.

Mr. Kampfhr attributed their release to the intervention of "certain German parties," which he would not identify.

In Bonn, European MP Dieter Schinzel said the six had been on a list of urgent humanitarian cases established by the German Embassy in Baghdad.

The German foreign ministry estimated that more than 300 German nationals remained trapped in Iraq and Kuwait as part of an Iraqi move to deter a Western military attack.

Western nations strengthened their military presence in the Gulf region following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

Some 5,000 Western and Japanese nationals are currently believed held in Iraq and Kuwait against their will.

VATICAN CITY, (OCT 20) - Pope John Paul II on Saturday called on Catholic priests to remember that their primary vocation was to spread the gospel.

He was delivering a message here on the eve of the 64th annual world evangelism day.

"The Church exists to evangelize," said the pope. "All priests must be deeply convinced that their life has also been devoted to evangelism."

Some 50,000 Catholic priests currently work in missions and 19,000 seminary students are being trained for the pastoral vocation, according to Radio Vatican.

JAKARTA, (OCT 20) - Indonesian President Suharto gave Saturday 10 million U.S. dollars to visiting black South African leader Nelson Mandela to support the struggle of the black majority in South Africa.

Both men had two hours of talks at the presidential Merdeka Palace. Suharto also gave Mandela 250,000 dollars aid for the African frontline states in recognition of sacrifices they had made in rejecting apartheid, Indonesian State Secretary Moerdino said.

After the meeting, Mandela expressed the thanks of the African National Congress (Anc), of which he is deputy president, for Indonesian support.

''We deeply appreciate your friendship and solidarity and have confidence that victory is certain'', he said at a meeting with senior Indonesian officials including Foreign Minister Ali Alatas.

Mandela arrived here Friday and is due to leave for Australia Monday.

RIYADH, (OCT 20) - Around 100 of the U.S. troops deployed in Saudi Arabia have converted to Islam, a Saudi preacher said in a newspaper interview published Saturday.

Mohammad al-Akkas, in charge of briefing U.S. troops on the customs of his country, told An-Nadwah daily that 35 of the soldiers had announced their conversion to Islam in the eastern region of Dhahran.

He did not identify the converts but said they were "of different ages, both white and black." The Moslem preacher added that he expected more U.S. soldiers to convert.

Around 200,000 U.S. troops have been deployed in Saudi Arabia and other parts of the Gulf to defend the kingdom against a possible Iraqi attack, following the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

They have been instructed to respect the religious and social customs in Saudi Arabia, a strict Islam country where practise of any other religion is not tolerated.

Iraq has accused Saudi Arabia of soiling Islam's holiest shrines of Mecca and Medina, in the west of the kingdom, by allowing the deployment of Western troops on its soil.

MOGADISHU, (OCT 20) - A group of Somali refugees from Kuwait have accused their government and international relief agencies of being indifferent to their plight in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of the emirate.

Speaking at a press conference here Saturday, a nine-man committee representing an estimated 4,000 Somali nationals trapped in Kuwait and other refugee camps scattered in Jordanian and Saudi Arabian deserts, described the conditions there as "appalling and inhumane".

There was no food, water or shelter, committee members said.

Asked how they escaped through Jordan and Saudi Arabia, one of them said that Iraqi soldiers at border check-points expropriated all their belongings and forcibly sent them back to Baghdad.

The Somali embassy in Baghdad had provided some of the refugees with "non-stop transit visas" via Saudi Arabia but on arrival there, they were handcuffed in two's and mercilessly thrown into cages, he added.

So far, about 500 out of the 4,000 Somalis in Kuwait have in one way or another managed to return to Somalia penniless, the committee said.

"We are calling on the the Somali government and other international organizations to ascertain and register the number of Somali nationals and their assets trapped in Kuwait and Iraq", committee member Ismail Abdi Herriye said.

Mr. Herriye said that the group had not yet lost hope, as they were still looking forward to meeting with Somali President Mohamed Siad Barre for a redress to their greviances.

VATICAN CITY, (OCT 20) - The Pope called here Saturday for withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon, and said the Lebanese people need help to overcome their rivalries and resentments.

The call came in a message to the leader of Lebanon's Maronite Christians,

Pierre Nasrallah Sfeir, patriarch of Antioch, who had turned down an invitation to a papal synod because of instability in his country.

In the message, Pope John Paul II said he hoped fervently that everything possible would be done quickly to achieve withdrawal of all foreign troops from Lebanon.

He said this was necessary if the Lebanese were to become "totally responsible for their own decisions" and restore confidence in their national institutions.

The pope called on everyone in a position to help "to help the Lebanese overcome the rivalries and resentments of the past".

(OCT. 20) UPI - Congressional negotiators are still working on the nation's fiscal future, trying to merge two versions of a deficit-reducing budget plan. Bargainers are sharply divided over how to spread the burden, with President Bush pushing for a bipartisan Senate bill as opposed to a Democrat-crafted House package.

OAKLAND, CA (OCT. 20) UPI - While the Cincinnati Reds play like the Big Red Machine of old, Oakland is also performing like a team in the past - the 1988 Athletics, who stumbled in the World Series much like the current edition.

The Reds scored seven runs in the third inning Friday night and held on for an 8-3 triumph over the rattled A's to move within one victory of an improbable Series sweep.

Chris Sabo cracked two home runs and Cincinnati scored seven times in the third inning by striking with the offensive efficiency of the Reds in the era of Johnny Bench, Joe Morgan and Pete Rose.

Now the Reds lead the best-of-seven series 3-0, and no team in 87 years of postseason play has ever blown that advantage. In fact, only three of the 17 Series clubs trailing 3-0 have managed to win another game.

Still, the Reds aren't celebrating yet.

''We don't take anything for granted, we haven't all year,'' Reds Manager Lou Piniella said. ''We won't take them for granted. We'll go out and be aggressive.''

Winners of eight straight Series games since Game 7 in 1975, the Reds - seeking their first title since 1976 - can finish off the Bashed Brothers as early as Saturday night when Jose Rijo opposes Dave Stewart in a rematch of Game 1.

Sabo's second homer was a two-run shot in the third that gave the National League champions a 5-2 lead against a ragged Mike Moore. The third baseman also belted a solo shot in the second and flawlessly handled a Series-record 10 chances without an error.

''I'm just working on being more patient,'' Sabo said of his hitting attitude. ''I'm trying to lay off pitches out of the strike zone, I got a couple of pitches I could handle. I hit 'em hard.''

The A's, after losing twice at Riverfront Stadium, came home to their grass field, their fans and the designated hitter - but it made no difference. Now they're on the brink of becoming the first to sweep the Series one year and get swept the next.

''(The Reds) have got a lot going and they've been roughing us up,'' Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said. ''I've been on the other side and it doesn't feel good. I'd rather be on their side.''

Oakland put up more of a fight in 1988, when it lost in five games to Los Angeles. Over the last three years, the A's have won three pennants and a big-league best 306 games, but have only one Series crown to show for it.

The Reds had 14 hits off six pitchers and have outscored Oakland 20-7 in the Series.

''Their offense has a lot of confidence,'' La Russa said. ''When that happens you find a way to stop them. We did it for six innings (Friday night) but it was one seven-run inning too late.''

Tom Browning, pitching less than two days after the birth of his third child, helped foster the rebirth of the Big Red Machine by hurling six strong innings. Rob Dibble went 1 2-3 innings and Randy Myers finished.

The Cincinnati bullpen has blanked the A's over 12 2-3 innings to lower its postseason ERA to 0.29.

Billy Hatcher of the Reds had his record-setting 7 for 7 streak come to an abrupt end in the first when he grounded into a 6-4-3 double play. He still went 2 for 5.

With Moore getting punished as much as any pitcher outside of batting practice the Reds collected seven hits - five with two out - and sent 11 batters to the plate in the third to erase a 2-1 deficit.

With one out, Hatcher resumed his rabid hit-making with a single and advanced to third when first baseman Mark McGwire failed to handle Paul O'Neill's grounder for an error.

Eric Davis then singled to tie it 2-2 and took second when center fielder Dave Henderson threw off-line trying to nab O'Neill at third. La Russa visited the mound, but elected to keep Moore in the game, and Hal Morris grounded out to put Cincinnati ahead.

Moore should have been yanked. Moments later, Sabo picked on a feeble 2-0 pitch and launched a drive over the left-center field wall for the two-run blast that gave him his second career two-homer game.

Todd Benzinger followed with a single and Scott Sanderson relieved, threw a wild pitch and was tagged for a sharp double by Game 2 hero Joe Oliver that made it 6-2.

An RBI single by Mariano Duncan and a triple by Barry Larkin got the Reds two more runs before the carnage concluded with Hatcher grounding out to McGwire while attempting to check his swing.

Cincinnati's third-inning explosion was the largest in the Series since Minnesota scored seven times in the fourth inning of the 1987 opener.

Rickey Henderson's leadoff homer in the bottom of the third brought the A's to within 8-3. Oakland put runners on first and third with two out in the fifth, but Browning got Jose Canseco on a fly to right.

After collecting three singles in the first without scoring, the Reds took a 1-0 lead in the second when Sabo homered off a 3-2 pitch.

But the A's reaped the rewards of the DH to go ahead in their half. Dave Henderson doubled on the inning's first pitch and Harold Baines - a man without a position in the first two games - homered off the second, belting a towering drive that landed deep in the right-field bleachers.

MACOMB, IL (OCT. 20) UPI - An 18-year-old Western Illinois University freshman died Friday from apparent alcohol poisoning, campus authorities said. The death came at the close of National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week.

Nicholas Haven, Oswego, was pronounced dead on the Macomb campus by McDonough County Coroner Larry Jameson.

Preliminary autopsy results indicated Haven had ingested large amounts of various types of alcohol, Jameson said.

''It does appear alcohol played a large part in his death,'' he said.

The Western Illinois University Department of Public Safety is investigating the circumstances surrounding the death and will turn the results over to the McDonough County State's Attorney for possible action, a spokeswoman said Friday night.

WIU President Ralph Wagoner called the death ''a tragedy we shall not lose sight of.''

''The fact that this tragedy took place during National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week is further illustration of the ongoing need to continue our educational effort toward college students and others about the responsible use of alcohol,'' Wagoner said.

WIU officials Friday night refused to confirm or deny reports Haven's death was the result of an initiation into a campus sports club.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 20) UPI - President Bush signed a stop-gap spending bill to keep the government running through Oct. 24 after deciding Congress had made ''satisfactory progress'' toward agreement on a new deficit- reduction accord.

The move came as House and Senate negotiators, sharply divided over how to spread the burden of deficit reduction, began work to meld a Democrat-crafted House budget package with a bipartisan Senate bill preferred by Bush. They will work on a new spending plan Saturday.

Tax provisions in the two bills appeared to pose the toughest differences to overcome. The House plan relies heavily on higher taxes for wealthy Americans, while the Senate bill contains no income tax rate increases but doubles the current 9-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax to 18.5 cents a gallon.

Bush signed the emergency spending measure at 6 p.m. EDT Friday, just six hours before the government was due to go broke for the second time in three weeks.

The temporary funding bill, which cleared the House Thursday and the Senate Friday, will extend the government's spending authority through next Wednesday.

Bush visited Capitol Hill at mid-afternoon Friday to encourage congressional leaders and thank all Republican senators who supported the bipartisan deficit-cutting package the Senate passed on a 54-46 vote hours earlier.

''I want to thank the leaders for doing a masterly job,'' Bush told the lawmakers. ''I'm here just to say thank you and we need to finish the job.''

The House and Senate negotiators laboring over tax hikes and spending cuts ''have already made satisfactory progress in their work,'' White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in announcing Bush had signed the emergency money bill.

The Senate approved its deficit-reduction plan early Friday after two days of debate. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas joined forces to stop attempts to alterthe bill.

The Senate package would increase the federal gasoline tax 9 1/2 cents a gallon by 1992, raise cigarette and alcohol taxes, impose new taxes on luxury items and boost costs to Medicare beneficiaries.

It contains no changes in federal income tax rates, but does limit tax deductions that can be claimed by those earning more than $100,000 a year.

On Tuesday, the House engaged in partisan warfare before passing a Democratic-backed bill that raises income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent and imposes a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million a year.

It also boosts the alternative minimum tax, applied to wealthy taxpayers with large numbers of deductions and exemptions, from 21 percent to 25 percent.

The House bill, while including alcohol, cigarette and luxury taxes similar to those the Senate adopted, eliminated any increase in gasoline taxes. Instead, the House voted to delay for one year inflation adjustments to income tax brackets and personal exemptions.

House and Senate negotiators opened talks Friday seeking to reconcile the widely divergent bills and produce a compromise that must then clear votes in each chamber before going to Bush for his signature.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, urged fellow conferees to ''come up with a product that is bold enough to substantially reduce the budget deficit and also fair enough to be accepted by our colleagues and the American people.''

Speaking to a group of Italian-Americans Friday, Bush said the Senate bill ''offers, I think, some real hope for getting this budget deficit matter under control.''

Though declining to give details on what he would like to see emerge from the conference, he praised senators for warding off efforts to raise income tax rates, saying, ''I think I'm on the right track on that and I'm going to try to hold the line.''

Mitchell, who said he supported many of the amendments that he vigorously fought to defeat on the Senate floor, told his colleagues that the Senate budget bill was crafted specifically to avoid a veto and that even ''attractive'' amendments would subvert any try at deficit reduction.

In opposing the House approach, Bush criticized the raised income tax rates on the highest income taxpayers, which would generate $50 billion over five years and the increased income taxes on middle-class Americans caused by freezing for a year the inflation adjustment of tax brackets and personal exemptions.

The Senate's increase in gasoline taxes, a measure expected to raise $42.6 billion in five years, is seen by the Democrats as placing a disproportionate burden on lower- and middle-income individuals.

The Senate bill would cut $48.9 billion from Medicare over five years, with most savings coming from lower payments to health care providers but with beneficiaires paying higher premiums and deductibles.

The House bill would save $30.5 billion over five years through lower reimbursements to doctors and hospitals. It includes identical premium increases, but smaller increases in deductibles than the Senate approved.

There are some similarities between the House and Senate versions, both of which seek to reduce the deficit by $40 billion in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 and by $500 billion over five years.

Both would raise taxes on cigarettes by 4 cents a pack in 1991 and by another 4 cents a pack in 1993 and raise taxes on beer by 16 cents a six-pack. Taxes on wine would rise about 22 cents a bottle and hard liquor taxes also would go up.

MIAMI (OCT. 20) UPI - Hurricane Nana, which represented a potential danger to the island of Bermuda with 75 mph winds, has weakened to a tropical storm, the National Weather Service reported early Saturday.

Nana was located near latitude 29.6 north and longitude 66.2 west, and the system was traveling northeast at near 5 mph.

Nana was about 200 miles south-southwest of Bermuda.

Its winds were clocked at 75 mph Friday.

The Buffalo Sabres are off to a record-setting start.

Unfortunately for Coach Ric Dudley and his players, they are setting records for futility, not victories or goals.

Mike Foligno scored with 6:50 remaining Friday night to give Buffalo a 4-4 tie with the Pittsburgh Penguins. By going winless for the seventh straight game, the 0-4-3 Sabres are off to the worst start in their 21- year history.

Foligno, teamed with Dale Hawerchuk on a new line, appeared to give the Sabres the lead 40 seconds after his game-tying effort when he put the puck past Pittsburgh's Wendell Young. But referee Kerry Fraser ruled offsides before the shot.

Having the goal nullified sums up the Buffalo season so far.

''We let the point men walk right by them,'' Dudley said. ''They don't pick up their own men in our own end. Either they're incapable of learning or we're not teaching them right. We're going over it (plays) an hour a day.

''We make a few fundamental mistakes and the puck seems to end up in our net. It's frustrating.''

Pittsburgh took a 4-3 lead at the 18:37 mark of the second period when defenseman Zarley Zalapski's shot went in over the shoulder of falling goaltender Daren Puppa. It was the third goal of the period for the Penguins, who also got goals from Joe Mullen, John Cullen and Jaromir Jagr.

Rick Vaive scored twice for the Sabres and John Tucker had the other Buffalo goal.

Although he was frustrated by the tie, Dudley's move to put Foligno and Hawerchuk on the same line paid off.

Foligno said the change ''got me going. Hawerchuk made some picture- perfect passes. Sometimes you get a feeling you're going to score and I said (to Hawerchuk) 'We're going to score right now.' He said 'Damn right.'''

Elsewhere in the NHL, Winnipeg defeated Vancouver 7-5; New Jersey edged the New York Rangers 3-2; Washington nipped the New York Islanders 4-3; Edmonton routed Boston 8-1 and Los Angeles defeated Hartford 5-2.

Jets 7, Canucks 5

At Winnipeg, Manitoba, Scott Arniel broke a 4-4 tie at 8:48 of the third as the Jets snapped a seven-game winless streak to notch their second victory of the season. Arniel's goal came 29 seconds after Vancouver's Steve Bozek had tied the score.

Devils 3, Rangers 2

At New Jersey, Patrick Sundstrom, Paul Ysebaert and Brendan Shanahan each scored goals to keep the Devils undefeated at home and stop a five- game Rangers' winning streak. Goaltender Chris Terreri stopped 25 shots as the Devils improved to 5-0-1 at home.

Capitals 4, Islanders 3

At Landover, Md., John Druce scored twice and Mike Ridley tipped in the tie-breaking goal midway through the third period as Washington snapped a three-game losing streak. All of Washington's scores came on power plays, with Kevin Hatcher scoring the other Capitals' goal. Ridley's game-winner came at 10:31 when he redirected Hatcher's shot. David Volek scored twice for the Islanders.

Oilers 8, Bruins 1

At Edmonton, Alberta, the Oilers snapped out of an early-season scoring slump behind two goals each from Petr Klima and Mark Lamb to rout Boston in a fight-filled game. Craig Simpson, Ken Linseman, Steve Smith and Charley Huddy also scored for the Oilers, who had just one victory and four points in the first five games of the year. More than 160 penalty minutes were dished out, including 10 majors.

Kings 5, Whalers 2

At Los Angeles, Tomas Sandstrom scored two goals and Steve Duchesne scored one and assisted on another. The victory kept the Kings, 6-1-1, in first place in the Smythe Division. Hartford, 4-3-2, remained atop the Adams Division.

(OCT. 20) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

Congress plans a rare weekend session as it begins the annual drive toward adjournment. Leading lawmakers have virtually written off major anti-crime legislation and campaign-finance reform as they try to end the session. 13 appropriations bills are still pending... plus the deficit-reduction package. Senate and House negotiators are trying to work out a compromise to trim the federal deficit.

The federal government has the money to continue running through Wednesday. President Bush signed a second stop-gap spending bill last night... just six hours before the government was due to go broke for the second time in three weeks.

The Senate has approved 85-Million dollars in U-S military aid to El Salvador. But the Senate wants to deliver the money only if El Salvador meets five conditions- including investigation and prosecution of the killers of six priests, and make more of an effort to negotiate a settlement with the rebels.

The Senate rejected an amendment to the foreign aid bill that criticized Israel for new settlements in East Jerusalem and required a study on future U-S loan guarantees for Israel. The amendment was rejected after complaints there is NOT enough time to debate such a delicate foreign policy topic.

(OCT. 20) UPI - Canada became the latest country to succumb to Iraqi pressure Saturday and pulled its diplomats out of Kuwait as a new poll indicated most Europeans favor military action to end the Persian Gulf crisis.

The poll of 500 people in Britain, France, Spain, Germany and Italy indicated that Britons viewed military action the most favorably and Italians least favorably.

The British Broadcasting Corp., which reported the results, said 87 percent of Britons favored military action while 59 percent of Italians did so. The results in the other three European countries ranged in between.

British Foreign Secretary Douglast Hurd, on a tour of the Middle East, warned Friday that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would face military action if he did not withdraw voluntarily from Kuwait, which Iraqi troops occupied Aug. 2.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency quoted Canadian External Affairs Minister Joe Clarke as saying Canada would not officially close its embassy in Kuwait, but would withdraw all of its personnel.

Saddam ordered all embassies in Kuwait to close soon after the invasion but some, including that of the United States, remain open. Iraqi soldiers have surrounded the embassies and cut off their water and electricity.

Clark said the Canadian diplomats were leaving because they had run out of food.

MENA quoted informed sources Saturday as saying Kuwaiti resistance fighters freed 70 prisoners in Safwan on the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border during a fight last week.

The sources, who escaped to Amman, told the news agency that eight Kuwaiti fighters and 30 Iraqi soldiers were killed.

The Kuwaiti resistance has issued numerous reports about raids and attacks on Iraqi occupational forces that cannot be confirmed, but they have sometimes backed their claims with photographs of smoldering Iraqi vehicles and dead soldiers.

The news agency said exiled Kuwaiti emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al- Sabah would travel to Paris to meet with French President Francois Mitterrand, whose gulf peace proposal has been widely praised. The plan calls for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait followed by free elections, which the ruling al-Sabah family has opposed.

Sources told the news agency Mitterrand would try to assure al-Sabah the plan did not call for their ouster from power.

One member of the family, poet Saad al-Sabah, told reporters in Cairo that Iraqi authorities told some family members they would be richly rewarded if they remained in Kuwait and accepted the ouster of Sheikh Jaber.

Saad al-Sabah said the family members refused the offer.

Also Saturday, Australian newspapers reported that an order prohibiting sailors from wearing uniforms in public triggered fears that a terrorist group was planning to strike navy personnel.

The newspapers said the order was issued Wednesday after the government received classified reports indicating a security threat to sailors.

Australia has sent three Navy ships to serve in the U.S.-led multinational military force deployed in the gulf to counter further Iraqi aggression.

Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived in Baghdad Saturday on a self-styled mission to pursuade Iraq to free elderly and sick British hostages.

Some British lawmakers have criticized Heath, saying Saddam Hussein will use him for propoganda purposes. Iraqi authorities were quoted by MENA as saying Heath was a guest of Iraq, and not the British Embassy in Baghdad.

Iraq is holding hundreds of Western men hostage at key military and economic sites as insurance the Western forces in the Gulf will not attack. Western hostages from several countries have been released in recent days as so-called gestures of goodwill.

The Gulf News Agency, meanwhile, quoted the Saudi newspaper Al Nadwa as saying 100 American soldiers stationed in the kingdom had converted to Islam. It said they were of different races and ages.

Mohammed el-Akhass, a Saudi preacher who gave soldiers lectures on Islamic culture to help acclimate them to Saudi Arabia, was quoted as saying the soldiers had learned about Islam and decided to convert.

The report could not be immediately confirmed.

BEIJING (OCT. 20) UPI - China will join a global ban on ivory trading to protect the endangered African elephant, an official report said Saturday.

The China Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora Import and Export Administration issued a notice this week ordering a halt to ivory exports effective January 1991, the English-language China Daily reported.

China's decision to join a world ban on trade in elephant tusks brings Beijing into line with the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, which in 1989 declared the African elephant an endangered species and voted to ban ivory trading.

But the CITES agreement permitted China to allow trading in tusks acquired before the ban was initiated providing import and export firms apply for a government permit, the report said.

China has imported an average of 50 tons of ivory a year since 1980. The tusks are carved into jewelry and decorative figurines and then exported.

In 1988, China's imported 57 tons of elephant tusks and exported $7.2 million worth of carved ivory products, the China Daily said.

Beijing passed its first wildlife protection law in late 1988. Among China's indigenous endangered species are golden-haired monkeys, Siberian tigers and bears, whose paws are considered a gourmet delicacy.

CHAMPAIGN, IL (OCT. 20) UPI - The NCAA has found the University of Illinois basketball program innocent of major recruiting violations that could have resulted in the death penalty, a published report said Saturday.

The Chicago Sun-Times, quoting sources, said the school has been cleared of offering illegal inducements, including money and cars, to lure Chicago high school basketball stars Deon Thomas and LaPhonso Ellis to sign with the Illini.

The newspaper said the school has been found guilty of less serious charges, including improper use of complimentary tickets and giving preferential treatment to former Illini players Kendall Gill and Stephen Bardo when they purchased used cars from a Decatur auto dealer.

University officials will be told of the results Oct. 29, the report said, because the NCAA Infractions Committee is still preparing a final report draft.

The newspaper said the validated charges against Illinois are not serious enough to warrant the so-called death penalty, or suspension, for the school's baseketball program. Other less serious sanctions are possible.

The possible punishments for the school could include a one-year probation period, which would prohibit the team from postseason play and television appearances.

The school may be forced to return $250,000 it received for competiting in the first-round of the NCAA tournament last spring and have the number of basketball scholarships it can grant next season reduced.

The final draft of the report is expected to dismiss charges against assistant coach Jimmy Collins, accused of offering money and cars to Thomas and Ellis. Thomas signed with the Illini and Ellis plays for Notre Dame.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 20) UPI - The threat of a terrorist attack from supporters of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has increased as highly disciplined teams have moved into place preparing for attacks, a senior administration official said.

The official, speaking to United Press International on the basis of no further identification, also emphasized that President Bush and Secretary of State James Baker are deadly serious in warning that Saddam Hussein will be held responsible for any attack.

In testimony on Capitol Hill this past week, Baker said that the use of military force by the United States against Iraq is likely if Americans are harmed or exposed to extreme danger.

In an interview, the senior administration official expanded on that to say that the U.S. concern includes the safety of friendly Arab leaders who have taken the risk of opposing Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The speaker of the Egyptian parliament, Rifat al-Majoub, was killed Oct. 12 by a team of assassins in Cairo. There has been no proven direct link to Iraq in that attack, although there has been suspicion. The administration official said that the killing was obviously the work of a well-trained, well-equipped and disciplined group of professionals, but that there is no absolute proof that they were operating in support of Saddam.

No group has publicly claimed responsibility for the attack.

Egypt has been the leader in the Arab world in opposing Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The State Department issued a general warning soon after the invasion of a heightened danger from terrorism in the Middle East, warning Americans not to travel to the area except when necessary.

Since then, the administration official said, the danger has increased because groups sponsored by Saddam, mainly Palestinian radicals, have been brought to Baghdad.

These include George Habash, leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine; representatives of the Abu Nidal Organization, which has been linked to airport killings; and Abu-Ibrahim, of the 15 May Group, a pioneer in the building of suitcase bombs.

The senior official said the threat of a terrorist attack ''has increased as the situation drags on.'' He said more and more threats have been made and there are signs that that trained teams have been moved into position for eventual attacks.

The official said the U.S. government - in assessing the threat - has to plan for dealing both with disciplined, planned operations and with fundamentalist Moslem groups who are less disciplined, but might attack Western targets if Iraqis were attacked.

''They might not be pros, but they are capable of such things as car- bomb attacks,'' the official said.

The difficulty, another official said, would be to prove an attack is linked to Saddam Hussein and then to justify to any military move against him to Congress.

Morris Busbie, director of the State Department's Office of Counterterrorism, said in a separate interview that a new program offering rewards for tips on terrorist attacks has been successful and will create a new problem for terrorists.

''We want these people to be looking over their shoulder,'' he said.

He believed that the rewards, from a fund that could total $4 million, increase the feeling of paranoia among terrorist groups, increase the number of tips, and increase awareness among innocent people that their own safety could depend on reporting suspicious activities.

So far, more than $500,000 has been paid out by the U.S. government in past cases. Because the program assures tipsters confidentialty, officials have not said even what cases were involved.

NEW YORK (OCT. 21) UPI - Red ink gushed from savings and loan banks around the city at a faster rate than in most parts of the country, reports a survey released Saturday by Crain's New York Business.

New York area thrifts lost 28 percent of their asssets - nearly $11 billion - in the year ending June 30th, while nationally thrift industry assets fell by 13.3 percent, the weekly magazine said in its Oct. 22 issue.

''Even by the blood-splattered standards of Texas, California and Florida banking, where the bulk of the nation's bad S&L's are, New York's decline is still a large one,'' Crain's said.

In the year since passage of the S&L bailout law, five thrifts failed or were placed under federal management in the New York area, with others, such as Crossland Savings in Brooklyn and Anchor Savings Bank of Nassau County, struggling, Crain's said.

''Most S&L's in the nation are shrinking and it's not specific to New York City. But (New York) is on the high side,'' said David Knight, an analyst at Sheshunoff Information Services of Austin Tex.

Loans at New York thrifts fell by 23.4 percent, Crain's said, quoting one expert who said, ''I think the thrift industry is doomed.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 20) UPI - Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., adjourned his personal role in the 101st Congress in early August to run full-time for the governorship of California, only to be hounded back to Washington when his absence became a major campaign issue.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., ranking Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee, cast a vote Oct. 9 on the budget agreement and was not seen again - except in the state of Oregon - until last Thursday.

Rep. Patricia Saiki, R-Hawaii, running for the Senate in an extremely close race, has been home twice since the summer recess, once to vote in the Republican primary and once when Barbara Bush was visiting the state.

Sen. Daniel Akaka, D-Hawaii, named to the Senate only a few months ago and battling for a full term against Saiki, has been in the Aloha state only once - to vote in the Democratic primary.

The inability of Congress to adjourn for the year, as election day Nov. 6 comes ever closer, is playing havoc with the plans of incumbents straining to get home for their re-election campaigns.

All of them are affected, but those from the most Western states - such as Wilson, Hatfield, Saiki and Akaka - suffer the most because, unlike their Eastern colleagues, they cannot rush home for a quick campaign appearance.

In most cases, their opponents are free to roam their states and districts unchallenged, forcing incumbents to devise new tactics and campaign from the nation's capital.

Some debates have been scrapped and other have been televised from Washington and beamed home. Television ads are taking the place of personal appearances. Surrogates are standing in for candidates.

''I'll tell you what it does: It gives you a nervous rash,'' Saiki said. ''You know you should be home campaigning, but there is this pull- and-tug to stay and fulfill your responsibilities. I've done the best I can.''

Although Saiki expresses great confidence in her campaign staff and points out the help she gets from her family, the Hawaii congresswoman acknowledges, ''I am very frustrated.''

''I look forward to appearing on panels and in forums and I look forward to debates,'' she says. ''My style is one-on-one. I go door-to- door. I go to coffees. I try to get to know people - all the good things you do that are fun - and I miss it.''

Most members of Congress, on the basis of a random check of roll call votes, have decided that staying in Washington is better politics than going home - a reality that became apparent to Wilson only in recent weeks.

Hollis Friedman, a spokeswoman for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said, ''At this point, the voters know there are unresolved problems'' and they want their congressman in Washington dealing with the budget impasse.

''In many cases, they are making news here in Washington,'' she said, adding it would be ''hard to make a case for being absent on the budget.''

Wilson apparently felt at first that staying in California gave him a better shot at beating former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, the Democratic candidate, in a tight battle for the governorship.

Wilson, whose Senate seat is not up this year, cast a vote Aug. 4 on the military authorization bill, left for the five-week summer recess and did not return for a vote until last Tuesday.

In the process, he missed key votes on a series of appropriations bills, the nomination of David Souter to the Supreme Court, a resolution backing action taken in the Persian Gulf, voter registration, family planning, fuel standards for cars, seafood inspection, protection for older workers and the budget resolution.

Wilson's return to Washington was not voluntary. Feinstein made an issue of his absenteeism, saying at one point, ''The people elected him. He's taking a paycheck. I've been in Washington more than he has.''

After trying to fend off the issue by saying he has represented California'sinterests by making calls to the White House and Republicans, he gave up and rushed East to vote on the military appropriations bill. He got back too late, but has stayed.

Hatfield stuck it out until Oct 9, casting his last vote on the congressional budget agreement. Then he went back to Oregon to deal with the unexpectedly strong challenge of Democrat Harry Lonsdale, a wealthy businessman, who has turned Hatfield from an unbeatable icon to a vulnerable incumbent.

By the time he returned to Washington, Hatfield had missed several appropriations bills - in committee and in the chamber - in which he would have played a key role as the top Republican on the appropriations panel, though his proxy was used on some votes, such as the B-2 bomber. He also was forced to skip two votes on the key bill implementing the five-year, $500 billion cut in the federal deficit.

To a remarkable degree, senators up for re-election - including some with very close races like Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Jesse Helms, R- N.C., and Tom Harkin, D-Iowa - have stayed on the job. They have missed a few votes, but so have senators not up for re-election.

In the House, the same has held true, although, on some votes on second-line amendments, the absentees have totaled more than 80 of the 434 members. All but 28 members are running for re-election, although many have no or token opposition.

Thirteen House members are running for another office, such as governor, senator or lieutenant governor. Those running against incumbents can afford to stay in Washington more readily because their opponents also have to stay in the nation's capital.

Recent roll call votes show that Reps. Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., and John Rowland, R-Conn., both running for governor in the Nutmeg state against former Sen. Lowell Weicker, an independent, have tended to skip votes. So has Rep. Bill Shuette, R-Mich., trying to unseat Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich.

DOVER, NH (OCT. 20) UPI - Three small children died early Saturday when fire swept through their home, leaving another youngster severely burned and injuring four adults who jumped from the second floor to escape the flames, officials said.

All the victims were members of the same family, said state Fire Marshal William Toland.

''To my recollection, I don't know of anywhere we've had that many fatalities '' said Capt. Larry B. Masse, a 16-year veteran of the Dover Fire Department.

Firefighters were called at about 1:20 a.m. to the wooden, 2 1/2-story house at 71 Henry Law Ave., in a working-class section of the eastern New Hampshire city. When firefighters arrived on the scene, half the first floor - including the stairwell - was engulfed in flames, Masse said.

''When I got off the truck, the mother was screaming that her kids were upstairs,'' Masse said.

Four children were trapped in their bedrooms on the second floor, he said.Firefighters rescued one child from the back of the building and then searched frantically for the other three children, all under 10 years old, Masse said.

''By the time we found the other three victims, it was too late,'' he said.

The rescued child suffered burns, some third-degree, over about 80 percent of her body, Masse said. She was taken to Shriner's Hospital in Boston.

Four adults were hurt when they jumped to the ground from the second floor to escape the flames. They were taken to Wentworth-Douglass Hospital in Dover, where their conditions were not immediately known.

A total of 10 people lived in the house, Masse said. The victims' names were being withheld until authorities were certain all family members had been notified.

Two firefighters, Terry McDonnell and Lt. Perry Plummer, were slightly injured. They were treated at the hospital and released. McDonnell suffered first- and second-degree burns to his face and Plummer cut his hand, officials said.

About 25 firefighters from six communities responded to the fire and managed to keep the flames confined to the house. The blaze was under control in about two hours, Masse said.

Masse said investigators were not sure what ignited the fire but did not believe it was deliberately set.

HACKENSACK, N.J. - After a summer of random violence across the Hudson River, residents of northern New Jersey are less inclined to visit New York City because they fear becoming another crime statistic, a newspaper poll revealed Saturday.

A survey last week by The Record in Bergen and Passaic counties found that nearly half the 887 adults interviewed said they are visiting the Big Apple less often, except to go to work. Fear of crime was strongly linked with the decision to stay home, although many North Jerseyans also said they were fed up with New York traffic and high prices.

The poll found that most North Jerseyans still enjoy an occasional outing in the city but those who go say they are more concerned about crime than they are at home. And they are more reluctant to use the subway, ride buses or stroll through Central Park because they are afraid of being mugged.

The responses followed a crime wave in New York that saw several children slain by stray gunfire in separate incidents and the murder of Brian Watkins, a Utah tennis buff who died on a Manhattan subway platform trying to defend his mother from muggers.

Older people were slightly more concerned about crime in New York and women were more concerned than men, but the fear of falling prey to violent crime worried North Jerseyans of practically all ages and backgrounds.

Subways topped the list of most dangerous places in New York, followed by Central Park, where a female jogger was raped in August 1989 by a gang of teenage boys in a ''night of wilding,'' and the Port Authority Bus Terminal, the hub for most of the region's bus links with New York.

Many residents said they would even worry about crime while visiting some of the city's well-known attractions: Lincoln Center, Macy's Herald Square store, a Broadway theater or Shea Stadium.

Most North Jerseyans, however, saw the Big Apple as a special place. Seventy-eight percent said there are things to do in New York that cannot be found in North Jersey and 69 percent said New York is still a great place to visit despite its problems.

About one in seven North Jerseyans said they had been victims of crime in New York through car theft or robbery in the past three years.

The poll found that people who visited the city often were less fearful than those who did so infrequently. The only people markedly less concerned were those from areas with crime problems of their own.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 20) UPI - Two of D'We Williams' five adopted children have severe physical handicaps, but the Oklahoma City black single mother thinks the children thrive in her home because of its middle-class black culture and attitude.

Medenna and Micheal Walton contend their adopted son, DeAllen, who is biracial and has cerebral palsy, is doing better with them than if he was placed in a white home, because they are an interracial couple.

For years, black social workers and child advocates have encouraged adoption officials to consider placing more children with special needs with minority families. But often their pleas have fallen on deaf ears because of a widespread assumption that high-income, highly educated families - usually white - could provide a better home.

Special-needs adoptee children include those who are older, members of minorities or biracial, physically or mentally handicapped, or members of sibling groups.

Now comes a study that appears to validate what the social workers and others have been saying.

The study, published in the November issue of Social Work, the journal of the National Association of Social Workers, found that of 800 families who have adopted special-needs children, minority and low- income families reported more positive situations than highly educated, upper-income families. The study looked at 330 families in Illinois, 285 in Oklahoma and 184 in Kansas.

Overall, 55 percent of parents in minority families, 57 percent of parents in racially mixed families and 43 percent of parents in white families reported very positive situations.

Upper-income and highly educated parents more often reported negative impacts of the adoptions on their family. These types of families reported more positive parent-child relationships with non-handicapped children.

''In sum, minority and low-income families make good families for special-needs children. Increased recruitment and utilization are recommended '' the study said.

''Black social workers for years have been saying that part of the problem is that minority families have been forgotten in terms of recruitment of adoptive parents. So they would not be surprised by this, '' said Ellen Wells, an attorney with the American Public Welfare Association.

''I think it's something that minorities in the adoption field have probably suspected all along,'' said Joyce Johnson, spokeswoman for the Child Welfare League.

One of the study's authors, James Rosenthal, assistant professor of social work at the University of Oklahoma, suggested minority families might do better since many of them have experience raising kids outside of the nuclear family. He cites the number of black children raised by grandparents.

''So if a child is adopted into a minority family, the child may be growing up in a community with other children from outside the nuclear family. So there's less stigma attached,'' Rosenthal said.

Along those lines, Rosenthal found a parallel between the situation of an adopted child and a minority child.

''Both may be at risk for discrimination in the community. Adoption is viewed by many as a non-desirable family forum. By the same token, minority group members may encounter discrimination or prejudice,'' he said.

D'We Williams raises by herself a foster son and five adopted children, two of whom are handicapped. James, 12, has no arms or legs and uses a shoulder blade-controlled wheelchair. Jasmine, 12, has an inactive pituitary gland, producing no growth hormone.

The survey results did not surprise Williams, a ''creative dramatist'' whose programs are designed to enhance personal enrichment.

''My feeling is that the placement that works best for handicapped and minority kids has as much to do with culture as social economics. Your middle- and lower-income families, generally I feel, would do better with handicapped kids simply because of their attitudes, the way they deal with expectations,'' she said.

Williams explained that ''expectations are real basic'' in minority families. Families with the most difficulties, she feels, are the higher educated ones who have greater expectations, push the child and are more likely to think they can change the child.

Medenna Walton, of Ardmore, Okla., is white and married to Micheal, who is black. Their adopted son, DeAllen, 4, is biracial and has a mild form of cerebral palsy that limits his physical activities.

''I think he does better with us,'' Medenna said. ''We can give him both (racial) perspectives. He can be with my husband's family and get a black perspective and then be with my family and get a different one. I don't mean to sound prejudiced, but things are different, especially at family functions.''

She noted that her husband's annual family gathering includes friends as well as relatives, while her family's get-togethers are more intimate and ''much quieter.''

The biggest problem they have found with DeAllen's cerebral palsy is lack of medical insurance.

''But we love this child and wouldn't change a thing. At the very first moment we saw him, we knew he was one of us. He acted like he was a member of our family,'' she said.

(OCT. 20) UPI - Anti-crime legislation and campaign finance reform bills look dead for this session of Congress... which appears ready to adjourn by the end of next week. Most of that time will likely be spent working on the budget. The anti-crime bill would expand the death penalty and limit appeals for death row innmates... but is stuck in conference. Campaign reform has stalled as Republicans refuse the Democratic demand for candidate spending limits.

President Bush is asking Congress to change the Civil Rights Act of 1990 or face a veto. The president maintains the bill would lead to UNacceptable job quotas. FAIRFIELD, IL. (OCT. 20) UPI - An Army reservist who claims she is now a conscientious objector and refused to report when her unit was activated has been listed by the military as absent without leave, her father said Saturday.

Spec. Stephanie Atkinson did not report to the Fairfield Armory Wednesday when her postal unit mustered for active duty as part of Operation Desert Shield.

Steve Atkinson said he has not spoken with his 23-year-old daughter since the day after she received her notice to report. He said he believed she may have gone to an anti-war protest scheduled for Saturday in New York.

''She's my daughter. I love her. But I'm not in her corner on this,'' Atkinson said, who said Stephanie has been listed as AWOL. ''I do not support what she's doing.''

Atkinson's unit, the 331st Adjuntant General Postal Company based in Fairfield left Thursday for Fort Sheridan, near Chicago. Military officials at Fort Sheridan said Saturday they could not comment on the Atkinson case.

In an interview published in the Southern Illinoisan in Carbondale, Atkinson, a Murphysboro, Ill., resident, said that, since joining the military at age 17 she has changed her mind about war and has become a conscientious objector, opposed to violence of any type.

''The recruiter painted this as some sort of glamorous job,'' she told the newspaper. ''There was never any emphasis on the possibility that you'd go to war.''

Atkinson told the newspaper her motive for joining the military was to earn money for college and to gain job skills. She earned a degree in English at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, where she said she came in contact with various peace groups.

Atkinson could face arrest and prosecution for failing to report for duty. She said her enlistment was to have expired Sept. 24, but the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait intervened.

NEW YORK (OCT. 22) UPI - Red ink gushed from savings and loan banks around the city at a faster rate than in most parts of the country, a published report said Saturday.

New York area thrifts lost 28 percent of their asssets - nearly $11 billion - in the year ending June 30th, while nationally thrift industry assets fell by 13.3 percent, the weekly magazine Crain's New York Business said in its Oct. 22 issue.

''Even by the blood-splattered standards of Texas, California and Florida banking, where the bulk of the nation's bad S&Ls are, New York's decline is still a large one,'' Crain's said.

In the year since passage of the S&L bailout law, five thrifts failed or were placed under federal management in the New York area, and others, such as Crossland Savings in Brooklyn and Anchor Savings Bank of Nassau County, are struggling, Crain's said.

''Most S&Ls in the nation are shrinking and it's not specific to New York City. But (New York) is on the high side,'' said David Knight, an analyst at Sheshunoff Information Services of Austin, Texas.

Loans at New York thrifts fell by 23.4 percent, Crain's said, quoting one expert who said, ''I think the thrift industry is doomed. Within a decade, the thrift industry as we have known it will cease to exist.''

NEW YORK (OCT. 20) UPI - On what would have been Jessica Guzman's 11th birthday, police Saturday examined ''an awful lot of similarities'' between her death and those of three other people, two of them children.

Detectives questioned several people, one of them a cabbie who knew the families of all the victims.

Jessica Guzman was the most recent child found dead within a 2-mile radius in the Bronx where the bodies of 13-year-old Nilda Cartagena and 15-year-old Heriberto Marrero also were found - both strangled or smothered, officials said.

The youngsters all disappeared from their homes and the medical examiner ruled they were victims of ''homicidal asphyxiation.''

''You can say there's an awful lot of similarities'' in all three cases, said police Sgt. William Kivlehan.

Guzman, who would have been 11 on Saturday, was found Wednesday in a clump of bushes along the Bronx River Parkway. Cartagena and Marrero, their bodies stuffed in garbage bags, were found off the Hutchinson River Parkway on June 21, 1989.

A fourth victim, 21-year-old Lisa Rodriguez, also may turn out to be linked, but the cause of her death has not been determined, Kivlehan said. Her body was found June 19 off the Hutchinson River Parkway.

Exactly how the children died remain unknown because their bodies were decomposed when found.

''The detective looking into the Guzman homicide is also looking into the deaths of those other children. We're putting it all into a computer to see what kind of links we get,'' said Kivlehan.

He said a computerized net has been spread ''as far back as 15 years'' to seek connections to past homicides.

At least one of the links is that of Alejandro Henriquez, 29, a gypsy cab driver who knew all the victims or their families.

''That person is being investigated along with a number of other people,'' said Kivlehan. ''He was a common link with the other two.

''He's not the chief suspect, nor a target. It's all being looked at. We're going out and following all kinds of leads.''

Marrero and Cartagena both lived in the same address and had been missing for two weeks when their bodies were discovered. They were last seen by their uncle when he dropped them off at school.

Guzman disappeared Oct. 10, setting off a massive search by the community.

Her wake was to be Saturday and Sunday at St. John Vianney Church in the Bronx.

Meanwhile, the Daily News reported Saturday that Lisa Rodriguez's mother visited the Guzman family the night Jessica's body was found and told them her daughter dated Henriquez once, but was uncomfortable with him.

Henriquez told the Guzman family and police last week he had been one of the last people to see the little girl when he took her father, aunt and uncle to a nearby home.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 20) UPI - Joel McCrea, a real-life cowboy who starred in such Western classics as ''Union Pacific'' and ''The Virginian,'' died early Saturday. He was 84.

McCrea, a tall, rawboned man with the look of the West about him, died of pulmonary complications at 4:50 a.m. at the Motion Picture and Television Fund Hospital in Woodland Hills after a short stay in the acute care ward, a hospital spokeswoman said.

His wife of 57 years, actress Frances Dee, was with him when he died.

McCrea always played the hero, whether in slick comedies or riding the range. Off-screen, he defied the old Hollywood mold of scandal and headlines and spent more time punching cattle on his own ranch in Thousand Oaks, Calif. - which he brought in 1930 on the advice of Will Rogers - than he did before the cameras.

In the ensuing years, while starring in such films as ''Wells Fargo,'' ''Cattle Drive,''''Wichita'' and ''Barbary Coast,'' McCrea developed his 100-acre parcel of land in Ventura County north of Los Angeles into a 2, 300-acre cattle ranch that made him a multi-millionaire.

One of his proudest achievements was his election - behind Rogers and Gary Cooper - to the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City.

''I love being a member of that Hall of Fame,'' he later said, ''because its purpose is to perpetuate the standards, ideals and culture of the Old West.''

Born Nov. 5, 1905, in South Pasadena, Calif., McCrea entered films in the 1920s as an extra while attending Pomona College. His early films were not limited to Westerns; his first real role came shortly after college graduation with a bit part in ''The Fair Co-ed,'' starring Marion Davies.

In the 1930s, he starred in ''The Lost Squadron,'' ''Bird of Paradise,'' ''Three Blind Mice'' and Alfred Hitchcock's ''Foreign Correspondent,'' among others.

But the burly 6-foot-5 actor soon settled into frontier roles. His first break was in 1930 as the lead in RKO's ''The Silver Horde,'' filmed in Alaska. It was while playing in Rogers' spoof Western ''Lightnin''' that same year that he first befriended the great humorist.

He made his television debut in 1959 in the ''Wichita Town'' series.

McCrea once said he entered acting only because it was the faster way for him to make money to buy his beloved ranch. Ambitious studio publicists soon discovered that both the actor's grandfathers had fought Indians in the Wild West.

''I don't want to do anything but Westerns,'' he said in a 1956 interview. ''Good films are mighty scarce these days and in Westerns there's always plenty of spectacular scenery to keep the audience happy when the plot begins to drag.''

Occasionally McCrea lamented the loss of realism in modern films.

''I've seen pictures where thousands of rounds of ammunition were pumped back and forth without hitting anybody,'' he complained once. ''It's stupid. Nobody could shoot and miss that much. A guy wouldn't live that long.''

McCrea is survived by his wife, and three sons, Joel, who worked as an actor under the name Jody; David and Peter, who are both ranchers in New Mexico.

Private funeral services were planned.

PITTSBURGH (OCT. 20) UPI - The baby race is on in Pittsburgh, where an FM radio station is giving new meaning to the ''Breeders' Cup.''

Radio station WDVE is doing its part to promote family growth with a contest promising four couples, selected by lottery, a weekend at the posh Vista International Hotel and a chance to score a grand prize.

The first couple to make a baby wins. They'll get a $1,000 savings bond, nursery, playpen, high chair, stroller, car seat, diapers, baby food - even a weekend of Lamaze classes.

The women will be tested by a nurse at the station every Monday until a couple conceives.

''We did get one call from a guy who said simply, 'Humans don't breed,' and hung up,'' said general manager Gene Romano. But most of the feedback has been positive.

The station's morning disc jockey team solicited listeners who wanted to have a baby and got two boxes of faxes and letters. DJs Scott Paulsen and Jimmy Krenn interviewed the finalists Friday.

For Todd and Tia Holdorf, who have wanted a baby ever since their second wedding anniversary Oct. 8, the contest happened just at the right time.

''It was coincidental,'' Todd said. ''We'd been talking about it awhile and now's a good time to get started. We're just going to relax and let it happen.''

Larry and Ann Clark found the contest an incentive.

''If this is how we have our first child, it'll be a story to tell him one day '' Ann said.

Other couples in the running are Randy and Cherie Lowe and Jack and Sandy Kelly. The couples liked each other so much, they're hoping for a tie so that everyone can win.

It's not the first time WDVE has tried an offbeat promotional gimmick. In June 1988, the station offered a breast enlargement to any woman who came up with a creative reason for wanting one. The promotion offended some women, caused a grass-roots campaign and cost the station advertisers.

CAIRO, EGYPT (OCT. 20) UPI - Canada became the latest nation to succumb to Iraqi pressure and pull its diplomats out of Kuwait Saturday, while a new poll indicated the majority of Europeans favor military action to end the gulf crisis.

In Washington, a senior administration official warned pro-Iraqi terrorists were planning attacks, possibly on Arab leaders friendly to the United States.

The poll of 500 people in Britain, France, Spain, Germany and Italy indicated that Britons were the most favorably inclined to military action while Italians were least supportive of an armed strike.

The British Broadcasting Corp., which reported the results, said 87 percent of those polled in Britain favored military action while only 59 percent of Italians did so. The other three European countries involved in the survey ranged in between.

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said during a visit to France that he believed economic sanctions, imposed by the United Nations following Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, were beginning to have an effect as evidenced by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's decision Friday to ration gasoline.

''We also are hopeful that we will be able to achieve our objective peacefully '' he said in Paris.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency quoted Canadian External Affairs Minister Joe Clark as saying Canada would not officially close its embassy in Kuwait, but would withdraw all of its personnel.

The move leaves only a handful of foreign missions, including that of the United States, open in occupied Kuwait in defiance of Iraqi orders to relocate to Baghdad. Iraqi soldiers have surrounded the embassies and cut off their supplies of water and electricity.

Clark said the Canadian diplomats were leaving because they had run out of food.

MENA quoted informed sources Saturday as saying Kuwaiti resistance fighters freed 70 prisoners in Safwan on the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border during a fight last week.

The sources, who escaped to Amman, told the news agency that eight Kuwaiti fighters died in the clash and claimed 30 Iraqi soldiers were killed.

The Kuwaiti resistance has issued numerous reports about raids and attacks on Iraqi occupational forces that can not be confirmed, but they have sometimes backed their claims with photographs of smoldering Iraqi vehicles and dead soldiers.

The news agency said exiled Kuwaiti emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al- Sabah would travel to Paris to hold discussions with French President Francois Mitterrand, whose gulf peace proposal has been widely praised. The plan calls for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait followed by free elections, which the ruling al-Sabah family has opposed.

Sources told the news agency Mitterrand would seek to assure al-Sabah that the plan did not call for his ouster from power.

One member of the family, poet Saad al-Sabah, told reporters in Cairo that Iraqi authorities had told some family members they would be richly rewarded if they remained in Kuwait and accepted the ouster of Sheikh Jaber.

Saad al-Sabah said the family members refused the offer.

Former British Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived in Baghdad Saturday on a self-styled mission to persuade Iraq to free elderly and sick British hostages.

Some British lawmakers have criticized Heath, saying Saddam will use him for propaganda purposes. Iraqi authorities were quoted by MENA as saying Heath was a guest of Iraq, and not the British Embassy in Baghdad.

Saddam is holding hundreds of Western men hostage at key military and economic sites as insurance the Western forces in the gulf will not attack. Western hostages from several countries have been released in recent days - including four Germans Saturday - as so-called gestures of good will.

Germany and Italy sent messages to their nationals in Iraq Saturday pledging they were doing what they could to win their release.

In Washington, a senior administration official who asked not to be identified said Palestinian radicals had been brought to Baghdad and there were signs trained teams had been moved into position for eventual terrorist attacks.

The official said the United States was particularly concerned about the safety of friendly Arab leaders.

Egypt's speaker of parliament was shot dead last week by assassins suspected to have been pro-Iraqi agents.

In other developments Saturday:

-The Gulf News Agency quoted the Saudi newspaper Al Nadwa as saying 100 American soldiers stationed in the kingdom had converted to Islam. The report, which could not be immediately confirmed by U.S. military officials, said the soldiers decided to convert after learning about Islam during lectures designed to acclimate them to Saudi Arabia.

-Australian newspapers reported that an order prohibiting sailors from wearing uniforms in public had triggered fears that a terrorist group was planning to strike Navy personnel in retaliation for three Australian warships deployed in the gulf.

(OCT. 20) UPI - Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath is in Iraq on a self- styled mission to gain the release of elderly and sick British hostages. Some British lawmakers have criticized Heath for undertaking the mission, saying Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will use the trip for propaganda purposes. Iraq is holding hundreds of Westerners at key military and economic sites as insurance against attacks from the West.

Canada today became the latest nation to succumb to Iraqi pressure and remove

Members of Congress are spending a rare working weekend on Capitol Hill today, beginning the annual drive for adjournment... this year, in advance of the off-year elections. Major anti-crime legislation and campaign finance reform bills have been all but written off, as legislators concentrate on enacting major funding bills for the fiscal year that began on October 1st.

President Bush signed another stop-gap funding bill to keep the government running through October 24th. The bill enables House and Senate negotiators to keep working on a compromise deficit-reduction package. They must reconcile two versions of the plan to cut 500-BILLION dollars from the deficit in the next five years.

WASHINGTON (OCT. 20) UPI - With the threat of closing down the government lifted, Democratic and Republican leaders met privately Saturday to try to figure out who will pay for the new budget package.

Negotiators trying to reconcile the two different packages passed by the House and Senate were to meet during the weekend to come up with an agreement that could be passed before the government again runs out of money Wednesday.

But in fact most of the early meetings were among the leaders of both parties.

White House chief of staff John Sununu and budget director Richard Darman came to Capitol Hill to confer with Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, while the chief Democratic figures in the Senate - Sens. George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas - and the House - Speaker Tom Foley of Washington and Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill. - met on the House side.

When asked about the progress of the talks, Foley said, ''I've generally heard that they've been going well, but I don't have any details.''

While there are big differences in both major bills over Medicare, the issue of taxes was taking up much of the leaders' time.

The Senate package would increase the federal gasoline tax 9 1/2 cents a gallon by 1992. It contains no changes in federal income tax rates, but does limit tax deductions that can be claimed by those earning more than $100,000 a year.

The House version has no gasoline tax increase, but raises income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 percent to 33 percent and imposes a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than $1 million a year.

The White House supports an agreement similar to the Senate version and Senate leaders have indicated the final version cannot change too much or the fragile eight-vote margin of passage might not hold.

Still, many Democrats - including some who voted for the Senate version - like the thrust of the House bill.

''I don't imagine that we're going to come out of conference with the House version intact,'' Foley said.

He added, ''I think it may have, or it will have, features of both bills.''

Foley reiterated the hope expressed earlier by Dole and Mitchell that the negotiators could reach agreement by the end of Sunday so that the full Congress could start voting on it Monday.

President Bush, who two weeks earlier shut down the government rather than sign a resolution keeping it going temporarily, signed a stop-gap spending bill Friday to the government money flowing through Oct. 24.

He said he decided Congress had made ''satisfactory progress'' toward agreement on a new deficit-reduction accord.

Both bills being argued over seek to reduce the deficit by $40 billion in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 and set up the means to cut the spending-revenue gap by $500 billion over five years.

(OCT. 20) UPI - Congress plans to spend the weekend working on the 13 appropriations bill to finance the government in fiscal 1991. Anti-crime legislation, campaign finance reform and other major bills could fall by the wayside as lawmakers use the rare weekend session to begin their annual adjournment drive.

At the same time, Senate and House negotiators are meeting this weekend in an effort to find a compromise budget package to cut the deficit by 500-BILLION dollars over five years. The negotiators must reconcile the Senate and House bills in a fashion acceptable to the administration... or face the threat of another government shutdown at midnight Wednesday.

President Bush says he regrets that Congress has NOT given him an anti-crime bill he can sign. The legislation greatly expands the federal death penalty and short-cuts the appeals process for Death Row inmates. But Bush told a group of Italian-Americans at the White House- ''I don't think that we're going to get it before the end of the session.''

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (OCT. 21) UPI - Gabon goes to the polls Sunday in a first-round ballot to elect deputies in 62 constituencies where earlier legislative elections were annulled because of widespread fraud and ballot-rigging, marring the country's first multi-party contest.

The Ruling Gabonese Democratic Party expected to win enough seats to ensure it at least a relative majority in the West African nation's first democratically elected parliament, political experts say.

The Gabonese Democratic Party, created by President Omar Bongo, won 36 of the 58 seats for the 120-seat National Assembly in elections validated in the first elections, held Sept. 16.

Political pundits said the ruling party is unlikely to obtain much fewer than 60 seats overall after Sunday's vote and a runoff election a week later. This is because the opposition is deeply divided and so far has only 22 seats.

The ''Morena des Bucherons'' party headed by Paul Mba is the leading opposition grouping with 14 seats from the September election, the Gabonese Progress Party has three seats while the Association for Socialism in Gabon has three and the tiny Gabonese Socialist Union and Morena Originel groupings have one seat each.

The toughest areas for the Gabonese Democratic Party to make up the 24 seats it needs to control half the assembly will be in the north, west and south of the country, notably in the provinces of Woleu-Ntem, Ogooue-Maritime, Ngounie and Nyanga.

In those provinces the opposition is well entrenched, either having won seats outright in the September elections or prevented the Gabonese Democratic Party from winning a seat outright then.

Tension has been high in the western province of Ogooue-Maritime, where the oil capital of Port Gentil saw rioting by anti-government demonstrators in May.

Bongo has urged voters to set aside tribalism in the elections, the first multi-party test for the West African former French colony.

He has said he intends to finish his presidential term that runs until 1993. He has called for a broad-based coalition government of ''national unity'' to be formed after the polls whatever the outcome, with a Gabonese Democratic Party politician at its head as prime minister.

ST. MARYS, GA (OCT. 21) UPI - The USS West Virginia, a weapon described as having ''awesome destructive capability,'' Saturday joined the Navy's Trident nuclear submarine fleet at Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base.

About 5,000 people attended the West Virginia's commissioning ceremonies in a drydock area at the base near St. Marys. The 560-foot, 18,750-ton West Virginia was the first Trident to be commissioned outside Groton, Conn., where the giant submarines are built by the Electic Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

The West Virginia is the third nuclear submarine armed with Trident II nuclear missiles to be based at Kings Bay, and is the third ship in Navy history to bear the name West Virginia.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and West Virginia Gov. Gaston Caperton joined Navy officials on a podium draped in red, white and blue bunting and set on the submarine's hull. A Navy band played ''The West Virginia Hills'' and ''Anchors Away,'' and a huge West Virginia flag flapped in a gentle breeze beside the Stars and Stripes.

The West Virginia, with 24 Trident II missile tubes, four torpedo tubes, almost silent propulsion and advanced sonar should be a powerful deterrent to any aggressor, said Rear Admiral John Claman of Naval Sea Systems Command.

''We can only hope that those countries who would intend to do us mischief will see the awesome destructive capability inherent in the West Virginia and refrain from adventurism,'' Claman said.

Byrd said the Trident fleet is a symbol of America's continuing role as a world leader.

''Our role in the world remains needed and this ship symbolizes it - an expression of power only to be used against those who challenge us and the values that we and our allies cherish,'' said Byrd, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Byrd said the submarine also symbolizes the willingness of residents in its namesake state to fight in wartime.

''The USS West Virginia will carry with her the spirit, the deep courage, loyalty and sacrifice that has characterized generations of young West Virginians through two world wars, Korea and Vietnam,'' he said.

The West Virginia, with a crew of 157, was christened Oct. 14, 1989, by Byrd's wife, Erma. Prior to Saturday's commissioning, the submarine underwent a series of sea trials, during which it experienced the fewest problems of any Trident submarine, said James Turner, vice president and general manager of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics.

''This ship will be protecting our country when our grandchildren are adults. The West Virginia is designed for the long haul, to play a lasting role in our country's strategic defense force,'' Claman said.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (OCT. 21) UPI - Mikhail Gorbachev said the Soviet Union has held a ban on nuclear weapons testing for the past year, the first time a Soviet leader has publicly acknowledged the moratorium, an international anti-nuclear group reported Saturday.

The Soviet president, who last week received the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize, expressed his ''alarm'' over continued nuclear testing and pledged to take up the issue with President Bush when the two next meet, said a spokesman for International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War.

The Cambridge-based group, which won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1985, said it received a telegram from Gorbachev stating the Soviet Union has not engaged in nuclear weapons testing during the past year.

''You know the position of the Soviet Union and you are right in saying that the principal strategy of the U.S.S.R in this matter has been actions that would lead to a complete end of nuclear testing,'' Gorbachev said in a message delivered through the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

''We have proved that those were indeed actions, and not words, by our unilateral moratorium on nuclear weapon tests, which, for reasons beyond our control, did not develop into a complete and definitive cessation of such tests, and by our practices over the past year when we have not conducted a single nuclear test,'' he said.

Although U.S. officials were aware that the Soviets had not tested nuclear weapons for the past year, this is the first public acknowledgment from Soviet officials, said Peter Zheutlin, director of public affairs for the group.

''Everyone has known it was the case. The important thing is that this is the first public acknowledgment that there is in fact a moratorium,'' Zheutlin said.

''The significance of this is that nuclear weapons testing is critical in order to modernize a nuclear arsenal. The fact that the Soviets haven't tested in a year means that their nuclear weapons (buildup) is virtually at a standstill,'' he said.

Zheutlin said Gorbachev had announced a moratorium on nuclear weapons testing in 1985 and invited the United States to reciprocate. The Soviet leader extended his ban through February 1987, but abandoned it when the United States failed to take similar action, Zheutlin said.

In his message to the IPPNW, Gorbachev expressed that his regret that the United States was not yet ready to accept a ''total prohibition of nuclear testing'' and said he would broach the issue when he next met with Bush.

''It goes without saying that the Soviet Union's pledge to completely ban all nuclear testing at any time and and for all times, if the U.S. does likewise, still stands,'' Gorbachev said.

''The key point is Gorbachev's reiteration that if the United States will stop nuclear testing they will stop forever,'' Zheutlin said. ''Nuclear testing is quite easily linked to the problem of nuclear proliferation. They are putting increased emphasis on this. They would like the U.S. to move this issue back to center stage on the U.S.-Soviet arms control agenda. They understand better than the U.S. government how central this issue is.''

Zheutlin said he thought the Soviet moratorium was partly in response to a strong grass-roots opposition movement in the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan, that country's principal testing site.

''They don't want to inflame the passions of the local people,'' he said. ''Ordinary people are standing up to the Soviet military complex. We have not been able to put a crimp in the American nuclear buildup. Very ordinary Soviet folks have accomplished that in their country.''

(OCT. 20) UPI - President Bush is considering submitting his own compromise proposal to major civil rights legislation to Capitol Hill. The president has demanded that Congress revise the Civil Right Act of 1990 or face a veto, saying the measure would allow unacceptable job quotas. Aides say Bush is considering proposing alternate language.

House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington, however, said today that he rejects any action that would include what he called a ''recycling'' of previous positions already rejected by House and Senate negotiators. He told reporters- ''Those changes have been considered and rejected.'' Foley says he doubts negotiators will go back and open up the bill again.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (OCT. 21) UPI - A jury acquitted three members of rap group 2 Live Crew Saturday on obscenity charges for a live nightclub performance of songs from an album that a federal judge had declared obscene.

The jury of four women and two men deliberated about two hours before returning the innocent verdict, which brought cheers from family and fans of the Miami-based rap group when it was read in a packed Broward County courtroom.

''Let's go to Disney World,'' band leader Luther Campbell told reporters after the trial, which included a six-day jury selection process and five days of testimony.

If convicted of the misdemeanor obscenity charge, Campbell and band members Mark Ross and Christopher Wongwon each would have faced a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

When he heard the verdict, Campbell turned to courtroom observers, raised his hand in victory and smiled.

The charges were the result of a June 10 performance of songs from the group's hit album, ''As Nasty as They Wanna Be,'' at Club Futura in Hollywood. The show occurred just two days after a federal judge in Fort Lauderdale deemed the album and its sexually explicit lyrics obscene in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties.

The group plans to resume touring and again perform concerts in Broward County said Campbell, who described the case as a political ploy by Broward Sheriff Nick Navarro to posture an anti-obscenity stance.

''You know Navarro. He likes these cameras,'' Campbell told reporters. ''But now these cameras are going to hurt him when he runs for re-election.''

Campbell said the verdict echoed the sentiment of most county residents.

''We did overcome. A lot of people used this situation to look at Broward in a bad way,'' Campbell said. ''The people I have met in Broward County don't feel the same way as Nick Navarro.''

Defense attorney Bruce Rogow said the verdict ends the controversy surrounding the album.

''The jury has spoken and there is a lesson to be learned here,'' Rogow said. ''When you live in this country, no matter what color you are, you still have a right to speak, no matter if you challenge people or say things they don't like.''

Defense attorney Allen Jacobi, a music law specialast who represented Ross, said: ''Speaking as someone who is involved in the music industry on a daily basis, I know the music industry has been watching this, and it is great to know the First Admendment is still alive.''

Assistant State Attorney Pedro Dijols said he would have preferred a guilty verdict but was satisfied the jury heard the state's case, which included testimony of two undercover detectives who interpreted unintelligible tape recordings of the performance for jurors.

''The people of Broward County have spoken,'' Dijos said. ''Our main concern was that this actually got to a jury. Personally, you always want to win but the main thing here was to give the people a chance to decide.''

Among the yardsticks the jury considered was whether the group's performance had artistic or political value, and whether the performance would be morbid or shameful to the average person in the community.

The defense presented two expert witnesses, both of whom testified that rap music such as that performed by 2 Live Crew is an art that has as its basis black-American culture.

''The expert witnesses gave us a picture of the progress of music, but most of us felt that even if they hadn't been there ... we felt they were not guilty '' said juror Beverly Resnick, 65, whose son is a professional musician.

Athough 2 Live Crew's songs are peppered with profanity and sexually explicit lyrics, ''I've heard them before. The words are words. In this day and age, this is the venacular of our youth,'' Resnick said.

Another juror, David Garisow, a recent music graduate from University of Miami said jurors had little trouble agreeing on the verdict. ''Everybody said the minute the two sides rested, we knew what our decision was. It was only a matter of getting everyone to say it,'' he said.

Whether 2 Live Crew would face similar charges for a repeat performance in Broward was uncertain, Dijols said.

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (OCT. 21) UPI - Hundreds of refugees fleeing strife-torn Liberia arrived Saturday in Sierra Leone aboard a Nigerian naval vessel, pouring into the capital and prompting fears by health officials that a cholera outbreak could be imminent.

Scores of refugees from Guinea, Sierra Leone and Liberia disembarked the ''River Oli'' after an arduous passage from Monrovia, the scene of months of civil war. The refugees said there were 25 deaths during the passage, including 10 soldiers from Guinea, and that six civilians who died during the journey were tossed into the sea.

Scores of arriving children were taken for immediate medical care, suffering from acute malnutrition and cholera. Seven babies are also said to have been born on the trip, but two died before they arrived in Freetown, passengers said.

Most of the refugees appeared malnourished and could be seen trading belongings such as tape recorders and radios for bread and other food.

With the large exodus of refugees and evacuees to Sierra Leone, Red Cross authorities in Freetown expressed concern about the possibility of a cholera outbreak in the capital.

One Red Cross official told United Press International that most of the dead refugees and sick people arriving in Sierra Leone suffered from cholera and there is no supply of vaccines if any outbreak occurs.

The vessel was scheduled to leave port for Guinea to continue transporting refugees and dead soldiers back to the East African nation.

Many Guineans and Nigerians were in Liberia as part of an East African peacekeeping force sent into Monrovia to halt battle between rival Liberian leaders who toppled the government of slain President Samuel Doe but then turned their guns on each other.

Paris police say some eight-thousand people marched through the French capital

In London, authorities say a huge demonstration against a controversial poll tax turned ugly today as protesters tossed gasoline bombs, stormed barricades and looted shops. WASHINGTON (OCT. 21) UPI - President Bush, jockeying to avoid a politically damaging rejection of major civil rights legislation, dispatched his own plan to Capitol Hill Saturday night in hopes of resolving the contentious question of unacceptable job quotas.

Bush, who had demanded that Conrgess revise the Civil Rights Act of 1990 or face a veto proposed an alternate bill containing some significant concessions - the product of a flurry of last-minute White House and congressional negotiations aimed at salvaging the widely supported legislation.

Reiterating his contention that the landmark bill passed this week by both the House and Senate contained, ''critical defects'' that would lead to quota hiring, Bush declared, ''Congress has the opportunity to cure the defects that neccesitate my rejection of (the legislation). With the changes I am forwarding to the Congress, together we can produce legislation that will strike a blow against racial bias without institutionalizing quotas.

''I urge the Congress to enact my proposal before adjournment,'' he added in a statement announcing that he would veto the current bill Monday. In passing the bill, neither house had the margins necessary to override a veto.

Bush legal adviser C. Boyden Gray, who spent months working with Congress to craft compromise legislation, said the new plan contains several key changes in language aimed at easing the burden on employers, including the placement of a $150,000 total cap on punitive and compensatory damages sought by employees charging racial discrimination.

''That's more than we have ever acknowledged before,'' Gray told reporters.

The new plan, the first time Bush has formally embraced shifting the legal burden back on business, incorporated an agreement reached in July with Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and chief of staff John Sununu that would at the same raise the standards needed for a defendant to prove racial discrimination. That would assuage Bush's concerns that employers would have to resort to quota hiring to protect themselves against a crush of litigation.

Gray and White House press secretatry Marlin Fitzwater acknowledged that it was not at all clear whether Congress would reopen the question, but the spokesman said, ''We hope this bill will pass.''

''We hope that once Congress sees our bill is very close to the current one and that it makes only those changes dealing with the quota problem that they will indeed turn to this bill as an appropriate correction,'' Fitzwater said. How Congress would react was indeed unclear.

In fact, no sooner had word surfaced Saturday that Bush would come forward with a compromise plan, House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., rejected any action that would include a ''recycling'' of previous positions already rejection by congressional negotiators.

''I doubt we would go back and open up the bill again,'' Foley said.

Both bills would reverse or modify six Supreme Court decisions last year that supporters say weakened civil rights laws and made it tougher for women and blacks to prove discrimination. The most contentious issue centers on one decision in which the court effectively set aside an 18- year-old standard that placed the burden of proof on businesses to show that their hiring and promotion practices were based not on discrimination but on business necessity.

With the election just weeks away, and already embattled Bush, who has watched his populatity fall in recent weeks said, ''I want to sign a civil rights bill ... The administration has tried to work with Congress in good faith on these issues, but I cannot accept legislation that is unfair.''

The issue of taxes is again consuming budget negotiators' attention on Capitol Hill.

Democratic and Republican leaders held private meetings today, trying to reconcile the differences between House and Senate deficit-cutting plans.

The grueling process brought White House chief of staff John Sununu and budget director Richard Darman to Capitol Hill to meet with Senate G-O-P leader Robert Dole. On the House side, Democratic leaders conferred.

The Senate package under consideration would increase the federal gasoline tax nine and a half cents a gallon by 1992. The White House supports an agreement similar to the Senate version.

The House version does NOT raise gas taxes, but it does raise income tax rates on the wealthiest Americans from 28 to 33 percent. It would also impose a 10 percent surtax on those with taxable incomes of more than one-Million-dollars a year.

Senate leaders have indicated the final version canNOT change much and still survive, considering that it passed by a fragile eight-vote margin.

And one key Republican in the House says he does NOT like either bill because both raise taxes. Georgia's Newt Gingrich says he intends to vote against the conference package based on the two versions being considered.

Another youngster was severely burned and four adults injured in the house fire in a working-class section of the eastern New Hampshire city.

Officials say half of the wooden home's first floor- including the stairwell- was ablaze by the time firefighters arrived at the scene.

Four children were trapped by the flames on the second floor, with firefighters managing to save the life of one child. In the words of one

A cigarette apparently caused the fire in the home that was NOT equipped with smoke detectors.

President Bush has 10 days to make what is possibly one of the most important decisions of his presidency.

He has 10 days to sign or veto the Civil Rights Act of 1990, which arrived at the White House today. The bill was passed by the House and Senate this week, and has the support of major civil rights and women's groups.

Bush threatens to veto it unless it's changed. Aides say he's considering proposing a compromise to avoid a politically damaging veto just weeks before the congressional elections.

The bill would reverse or modify several Supreme Court decisions that backers say weakened civil rights laws and made it tougher for women and blacks to prove discrimination.

The president's main concern is that the bill would prompt employers to impose job quotas to protect themselves against a crush of litigation.

Chances for a compromise appear dim. House Speaker Thomas Foley says the changes sought by the White House have already been considered and rejected. The Washington Democrat says he doubts lawmakers ''would go back and open up the bill again.''

(OCT. 20) UPI - A Fort Lauderdale, Florida, jury deliberated about two hours today before acquitting three members of the rap group 2 Live Crew of obscenity charges. In issuing the innocent verdict, the jury rejected prosecution charges that the Miami rap group was- quoting here- ''trying to make a buck'' off obscenity. The band members were charged following a June 10th nightclub performance of songs from an album that a federal judge declared obscene. .

2 Live Crew band leader Luther Campbell says his band plans to resume touring and again perform concerts in Broward County. But Campbell predicts the trial's publicity will wind up hurting Navarro when he runs for re-election.

Congressional and White House budget negotiators are back at the bargaining table. The president's chief of staff and budget director conferred with Senate Republican leaders today, while House Democratic leaders also met. House Speaker Tom Foley says the talks are ''going well,'' but added he could NOT provide any details. At issue are two different deficit reduction packages that must be reconciled before the government runs out of money on Wednesday.

In New York today, protesters rallied against the U-S military presence in the Persian Gulf, chanting ''We won't kill for Texaco'' and other anti-war slogans. Police say there were NO incidents or arrests among the crowd estimated at about five-thousand people. The crowd jammed Manhattan's Columbus Circle before marching down Broadway to Times Square.

(OCT. 20) UPI - A huge demonstration against a controversial poll tax turned ugly in London, with protesters hurling gasoline bombs and storming barricades. Police say five protesters and three police officers were taken to the hospital with head and chest injuries following today's violence... in which 91 people were arrested. The poll tax has met widespread opposition because it does NOT discriminate according to wealth.

It's beginning to look a lot like winter in parts of the nation. Frigid air pushed into the central United States today, with as much as nine inches of snow falling in the Rocky Mountains of Colorado. Elsewhere, somewhat less severe snowstorms socked New Mexico, Nebraska and Kansas... with three inches of snow reported in portions of all three states.

A Pittsburgh radio station says it did get one irate telephone call in response to its latest promotion. The F-M station says one man called to say- quote- ''Humans doN'T breed''... and then hung up. The station is holding a contest in which four couples will spend a weekend at a posh hotel, with the first couple to make a baby winning a grand prize.

LOS ANGELES (OCT. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Turner Broadcasting System Inc. (ASE:TBS) and Pathe Communications (NYSE:PCC) announced Sunday a broad-ranging series of agreements under which TBS' two entertainment networks, TBS SuperStation and Turner Network Television (TNT), will license exclusive English-language television exhibition rights in the United States to nearly 1,000 films in the MGM/UA feature film library.

The TBS exhibition period for each film generally will be 10 years commencing upon availability.

The license agreements cover films released theatrically by MGM/UA through December 1988, as well as certain 1989 releases. Among the features licensed to TBS are: the first 16 James Bond movies; ''Rocky I'' through ''Rocky IV;'' the Pink Panther films; contemporary movies such as ''Rainman,'' ''A Fish Called Wanda,'' ''Wargames'' and ''Yentl;'' and classic titles like ''West Side Story,'' ''The Good, The Bad and The Ugly,'' ''Annie Hall,'' ''Fiddler on the Roof'' and ''Some Like It Hot,'' among others.

The agreements do not include any future MGM/UA productions.

TBS' rights pursuant to the license agreement are subject to consummation of the closing of the planned merger of MGM/UA Communications Co. with a subsidiary of Pathe Communications Corp. The first installation of the license fees will be funded on Monday, Oct. 22, 1990, in anticipation of the planned closing of the merger.

In making the announcement, TBS Board Chairman and President R.E. Turner stated: ''The MGM/UA film library is the finest collection of contemporary and classic movies available for license in the market today. We are extraordinarily pleased to be able to offer this programming to the viewers of our networks in the coming years.''

MGM/UA also will license to TBS SuperStation and TNT the exclusive U.S. television rights to the Pink Panther cartoons, ''The New Twilight Zone'' and the classic science fiction series ''Outer Limits.'' Each license period is approximately 10 years.

In another transaction, MGM/UA also will license 300 films from the MGM/UA library for use on TBS' recently announced satellite-delivered, English-language TNT feed to Latin America. The service is scheduled to begin operation in 1991.

The exhibition period for each film is generally five years.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 21) - Indian Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh has asked his party to brace itself for the worst after Hindus and Moslems rejected his suggested compromise over a disputed shrine, sources said Sunday.

Senior sources in the ruling Janata Dal (People's Party) said Mr. V.P. Singh had told his party colleagues to be "prepared for the worst-case scenario" -- taken to mean the possible fall of his 11-month-old government.

The 59-year-old premier sounded the warning after both Hindus and Moslems turned down his "three-point formula" to resolve rival claims over a disputed 16th century site where Hindus want to start building a temple on October 30.

Under the formula proposed Friday, the government would have taken over the site in the northern town of Ayodhya, arranged a quick Supreme Court verdict on the dispute and urged Hindus to build their temple on an adjacent site.

The powerful Hindu-revivalist Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP, Indian People's Party) and the fundamentalist Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP, World Hindu Council) rejected the compromise together with the Moslems.

The BJP is an ally of the minority government, which is dependent on the support of the party's 86 MPs for its survival. The BJP has threatened to withdraw its support in case the temple building plans are hampered.

BJP President Lal Krishan Advani, who is on a 10,000-kilometre (6,000-mile) road journey to reach Ayodhya by October 30 to supervise the temple's construction, was quoted by newspapers as saying the formula had been designed only to "buy time" for the government.

For its part, the VHP threatened to launch a "massive agitation" if the 3,200 square feet of disputed land, where it says the Hindu Lord Rama was born, is not handed over to Hindus.

"Anything coming in the way of the date, time, place and the model of the proposed temple will be rejected," VHP General Secretary Ashok Singhal said.

Moslem leaders called for a nationwide general strike on October 30 to protest the government's takeover of the Ayodhya site, where a mosque built by Moghul emperor Babar stands.

Salahuddin Owaisi, chairman of a panel spearheading the Moslem cause, said the takeover amounted to a "betrayal" of Moslem interests.

He said the move violated Moslems' religious freedom and he slammed Mr. V.P. Singh for not halting Mr. Advani's journey to Ayodhya.

Sunday's newspapers said the prime minister had intervened to stop Mr. Advani's planned arrest by the administration in the communally-sensitive eastern state of Bihar.

The Times of India said the arrest was prevented to give Mr. Advani time to "reconsider his stand" on the temple-construction and abandon his journey, which has sparked fears of a major Hindu-Moslem confrontation.

Janata Dal sources said Mr. Advani's arrest was still possible, adding that the government was making "frantic, last-ditch" efforts to persuade him to give up his confrontationist posture.

The five-party National Front coalition, of which the Janata Dal is the main partner, had been disheartened by the rejection of the compromise but was hoping the BJP would still come around, a senior party official said.

"Like the PM said, we are prepared for the worst," said the official, who spoke on grounds of anonymity. "But we are continuing our efforts in the hope that the BJP will still see sense."

He said the National Front and the BJP had at least one common cause left -- to prevent former prime minister Rajiv Gandhi from exploiting the situation and coming back to power.

The temple-mosque dispute is the latest in a series of crises to hit the V.P. Singh government, which in its brief duration has been battered by political infighting, continuing separatist violence in Punjab and Kashmir and student unrest over job quotas for backward castes.

Both the BJP and Mr. Gandhi's Congress (I) have predicted early general elections.

BELGRADE (OCT. 21) - Yugoslavia's biggest republic, Serbia, plans to abandon the country's federal legal system, press reports said Sunday. The republic of Slovenia has already done so.

The Serbian parliament Tuesday planned to pass a number of bills ''contravening federal regulations''. Among other things, the Serbian parliament would take control of the republic's energy and farm policy.

In a sharp comment on the disintegration of Yugoslavia's multi-nation structure, the Belgrade newspaper Politika pointed out that the federal government had last week enacted laws by emergency order ''of which it knew in advance that they would not be obeyed''.

Serbian Premier Stanko Radmilovic was quoted as saying that his state, a producer of electric power, had ''lost 120 million dollars'' to the hostile republics of Croatia and Slovenia because federally regulated energy prices were too low.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 21) - Many U.S. troops are finding that boredom is replacing the heat as their main enemy in the Saudi desert as their officers wage a battle to maintain morale.

One of the primary weapons in the fight to keep up the spirits of the more than 100,000 troops on the ground in Saudi Arabia is mail from home.

"If it wasn't for mail, a lot of people wouldn't be making it out here," said Private Frederick "Conan" Colon, 19, during a visit to a recreation center known as "Panther Paradise", which has been set up for M-1 tank crews of the 197th Mechanized Brigade.

The U.S. military has overcome initial distribution problems, and some of the units closest to the Saudi border with Kuwait are now receiving regular faxes and letters.

U.S. officers say they are well aware of the stress on their men of living in the desert for months on end and are doing their best to improve conditions and to provide recreation.

"You can't take soldiers and put them smack dab in the middle of the desert and not give them time off," said Colonel Ted Reid, 46, commander of the 197th

Mechanized Brigade.

His tank crews spend one day a week or two days every two weeks at "Panther Paradise," tents on the perimeter of their position.

The main facility at "Panther Paradise," or "Panther Penitentiary", as one soldier called it, is a tent made from a huge camouflage cargo parachute.

Inside are cots, a television set and a bookshelf stocked with a couple dozen paperbacks and magazines.

"We come over here to take our mind off things," said Private Robert Filbert.

The troops relax without any military duties, watch TV, take showers, play volleyball or touch football, and buy soft drinks and candy at the store.

"Most of the guys are tired and just want to go home," said Pvt. Filbert, 20, although he stressed: "We came here to do our jobs and we don't need anybody back home feeling sorry for us."

At a field artillery battalion of the 197th, soldiers pass the time and stay fit with a "sport of the month."

This month it's volleyball at 7:00 a.m., with flag football, soccer and softball lined up, provided the troops' worst fears are realized and they are forced to stay in Saudi Arabia that long.

The battalion also lifts weights made from sandbags or from the empty water bottles which have become a feature of the desert landscape.

"We got good morale," said Sergeant Steve Jackson of a 155mm howitzer battery.

"If we don't, we create it," he added as he sat under camouflage netting swatting flies and cleaning his M-16 rifle.

Among the diversions is a miniature ping pong table made from plywood with a red and black checkerboard drawn on top.

Killing flies can kill time too, although the body count per man has dropped off with the onset of cooler weather from an average of 300 of the pests a day.

Living conditions for U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia vary widely from unit to unit and from service to service.

Some troops the most forward eat only packaged rations, while those in the field, are yet to receive hot meals, take only sponge baths and live in cramped tents on the sand.

"Whoever said morale was high is lying," said Specialist H.B. Carlton Broughton of the 101st Airborne Division, one of the U.S. units closest to the Saudi border with Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

The 23-year-old soldier complained about the spartan living conditions and being made to fight for "cheaper oil."

Spec. Broughton may have reason to feel particularly bitter, though. He said his wife filed for divorce when he got his orders to leave for Saudi Arabia and he had not been allowed to go home.

He also said he had not received any help from the army, although U.S. officers stress the family support programs operated by each unit.

MANAMA (OCT. 21) - A U.S. navy spokesman confirmed Sunday that warning shots were fired to stop an Iraqi freighter in the Gulf but he said he had no knowledge that American and allied ships had been alerted after the incident.

He said shots had been fired in a ''routine measure'' across the bow of the freighter when it ignored a radio order to stop. The ship was searched. The outcome of the search was not immediately known.

U.S. and Kuwaiti diplomats expressed surprise about two newspaper reports Sunday alleging that Iraq had secretly been withdrawing occupation troops from southern Kuwait in the past two days.

The United Arab Emirates newspaper Al-Khaleej said hundreds of Iraqi tanks and personnel carriers had been pulled out of southern Kuwait during the past two nights towards Al-Mutlaa in the north. It spoke of an organised retreat which had taken place only at night.

The Bahraini daily Akhbar al-Khaleej quoted Kuwaiti refugees as claiming they had ''not seen a single Iraqi soldier'' in southern Kuwait. The southern border post Nuweiseeb had been unoccupied and no one had confiscated their passports.

In Baghdad, petrol stations were temporarily sold out after thousands of motorists filled up their tanks before a new measure to ration petrol goes into effect Tuesday.

In Kuwait, only the embassies of the United States, France and Britain continued to resist pressure from Iraqi occupation troops. Canadian diplomats suspended their work Saturday and were told to leave Kuwait City after they ran out of food.

KABUL (OCT. 21) - Afghan security forces launched a push on Sunday to recapture "one or two" security posts overrun by mujahedeen guerrillas in a strategic provincial capital, a top military officer said here.

General Nabi Azimi, the first deputy defence minister, told reporters that troops were continuing a drive to wrest control of the posts in Kalat, the capital of Zabul province.

"Military operations (in Kalat) are continuing. One or two captured security posts are still in the hands of the opposition. We have already recaptured one post," Gen. Azmi said.

He said the captured posts were about four kilometers (2.5 miles) from the city centre and added that Kalat itself was under government control.

Government troops have beaten back a major resistance assault on the city with heavy artillery fire and aerial support, he said.

Kabul said it has killed over 200 guerrillas during the battle, which erupted eight days ago, but has not given its own losses.

Security forces were also moving to clear the highway between Kalat and Kandahar to the southwest in a bid to allow the free flow of traffic on the country's main highway linking western, southern and southeastern prvinces with the capital.

The militants have intensified their attacks in the past month, but their best efforts crumbled in the face of heavy rocket, artillery and air attacks by Afghan forces, Gen. Azimi said.

ISLAMABAD (OCT. 21) - A total of 1,331 candidates, 722 of them independents, will run for 215 national assembly seats in the October 24 elections in Pakistan, the country's election commissioner said Sunday.

Chief election commissioner Naimuddin said results would be tabulated and sealed at each of the 33,736 polling stations nationwide in the presence of party candidates or their representatives before being sent to Islamabad for announcement.

As in the past, the elections constituency results would not be announced until complete, he said, adding that counting would begin as soon as polling was over.

Commission statistics showed 182 candidates running under the flag of the People's Democratic Alliance (PDA) headed by former prime minister Benazir Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party (PPP).

The elections were called as a result of Ms. Bhutto's ouster on August 6 on charges of mismanagement. She has since charged that top-level rigging could occur because the presidency planned to set up a special cell to "clear" the results before they were announced.

Denying the allegation, Mr. Naimuddin said Sunday there would be no deviation from normal procedure.

Ms. Bhutto's main opponent, the Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI), has fielded 147 candidates but has enough candidates from allied smaller parties to match the Bhutto camp, commission figures show.

Observers said one of the main reasons that independents outnumbered party candidates was strict party selection rules which had led many former seat holders and candidates to try to run on their own.

Some 48.6 million people are eligible to vote in the polls, but many observers have predicted that turnout this year may be lower than the 1988 elections which brought Ms. Bhutto to power, when 43 per cent of the electorate cast their votes.

Queried on candidates who have exceeded their permitted campaign expenditure, a normal and traditionally unpunished practice here where candidates shell out million of rupees (dollars) for feasts, processions and rallies, Mr. Naimuddin repeated the usual assurances that if proof were provided, action would be taken.

Two candidates have already been returned unopposed.

DAMASCUS (OCT. 21) - Lebanese President Elias Hrawi left here Sunday after 10 hours of talks with Syrian counterpart Hafez al-Assad and a commitment by Damascus to help promote "national understanding" in Lebanon.

Lebanese sources said the dicussions over Saturday and Sunday dealt with plans to disband Lebanon's volatile militias and efforts by Mr. Hrawi to extend his authority after the fall of rebel Christian leader Michel Aoun.

A Syrian presidential spokesman on Saturday said President Assad had pledged that his country "will furnish all possible assistance to help Lebanon achieve national understanding."

Syrian forces, who control more than two-thirds of Lebanon, joined Lebanese Army regulars October 13 to end Gen. Aoun's rebellion.

But the Lebanese political scene was thrown into turmoil Sunday with the brutal assassination of Dany Chamoun, a prominent Christian figure and ally of Gen. Aoun.

President Hrawi denounced the killing of Mr. Chamoun, his wife and two children as an assault on "stability and peace in Lebanon."

Mr. Hrawi's government is heavily dependent on Syria, which has deployed some 35,000 troops in Lebanon, and Syrian assistance is seen as crucial to his efforts to bring the militias under state control.

JOHANNESBURG (OCT. 21) - South African President Frederik de Klerk leaves here late Sunday on a diplomatic foray to the Netherlands and Luxembourg with a discreet stop-over in Morocco.

The trip comes one month after the president's sucessful visit to the United States.

Presidential spokesman Caspar Venter said Mr. De Klerk would have a day-long "unofficial working visit" in Morocco, the first visit there by a South African head of state, and was expected to meet King Hassan.

The trip to Morocco was kept secret until it was announced last week by Foreign Minister Pik Botha. No details of Mr. De Klerk's itinerary in Morocco would be disclosed, Mr. Venter said.

Morocco has reportedly bought weapons from South Africa in the past and the two countries have had trade links for some years, the pro-government Beeld newspaper said Friday.

According to diplomatic sources cited by Beeld, Mr. Botha has already made a secret visit to Morocco.

Mr. De Klerk was invited to the Arab country but not for an official visit, Mr. Venter added. He would not say who extended the invitation. The president will be accompanied by his wife Marike and by Mr. Botha.

The visit is the latest in a series to African states by Mr. De Klerk since he took over leadership of the National Party in February last year.

Observers believe Mr. De Klerk is likely to visit another as yet unnamed African country before he returns to South Africa on Friday.

He was to leave South Africa at midnight Sunday, and to arrive in Morocco at noon Monday, Mr. Venter said, after a refuel stop-over at Abidjan in Ivory Coast.

On Tuesday, he leaves for a two-day official visit to the Netherlands.

This visit has special significance to Pretoria because European Economic Community heads of state are expected to make a definitive decision on economic sanctions against South Africa when they meet in Rome on December 15.

According to reports here, Mr. De Klerk's visit to the Netherlands is not expected to change the Dutch government's stance on economic sanctions but could, at best, pave the way for a hesitant resumption of cultural contacts.

Mr. De Klerk's trip to the Netherlands is the first official visit there by a South African government leader in over 40 years.

Although the South Africans expect to face anti-apartheid demonstrations, Mr. Botha has hailed the trip as a breakthrough in relations with the Netherlands.

The lifting of a state of emergency in violence-prone Natal province, announced last week, is expected to be a point in favour of Mr. De Klerk during his trip.

In the Netherlands, then in Luxembourg on Thursday, Mr. De Klerk is expected to discuss reform developments in South Africa, sanctions against Pretoria and the recent spate of violence in black townships.

South Africa's remaining discriminatory laws and the release of political prisoners are also expected to be discussed.

Families of South African political prisoners have said they will hand a letter for Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers to the Netherlands Embassy in Pretoria on Monday, asking him to intervene on their behalf and "get answers".

Mr. De Klerk will also meet with Dutch foreign minister Hans van der Broek and Queen Beatrix, and address the Dutch Senate.

Constitutional Development Minister Gerrit Viljoen will be acting president during Mr. De Klerk's absence.

LA SPEZIA, Italy (OCT. 21) - The government of Argentina is considering sending more military forces to the Gulf, the Argentine foreign affairs minister said Sunday.

Domingo Cavallo said his government was considering sending air and land forces, including doctors and nurses. He said the planes would serve as logistical support for the two Argentine ships on their way to enforce the U.N. embargo.

He said the planes could also evacuate, if necessary, Argentine and other Latin American citizens from the Gulf region.

Mr. Cavallo, who spoke aboard the corvette Spiro on a stop-over in this Italian port en route to the Gulf, said no political decision had yet been taken, however.

Argentina is the only Latin-American nation so far to send military forces to the Gulf to help enforce the embargo imposed on Iraq after it invaded Kuwait on August 2.

NEW DELHI (OCT. 21) - Police in the northern state of Uttar Pradesh have detained 17,000 people and sealed the town where Hindus plan to build a temple at a site sacred also to Moslems, reports said Sunday.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) said the state administration on Sunday also banned sale of guns and explosives to prevent violence on October 30, when militant Hindus plan to start building the temple in Ayodhya.

It did not disclose when the 17,000 arrests were made, but said those detained were activists of militant Hindu groups and the rightist Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP, Indian People's Party), which is spearheading the temple building campaign.

"With the presence of 30,000 policemen and paramilitary troopers, the holy town gives the look of an inaccessible fort," PTI said in a dispatch from Ayodhya, 700 kilometres (420 miles) north of New Delhi.

The Uttar Pradesh administration has barricaded highways to New Delhi and Haryana state, halted more than half of its fleet of state buses and set up police checkpoints to prevent Hindus from reaching Ayodhya, PTI said.

Thirty-four trains passing near Ayodhya have been stopped and other trains entering Uttar Pradesh were also being searched for Hindu activists, PTI said.

Schools and colleges have been also shut until November 1 to prevent students from taking part in the campaign.

Security was stepped up after state Chief Minister Mulayam Singh Yadav's refusal to allow Hindu activists into Ayodhya, where the BJP and the fundamentalist Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP, World Hindu Council) want to build the temple.

The BJP has threatened to withdraw its support from Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh's coalition government over the issue, prompting the premier to warn his supporters Sunday to brace themselves for the worst.

BJP President Lal Krishan Advani is currently on a 10,000-kilometre (6,000-mile) trek aiming to reach Ayodhya by October 30 to supervise the temple's construction. He will try to enter Uttar Pradesh Wednesday.

A BJP leader said here meanwhile that the prime minister had again called on the BJP to take part in talks in a bid to find a compromise.

He said the BJP had agreed to the talks with the 59-year-old premier, adding that his party will again try to explain its views on the temple issue.

"The government has put the disputed site in jeopardy by taking over the shrine through a presidential ordinance on Friday," BJP General Secretary Murli Manohar Joshi said.

Mr. Joshi reiterated the BJP's warning that it will withdraw support from the government if Mr. Advani is hampered either by the Uttar Pradesh administration or by the federal government.

Mr. V.P. Singh, before the presidential ordinance was announced Friday, had proposed in a three-point formula a government take-over of the site, having the Supreme Court decide on the rival Hindu and Moslem claims, and he urged Hindus to build their temple on an adjacent site.

The formula was rejected outright by Moslems and Hindus.

The Moslem community, which makes up 12 per cent of India's 850 million people says the Babri Masjid (mosque) was built by Moghul emperor Babar in the 16th century.

Hindus claim the mosque was built after razing a Hindu temple of Lord Rama, the legandary Hindu king-warrior revered as an incarnation of Vishnu, the preserver of life.

LIMA (OCT. 21) - A two-day wave of politically-motivated violence claimed the lives of at least 18 people, including a husband and wife who were beheaded by Maoist guerrillas, police said Sunday.

The most serious episode occurred Friday in the town of Pucara, 315 kilometers (195 miles) east of Lima in the department of Junin, where Maoist Shining Path rebels massacred eight people, police said.

The victims included Ricardina Romero, 47, and her husband Julio Sosa, 52, who the rebels beheaded, said police. Felix Laurente, 49, and his son Lenin Jesus Laurente, 20, were shot to death. A mechanic, two shopkeepers and an eighth unidentified man also were killed, police said.

Also Friday, about 50 rebels attacked a peasant self-defense group in Gran Shinungari, 200 kilometers (125 miles) east of the Andean city of Ayacucho, police said. Three peasants and five rebels were killed, they said.

Shining Path rebels also killed two policemen Saturday, firing on their squad car with automatic weapons as the police traveled through the Lima district of San Martin, police said. The policemen's car crashed into a mini-bus filled with passengers, injuring five people, police said.

DEN HELDER, Netherlands (OCT. 21) - The Dutch frigate Witte de With, currently patrolling the Gulf to help enforce the United Nations embargo against Iraq, saved eight shipwrecked Iranians on Sunday, a Dutch navy spokesman said.

The frigate's crew was warned by a Panamanian vessel, the Glory Central, to look out for survivors after the Glory Central had found parts of a boat, the spokesman said.

The Iranians were aboard a 15-metre (45-foot) sailing boat which was on its way to Dubai with a cargo of fruit. The survivors said their boat was hit during the night by a ship, probably a tanker, which continued its route.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (OCT. 21) - A house fire early Sunday killed five children who were trapped in their upstairs bedrooms and died of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

A woman and her son jumped from an upstairs bedroom to escape the blaze which began on the ground floor of the 2-12 storey frame house, Fire Investigator Albert Lugo said.

The house was engulfed in flames by the time firefighters arrived, thwarting efforts to rescue those inside, he said.

The woman was hospitalized in fair condition with burns. The victims were four boys and a girl, aged to two to 12, Cuyahoga County Coroner Elizabeth Balraj said.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (OCT. 21) - An Iraqi cargo ship ignored warning shots from a U.S. destroyer in the Gulf on Sunday and was headed for Yemen followed by an Italian warship, U.S. military officials said here.

In Rome, the Italian Defence Ministry confirmed that the Italian frigate Libeccio had been trailing the Iraqi merchant vessel, the Al Bahar Al Arabi, since early Sunday.

An Italian Defence Ministry spokesman said the frigate would continue to follow the Iraqi vessel across the Strait of Hormuz and in the southern area of the Gulf of Oman, "in coordination with allied craft" in the area.

The Iraqi cargo boat was boarded by a U.S. naval team on Saturday and its captain agreed to return to Iraq or be taken into port, said Commander J.D. Van Sickle, a U.S. Navy spokesman.

After the boarding party left, however, the Iraqi ship continued towards the Yemen port of Aden, followed by the destroyer USS O'Brien and the Italian frigate, Cmdr. Van Sickle said.

When the 7,000-ton Iraqi ship refused to acknowledge repeated radio challenges on Sunday, the O'Brien fired two shots from its five-inch guns, 25 rounds from its .50 calibre machine guns and 15 25mm rounds across the bow of the Al Bahar Al Arabi.

Despite the warning shots, "the ship's master indicated he did not intend to adhere to O'Brien's directions to return to Iraq," the navy spokesman said.

He said the Iraqi vessel was currently in the southern Gulf headed for the Strait of Hormuz and was being followed by the Italian warship.

Cmdr. Van Sickle said he did not know if any cargo was found aboard the Iraqi vessel during Saturday's search.

An international armada led by U.S. warships is in the Gulf, Arabian Sea and Red Sea to enforce the trade embargo imposed against Iraq by the U.N. Security Council following its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The multi-national fleet has carried out more than 2,350 interceptions since August.

On October 8, an Iraqi-registered tanker, the Tadmur, was forced into port after it was found to be carrying rice and flour.

BAGHDAD (OCT. 21) - Iraq will fight ''until achieving victory'' if attacked by the United States and its allies in the Gulf, the country's first deputy prime minister, Taha Yassin Ramadan, said here Sunday.

Ramadan said the multinational force assembled in the Gulf ''would not be able to define the area and the end of the battle if it would break out'', the Iraqi News Agency Ina reported.

Ramadan, who is a member of Iraq's Revolutionary Command Council, the highest authority in the country, said Iraq rejected war as a means of solving international disputes.

However, it ''would fight until achieving victory if the United States and its allies insisted on fanning war in the region''.

Ramadan, speaking during a meeting with a visiting Finnish member of parliament, said the United States was facing for the first time ''an Arab force that rejects blackmail and subordination''.

He described U.N. Security Council resolutions against Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait as ''illegitimate''. The U.N.'s charters do not ''provide for banning food, medicine and milk'' from the Iraqi people, he said. dpa bw WASHINGTON (OCT. 21) - Only Congress has the right to declare war and congressional leaders would return from their upcoming break if the Gulf crisis flared, Senate Majority leader George Mitchell said Sunday.

His statements underscored the tension between Congress and the Bush administration over whether the president, as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, can commit U.S. troops to war without a formal declaration by Congress.

"Only Congress can make that grave decision," said Mr. Mitchell, a Maine Democrat, in an interview on NBC television. "And in this respect, if the United States is to be committed to war, it requires action by Congress."

Congress is to adjourn, most likely next week after completing work on the budget, until mid-January. But Mr. Mitchell said congressional leaders were prepared to return if tension flared in the Gulf.

While the administration has said it would consult Congress if the president planned to declare war, members of Congress contend the Constitution requires the president to do more than consult lawmakers.

The 1973 War Powers Act obliges the president to consult with Congress before deploying troops into hostilities, or when hostilities are imminent, and withdraw forces from such situations within 60 to 90 days if Congress has not voted its approval.

The administration contends advance notification to Congress of any attack could ruin the element of military surprise.

FRANKFURT (OCT. 21) - Three German hostages released by Iraq arrived in Frankfurt Sunday via Jordan and Turkey. Three others are in Amman and are due to return home Monday, the German foreign ministry said.

Bonn government sources said there were indications that a seventh German hostage would be allowed to leave Iraq for Jordan Monday. One other German may be released in the course of the week.

The hostages had been held by Iraq for nearly three months along with thousands of other Westerners to deter an attack by U.S.-led forces in the Gulf.

Their release was facilitated by Dieter Schinzel and Gerhard Schmidt, German Social Democrats (Spd) and members of the European Parliament, who visited Baghdad two weeks ago.

PRAGUE (OCT. 21) - The official death toll from an explosion Thursday at the "1st May" coal mine at Karvina (northern Moravia) rose to 30 Sunday after salvage teams said there was no hope of finding nine missing miners.

The official Czechoslovakian news agency CTK said that the salvage teams continued to work under difficult conditions Sunday evening to find the bodies and bring them to the surface.

The explosion occurred at a depth of 750 metres (2,250 feet). Some 221 of 251 miners were evacuated. Three were hospitalized.

The accident was the most serious mining accident in Czechoslovakia since the September 1981 accident at the Pluto mine in Zaluzi (northern Bohemia) which killed 65 miners.

In May 1985 an accident at the Doubrava coal mine in the same mining basin as Karvina left 25 dead, 17 of whom were never found.

According to the first findings of a commission of enquiry, the fire-damp explosion at the "1st May" mine was probably set off by a spark from a coal breaker and mechanical loader.

Informed sources said work was suspended in the pit but could start again on Monday or Tuesday.

Before the accident, daily production of the Barbora pit was about 5,000 tonnes of coal -- 40 percent of the "1st May" mine's production. The mine has two other pits which were not affected by the disaster, the sources said.

OAXACA, Mexico (OCT. 21) EFE - Five Mexicans were rushed to hospital and 11 others were treated by doctors after a swarm of so-called African-strain bees attacked them in the southeastern city of Oaxaca, police said.

A police spokesman said a group of children had come across the bees Saturday on the wall of a house in the city, 507 km southeast of the capital.

After the children threw stones at the swarm, the bees attacked the group and other passers-by.

Five people were taken to hospital after they were badly stung, while the other 11 were given sedatives.

Firemen were called to the scene to drive the swarm away.

The African-strain bee is the result of an experimental cross between the European honeybee and its more aggressive African cousin.

Hundreds of cases of animals and humans being stung to death have been reported since the bees started migrating from Brazil in 1957.

Mexico was invaded by the insects four years ago and two children were killed last month after they came across the bees.

The African-strain, which can be found in swarms of up to 50,000, is very easily roused to attack.

PEREIRA, Colombia (OCT. 21) EFE - Four men claiming to be dissident members of the M-19 leftist rebel group-turned-political party have taken 11 people hostage in western Colombia, police said Sunday.

Police said the four entered a bar in the city of Pereira, tied up 12 clients and began drilling holes in walls adjacent to a jewelry store.

One of the 12, an elderly man, was later freed.

The group professed to be members of the Jaime Bateman group, named after one of the founders of the M-19 rebel group which in March laid down its arms and, together with other political groups, formed the M-19 Democratic Alliance political party.

But party spokespersons denied that the four were dissident mebers of the former guerrilla group, while Pereira city mayor Cesar Castillo described the gang as "common criminals".

The police surrounded the bar and exchanged fire with the would-be thieves but it was not immediately known if there were casualties.

DALLAS (OCT. 21) UPI - Doctors, nurses, and paramedics at the Cotton Bowl treated between 50 and 75 people who collapsed from heat exhaustion while waiting in Dallas' Cotton Bowl for a rock concert by the group Z-Z Top Saturday night.

More than 70,000 people crammed into the stadium on the grounds of the State Fair of Texas, without food or water, for up to seven hours before the concert.

Security guards had to pull the victims of heat exhaustion and dehyration from the crowd to safety.

There was pain on Rebecca Guerrero's face as she vowed not to give up her place on the front row on the stadium floor .

''We came here to see Z-Z Top,'' Guerrero said. ''I'll perk up when they start playing.''

Fifteen minutes later, Guerrero gave up and came out of the crowd.

Organizers had no water to spray on the crowd as they do at many rock concerts. A public relations spokesman said that was because the weather forecast had indicated it would be cool.

The afternoon temperature was in the low 80s under brilliant Texas sunshine, attracting thousands of fun-seekers to the State Fair on its closing weekend.

About a dozen concert-goers were taken to area hospitals for treatment. Others were treated at four aid stations in the stadium.

Shortly before the show began about 9 p.m., security guards began stopping people from coming out of the crowd, and even pushed one man's limp body back into the crowd.

''We got told not to,'' said one concert guard.

One man landed at the foot of the stage and collapsed.

The concert was the highlight of the final weekend of the state fair's 24-day run. The fair closes Sunday.

(OCT. 21) UPI - Thousands of peace activists opposed to America's deployment of troops in the Middle East marched and chanted anti-war slogans Saturday in 19 cities around the country in demonstrations that harked back to the days of the Vietnam War.

New York was the site of the largest demonstration with an estimated 5,000 protesters taking to the streets.

The activists jammed Manhattan's Columbus Circle for a rally then marched down Broadway to Times Square behind seven young conscientious objectors.

The event was one of 19 similar protests held Saturday in various U.S. cities, including Los Angeles; San Francisco; Seattle; Atlanta; Tucson, Ariz.; and Madison, Wis.

The New York demonstrators, a peaceful if theatrical assortment of the young and old, chanted anti-war slogans such as ''Hell No - We Won't Kill for Texaco '' and carried signs with acerbic slogans including, ''George Bush and Mag the Hag Will Put Your Kid In A Bag.''

A long line-up of speakers stepped up to a microphone on a flatbed truck to denounce the Bush Administration's commitment of troops to Saudi Arabia, rail against oil companies profitting from Gulf holdings, and decry diminishing federal funds for social works.

Several speakers invoked the non-violent legacy of the numerous anti- Vietnam War rallies held around the country in the late 1960s and early 1970s and some were veterans of that earlier movement.

''It's an honor to be here today representing the young people making up the country's newest anti-war movement,'' Manhattan civil libertarian lawyer Ronald Kuby thundered to the crowd ''No, they (the young people) won't kill for oil companies and no, they won't die for the bond market''

Kuby vowed that he and his law partner, attorney William Kunstler, would represent any reservists who wish to become conscientuous objectors.

Nearly 500 activists gathered in Los Angeles, carrying placards with slogans such as, ''No blood for oil'' and chanting ''Money for jobs, not for war.''

Among the more well-known speakers in Los Angeles was Ron Kovic, the Vietnam War veteran whose personal transformation from soldier to vehement anti-war protester inspired the 1989 film ''Born on the Fourth of July.''

''I want you to know you are part of a massive peace movement,'' Kovic told the crowd in one of the afternoon's more rousing speeches.

Kovic told reporters later it is his opinion that unless the military pulls out of the Middle East ''many people are going to be wounded and killed.''

''We are asking young men and women to die for big business (oil companies),'' he added.

''We don't want another Vietnam,'' he said. ''We don't want anymore body bags.''

Nancy Tuttle, the mother of a 19-year-old soldier stationed in Saudi Arabia, spoke publicly for the first time in her life before the crowd of about 500, reading excerpts from letters sent by her son, David.

'''We are the American hostages that no one talks about,''' Tuttle quoted from one of her son's letter.

About 500 banner-waving demonstrators marched through downtown Seattle. A similar anti-war demonstration in Olympia attracted about 200 people.
